ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST," THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1894. PRICE TWO CENTS.

THE MELOPOIA.

THE SEASON OF 1894 OPENED LAST EVENING.

A Large Audience Attests to the Society's Popularity. Incidentally, the Concert is Given Under Difficulties.

Music loving Plainfield was well represented at the Casino last evening, the occasion being the first private concert to the fourth season of the Melopoia.

The members felt that the concert as a whole was not up to the society's usual standard. This was due in part to circumstances beyond control. The prevalence of the grip during the past few months had much to do with it, preventing proper attendance at rehearsals, and the death of relatives of several leading voices, causing their absence, still further crippled.

To overcome the difficulty, Conductor Chapman, who was painfully conscious of the situation, brought singers from New York, but only partly succeeded.

The Society was also assisted by Mr. Henri Marteau, a most clever violinist, who won, perhaps, the most hearty applause of the evening.

The Standard Trio Club, composed of three charming young ladies—Miss Hilda M. Clark, soprano; Miss Winifred A. Williams, first alto; and Miss Rose M. Brady, second alto,—sang several trios, and their singing was warmly received.

Mme. Rosa Linde, contralto, rendered operatic selections with her usual ability, and was encored.

Miss Jessie M. Utter was the Society's accompanist, and acquitted herself with special credit considering the difficulties in her way.

Mr. Edwin M. Shonert accompanied the soloists.

Altogether the concert was a good one, although not as good as others the Society has given.

The following was the programme:

NO ONE WAS KILLED.

A Man Picking Coal Taken for a Dead Man.

About nine o'clock last evening considerable excitement was caused at the North avenue depot by the report that a man had been killed near Grant avenue, and his body was lying on the track. The report was made at the depot by a brakeman on one of the passenger trains when it reached the depot.

Several men started up the tracks to make an investigation. After searching carefully along the tracks as far as Grant avenue, they returned without finding any dead body.

It is supposed there was a man on the track picking coal, and as he crouched down between the tracks to escape observation, he was spied by the brakeman while going from one car to another. The brakeman, no doubt, it looked like the body of a dead man.

BITTEN BY A DOG.

Albert Smith Attacked While Delivering Papers.

Albert Smith, a newsboy, was badly bitten on the leg by a dog owned by Michael Weber of East Third street, last evening while he was delivering papers. His clothing was also considerably torn. The boy went to a doctor and had the wounds cauterized.

Crack Bowlers Beaten.

Messrs. Carty and Lynch, who are considered the crack bowlers of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum, recently challenged any two men of the club to a bowling match. The offer was accepted by Messrs. J. J. Kenny and F. Kiely. The game was rolled last night, and to the great surprise of the challengers they were downed by 54 pins. The scores made are as follows:

Total	318	Total	364

A Case of Urgent Need.

The ladies of the Relief Association have had brought to their notice a case of extreme destitution and ask for the following articles:—

A cooking stove and also simple household furniture, with the exception of a bed-stead, which has been furnished. The ladies request that these articles be sent to the relief rooms as soon as possible.

BREVITIES.

—Boys report good coasting on Hyde's hill.

—"Married Life," at Music Hall, tonight.

—Major Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R. will meet to-night.

—Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M. will hold a regular meeting to-night.

—A window in a store on Liberty street was broken by boys throwing snowballs yesterday.

—There will be a lecture and magic lantern exhibition at Hope chapel next Monday night.

—At to-morrow night's meeting of Mitantonomo Tribe the adoption ceremony will be performed.

—There are only nine prisoners in the county jail at Somerville. This is the smallest number at the jail in years.

—The Dunellens will bowl the "Just Woke Ups," of the Union County Roadsters, on the Dunellen alleys, to-night.

—A number of poor people took advantage of the W. C. T. U.'s offer of soup at 5 cents per quart to-day.

—James McMurray, living near Westfield, had a lot of valuable tools stolen Tuesday night. The thieves were traced to Newark.

—Several Plainfielders will attend an apron and necktie sociable at the house of Mr. House, at South Plainfield, next Tuesday evening.

—Charles Castle, arrested in the borough last night for drunkenness, was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail by Justice Crossley.

—To-morrow night the second game of the series between the Park Club and Board of Trade bowling teams will be rolled on the latter's alleys.

—A very successful dance was given in Red Men's Hall last evening by Friendship Circle, a social society connected with Howell Division, Sons of Temperance. The dancing was in charge of William Wyckoff.

—A handsome monument to be erected to the memory of the late Eli Howlett of Basking Ridge, was taken to the Basking Ridge cemetery yesterday, from Mr. Townsend's marble and granite works on Somerset street.

—"It is a proud fact in the history of New Jersey that every foot of her soil has been obtained from the Indians by fair and voluntary purchase and transfer—a fact that no other State in the Union, not even the land which bears the name of Penn, can boast of."

—New Jersey has become one of the legal conveniences for people who want a divorce. New Jersey unmarries upward of 500 couples a year. Last year's marriages, including all the non-resident, numbered 17,063. A divorce is granted for every forty-five marriages.—Ex.

—Americans are said to have the poorest teeth of any people in the world. It is said the more brain work a person has the worse his teeth become. The result is attributed largely to lack of proper nourishment, and it is said by a well-known dentist that fifty years hence, among the very poor classes, everybody will be toothless at the age of twenty.

—The Fraternity Club, a new organization which has been in existence about two weeks, and has already quite a large membership, decided at a recent meeting, not to admit anyone under the age of 18. This notice is inserted at the request of several of the members, false reports having been circulated, they say, by persons who know nothing about the club.

—In the Middle Ages pepper was by no means a thing to be sneezed at, although, doubtless, people were sometimes induced to do so by the dear kind dose an acquaintance with what was then a very costly condiment. Indeed, so greatly was it valued, that a small packet was considered a suitable present for a noted person on his marriage, or some other great occasion.

—A chemist disputes that at the present market value the average human cadaver contains something like $18,000 worth of calcium. But, like the fabulous values of aluminum in clay, or of the gold in sea-water, the cost of extracting it present prevents all profit to the would-be enterprising manufacturers, and the schools of anatomy will have no immediate cause for alarm as regards commercial competition.—Medical News.

—The Republican members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders doubtless know that the House has repealed the bill giving such boards the right to fill vacancies, and that the Senate will also repeal it at the first sitting there can be no doubt. They should not, if they do prevent it, permit the Democrats to fill the vacancy in Linden Township as they filled the vacancy in Sawood, in opposition to the will of the people. The question should be raised, and the point insisted upon, that the Township Committee is the only body now authorized to fill such a vacancy.—Elizabeth Journal.

Gift Entertainment.

An entertainment, consisting of vocal and instrumental music and recitations, for the benefit of those in want, will take place this evening at Warren chapel commencing at eight o'clock. There will be no admission but it is hoped that those who are interested in such work will take something in the line of provisions.

WORLD'S FAIR EVENING.

AT THE FRIENDS MEETING HOUSE ON WATCHUNG AVENUE.

The second entertainment in the series to be given at the Friends' Meeting House, took place last evening. It was a very pleasant and informal affair such as the good Quakers are noted for holding. As was announced it was a World's Fair evening. Mr. Andrew J. Gavett showed views of the Great Exposition, which were very fine illustrations and were much enjoyed and appreciated by all present.

Before the views were shown, Mr. Aaron M. Powell, by way of introductory, told of his two visits to the Fair grounds —once before the buildings were finished and again when the Fair was in full blast. He said the marvelous buildings and exhibits impressed him as wonderful. It was the greatest piece of architecture the World had ever known. The buildings were larger and grander than those at the Paris Exposition. Mr. Powell said he was also impressed with the immense throng of people at the Fair. There was a marked contrast between the crowds at the Chicago Exposition and those at the one at Paris. In Chicago there was also an absence of any disorder. He said the world had never seen anything like the Columbian Exposition in the variety of people attending.

After Mr. Powell had finished speaking Mrs. Gavett read what Mr. Ho well, the lecturer, had to say in regard to the Fair. Mrs. Gavett was listened to very attentively throughout.

Mr. Gavett then showed the World's Fair views, explaining each very explicitly. The pictures were all clearly shown upon the screen, and each detail could be discerned.

The entertainments furnished by the committee are meeting with success, those attending expressing themselves as delighted with the new feature.

PERSONAL.

Col. Scott has returned from Boston.

Mrs. William Kiersen, of Steiner place, has a severe attack of the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Roome will give a dinner of twelve covers to-night.

Theodore Martin of this city has been visiting his parents, on Anderson street, Raritan, the past week.

Mrs. Hanigan, of Craig place, accompanied by her daughter, Eugenie, started yesterday afternoon for Jacksonville, Florida.

The entertainment committee of Iona Council, appointed to arrange for a masquerade ball, held a meeting last night at Mrs. Westphal's.

Mrs. George Coddington returned to her home at Mt. Horeb this morning after a visit with her niece, Mrs. George S. McGinnis, of Somerset street.

The many friends of Miss VanDerbeer, of Washington street, who is seriously ill, will be pleased to learn that she passed a very comfortable night and that there was a slight improvement to-day.

The second informal dance at the Park Club is to be given on Monday evening, February 5th. The patronesses are Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. George W. Rogers, Mrs. Walter M. McGee and Mrs. Samuel St. J. McCutchen.

A year ago yesterday Father Murphy was one of seven priests ordained. Yesterday the seven held a sort of re-union at Seton Hall, where Father Flanigan, one of the seven, is located as assistant priest of St. Mary's church.

A very pretty afternoon tea took place at the residence of Mrs. Daniel F. Gluns, Watchung avenue, yesterday afternoon. Flowers in profusion adorned the rooms. Those present were: Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs. Mason Tyler, Miss Gluns, Miss Stuart, Miss Stewart, the Misses Meade and Elizabeth Van Boskerk, Miss Wood and Miss Huntington, of Plainfield, Miss Butler, of Baltimore, Md., and Miss Decker, of Scranton, Pa.

Much interest and sympathy was excited among the audience at the Melopoia concert in the Casino, last evening, and gave an added attraction to the violinist, Henri Marteau, by the case which was passed around that he was return to his country, France, this fall and serve the usual compulsory two years in the army, required of natives. Mr. Marteau is very young, about 21 years old, it is said, but his playing entitles him to rank among the world of music.

After having lived ten years beyond the usual "three score and ten" of the Bible, Mr. Robert E. Sellers died at the residence of his son-in-law, Wm. D. Lord, 22 Sidney place, Newark, N. J., yesterday, at midnight, in his 80th year, closing a long, active and useful career. His children, among whom are Mrs. John Bushnell of Central avenue and Mrs. Frank Bushnell of Madison avenue are now doubly bereft, as Mrs. Sellers died last week. Although Mr. Seller's had been ill a long time it was not thought that he would so soon follow his beloved wife. The funeral notice is published in another column.

200 Car Loads of Ice for Plainfield.

Mr. Thomas Brady, who owns the large ice houses on Front street near Grant avenue, has ordered 200 car loads of ice to be shipped from Lake Hopatcong to this city.

GUILTY OF STEALING CIDER.

Mock Trial at Washingtonville Last Night.

The Watchung Lyceum held a mock trial at the school house at Washingtonville last night. Richard Rogers and Edward Clark were tried for stealing cider from Mr. Spencer on the first Wednesday in November. The complaint was made by Mr. Spencer, who said he saw them leaving his place, it being a bright moonlight night.

The witnesses for the prosecution were William Morriano and Mr. Gifford, and for the defense, Warren Rice, William Kitchen and Frank Dodge.

The Judges were Robert Clark, William Woodland and Harry Coddington.

The defense tried to prove that the accused were in New York on the night the cider was stolen. Warren Rice, one of the witnesses for the defense, swore that he was in New York with the prisoners on that night, and that they all went to see "1492" at one of the theatres. The witnesses for the prosecution, however, spoiled the evidence for the defense and Clark and Rogers were adjudged guilty by the judges. Rogers was reprimanded and discharged, but Clark was held until an examination could be made as to his sanity.

The three witnesses for the defense were held for perjury.

STILL FIGHTING OVER IT.

The Will of Richard J. Clarke Again in Litigation.

The litigation over the will and codicil of Richard J. Clarke, which began in the Surrogate's Court and ended there in both papers being admitted to probate, is to be continued in the Supreme Court of New York, all action having been brought there to declare both papers void because they were procured by fraud and undue influence, and also for the reason that Mr. Clarke was not mentally competent to execute the papers when they were signed by him.

Mr. Clarke died at the Hotel Albion, in this city, on June 13, 1893, leaving an estate estimated to be worth several hundred thousand dollars. He had executed a will on Nov. 9, 1788, and a codicil Sept. 3, 1891. By these papers he bequeathed about $25,700 to relatives and friends and left the balance of his wealth to Alice A. Schell, who had been his friend for some time. She was also made executrix. Mr. Clarke was a bachelor and was eighty-two years old at the time of his death.

The suit in the Supreme Court is brought by George B. Clarke, first cousin of the testator. Justice Barrett yesterday granted an order bringing in a number of parties to the suit.

WESTFIELD'S NEW ORDINANCES.

A Misdemeanor to Ill-Use a Cat.

The Westfield Township Committee held a meeting Tuesday evening. A complaint was received concerning the condition of Charles street. Mr. Conant presented an ordinance which made it a misdemeanor to drive fast on any of the streets of the town, and also provided a penalty of $20 for overdriving, overloading or beating horses, or ill-using dogs, cats or other animals. Section 2 of the ordinance was so amended as to make the penalty for removing or mutilating any shade trees along the highways of the town to be not over $25 for each offense. Bills aggregating nearly $1,000 were audited and ordered paid.

Real Estate Transfers.

Patrick Daley, $1.00.

Jacob Cole to James G. Mair, $6,000.00.

Wm. K. and Helen E. Miles to Rebecca Miles, $1.00.

Edward C. and Margaret A. Mulford to Samuel F. Mulford, $6,000.00.

David N. and Sarah J. Force to Tunis J. Carey, $1.00.

Fidelity Title and Deposit Company to Aaron D. Thompson, $1.00.

Evangelist Wright to Remain Until Monday.

Evangelist Wright, who has been conducting meetings for the past week in the First Presbyterian Church, has decided to remain in Plainfield until Monday next. It was his intention to leave to-morrow, but the increasing numbers who attend his meetings and the good results already apparent to the nightly conversions made him change his mind.

An Attachment Suit.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 1.—Last night, for the second time within a month, burglars looted Craig Voorhees jewelry store. $500 worth of silver-ware was taken.

JUST SUITED THEM.

Five Men Smiled When Sentenced to 30 Days.

Five men were arraigned before City Judge Coddington this morning, charged with trespassing on the railroad.

No. 1 said he was Henry Coleman, 38 years old, and lived at South River, where he worked till Christmas, when he went to Pennsylvania. He was on his way to Newark.

No. 2 gave his name as John Lally, and said he lived at Somerville, Mass. Having no work he went to Pittsburg, Pa. He was on his way to New York.

The next one said he was John Griffin of New York. He was a Russian and could not understand English.

Michael Kunck, the fourth man of the party, said he lived at St. Louis and that he was on his way to New York to look for work.

The fifth and last said he was John J. McCarthy, a printer, and that his home was in Brooklyn.

Although the men were all riding on a freight car together all declared that they were strangers.

Judge Coddington sentenced them each to 30 days in jail. As they went back to their cells there was a broad smile on the face of each. They were evidently glad of the assurance of a place to eat and sleep.

STOLE TO BET ON CORBETT.

Return of George Simpson, the Railway Bank's Embezzling Clerk.

Chief of Police Crane of Rahway was much surprised yesterday morning when George Simpson walked into Police Headquarters and surrendered himself. Simpson for several years was a clerk in the Rahway Bank. In the absence of Cashier Drummond Dec. 29 last he disappeared with $1,000 of the bank's funds. Simpson says he wished to see the Corbett-Mitchell fight in Florida, and therefore took the money. He bet heavily on Corbett and expected to return home with enough cash to reimburse the bank.

Freeholders' Room Repaired.

For several weeks past the Board of Freeholders' rooms at the Court House at Elizabeth, has been undergoing repairs, and as a result the Board has a painted room in which to meet and transact business.

The old ceiling has been replaced with a patent corrugated plate ceiling and the side walls covered with embossed paper of handsome design, while the ceiling, walls and the interior of the dome have been beautifully decorated in gold and appropriate colors. The gas fixtures, etc., have also been regilded and look like new.

Mr. Powers Going Into the Coal Business.

Mr. Michael Powers of Somerset street has bought out Rank, the coal dealer, who had yards at South Plainfield, and at the corner of Washington and Fourth streets. The business is to be conducted under the firm name of Powers & Son.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A New Enemy.

There was lately shipped to the rooms of the senate agricultural committee a box containing a single plant 5 feet in diameter, a foot high and so dense a mass that a mosquito could not crawl through it. The thing was a single specimen of the Russian thistle, which a Washington Star correspondent who saw it describes as the "ugliest, meanest, wickedest weed this country ever has known or can know."

The plant was accidentally introduced into this country 20 years ago by Russian Mennonites in some imported flaxseed. The men had settled in Bon Homme county, S. D., where the pest first appeared. The Canada thistle is a mild and beneficent growth compared to this demon of vegetation. Every specimen, like the one sent to Washington, contains 200,000 seeds, which are blown about like thistle down. The wholesome is covered with sharp thorns, which in a single day's progress the feet of horses attempting to draw a plow through a field once possessed by the weed. Dakota farmers cover their horses' legs with leather boots when they plow the thistle fields. Often they abandon many acres altogether.

The pest is moving eastward as rapidly as the potato bug or the army of grasshoppers used to do, and we may look for it in all parts of the country. It is expected that the government will do what it can to exterminate the thistle. Plowing it up in the green state before it goes to seed is said to destroy it, it being an annual.

Western Editorials.

For vigor of expression, for breezy, lively utterances, the western American editor can read the world a lesson. He has not been toned down by the despotism of conventionality. He employs words which were not in the dictionary originally, but often land there after he uses them awhile, and then they become a part of the standard English language.

There is no necessity for the large array of tramps and hoboes infesting this city just now, and the excuse made by many of them that they are hoboes because they cannot obtain work should not be accepted as extenuating evidence by the justice courts or by the public. We do not deny that a very large number of bodied men in the farming districts of the state of Colorado are in the agricultural foothills of the Rocky mountains. True, at this time of the year the pay will not be as large as it is in spring or in the summer, but the opportunities for the amount of work done will suffice to keep the men well fed, clothed and supplied with tobacco, and the condition of affairs is such that of loosing upon the city like gaunt, starving coyotes, sleeping in dens, begging brilliant kind of a living for nickels wherewith to buy food. The man out of work who really wishes to keep busy will be able to find such a job in the country if he conscientiously looks for it.

Very soon Uncle Sam will be called upon to dig down in his jeans for the neat sum of $1,-611,000 for domestic purposes. Indian Commissioner Browning has notified the house committee on Indian affairs that he estimates this amount as necessary to run the Pinky establishment for the next fiscal year. The noble red man is not only a nuisance, but a high priced luxury as well. It is time that he were put to work like other domestic animals.

The toadyism of New York city to the English is observable at every turn. In America we have the best lights and skies for taking photographs in the known world. For this reason American pictures are superior to those of Europe. The retouching and finishing are possibly more carefully and artistically done in Europe, but the American photograph itself is vastly better. Nevertheless in various picture stores in New York which have portraits of famous people on sale nearly every photograph is foreign, even the photographs of Americans themselves. A stand on one of the leading business streets hangs out a collection of the pictures of distinguished people. One of these is a dim, washed out looking presentment of the late Phillips Brooks, and that picture of Phillips Brooks was actually imported from London, has the stamp of the London photographer upon it, and underneath the portrait the weird and wonderful legend, "Lord Bishop of Massachusetts, Right Rev. Phillips Brooks." The cockney mind evidently cannot get beyond the belief that Episcopal bishops in America are by virtue of their office members of the United States senate. How Phillips Brooks would laugh, even in his grave, if he could be made aware of this exhibition of American snobbery!

When Mme. Albani was last commanded to sing for the queen of England, her majesty insisted that the American singer should spend the night at Balmoral castle, and the invitation is mentioned as a great condescension and an unusual honor. But the honor was all on the other side. Royalty cannot condescend when it honors genius. When Mme. Albani accepted the queen's invitation, it was genius paying a compliment and an honor to royalty. The rulings and queens of the earth are those who have great gifts.

France commences at once to build 22 new warships of various classes. The English, with those already under construction and the ones recently ordered by the Gladstone government, will during the next three years increase their navy by 60 new vessels. Four of them will be large battleships. The new vessels just ordered cannot be built for less than $30,000,000.

A FITEOUS TALE

DRAGGED OUT OF A WINDOW.

Mrs. Jennie Donohue of 196 Second street Jersey City, was hanging out clothes from a window on the second floor of her home Tuesday afternoon.

The high wind tore away a pulley, near where Mrs. Donohue was tying clothes. She was dragged out of the window and fell into the yard of St. Lucas' Evangelical Church, where a conference of ministers was in progress. The clergymen were horror stricken when they found the prostrate, bleeding woman. The Rev. John S. Stnehli of Newark secured medical aid. Mrs. Donohue was terribly bruised, but no bones were broken and she will recover.

An entrance was forced into the house of Michael Shannon of Perth Amboy. Neither Shannon nor his wife had been seen for a week. The man was found lying helpless in bed with every muscle crippled by rheumatism. His wife lay on the same bed in the last stage of pneumonia. The only help they had was from a 4 year-old child. Shannon was sent to St. Michael's hospital, Newark, while Mrs. Shannon is being cared for by neighbors.

FELL FROM A TRAIN.

James Leon, news agent at the Hillsdale depot, while riding on a train between Hilledale and Woodcliffe yesterday, wished to go on the rear platform.

As he stepped from the rear door his foot slipped on some ice and he fell from the train. He struck on his side, and was badly shaken up and his back and head were cut. He was picked up and taken to Jersey City, where he lived.

$10,000 FOR ONE VICTIM'S WIDOW.

The Delaware Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company has settled with the widow of the late W. J. Turner, of Basking Ridge, who was killed in the railroad accident on the Hackensack Meadows on January 15, for $10,000.

GROUND TO PIECES.

An unidentified man, about 45 years old, was struck by a Pennsylvania Railroad train at the foot of 10th street, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon and ground to pieces.

Ehret Meyer, a registering clerk in the Hoboken Postoffice, is under $1,500 bail on a charge of stealing registered letters.

Theatrical and Literary Notes.

"The Senator" was revived at the Star Theatre in New York on Monday night before a large, enthusiastic and fashionable audience. When Mr. Crane made his entrance as the big-hearted, energetic Western, Bannital Rivers, he was received in a manner which left little doubt as to his popularity with Metropolitan amusement seekers. He had to bow several times to the applause that came from all portions of the house before he could proceed with the lines. His work was frequently punctuated with marks of approval. The various pictures of social, diplomatic and political life in Washington were enthusiastically received, and the play easily duplicated its earlier successes.

The comedy was nicely staged. All of the scenery was new, and the scenery and properties costly and in good taste

Anthrax at Lisbon, for Ladies.

The second term of the Plainfield Manual School begins on the 29th inst. The classes have been formed in the sloyd sloyding session, for scholars from 11 to 14 years of age, for instruction in the use of wood working tools, the same methods will attend in the afternoon for Manual Training. A specialty will be made, during this term, of "turning," or lead iron work. A class for ladies, in this work, will meet twice a week.

The progress of the scholars who have attended during the first term has been very satisfactory, specimens of their work are on exhibition at the school 300 East Front street.

For terms, which are very reasonable, apply to John Dalzell, at the school during the day or at 614 East 10th street after six o'clock p. m. 24 29*

THE LEGISLATURE.

Bills Passed and Introduced in the Senate and House.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 31.

SENATE.

The Republican Senate to-day passed these bills:

House, No. 65, repeals act providing that bookmaking shall not constitute the maintaining of a disorderly house.

House, No. 71, repeals the amendment to the Camden License Commissioners act.

The following were reported from committee without action:

House, No. 74, repeals act giving the Governor power to pay bills for which there is no appropriation.

House, Nos. 77, 78 and 79, repealing act and supplement creating office of Superintendent of Public Grounds and Buildings.

Petitions were read from citizens of Somerset and Hunterdon counties asking for legislation requiring scientific temperance in schools.

The body then adjourned till Monday night. The Democratic Senate did likewise without accomplishing anything. The House soon followed their example.

HOUSE.

The House held two sessions to-day.

A bill was introduced rejecting the act requiring officers to take their prisoners before the nearest Justice of the Peace.

The law was passed two years ago for the benefit of the Gutenberg magistrates and their benchmen, and under it they were able to have a justice on the grounds.

Other bills introduced were as follows:

No. 93, Mr. Lewis, amends an act relative to the building of bridges.

No. 100, Mr. Storrs, repeals the act requiring the Boards of Freeholders of Hudson and Essex counties to publish itemized statements of the receipts and expenditures of the boards each month in the newspapers.

No. 101, Mr. Salinger, amends the act relating to voyageurs.

No. 103, Mr. Salinger, amends, the act relating to conveyances.

No. 105, Mr. Kerr, repeals an act relative to the election of school trustees in third-class cities.

No. 104, Mr. McEwan, repeals the act under which the Superintendents of Fire and Police in Newark and Jersey City are appointed.

No. 105, abolishing the Bayonne District Court, of which Thomas F. Noonan is Judge.

MANAGING A COLD.

Advice which is Practical and Simple.

A high medical authority says: A cold usually comes upon us unawares. It is unnoticed with a slight chill, accompanied by a sense of dryness in the throat and nose, with perhaps a headache and muscular lameness. Not infrequently the chest feels as if it was sore inside, and the eyes may or may not have a cough and sight to water. This state of things goes on for a day or two, and our general comfort is impaired.

There are some colds which need attention, and there are those where the symptoms are so mild we may let be. When a cold lasts over a week something is wrong, and it is advisable to come to the assistance of nature.

Remain at home for an evening or two, or if that can not be done without serious loss to business, at least get in early. If possible before midnight, when the air is raw and biting. You need restrict yourself in nothing, and as long as your stomach retains its integrity cater to it. If you need a remedy, I know of none more efficient to loosen the bonds of cold than quinine in a dose of ten grains, to which is added a pellet containing five grains of Dover's powder. Both are simple drugs, and the pharmacist always has them on hand at a trifling cost.

A NEW BAPTIST ASSOCIATION.

The North New Jersey Body to be Divided Next Week.

A notable gathering of Baptist ministers and representative laymen will be held in the First Baptist Church, of Montclair, on Tuesday, February 6, the object of the meeting being the setting apart of a large part of the North New Jersey Baptist Association, and the formation of a new association, comprising twenty-one churches, nearly all of which are located in the Counties of Essex and Morris.

The North New Jersey Baptist Association is one of the largest, if not the largest, Baptist Association in the United States. It numbers sixty-two churches, which are scattered throughout Morris, Essex, Sussex, Passaic, Hudson, Bergen, and Union Counties, from Mount Salem and westward from Jersey City and Hoboken to Morristown, representing nearly 10,000 church members and $1,000,000 of church property, sixty-eight Sunday-schools, with 11,000 children.

Arrested for Horse Stealing.

Henry Gordon of Matawan was arrested yesterday morning at Perth Amboy by Policeman Dunham. Gordon is wanted in Monmouth County for horse stealing, while officers in different parts of the State hold warrants for his arrest.

Gordon is the son of one of the leading families of Monmouth County. He lived in a princely manner and resorted to all sorts of schemes to obtain money to keep up his reputation as a "dead game sport." Finally his father cut him adrift and would have nothing more to do with him. He then went to live with an uncle, John Boice, of Matawan, and one night he took his horse, wagon and harness of Mr. Boice and went off, selling the rig at Plainfield. Gordon has been a fugitive from justice for two months.

THE BLOCKADE BROKEN

The Insurgents No Longer Keep Ships From Rio's Wharves.

BENHAM'S COURSE IS APPROVED.

Vessels of All Nations May Now Move Freely About the Harbor—Foreign Consuls Commend the Prompt Action of the Americans.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 1.—The action of Admiral Benham in protecting American ships in their effort to land at the wharves in this harbor has had a salutary effect. English and merchant ships of other nationalities are now coming up to their wharves without any sign of molestation on the part of the insurgent vessels. Admiral Benham's bold stand against interference with vessels of his country is generally applauded.

The exchange of shots between the insurgent and government forces has practically ceased during the past 24 hours. This is the first time for four months that a day has passed when there was not more or less firing. The unofficial warning which Admiral Benham gave to Admiral da Gama that firing upon the wharves for the purpose of creating a blockade by terror must cease has been heeded. All the foreigners are delighted with the result of the American admiral's conduct. The consular corps of the foreign fleets held a conference to discuss the action of Admiral Benham, and resolutions were adopted fully indorsing the course that he pursued.

Da Gama Wants to Bombard.

Much regret is expressed at the absence from Rio Janeiro of the American consul general, Townes. Vice Consul Lewis is little more than a boy, and Americans here hardly think him fitted to act as the representative of the United States at such a critical juncture. They say that his lack of familiarity with diplomatic affairs is liable to lead him unwittingly into blunders.

The report that Senhor Mours, minister of war, had resigned is not true. It was his assistant, Senhor Galvao, who resigned. The report that the Brazilian government's cruiser America had arrived outside this harbor on Monday proves to be without foundation.

Admiral da Gama feels aggrieved at Admiral Benham. He sent a letter to the American admiral protesting against the unneutral manner in which the American commander had humiliated him. He says that he will yield for a time to superior force, but that as he was compelled to allow American ships to come to their wharves he has officially notified the representatives of all other nations that they may do the same.

He declared that the insurgents had held the harbor for five months, and says that now if the shore batteries fire on him he will be unable to reply for fear of hurting neutral ships and will also be unable to protect his men.

Admiral da Gama also sent a letter to the officers who had gathered in conference to discuss Admiral Benham's action, asking that he might be permitted to bombard the city without notice. No answer was sent to him, but Admiral Benham said later that he would grant the insurgent admiral's request to bombard the city, but he would require that 48 hours' notice be given, so that noncombatants would be able to seek shelter.

Benham's Course Approved.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—Neither the state nor the navy department has received any further information on the Brazilian situation. Further information has been requested from Admiral Benham, as there seem to be one or two features of the incident that are rather vaguely understood by the department.

It is not known, and it is thought not to be true, that any instructions have been sent to Admiral Benham other than the general instructions given to all naval commanders to protect the flag of American citizens. He announced to the navy department last Saturday the course he proposed to pursue, and it was undoubtedly approved before he acted.

A surrender by Da Gama to Benham would embarrass this government, and Admiral Benham has either signified that he understands this or has been warned of the fact. His purpose is not to be unneutral in intervening against the insurgents, but simply as protecting American interests against aggressions by the insurgents, and the policy of the government is understood to be one of approval of Admiral Benham's course in compelling recognition of the rights of American shipping while refraining from interference in the international struggle in Brazil.

There is a good deal of enthusiasm here over Benham's course, and Representative Bryan of Rhode Island announced this he will introduce a resolution to congratulate the admiral.

NOW FOR THE VOTING.

The Great Tariff Debate In the House Closes.

WILSON CLAIMS A GOOD MAJORITY.

Internal Revenue Bill, Including the Income Tax, Placed on the Tariff Bill as a Rider—Friends of the Bill Expect to Have Thirty-four Votes to Spare.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The internal revenue bill was placed as a rider upon the tariff bill by a vote of 178 to 86. The entire day was spent in the consideration of amendments which were offered to the various internal revenue features. The principal fight came upon the proposal to broaden the tax upon whisky from 90 cents to $1 and extend the bonded period from three to eight years.

These provisions, especially the one looking to an increase of the bonded period, were bitterly opposed by prominent speakers upon both sides of the house, and despite the opposition the latter proposition—that is, the one to increase the bonded period to eight years—was stricken out, while the increase of the tax from 90 cents to $1 was allowed to stand. The Kentucky members say that this will bring ruin and disaster to the whisky interests of their state. Kentucky alone has over 85,000,000 gallons of whisky now in bond, upon which the tax will be increased 10 cents, giving them the benefit of an extension of the bonded period.

Only one other amendment of importance to the internal revenue features of the bill was carried, and that was to extend the operation of the income tax to all property sold and personal property given or bequeathed by inheritance. This, it is estimated, will increase the revenue from the income tax about $9,000,000 per annum.

After the disposal of the internal revenue amendments a row occurred over the four amendments to the barley schedule which were pending last Saturday, and by dint of maneuvering Mr. Lockwood, who is opposing them, managed to prevent a vote until the hour of recess arrived.

Voting on the Tariff Bill.

Today these amendments again come up for settlement. At 12 o'clock, according to the special order, the tariff bill will be reported to the house. Three hours will then be allowed for closing the debate—one hour and a half on a side. Mr. Reed will make the closing speech for his side, and Speaker Crisp and Chairman Wilson will close the Democratic side. At 5 o'clock the vote will be taken upon the bill and pending amendments.

Several separate votes will probably be demanded upon amendments, among them being one abolishing the sugar bounty. Under the rule the only motion which can intervene before the final vote is taken upon the passage of the bill after the amendments are disposed of is a motion to recommit, with or without instructions. As the Republicans have decided to refuse to join in this effort to recommit the bill, it is a foregone conclusion that it will be defeated.

A semiofficial estimate made by Chairman Wilson and some of his friends upon the committee who have scanned the situation gives the bill 84 majority, divided up as follows: Democrats, 182; Populists, 11; total, 193, against 126 Republicans, 89 Democrats and 1 Populist (Newlands of Nevada); total, 216.

The last night session of the tariff debate was unusually interesting. The speakers were Mercer, Baker of Kansas, Bingham of New York, Hooker of New York, Kem of Nebraska, Caminetti of California, Cummings of New York, Stallings of Alabama, Cooper of Texas, Blanchard of Louisiana, Ryan of New York, Pascall of Texas, McCleary of Minnesota and Houk of Ohio.

Mr. Pickard said that although he believed the section upon sugar would cripple it if it did not utterly destroy the sugar interests of Louisiana, he would support the bill. He expressed the belief that the senate would remodel the bill so as to make it more nearly a revenue measure. Mr. Cummings made a vigorous speech against the bill, attacking it all along the line.

Senators Talk of Bond Issue.

The entire time of the senate was consumed in the discussion of the resolution of Senator Stewart of Nevada declaring that the secretary of the treasury has no power to issue the bonds for which bids have been invited.

Senator Allen opened the discussion in support of the resolution. Senator Hoar surprised some of his colleagues by sustaining the position taken by Senators Allen and Stewart, and Senator Gorman made a speech directed principally to replying to the gentleman of Senator Sherman on Tuesday, but giving no expression of his opinion as to the authority of the secretary of the treasury to apply the proceeds of the bonds to meeting current expenses. A long discussion followed, participated in by Senators Aldrich, Sherman, Voorhees and others.

Senator Gorman proceeded to argue at considerable length to show that the Republicans were responsible for the existing condition of the treasury. He took occasion, however, in reference to the claim of Senator Teller that the repeal of the Sherman law was responsible, to say, "I believe with the senator from Colorado that there is much to the statement that the legislation upon silver is in part responsible for the situation."

Senator Aldrich interrupted to say that the threatened deficit to which Secretary Foster had referred was entirely to the fact that the Democratic party was again to come to power, but Senator Voorhees reported that the treasury was empty before the election. Senator Sherman said that the senator from Maryland had completely stated that he was wanting in patriotism because he had ascribed the present condition of the treasury to the Democratic party. "I do believe," said Senator Sherman, "that the principal cause—not the only cause by any means, but the principal cause—of our present financial condition is because the Democratic party came into power. It is a power party. In January it can be proud of as well as any one on the other side. But it came into power with a declaration that the whole policy of the government of the past 30 years should not be abandoned and a policy toward free trade followed."

An Exchange of Compliments.

He maintained that the revenues under the McKinley law had been more than sufficient to support the government, for during the Harrison administration the public debt had been reduced to the extent of $260,000,000, but since the Democratic party came into power, under the distrust which the success had engendered, the loss of revenue in the current fiscal year from July 1 to Jan. 1 had been between $60,000,000 and $70,000,000.

After a general reply to the statements of Senator Sherman and other Republican senators Senator Voorhees said, "At the proper time and in the proper way we will take care of the credit of the government." Referring to the tariff question, Senator Voorhees said, "I will say now that I am for a tariff bill to give revenue, and I believe that when a proclamation is made that we are for a tariff for revenue only it means only the revenue to carry on the business of the government."

Senator Hawley followed Senator Voorhees and said that if the senator from Indiana was to feel hurt at the slight strictures that had been made on the Democratic policy he wanted to give him notice that it is only a taste of what he will get within the next three months. [Laughter.]

"There will be no want of reciprocity in that respect on this side," retorted Senator Voorhees.

"All right. Lay on, MacDuff." [Laughter.]

Senator Hawley then proceeded to maintain that the success of the Democratic party was responsible for the falling off of revenue and the depletion of the treasury. At the conclusion of Senator Hawley's speech the bond resolution went over, and the senate went into executive session and at 5:35 adjourned.

Canvass on the Wilson Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—The friends of the Wilson bill have made their final estimates on the vote to be taken this afternoon on the passage of the measure. It has been made up by states and by individual names and taken into consideration every doubt. It shows that the bill will pass by a majority at the lowest possible estimate, allowing the opposition the benefit of every doubt. But these doubts have so little prospect of realization in several cases that the majority is considered safe, and many are strong prospects entertained that it will reach 30. The estimate is tabulated as follows:

Thirty-two is regarded as the utmost limit of opposition from Democrats, and in many cases it is confidently believed that doubtful Democrats will conclude to vote for the bill. This is true of the four from Louisiana estimated as doubtful, and the friends of the bill expect in the end to see the solid Louisiana delegation in line. The same is true of the opposing votes from California. The reason for counting Everett of Massachusetts against the bill is not clear, but it is thus placed in the estimates. The New York delegation is also expected to stand in a body with Hiss before the vote is taken. Mr. Fielder of New Jersey, although counted against the bill, is expected to vote for it. There are three doubtful Pennsylvania Democrats—Reilly, Beltzhoover and Krebs—who are expected to come over, and more may follow.

With this estimate Wilson controls the majority is expected to pass 40 and reach 50. In any event Mr. Wilson and his associates feel that their majority of 24 is beyond the slightest doubt. Much of the estimating has been done by Mr. Johnson of Ohio and has been subjected to the scrutiny of others in order that an accurate result might be reached.

IS IT WAR HE SCENTS?

Startling Rumor on the Heels of Gladstone's Letter.

MUCH EXCITEMENT IN LONDON.

While Denying That He Is to Resign at Once, England's Peace Loving Premier Hints That He May Retire at Any Time, Both of That He Sees Trouble Ahead.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Sir Algernon West, who is with Mr. Gladstone at Biarritz, has issued a card of denial declaring that the statement that Mr. Gladstone had decided to resign is untrue. He is further authorized to say that it is true that many months ago Mr. Gladstone's age and the condition of his sight and hearing made it, in his judgment, desirable to be relieved from public care.

His tenure of office, which has been liable to interruption from these causes, remains exactly as before. Mr. Gladstone has not said or done anything to restrain his freedom or that of his colleagues regarding his future course.

Amusement in London.

Concerning this letter Mr. White, the correspondent of the New York Sun, added his paper as follows: When this letter was posted on the bulletin boards at the clubs, it was read with amusement. It was regarded as a denial which amounted to confirmation. The intimations which are conveyed between the lines were considered of even more startling import than the fact that Mr. Gladstone might soon retire. It is not too much to say that Sir Algernon West's message with its vague but portentous significance, will alarm Europe as no thing else has done since the declaration of war in 1870.

Before the message was received the political fans of both parties eagerly discussed the possible reasons for Gladstone's retirement just at this supreme moment. If it be by all accounts is as good as it has been for years. His political measures to be taken the course expected by nearly everybody. Why, then, should he suddenly withdraw? The first and most ominous answer which was suggested was that he sees burdens and responsibilities ahead far greater than he can assume—in other words, that The Daily Telegraph was right when it declared three weeks ago, "Serious hostilities have been warned through the most trustworthy sources of information that war might be thrust upon England at a moment's."

Dreads the Ordeal.

Even Gladstone's friends would be unable to say that the Grand Old Man is unfit to next stake the fearful ordeal of a war administration. Likewise it would be a grave error to put the country through the agonies of change in the ministry on the eve of hostilities.

What's dispatch, written of course by Gladstone himself, seemed to confirm this view. Such a denial of the seals would, Gladstone's resignation weigh? Inasmuch as England is certain not to in the aggressive in the threatened conflict and the chief powers fear Gladstone less than almost any other probable British premier, the situation might make an intending belligerent hesitate.

Not the first sign of hostile intentions is yet manifested in any quarter. What great power is deliberately planning war while announcing only peace? If Gladstone is so thoroughly convinced that war is imminent that he is arranging to turn over the government to younger hands, the warlike evidence before him must be strong. Not a scrap of it is yet known outside the innermost diplomatic circles.

Shot Her Lover In Fun.

DECATUR, Ills., Feb. 1.—Miss Maggie Tewksbury and David Lambert were playing cards when in fun the young man said, "Now the one that wins shall shoot the other." He unloaded his revolver, as he thought, and laid it on the table. The girl won, snatched up the revolver and pulled the trigger. One cartridge had been left in the revolver, and the bullet entered Lambert's brain. He died instantly. The girl was almost crazed. The couple were engaged to be married.

Danbury Strikers Defeated.

DANBURY, Conn., Feb. 1.—The backbone of the long lockout at the hat factories is practically broken by the return to work of many of the union men. There are many desertions from the ranks of the union, and most of them have signed and agreed that those who wished to return to work in the independent shops should be allowed to do so. The lockout has lasted 19 weeks, and it is estimated that it has cost the city $200,000.

Both Shot With the Same Pistol.

DANVILLE, Ky., Feb. 1.—Timothy Fry and Jones Bros. quarreled last night in a restaurant, and both men were mortally wounded. Fry first shot Jones, and then Jones got the pistol and shot Fry twice. The pistol is said to have given out of a game of craps, in which $5 cents was involved.

Novel Way to Commit Suicide.

YANKTON, Feb. 1.—Mrs. Hans Olson, wife of a Norwegian farmer, committed suicide. She fastened one end of a rope about her neck and then tied the other end to the axle of a wagon. Then she gave the wagon a push down a hill, and the weight of the vehicle strangled her to death.

Thousands Out of Work.

CADIZ, Feb. 1.—The governor of this province reports that thousands of people are out of work and starving are tramping through the country, and that, in consequence, he anticipates disturbances in the rural districts.

Wants to Buy the Halliday Farm.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 1.—A real estate dealer, James Hopkins of Dover Plains, is trying to buy the Halliday farm near Burlingham, the scene of the four murders. He says he is not yet afraid of ghosts.

WINDLE WILL RETIRE.

The Famous Bicycle Rider to Leave the Track and Enter College.

WORCESTER, Mass., Feb. 1.—William W. Windle, the famous bicycle rider, has announced his permanent retirement from the race track. This decision is due to the fact that he wants more time to devote to the study of designing, for which purpose he entered the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston.

Mr. Windle has made a national reputation as a bicycle rider, and during the seven years he has been racing he has won over

WILLIE WINDLE.

$10,000 worth of prizes in the shape of diamonds, pianos, bicycles, silverware and other valuables, all of which may be seen at his home in West Millbury. He began racing in the spring of 1886, when he won the Worcester county championship in a three mile race in the then fast time of 11 minutes on an ordinary wheel. Since then his rise in the bicycle world has been steady.

In 50 consecutive races he won first prize, the greatest of these being at Springfield in the fall of 1892, when he won the $1,000 piano from a field of 15 fast men, including Tyler, Zimmerman, Taylor and Berlo. Mr. Windle has just become a member of the Second Advent church.

SAD SLEIGHING ACCIDENT.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 1.—A sad accident occurred at the Brownell street crossing of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. A four horse sleigh containing 30 high school pupils, in charge of Instructor Everett P. Durfee, was returning from a ride in the country. When the party reached the crossing, the gates were open, and the sleigh started across. The engine and half the sleigh had cleared the track when the train from Boston appeared at but 10 feet distant. Some of the children saw it and jumped.

At the end of the sleigh sat Brooks Borden, 16 years old, son of Colonel Spencer Borden, of Governor Russell's staff; with Reg Thornton, aged 15 years, son of Charles D. Thornton, wholesale grain dealer, near by. Borden was thrown into the air and picked up dead. Thornton was ground nearly to pieces and his head severed from his body. Austin Swift, son of Lawyer M. G. B. Swift, was terribly injured and will die. The rest of the party escaped.

The crossing tender, whose negligence had caused the accident, disappeared shortly afterward.

Spent the Money, Then Surrendered.

RAHWAY, N. J., Feb. 1.—George Simpson, the young bank clerk who absconded some weeks ago with funds belonging to the First National bank, walked into police headquarters and surrendered himself. He was sent to the county jail at Elizabeth. Simpson was acting in the place of Assistant Cashier Drummond, who was ill. Cashier Sherwood left a roll of bills containing $5,000 lying on the counter, and Simpson took the money and left for Florida and has been traveling through the south since. He returned, having but $50 of the stolen money.

ALBANY AFFAIRS.

Republican Assemblymen Meet and Map Out Some Work.

ALBANY, Feb. 1.—The Republican assemblymen convened for nearly two hours, but no caucus rules were enforced, and upon adjournment it was stated that the only business done was to decide to keep all appropriations down to a minimum and to reduce the tax rate for next year. The Buffalo and Lansingburg charter bills were discussed, but no caucus action was taken, although there was no objection to them.

It was decided to transfer a clerk from some other position to that of reading clerk because Mr. Cunningham's voice was weak. It was also decided that all bills must go through committees and before being introduced must be properly drawn.

The feature of the committee meetings was the hearing on the ballot reform and election law bills before the joint committee of the senate and assembly on judiciary. Among those who appeared were Wheeler H. Peckham, nominated by President Cleveland for supreme court judge; Henry R. Beekman for the City club, William M. Ivins for the Reform club, E. H. Hinsdale, Mortimer Adams and James W. Hales of the New York Republican club.

The newly appointed committees to investigate the New York police department met in the senate chamber at 4 o'clock to meet at the Hotel Metropole in New York on Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The investigation itself will begin on Saturday morning next at 10 o'clock at the Hotel Metropole.

GOULD'S BIG CHECK.

Alleged Account of How Mrs. Nicolaus Got It and Lost It.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—A morning paper publishes a story from Chicago about Mrs. Nicolaus and the $40,000 check which it was said she had obtained from George Gould. The story alleges that the check was given Mrs. Nicolaus by a friend of Gould who was "badgered" by Rahman at the point of a pistol.

When the check was presented to George Gould by Mrs. Nicolaus, he coolly asked if she would leave it with him until the next day, and when she called the money would be waiting for her.

Of course she would, and the interview closed. When Mrs. Nicolaus told Rahman that she had given the check into the keeping of Mr. Gould, he grew furious and saw she had been led into a clever trap.

He promptly sat an hour Mr. Gould had set for the second meeting Mrs. Nicolaus handed her card to the doorman. He did not even glance at it, but very coolly told her that Mr. Gould was not in. In vain did she protest that her call was at the urgent solicitation of Mr. Gould. It was all useless, and she turned away. After they secured Howe & Hummel a settlement was made for $10,000 cash, with a proviso that they both go abroad.

HARD TO PLEASE.

Although It Didn't Cost Anything, She Hacked Out.

A woman walked into a down town dentist's office yesterday afternoon. She held a handkerchief to her face and was evidently suffering from a severe toothache.

"I have a very bad toothache," she said to the dentist.

"Want the tooth extracted?" he asked.

"Yes," she said, shuddering a bit.

"Well, get into the chair, and I will have it out in a jiffy."

"But it will hurt, won't it?"

"A little perhaps."

The woman held back. The dentist selected a couple of instruments and said again, "Get into the chair."

"Oh," said the woman, "this tooth does ache dreadfully, but I don't know whether you will pull it or not."

"Why?" asked the dentist in some surprise.

"Because I haven't got any money."

"Haven't got any money?"

"Not a cent."

"Well, if your tooth aches so badly, I will pull it for nothing then. Get into the chair."

The woman shuddered a few times and then seated herself. Then she sat down in the chair.

The dentist opened her mouth and pried it out with one of his instruments, she groaning loudly. In a minute he touched the sensitive tooth, and the woman shrieked and jumped out of the chair.

"Get back there!" said the dentist.

"No, I won't!" she replied sharply. "I won't be tortured by you or anybody else. I think it is a shame that you will hurt your customers like that. I don't think you're much of a dentist anyhow."

With that she flounced out of the office, and it was a long time before the dentist could think connectedly.—Buffalo Express.

AMERICA FOR LIBERTY.

THE GODDESS PREFERRED THE STARS AND STRIPES.

In the "Colloquy of Nations on Liberty Seeking a Home," in the Entertainment at the Seventh-Day Church Last Night.

The first entertainment in the new Seventh-Day Baptist church took place last evening. It was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Society for Christian Work, and if the first one is any criterion the new church will see many pleasant gatherings in the future.

The church is so planned that such social events as last night's can be held in the edifice, yet the main rooms need not be opened or passed through at all.

The Sunday-school room on the side allows ample room for those attending. This room connects with the rear rooms and the kitchen so that all the sociability imaginable can be enjoyed, and refreshments served without any inconvenience.

The entertainment opened with a "Song of Greeting" by the children of the Sunday-school. Next came the "Milkmaid's Chorus" by several young ladies. Both these were well received. This was followed by a recitation, entitled "Orphan Annie," which was excellently rendered by Ethel Lucille Titsworth. Mr. William Runyon then sang one of his selections in his usual entertaining way. He was compelled to respond to an encore.

After Mr. Runyon came the feature of evening. It was entitled the "Colloquy of Nations"—Liberty Seeking a Home." The parts were taken as follows:

"Liberty".....Miss Louise Lewis
"Spain".....Miss Minnie Bonham
"India".....Miss Mineola Tomlinson
"Russia".....Miss Ida Randolph
"Germany".....Miss Grace Davis
"Scotland".....Miss Bessie Titsworth
"Spain".....Mrs. J. G. Mills
"France".....Miss Ernestine Smith
"Ireland".....Mrs. Rolf Randolph
"Italy".....Mrs. Chas. H. Dunham
"America".....Miss Lou Clawson

Liberty sought a home and each nation, in turn, tried to induce her to make her abiding place with them, by offering her all their country's wealth, etc. But Liberty would have none of them until America offered her a land where heroes had given their lives for her. Liberty rightfully chose America, the home of the free.

America then robed Liberty in the stars and stripes, and all sang, "My Country 'tis of Thee."

The tableau was a very pretty one as well as appropriate. It showed that there are patriotic ladies in the Seventh-Day Baptist church.

The programme was brought to a close with laughable songs, by the Misses Allis, Potter and Titsworth; and another by Mr. Runyon.

Just before the tableau "Colloquy of Nations", Superintendent David E. Titsworth said that as the ladies had begun to wear looks of depression on account of having to pump the old Sunday-school room organ, it had been thought advisable and necessary to purchase a new piano.

It had been thought best, he said, to begin at the first social event to take up a collection toward paying for it. As he finished speaking, Miss Ernestine Smith and Miss Lizzie Allis passed around, not the "hat" but two bright, shiny, milk pails. Although they did not get them full, it was found that they contained $75 when they had finished.

Refreshments in abundance were served by the ladies.

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE MEETING.

About the Only Business Transacted was the Passing of Bills.

A meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee was held in Spencer's hall, last night. All the committee men were present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Bills were ordered paid as follows:

E. Allen	$60.00
A. P. Voorhees	50.00
W. G. Hall	50.00
H. J. Martin	18.50
J. Chewens	10.00
J. H. Cooley	208 01
J. H. Sebring	10.50
J. S. Runyon	5.00
J. H. Carman	75.00
C. A. Reed	51.05
A. P. Wood	50.00
W. C. Smith	12.00
A. C. Johnson	30
H. B. Spencer	50.00
	767.85
Nelson Gifford	5.50

Assessor Cooley reported that there were certain tracts of land in the township which he could not ascertain to whom to assess it. He was authorized to make a search of the records for the owner's names, and enter same upon the assessor's books.

The committee adjourned to meet again February 5th.

A New Soup Kitchen.

The Soup Kitchen in the W. C. T. U. rooms served thirty-one quarts yesterday, and sent out ten quarts more. 5 cents is charged for all one can eat, whether child or man, with plenty of good bread.

Five cents buys two quarts of soup, with bread when sent out-side. Door opens on Fourth street, from 11.30 a. m. to 1 p. m.

Railroad Shops Closed.

The Central railroad shops in Elizabeport were closed yesterday, and a large force of men thrown out of work. During the past two weeks several telegraph operators along the line of the Central Railroad have been laid off.

THE Y. M. C. A. WORK.

THE REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

The Various Committees Report. The Association to Invite the 28th Annual Convention of the Y. M. C. A. to February 1895 to Meet in This City.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association, was held last evening in the rooms President Murray was in the chair, and the following officers and directors were present:

Mr. Frederick W. Yates, Recording Secretary; Mr. H. O. Newman, Treasurer; and Messrs. Nelson Runyon, E. L. Boone, Wm. Thompson, Stephen Osborne, A. C. La Byteaux, George R. Cornwell, J. W. Gaveit, T. E. Hazell and General Secretary J. H. Manning.

The Devotional Committee reported continued interest in the spiritual work of the Association, and that the young men's meetings had an average attendance of 60, and that 13 young men, on an average, attended the 10 sessions of classes for Bible study and training in Christian work.

The Educational Committee reported that the total weekly average at the nine educational classes was 61, and that the work is progressing in a satisfactory manner, both as regards attendance, efficiency and general interest on the part of the students.

The rooms Committee reported the rooms were occupied every week day evening, with one exception, by two or three classes. Written reports were received from the membership and physical work committees and an oral report from the Music Committee.

The General Secretary reported that the matters which had received special attention during the month have been as follows:

"I. The efforts to secure work for unemployed young men.

II. The boys' work.

III. Work in view of the coming State Convention.

IV. Securing the attendance of young men at special evangelistic meetings.

V. An effort to collect back membership dues.

A motion made by Mr. Cahoone to invite the 28th annual Y. M. C. A. State Convention to meet in Plainfield in Feb. 1895 was unanimously carried.

The following statistics about the local work are taken from the annual blanks which were filled out during the month for the Internal and State Committees.

Total number of members, 439, of whom 322 paid active and 65 have rendered service in committee work.

64 men's meetings had a total attendance of 3,299. Sixty-four sessions of the Bible training class had a weekly average attendance of thirteen.

GIFT ENTERTAINMENT.

A Roomful of Articles Contributed for the Needy.

The "gift entertainment" at Warren Chapel last evening proved very successful, and from it the needy will receive many useful articles. The plan originated with the ladies of the chapel, and to them the credit is due in a great measure for its most gratifying results. No admission was charged, but each one attending was requested to take with them some article of worth to the needy. One of the side rooms was almost filled with articles of food and many bundles of clothing, which were distributed to-day by the committee.

"MARRIED LIFE."

AS PICTURED ON THE STAGE AT MUSIC HALL.

The Third Annual Dramatic Entertainment of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum a Pronounced Success. —Greeted by a Large Audience.

LAST NIGHT the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum of the comedy-drama, "Married Life" in Music Hall. It was the third annual dramatic entertainment of the Lyceum and a large audience was present nearly every seat in the house being occupied. The title of the entertainment doubtless induced many to come who wished to see what others thought and to discover whether marriage on the stage was a failure or not. The play set showed all the trials, perpiexities and tribulations that could possibly come into a household. In this not five married couple, separated through some disagreement and each of them vowed never again to speak to the other. In the second act they were all planning to get together again. The third act represented the joyful reunion of all and every body was happy.

Mr. Charles J. Ward, as "Samuel Goddard" was very good, and kept the audience in convulsions of laughter.

Miss Josie Shaffer delighted the audience with several finely executed soprano solos. The appreciation of the audience was expressed in two handsome baskets of choice flowers which were presented to her. The entire entertainment was a pronounced success. Following is the cast of characters:

Samuel Goddie.....Mr. Chas. J. Ward.
Lionel Lynx.....Mr. Michael Whan.
Professor Vonschmidgall.....Mr. K. F. Carson.
George Diamond.....Mr. C. C. Traphagen.
Henry Dove.....Mr. Thomas J. Comerford.
Mrs. Samuel Goddard.....Miss Mary Passmore.
Mrs. Lionel Lynx.....Miss May Passmore.
Mrs. F. Youngchicken.....Miss May Whelan.
Mrs. George Diamond.....Miss Nora Casey.
Mrs. Henry Dove.....Miss Josie Shaffer.

During the evening the following selections were sung:

Tenor Solo.....
"Touch of Humanity,"
Mr. J. J. Traffey.
Soprano Solo.....
"The Flower Girl,"
Song.....
"The Prodigal Son,"
Mr. C. J. Ward.
Soprano Solo.....
"Bring Back Again,"
Miss Josie Shaffer.
Song.....
"Daisy Bell."
Miss May Passmore.

PERSONAL.

Dr. G. H. Stephenson of West Fourth street has a severe attack of the grip.

Mrs. Patrick Gunning of Wilson avenue, North Plainfield, is ill with the grip.

Miss Mary Proch of West Seventh street gave a progressive euchre party last night.

Mr. J. W. Van Horn of Duer street, is confined to the house with a severe attack of the grip.

Mr. Henry Van Middlesworth of Dunellen is slowly recovering after several weeks of illness with pneumonia.

Letter-Carrier Charles B. Stephens is off duty to-day suffering with an attack of the grip. His route is being attended to by substitute William Sharp.

Bishop Scarborough will hold an informal reception at the parish house of the Heavenly Rest, on Clinton avenue, Saturday, February 24, from eight to nine o'clock.

Mr. Albert W. Faughorn entertained his friends by a pleasing evening of music at his residence 57 Chatham street, last night and says that he expects to give another like it in March.

Miss Sadie D. Grant, daughter of Chief of Police Grant, is home from Buffalo on a visit. Miss Endora Grant, the Chief's other daughter, has gone to Trenton to stand examination for a teacher.

About twenty-five of Willie Martin's young friends surprised him last night at his home on Jackson avenue. The evening was spent in games, etc. The surprise was arranged by Miss Grace Emmons and Miss Julia Williams.

Mrs. S. S. Higgins of West Fourth street has taken Miss Kiernan's place temporarily as teacher in the North Plainfield Public School. Miss Kiernan is now detained at home caring for her mother, whose illness has been noted in these columns.

"The most prominent attractions," said one of the hundreds of guests at the tea given by Mrs. Daniel Gimus at her handsome home on Watchung avenue, Wednesday afternoon, "was, in my opinion, the gracious hostess and her helpers. Then came the flowers and the guests who were in sufficient numbers to almost fill even the Gimus's spacious dwelling."

For several weeks Miss Mabel Van Deventer, of Washington avenue, North Plainfield, has been dangerously ill with a malignant fever. Her parents have been almost worn out with anxiety and watching. The numerous friends of the family, and others who only know the very lovable daughter, have anxiously sought bulletins of the patient's condition. They learned with pleasure yesterday that there had been a change for the better and sincerely hope that now there will be a steady improvement until complete good health is restored.

Mr. Honeyman will be pleased to give particulars and further information at his office on North avenue, as advertised elsewhere.

Fate of a Town without Sewers.

[Westfield Leader.]

The following is supposed to have been taken from the Locust Grove Daily Times, of June 16th, 1901:

The stand old folks in Westfield town,
They built a cesspool for each house,
Of course they thought 'twas fine.
And when they saw those cesspools fill,
With sewage and with rain,
They'd pay a man to pump 'em out,
Then fill 'em up again.
And so the money filled too fast
They'd dig for each another,
Till badly-filled lots filled all the town,
And folks declared they'd smother,
But build a sewer they would not,
They were so house contrary,
So one night all the town fell in,
A cesspool cemetery.

A VERY SAD ACCIDENT.

An Older Brother Drowned While Trying to Save a Younger One.

Jersey City, Feb. 2.—Alfred and John Morley, of Ridgewood, N. J., started this morning for the 7.45 o'clock ferry-boat just as it was leaving the slip on the Jersey City side. Alfred, aged 25 years, sprang and just got it. John, aged 21 missed and fell in the water. His older brother immediately threw off his hat and coat and sprang in to save him. He was seized with cramps and drowned and his body has not been recovered. John was saved by a life line.

BEFORE THE POLICE BOARD.

The Difficulty Between Firemen and Policemen Aired.

Last night testimony was taken in the Zeiss-Cooney matter by the Police Board. The Board comprises the Committee on Police of the City Council, Messrs. Stockton, Milligan and Dumont. President See of the Council and Mayor Gilbert are members ex-officio of the Board.

The trouble the Police Board was called upon to investigate occured on the night of the 5th in Crowley's saloon, when Policeman Cooney placed Fireman Zeiss under arrest and after taking him to the station house released him, stating that he had no charge against him.

Policeman Cooney last night in his defense stated that he arrested Zeiss for being drunk and for using abusive language to him. In his own behalf Mr. Zeiss testified that he was simply doing his duty as a fireman when arrested. When the policeman took hold of him he had merely told him that he had no authority to arrest a fireman on duty.

After hearing the testimony the Police Board discovered the matter behind closed doors.

STOLE A GOLD WATCH.

Charles Frulick Arrested for Theft this Afternoon.

This afternoon Charles Frulick, who says he is nine years old, but who looks fully eleven or twelve, was arrested this afternoon for stealing a $35 gold watch from Jeweller Doane's store on Park avenue.

Mr. Doane noticed Frulick standing rather close to the window, but paid no particular attention to him until he heard something drop on the floor. Hurrying over to where the boy stood he saw a gold watch lying on the floor at his feet.

It is supposed the boy was in such a hurry to get it in his pocket that he missed it and let it fall.

Policeman Kiely made the arrest. The boy was taken before Justice Nash, who committed him to the county jail, and recommended that he be sent to the reform school.

Chief Grant says that last Summer two stolen bicycles were found at Frulick's house. The boy had stolen them and hidden them in the attic.

ASSESSOR LUDLOW'S BARNS BURNED

He Suspects that Incendiaries Have Been Around His Premises.

Fire was discovered at nine o'clock last night in the haymow in one of Assessor Gideon E. Ludlow's barns, a few miles from Cranford. Four barns, the carriage house and corn crib were destroyed with their contents, including four horses and two cows. Loss estimated at $4,000, insurance $1,300.

Mr. Ludlow says it must have been set afire. The family of B. F. Haas, who live across the road, first saw the flames. Hundreds of people were attracted by the blaze, which could be seen for miles.

Bishop Wigger sustained.

Mgr. Satolli has written a letter to Bishop Wigger, saying that he approves the course taken by the Bishop when on Dec. 15, last, he ordered the late Father Corrigan of Hoboken to divide equally between himself and his three curates the money collected at the masses said in his church on All Souls' Day, in accordance with the established custom.

No division of the moneys having been made, one of the curates wrote to Bishop Wigger about the matter, and was instructed to go to Father Corrigan and demand a division. The curate did so, but Father Corrigan refused to pay over the money, saying the money was to be devoted to charitable purposes, whereupon Bishop Wigger ordered the money divided.

Tree Trunks on the Trolley Rails.

Another attempt was made to wreck a trolley car of the South Jersey Traction Company, plying between Millville and Bridgetown. As the 7 a. m. car, filled with passengers from Bridgetown, was passing the Goulditch farm, on route for Millville, it struck a pile of tree trunks lashed to the rails. The car was moving at great speed, and its momentum carried it fully twenty feet from the track. The car was damaged and a few passengers were injured, but not fatally. It is the fifth attempt to destroy the cars.

A Strange Case.

[From the Chronicle and Democrat.]

A Rochester man was confined to the house for three weeks because of the bite of a large spider. He held a policy in an accident insurance company and sent in a claim for $25 a week, the total being $75. The company refused to pay because the policy exempted it from liability for accidents caused by contact with poisonous substances. The party insured will at once commence a test case. The case is likely to bring out some novel points as to insurance.

Cold Weather Rules.

Never lean with the back upon anything that is cold.

Never begin a journey until the breakfast has been eaten.

Never take warm drinks and then immediately go out into the cold.

Clothing on the back, especially between the shoulder-blades well covered; also the chest well protected.

In sleeping in a cold room, establish a habit of breathing through the nose and never with the mouth open.

Never go to bed with cold or damp feet. Never omit regular bathing, for, unless the skin is in active condition, the cold will close the pores and favor congestion of some internal organ.

After exercise of any kind never ride in an open carriage, or near the window of a car for a moment. It is dangerous to health, or even life.

When food or drink is as little as possible until the heartiness is recovered from, else the voice may be permanently lost, or difficulties of the throat be produced.

Merely warm the back by the fire, and never continue keeping the back exposed to the heat after it has become comfortable warm. To do otherwise is debilitating.

When going from a warm atmosphere into a cooler one keep the mouth closed, so that the air may be warmed in its passage through the nose before it reaches the lungs.

Never stand still in cold weather, especially after having taken a slight degree of exercise, but always avoid standing on ice or snow, or where the person is exposed to cold wind.—Sanitarian.

And Now a Class For Ladies.

"The second term of the Plainfield Mechanical Drawing for the Deaf, has by request a class has been formed for the morning session, for scholars from 11 to 12 years of age, to be taught in the regular school studies, the same scholars will attend in the afternoon for Manual Training. A specialty will be made, during this term, of "vertical" or bent iron work. A few ladies, in this work, will meet twice a week.

The progress of the scholars who have attended during the past term has been very satisfactory, specimens of their work are on exhibition at the school 339 W. Front street.

For terms, which are very reasonable, apply to John Dalzell, at the school during the day or at 414 East Sixth street after six o'clock p. m. 24 10*

Theatrical and Literary Notes.

It is a common mistake to measure ability by age and culture. It is a matter of record that less learned and also short persons are apt to be most intelligent and interesting. Napoleon was a short man, so was Jay Gould, so is A. Hummel, the lawyer with the biggest practice in, he says, New York (what, of course, means America. But Manager J. M. Hill has discounted all these notables; he had to go abroad to do it. He has engaged Manstedt's celebrated Royal Court Colubrin. The term colubrin means very little in this country just now; in Europe it is significant. To theatre-goers in Germany, Italy, France, England, Egypt, Russia and Hungary it means the tiniest performers in the world. There are pigs of the tribe, Prince Fuzzy, one of the principals, who is just old enough to vote, weighs twelve pounds. When a child he could hide himself in his mother's slipper. In the organization are singers, jugglers, dancers, pantomimists, diseuseuses and acrobats; in fact these royal midgets can give, it is said, any kind of a theatrical entertainment at short notice. They have, already set sail for this country, and will make their first appearance in the continuous performance at Herrmann's Theatre, probably on February 19th. Manager J. M. Hill says it is the most important engagement he has made for some years.

Huckin's Soups at Rockfellow's.

The manufacturers of the well-known Huckin's Soups are not only fortunate in having what is said to be a most excellent article for sale, but also in having such a capable manager in Mr. Fiske, of La Grande avenue, who represents the firm in pretty much all of the United States. Huckin's Soup is being introduced into this vicinity by Mr. Fiske and is served free and hot at Mr. Rockfellows as announced in the attractive advertisement elsewhere.

AT LAST.

After Various Attempts He Got an "A4" to Suit Him.

"Say, colonel," and he looked at the man in the business office appealingly, "can you help me any? I want to put in an ad for a girl."

"Oh, that's easy. Just write it out. We'll do the rest at 10 cents a line." Encouraged the clerk as he showed the gentleman a pad of paper and handed him a pencil.

"Oh, I've got several written out. My wife wrote a couple and so did I. But I wanted to see which you think would be the best to get a girl. Here's my wife's," and he handed over one sheet.

Wanted—A girl who can that will cook, wash and iron, mind the children and do what is required. Must be honest, but [illegible] for the right kind of girl. Apply tomorrow.

"That's too strong. That won't catch one," said the clerk.

"That's what I told her. But how's this one?"

Wanted—A girl who can get up by the aid of an alarm clock in time to get breakfast and get the head of the house down to work by 7 o'clock; must not be a member of the Ladies' Division of any social club. For further particulars apply.

"Well, sir, I won't do, because, of course, the girl will want to know whether there is washing or not, or simply housework," said the man back of the counter.

"How will this do?"

Wanted—A good girl; one to do everything; must get breakfast.

"Well, that's better, but don't you think that this will do instead?" replied the clerk.

Wanted—A girl to do general housework, wash and iron.

"That's it, my boy," said the man, who was growing red in the face and blocking the line behind him; "that's it." And big tears of gratitude welled up in his eye as he paid for the ad and went out home to await the arrival of the applicants.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

WILSON MEN WON

House Passed the Tariff Bill 204 to 140.

DEMOCRATS BACK IN LINE.

Only Seventeen Voted With the Republicans When the Test Came.

With the Galleries and Corridors Crowded as Never Before the Great Tariff Debate Was Ended by a Symposium of Oratory, Punctuated by Applause That Was Unprecedented—Mr. Wilson Carried on the Shoulders of His Colleagues—New York Democrats Made One Last Unavailing Attempt to Defeat the Bill—A Complete Victory For the Measure—Speeches of Messrs. Reed, Crisp and Wilson.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—At the conclusion of one of the grandest, most imposing and most dramatic scenes ever witnessed in the American capitol the Wilson tariff bill passed the house of representatives by a vote of 204 to 140. The events leading up to it were almost unparalleled in our annals. After a preliminary skirmish of an hour over the barley schedule the bill was reported to the house, and the closing speeches were made. Such a vast concourse of people as assembled to hear these last arguments upon the great economic issue absorbed to be submitted for final arbitrament to the representatives of the American people has never before been seen within the precincts of the nation's legislative capitol. Nothing like it has ever been known in the history of the oldest inhabitant of the capital. For hours before the debate began the corridors leading to the galleries were a surging mass of humanity which finally became so great that men acted out in terror, and women fainted in fright.

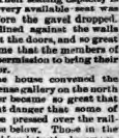
It was estimated that over 20,000 attempted to gain admittance to the galleries of the house. Their seating capacity is about 3,000, and every available seat was occupied long before the gavel dropped. The people were lined against the walls and banked against the doors, and so great did the crush become that the members of the committee on rules gave permission to bring their wives upon the floor.

Shortly after the house convened the crowds in the immense gallery on the north side of the chamber became so great that there was imminent danger that some of the people would be pressed over the railing into the house floor. Those in the corridors kept crushing into the doorways, and those still further back pressed forward until the lobby and all the adjacent gallery were literally packed with a mob of restless, impatient men.

Galleries Dangerously Crowded.

The crowding in at the doors, however, became most serious. Speaker Crisp, who had been nervously noting the dangerous packing of people, interrupted the roll call long enough to say that it was in the interest of the safety of life that the doorway should be cleared. He asked the doorkeeper of the gallery to clear out the crowds of those who stood in the entrances, so as to make those already inside and the [illegible] comfortable as possible without [illegible] being in danger. It was next to impossible, however, to at once execute this order, as there was absolutely no room for the ejectment of those who had found entrance into the aisles, but the policemen kept pressing back the people until they had materially reduced the danger that was very imminent. When Mr. Reed, the first speaker, arose at last to deliver the final plea for protection, the overhanging galleries were black and dense with spectators who crowded them. Every inch of space upon the floor was taken.



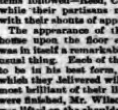
EX-SPEAKER REED.

It was a brilliant as well as a large assembly. Only 10 of the 356 members of the house were absent. Many grave senators and other distinguished personages were on the floor, and in the galleries were Mrs. Cleveland, Mrs. Whitney, Mrs. Stevenson and other ladies of eminence and distinction. Then for three hours the oratory of the champions of the two economic systems followed—Reed, Crisp and Wilson—while their partisans made the air vocal with their shouts of approval.

The appearance of the speaker of the house upon the floor engaged in debate was in itself a remarkable as well as an unusual thing. Each of the speakers seemed to be in his best form, and the speeches which they delivered will rank among the most brilliant of their lives. When these were finished, Mr. Wilson, who spoke last, was lifted on the shoulders of his admiring colleagues and carried triumphantly from the hall amid a scene of unmatched enthusiasm.

The Closing Scenes.

When it came to voting, the victory for the measure was overwhelming. Depending upon the income tax propositions, taken in connection with the internal revenue amendment, stood 182 to 36. Only 19 Republicans voted on this proposition—four in the affirmative and 15 against. The Democratic opposition amounted to 45. The final effort was made by these Democrats who are opposed to the measure to be counted in part, led by Mr. Cowen of New York, to recommit the bill, but the Republicans failed to join in the attempt to do so, the measure was declared carried in almost silence.



SPEAKER CRISP.

But 26 Democrats voted with enough to secure the yeas and nays—a record making vote. The vote upon the final passage of the bill was a surprise. Amid the most intense excitement Democrat after Democrat who had been counted upon to vote against the measure—like Blanchard, Bohlenbacher, Bontone, Cockran, Dunn, Cousins, Kaptich, Goldenbaum, McAleer, Strunk and others—came to their votes in the affirmative.

Only 17 Democrats of all the boasted Democratic opposition rose to give the measure short cut to the end and voted against it. As each one cast his vote it was greeted by applause and cheers from the Republican side.

Those who voted against it were Bartlett, Campbell, Cowen, Cummings, Haines, Hendrix, Holman, Lester, Lynch, Sickles of New York, Cadmus of New Jersey, Sperry and Page of Connecticut, Geary of California, Sibley of Pennsylvania and Davey, Meyer, Price and Robertson of Louisiana. The majority for the bill—it exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the Democratic members of the ways and means committee—was hailed with great amusement the vote, cheer followed cheer upon the Democratic side. Papers, hats, Congressional Records, and in fact everything which Democrats could lay their hands upon were flung high in air, and amid a perfect pandemonium of joy the house adjourned.

Mr. Reed's Speech.

Mr. Reed spoke as follows:

In this debate, which has extended over many weeks, one remarkable result has generally been reached—a result of the deepest importance to this country. That result is that the bill before us is odious to both sides of the house. It meets with favor nowhere and commands the support of no party. On this side we believe that while it pretends to be for protection it does not afford it, and on the other side they believe that while it looks toward free trade it does not accomplish it.

Those who will vote against this bill will do so because it opens our markets to the destructive competition of foreigners, and those who vote for it do so with the reservation that they will instantly devote themselves to a new crusade against whatever barriers are left.

Without entering into the merits made in defense of the bill on the other side, whether by gentlemen who were responsible only to their own party friends and to the people from West Virginia, who ought to have been stanched by his sense of responsibility to the whole country, have had and still have the right to make exceptions, placed their authors uncompromisingly, except for temporary purposes, on the side of mere party.

It is evident that there is no ground for that hope entertained by so many moderate men that this bill, bad as it is, could be a resting place where our manufacturing and productive industries, such as may survive, can re-establish themselves and have a sure foundation for the future, free from party bickering and party strife. Hence also there can be no foundation for that cry, so insidiously raised, that this bill should be passed in order that uncertainty is worse than any bill can possibly be. Were this bill to pass both branches today, uncertainty would remain just the same.

Nor have we in any way exhausted the future. This country is ten times more capable today of further development than it was in 1860.

So utterly undisputed and so distinctly visible to every human being in this audience have been our growth and progress that whatever the future industrial system of this country may be the past system is a splendid monument to that series of successful statesmen who found the country bankrupt and distressed and left it first in the list of nations.

England No Example.

Mr. Reed here quoted at length from English authorities, showing the strength of their confidence in the prosperity of this country.

These quotations also are only reminders for you, Mr. Speaker, and all who hear me know that the English people have had long enough here to know his opportunities has found the best place to invest his capital.

We may safely assume, then, Mr. Speaker, that a country which has become in the last 30 years the wonder of the industrial world" to quote Mr. Jenks—a country which during all that period was a "paradise for laboring men"—does not need to try any dubious experiments. What are the reasons why any change of principle should be had?

Is there any example in the history of the world of any nation situated like ours that has taken the step to which we are invited? Some gentlemen perhaps are hastening to say that England affords us the needed example.

After reciting the history of English tariffs and their relation to wages and to a shut country Mr. Reed said:

To sum this all up, England, when she became free trade, was a country which was manufactured the raw material of the rest of the world. Of raw material she herself had none. Her coal, iron and the invention of the steam engine had developed her manufactures to out of proportion to the wages of her workmen that she must be a large market.

After this review of the history of England's change, will any man dare to say that he finds therein any justification for the present dead of violence which is called the Wilson bill?

After quoting and commenting on the great rise in wages since 1860 Mr. Reed continued:

The truth is that this very question of rising wages is what makes us so many men free traders. People with fixed incomes think that anything which raises wages is inimical to them. Wise statesmen who have foreign markets are naturally anxious to have wages high, because the standard of living is also high as they are now, but constantly and steadily increasing.

On Unconstitutionality.

On the question of the constitutionality of tariff taxation I shall spend no time. I have already said that the right which comes of conceding that constitutionality and unconstitutionality on the other side of the chamber are more pleased, when I say that with a gentleman of the other side, with swelling voice, denounces the tariff as unconstitutional he merely means that he does not like it.

If the Father of His Country, fresh from the convention, in signing the first tariff act bill, signed an unconstitutional act, the gentlemen from Georgia (Mr. Turner) and the whole Democratic party are in a position of denouncing Washington—a thing not hitherto charged upon them.

There is still another argument which I desire to incorporate in my remarks which I have not used. What has made England rich? It is the enormous sum which comes of converting raw material into manufactured goods.

So long as she can persuade the rest of the world to remain in the state which is the least profitable and leave her the most enriching state can well be contented.

We are the only rival that England fears, for we alone have in our borders the population, the wages and the raw material, and within ourselves the capital which is necessary to the most improved machinery. Our constant power to increase our wages insures us also sufficient consumption.

If you wish us to follow the example of England, I say that we will follow her, but for real example and nothing but. Let us keep protection as she did until no rival dares to invade our territory, and then you may have chances for a future which by that time will not be unknown.

Gentlemen, my friends, that before this tribunal we all of us plead in vain. Why we fail at last we know not. Perhaps in the solemn words of Abraham Lincoln's first inaugural we may hope that he pleaded in vain with those assembled in the forum of old, before the solicitor general which will finally and forever decide this question we shall be spared from complaint, for the great nation, shaking off as it has done once before the intolerance of a lower civilization, will go on and on till the black, dancing until over the south as well as over the north shall be spread the full measure of that unequaled prosperity which is the wonder of the world.

His closing references to that former ill, lustrious leader, Lincoln, were made in a low voice, which could hardly have been caught but not every ear be strained to catch every word. As he closed, his left heard was caused only in one of the few instances which had marked his speech. At the close of the speech the speaker closed there was a burst of applause which swelled into a tumultuous demonstration as the enthusiastic audience gave cheers, hurrahs and shrill whistles, which are often heard in theatres, but seldom in the halls of congress.

Mr. Reed bowed his acknowledgment to the demonstration, and without resuming his seat or waiting for the many hands extended to congratulate him he made his way back to the Republican cloakroom. Half way up the aisle he was met by a page bearing a huge basket of American Beauty and La France roses.

Mr. Crisp Replies.

While the demonstration was going on Speaker Crisp relinquished the chair to Mr. Hatch and resumed the old seat which he occupied in the days before his elevation to the speakership. When he arose in his place, he received an ovation. The speaker is symmetrical in frame, dignified in bearing and his head, well poised, is crowned with a touch of silver hair on the sides, upon a pair of square shoulders. He looked the judicial minded man he is. He waved up his sleeve and with the best imitation of a man weighing each word and with a perceptible tremor of the lip. As he leaned forward, however, he displayed more fleshiness and case until the words came in a perfect torrent.

As Mr. Crisp proceeded he was given unexpected support by the Democratic members on the floor, but his points were of an argumentative character, which appealed to the students of the question rather than to the gallery. He read from the minority report and criticised that feature which declared that the foreigner paid the tax. At one time the speaker got himself and himself to the ex-speaker, although the latter was still kept in the cloakroom by the congratulatory handshakes.

Mr. Crisp was greeted with applause at the statement that the 30 years of protection were a period of unrest, during which the masses of the people had constantly rebelled against the heavy burdens of taxation.

The people had always been stilled at the polls by the Republican promises to reduce the tariff, but once successful at the polls the Republican legislators had surrendered themselves body and soul to the manufacturing interests.

The speaker declared that the gentleman (Mr. Reed) had throughout his speech refrained from the arguments of reason and had resorted to those of prejudice. He pointed to the Chinese as an example of what had resulted from a protective policy of a hundred years which had thought to make China rich by trading with itself.

Mr. Wilson Closes.

After the applause which greeted Mr. Crisp had died away Mr. Wilson spoke as follows:

MR. SPEAKER—I might well rest in this argument after the able and eloquent speech of the gentleman from Georgia, but I feel I ought to add a few words and to answer some arguments which have been advanced. For three years on this floor the gentleman on the other side of the house have lashed around the time worn arguments and prophecies that have always risen up against every effort to reduce taxation in advance toward the goal of equal commerce.

If time allowed, I should delight to take up for a few moments that last argument which a friend from Michigan (Mr. Burrows) brings into every conference like a ghost of the dead over under a glass case. I should like also to reply to my eloquent young friend from Iowa (Hallwell, who I see is not there he at one time came near being a pupil of mine.

It was a miss, however, and he never became a pupil of mine. I should like to refer from fragments he made upon this floor it was a miss that was as good as mine. [Laughter.] It was said by Dr. Johnson that you could tell a man out of a Scotchman if you catch him while young. I could have made a great deal of my friend from Iowa if I could have taught him economic doctrines before he came here.

Referring to the speech of Mr. Reed, he said:

After all, his main argument was that which is heard at every schoolhouse and crossroads in the country of the United States. We have had protection in the United States for the last 30 years we have got our prosperity from a law of congress and not from the laws of Almighty God. The gentleman from Maine will not go further than I will in singing the praises of our glorious country.

But I wish to remind him that we have grown great, and we have prospered, and we have increased in numbers, not because of protection, but because no law of congress could stand in the pathway of human progress. [Great applause.] You may praise your McKinley bills, and the process of humanity will trample them under its feet. But of the great effort of men to advance comes the glorious progress that to law of congress can impede and no McKinley bill can arrest. Your bills cannot affect. You can't prevent the accumulation of wealth in this country. You can't prevent the men who make it and bestow it upon some others who have not earned it.

The Revolt of Protection.

In a speech on March 10, 1820, Daniel Webster said that five-sixths of the property of the north belonged to the laborers of the north. Can any representative from the commonwealth of Massachusetts make such a glorious boast today?

There is a statement in the last census report of the United States that calls on every citizen to pause and ponder as to whether it be a sign of growing prosperity or a sign of growing and dangerous decadence. It appears in that report that of all the men occupying farms in this country today one-third of them are tenants living on farms of others. It appears that of all people who own homes more than two-thirds live in rented houses. If that is a sign of general prosperity, then the protective system is realized to the fullest, but I cannot believe that it is in a large measure due to that system.

Mr. Wilson then spoke of the sarcastic and bitter manner in which Mr. Reed had attacked this measure and said:

If gross misrepresentation, if low and debasing ridicule and sarcasm, we today would be the slaves of England instead of being free and prosperous people. If these are the methods by which a congressional and earnest meeting to the fight today for tariff reform. Whenever that party is able to put to issue its local interests and put the general interest alone in its eyes, we will reach the goal of freedom and victory. We feel proud of the statement that no other people have ever enjoyed. On our own side it's argument is made by some members that the tariff bill is not all that we left and therefore ought not to be passed. In the name of common sense, how could you ever pass a tariff bill if you have to put into it the taxes existing under the law that you seek to reform?

If you take up the history of free trade in England, you will find that as the free list increased the revenue increased also. In this country the taxable list was cut down from twelve hundred to seven articles, and the revenue was almost from the seven as from the twelve hundred.

Another argument that my friends on this side of the house advance against the bill is that an income tax has been added to it. I had some doubts as to the expediency of a personal income tax, but the committee decided that otherwise I was loyal to them because I have never been hostile to the idea of an income tax. I still entertain that objection, but the bill is so framed that it is almost as New England by the men of the south and west and the east. For years the citizens of New England have carried her dividends into the world imbued with the legislation that an income tax is the wisest form of taxation. She cannot come to Congress and say that her own teachings are brought against her.

In all my conference with the members of the ways and means committee I have heard this question discussed from every quarter of the nation in a sectional spirit. [Applause.] To the gentleman on the other side I desire to say that I doubt not of the sincerity, I doubt not the love of fellow men that compels you to champion your side of this question, nor do I doubt the honesty and sincerity of the opposition to the bill by members on this side.

We want to make this a country where every man can vote and need not be compelled to live life of degraded mechanical drudgery. [Applause.]

We want to make this a country where no man shall pay tribute for the benefit of another man, but where all the blessings of free government, of intelligence, of the influences of the church, where all our resources, and all our skill, and all our science in developing them can be the natural heritage of all the people, adding to their comfort, to their culture and to their happiness.

And now, gentlemen, we are about to vote upon this question, if I know that when the roll was called every Democrat would respond in the negative of this measure. I thought that I had fixed last night hearted. This roll call will not be entered on the journals of this house, but it will be entered upon the journals of freedom. [Great applause.]

Soon thereafter a motion to vote against the bill when the roll is called, but it will be as act greatly to be regretted in years to come. If one of the men has had an opportunity to sign the Declaration of Independence had refused, what would be his standing in history today? If a soldier at the threshold of Lexington or Concord her Hill had become dissatisfied and thrown away his weapons, what would be his feeling when he heard the shouting of the liberty bell on every university of freedom? In the name of honor and in the name of freedom I summon every Democrat upon this floor in the house to inscribe his name upon this bill.

Mr. Wilson's glowing peroration aroused the Democrats behind him to a pitch of the highest pitch of enthusiasm, and the demonstration which followed his last words has never been equalled in the house. The whole Democratic side arose in its feet. Books and records were thrown in the air, cheer followed cheer, and the people in the galleries joined with their hands in the tributes. Before Mr. Wilson could sit down three of the Democratic members, bubbling over with enthusiasm—Messrs. Wilkins of Ohio, Fellow of Virginia and Bryan of Nebraska—rushed up the aisle, lifted Mr. Wilson upon their shoulders and carried him in triumph to the rear of the hall, where for 10 minutes he listened to the words of praise that were showered upon him.

It was a remarkable demonstration in every respect. The time had now arrived 50 vote on the bill and pending amendments, but the disorder was so great that the sergeant-at-arms was called upon to clear the aisles, and the wives of members who had been allowed upon the floor were obliged to retire. It took 30 minutes to restore order so that public business could proceed.

The Voting Begun.

The speaker then announced that there were two pending amendments—that of the committee on ways and means to increase the duty on barley from 30 to 35 per cent ad valorem and on barley malt from 35 to 35 per cent, and the amendment of Mr. Tawney of Minnesota to increase the duty to 30 cents per bushel on barley and 35 cents on barley malt. The first vote was taken on the Tawney amendment, which was lost upon a yea and nay vote by 130 to 171. The question of the committee was then agreed to—202 to 104—although a number of Democrats, including Messrs. Lockwood of New York, Mercey, McMillin, Warner, Bland, Wheeler of Alabama and Wolverton, voted against it.

The speaker then announced that the vote was upon the amendments adopted by the committee of the whole. Mr. Johnson of Ohio demanded a separate vote on the wool and woolen amendments, and Mr. Langley of Kentucky upon the income tax and upon the petroleum amendment. The other amendments, including that amendment abolishing the bounty on sugar and placing refined sugar on the free list, were then agreed to in bulk without division.

The first amendment which Mr. Johnson desired a separate vote upon was that placing wool upon the free list immediately upon the passage of the bill. This amendment having been vitiated by a later amendment placing the date at Aug. 2, a point of order was raised that the latter amendment must first be voted upon, but after some discussion the chair decided that the Johnson amendment must be voted upon to perfect the text, and that the real test would come upon the amendment to strike out the words "immediately after the passage of the bill" and insert "on and after Aug. 2." The Johnson amendment was therefore agreed to without division. The other amendment was agreed to—205 to 147. Mr. Johnson tried to get the yeas and nays, but could not muster five votes to his aid. The amendment fixing the date as Dec. 2 when the manufactured woolens should be subject to into effect was also adopted—200 to 136.

Mr. Johnson again being unable to secure the yeas and nays, the vote was then taken upon the amendment providing for reciprocity in petroleum, and it was carried—177 to 47. The last amendment to be voted upon was that providing for the income tax. Mr. Cockran demanded the yeas and nays upon this amendment. It was significant that the Republicans refused to second the demand for the yeas and nays, but enough Democrats arose—51—to order the roll call. It was then found that the income tax could not be voted upon as a separate proposition, the speaker deciding in accordance with a precedent which he cited that the internal revenue amendment, having been reported as a single amendment, could not be divided. The vote, therefore, was upon the entire rejection of the internal revenue amendment.

The Republicans with few exceptions refrained from voting, but the amendment including the income tax was adopted—182 to 50. The Populists voted in the affirmative.

Some cheering greeted the announcement of the vote. The bill was engrossed and read the third time.

The Final Vote.

The last stage in the passage of the bill had been reached when Mr. Covert of New York, standing in the center aisle, moved to recommit the bill to the committee, with instructions to report back the bill with such amendments as will provide by duties levied on imports for such additional revenue as may be necessary to the support of the government economically administered.

Mr. Cockran made motion Mr. Cockran demanded the yeas and nays, but only 36 Democrats rose to second the demand, principally those who had voted against the income tax, together with the Louisiana sugar men—not a sufficient number. The motion to recommit was then defeated on a rising vote—182 to 117.

Then came the final vote on the bill itself, on which a yea and nay vote was asked and granted by a rising vote. The roll call was listened to with breathless attention, and frequent bursts of applause greeted accessions to one side or the other. But a majority of Pennsylvanians were the first to win applause for their vote, indicating that the Pennsylvanians were falling into line.

Immediately after this Blanchard of Louisiana was applauded as he voted yea. It showed that the Louisiana opposition to the bill was not intact. Mr. Cockran's vote in favor of the bill brought out tumultuous cheering. The climax of the demonstration was reached when the name of Mr. Wilson, author of the bill, was reached, the Democrats cheering vociferously at final recognition of his leadership. The speaker asked that his name be called, and he answered in the affirmative. Then the speaker announced, "On this question the yeas are 204 and the nays are 140, and the bill is passed."

There was another burst of applause as the bill passed its final stage in the house. The Democrats shook one another by the hands, and Mr. Wilson was again the center of congratulations. It was exactly two minutes to 2 o'clock when the bill passed.

Mr. Wilson quickly moved to adjourn. Mr. Boatelle tried to interest with a question of privilege, but the motion to adjourn cut him off. The house thereupon adjourned, and the exciting events of the day were over.

Senate Sticks to the Road Items.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The entire session of the senate was devoted to the discussion of the blood question, and an adjournment was finally taken without any action on the resolution. The principal speeches were by Senator Stewart and Senator Allison, both of whom defended the right of secretary of the treasury had no power to issue bonds for other purposes than redemption, and that it would be a violation of law for the secretary of the treasury to use the money thus accruing for the purpose of meeting current expenditures.

Mrs. Cleveland Heard the Debate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—While Speaker Crisp was delivering Mr. Wilson's and a party of ladies from the White House, accompanied by Private Secretary Thurber, arrived at the capitol. They forced their way through the crowds with difficulty to the president's gallery, and Mrs. Cleveland listened to the remainder of the debate from a seat near the rear of the gallery.

HAWAIIAN NEWS.

Minister Willis Refused to Take Part In Queen's Inauguration.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 2.—The brig W. G. Irwin arrived from Honolulu bringing advices to Jan. 17, five days later than last advices received here by the steamer Monowai on Jan. 19. Since last advices but little of importance has happened. The people are preparing for a grand celebration of the 26th, when the queen is called upon to clear the aisles, and the wives of members who had been allowed upon the floor were obliged to retire. It took 30 minutes to restore order so that public business could proceed.

FIGHTING FOR A SEAT.

Lively Scenes in the New York Senate Chamber.

M'CARTY AND WOLFERT CLAIM IT.

Lieutenant Governor Sheehan Decides In Favor of the Democratic and President Pastes in Favor of the Republican Claimant—An Illegal Election Alleged.

ALBANY, Feb. 2.—After seven hours and five minutes' continuous session the state senate adjourned, with two men declared to be the legal representative in that body from the Sixth senatorial district. Senator John McCarty has been declared by the presiding officer, Lieutenant Governor Sheehan, to be the legal representative.

Acting under the instructions of the president pro tem., Mr. Saxton, the clerk has declared Henry Wolfert to be the senator from the Sixth. Mr. Wolfert immediately took the oath of office before Secretary of State John Palmer. Mr. Wolfert declares he will take the seat today, and McCarty says he will not give it up.

The sergeant-at-arms and his corps may have some work to do, although it is said that an injunction will be served on the clerk of the senate restraining him from declaring the result or putting it on the records. The McCarty case was taken up immediately after prayer, and for hour after hour the filibustering went on.

Scuffle Started by a Republican.

After a heated debate, in which Senator Saxton appealed from Lieutenant Governor Sheehan's rulings, the president read the decision in section of the constitution ordering him only to call the roll when ordered by the presiding officer. There were cries of "Go ahead!" from the Republicans and cries of "Order!" from the Democrats. All of the Democrats refused to vote, several senators explaining their votes. The clerk announced the vote as follows: Yeas, 14; nays, 19. Senator Bradley voted aye to sustain the president. The president said the clerk was not authorized to announce the vote.

The chair refused to put the motion that the debate be closed. Senator Saxton ordered the clerk to call the roll. The clerk announced: Yeas, 19; nays, 0. Democratic senators declined to vote. The chair made the same objection.

Senator Saxton said there was no question before the house but the adoption of the report. The president said the question was the resolution of Senator Wolf, and that debate on that could be continued until 9:30 o'clock.

Senator Saxton—As nobody seems to want to debate, I move the adoption of the majority vote. I ask the clerk to put the question and call the roll.

The clerk obeyed the direction and announced the vote as 19 yeas and 19 refusing to vote.

The chair said, "The chair decides that the majority of this body is contrary to law, contrary to rules, contrary to the constitution, and that this resolution is unconstitutional that the Hon. John McCarty is still the senator from the Sixth district."

Senator Wolf said adjourn, and amid loud applause from the crowded crowd of colored people the chair declared the senate adjourned.

Assemblyman Mr. Whitsell's Buffalo election bills, the ballot reform bill, the Lansingburg police bills were passed, and a resolution was adopted calling on the representatives in the national congress to do all in their power to have the oleomargarine act passed.

An Opinion on the Jersey Muddle.

JERSEY CITY, Feb. 2.—Governor Werts received a formal opinion from Attorney General Stockton upon the advisability of quo warranto proceedings in the New Jersey senatorial deadlock. The attorney general's opinion says he has no doubt of the jurisdiction of this supreme court where there are two conflicting legislatures, each claiming a right to exercise legislative functions, to determine by which body legislative authority can be used.

Scuffle Threatened by a Horsetail.

SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 2.—J. W. Watson, a country divine, while conducting a revival at Yellow Springs, was called a liar and a fool by Sandy Pettiford, whereupon the preacher marched down the aisle and pounded Pettiford until members of the congregation interfered.

Knifed by a Wolf.

MEMPHIS, Ala., Feb. 2.—The 6-year-old daughter of Ramsey Billups was attacked near her home by a wolf and badly cut, and glad that she died. Her brother in an effort to save her was also probably fatally torn, but succeeded in killing the wolf.

The Knights Will Appeal.

CHICAGO, Feb. 2.—J. R. Sovereign, general master workman of the Knights of Labor, says that the fight of the Knights of Labor against the bond issue is not yet ended. "We will in all probability take an appeal," he said.

Mr. Childs' Condition.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—The physicians in attendance on George W. Childs issued a bulletin saying that there is no striking change in his condition.

NEWS ETCHINGS.

The threatened strike or lockout of miners at Cripple Creek, Colo., has begun.

Two boys while coasting in Moline, Ills., ran into an electric car and were fatally hurt.

The health of the czar has so far improved that his physicians pronounce him to be out of danger.

The threatened duel between Colonel A. C. Fisk and Senator David Boyd of Denver has been averted.

Alfred House, a farmer in Gardnersville, N. Y., was killed by his brother Alfred, who then cut his throat and died.

The Watkins bill to punish prize fighters and abettors of prize fighting has passed the Iowa house by a unanimous vote.

D. Lohman, the treasurer of the Brooklyn excise department, who has been missing since Sunday, has not yet returned.

Four children, aged 4 to 14, in the Robeson family at Amboy Church, Ia., died of diphtheria and were buried in one grave.

A double tragedy of murder and suicide occurred on Champ de Mars street, Montreal, when Dufresne, a young man, shot his sister and then killed himself.

A willow and woodenware warehouse owned by Felix & Marston was destroyed by fire in Chicago. Two of the employes were fatally burned in escaping.

Cashier J. E. Clark of the Planters' bank of Ellaville, Ga., after an unsuccessful attempt to poison himself, confessed that it was he who had blown open the safe and robbed it of several thousand dollars.

LOOKING BACKWARD!

Over the past two weeks shows the most successful January clearing sale we have ever had. That's in selling goods, some other time we will try and figure loose. In the meantime, we will sell goods; more than ever, lower than ever.

HERE'S EVIDENCE!

There ain't much money in Amoskeag and Lancaster Ginghams, at 4½c, but we have just five cases more to sell at that price.

MUSLINS—Probably the last week that you will buy "Fruit of the Loom," and "Dwight Anchor" Muslins for 7c, so don't wait.

HOSIERY—Just what the boys and girls want—a Stocking that is fast black, and will last a week or two with out darning. That's what we are selling for 25c. pair.

LADIES' MUSLIN UNDERWEAR—No use waiting time over a machine, when for 25c. you can buy Night Dresses, Skirts, Chemise, Corset Covers, and Drawers, all neatly made of good material; and for 50c. there are Embroidered Night Dresses, Trimmed Skirts, Corset Covers, etc. Bought them from a manufacturer who wanted ready cash.

Just a few more of those Ladies' and Misses' Jackets left for $1.25. There are a few 38-40-42 Ladies' Coats, that were $15 and $18 each—yours for $8 and $9.

WHITE, of Plainfield.

WOMAN AND HOME.

A DOCTOR'S OPINION OF WHAT IS IDEAL EXERCISE FOR WOMEN.

Picking Out a Husband—"A Serious Proposal to Ladies"—Keep the Babies Warm—A Gould Baby's Easiest—Teaching Children—A Remarkable Little State.

"The ideal exercise for women who haven't time for gymnasiums?" The doctor repeated the question thoughtfully. Then she smiled. "Housework is not a bad substitute," said she. "Arms and legs are exercised in sweeping; the muscles of the back are strengthened by the slight bending and rising in beinaking; the chest is expanded by the broadening motion of the arms in dusting. And, as the windows should all be wide open in the bedrooms and rooms where cleaning is in progress, the worker has plenty of fresh air. Yes, housework is an excellent exercise.

"Of course there are women who haven't time for either gymnasiums or housework — women who sit at desks all day or over type-writing or sewing machines, women who stand in stores and work in factories. There are a great many of them. I wish they could be made to know the value of walking. Of course, it will not develop their arms or necessarily expand their chests. But walking and drawing in deep, long breaths, expelling the air slowly after each inspiration, will do more for their lungs and chests than quarts of oil and mustard plasters galore. It will give them appetites for dinner; it will invigorate and strengthen them; it will help to render them impervious to cold; it is absolutely necessary for the preservation of their health in walk briskly, the shoulders well thrown back and head erect, after their long day's imprisonment.

"For girls who will develop all the muscles—well, the evening walk plus the morning swinging of dumbbells or Indian clubs will be enough. An exercise which seems to take more of the stiffness out of the body is this: Just before one gets into bed let her hold her hands, the fingers touching, as high above her head as she can. Then let her rise slowly on her toes to the greatest possible height, and then bend forward from the waist, not leaving the toes, to see how nearly she can touch the floor with her hands as she swings them forward. Arms, legs, chest and back all get some slight exercise from this, and that detestable aged feeling which creeps on after the day's work is banished. Sometimes one's muscles seem stiffened. That means the beginning of decrepitude. Keep them limber. That's the secret of eternal youth."—New York World.

Picking Out a Husband.

Girls, you don't want a man who is afraid of good, honest work, and there are lots of them who are. You don't want to have to spend the very best of your youth in trying to reform a man or shield him, so that you will not become a claimant for the pity of your friends. You don't want a man who is stingy, and no bad girl with two grains of sense in her sharp enough to discover this trait in the lovers? Neither do you want a spendthrift. You don't want a jealous husband, for he is about as dangerous to live with as a lunatic. You don't want a dandy, who curls his hair, has his nails manicured and uses a face bleach, and you wouldn't believe how many such specimens are floating around in society. You want a whole souled, lovable gentleman. He must—now take out your memorandum book—be courteous to the aged and kind to the little folks, the sort of a fellow who knows that a girl loves flowers and sweetmeats, but who is not such a fool that he would pawn his overcoat to get them. The kind of a chap who disdains to fall into rhapsodies over pretty woman he meets, who realizes that life is not a joke, but who in his serious moments is never depressing. He must be gentle, sympathetic, honorable, just, with enough romance about his makeup to save him from being prosaic, and, above all, he must be so situated in life that he can attempt the role of homemaker without fear of being a dismal failure. Where will such a paragon be found? Keep your eyes wide open. If you do not meet him, take my advice and join the sisterhood, prefer single bliss to wedded wretchedness.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"A Serious Proposal to Ladies."

Really there is nothing new under the sun. Even the doctrine of woman's rights is not at all a nineteenth century idea, as the reformers would have it appear. Two centuries ago there lived a woman who was the first advocate of woman's rights. This good lady's name was Mrs. Mary Astell, and she published her theories in a little book called "A Serious Proposal to the Ladies For the Advancement of Their True and Greatest Interest, by a Lover of Her Sex."

This book was printed in 1694, and therein the good lady implores women "not to be content to be in the world like tulips in a garden, to make a fine show and be good for nothing." She also says that women value men too much and themselves too little, and that they "should be capable of nobler things than the pitiful conquest of some poor human heart, for a woman should always remember that she has no mighty obligation to the man who makes love to her, she has no reason to be fond of being a wife or to reckon it a price (!) of preferment when she is taken to be a man's upper servant." Ye gods and little fishes, to think that radical sentiment was written 200 years ago! And what a glorious woman's cloth president Dame Astell would have made if she were alive today! And still the foolish mind of woman seems ever bent on "the pitiful conquest of some poor human heart," for which the gods be thanked, else how would there be any woman born to pride and prattle of the rights of their sex?—New York Sun.

Keep the Babies Warm.

A professional nurse of many years' experience tells me that she finds more babies suffering from insufficient clothing among the rich than among the poor. For example, she was summoned by a physician to a wealthy family where the 5-months-old baby was suffering from some mysterious trouble that baffled everybody. He could live only a few days, the doctor said, if something was not done. He could keep nothing on his stomach and was slowly starving to death. The nurse found a distracted mother and a pinched and moaning baby. His flesh was blue, and there was a settled look of anguish on his face. The nurse picked him up from the silk and lace of his costly crib and found just what she expected—dress and skirts of linen so fine as gossamer and about as warm, shirts and socks like lace, flannel skirts of the regulation number, but so fine and thin as to give little warmth. "Is this the way you have dressed your baby from the first?" asked the nurse. "Oh, yes, I've always had the best of everything for him," answered the mother.

"Well, it's no wonder he is sick. He hasn't enough on to keep a fly warm in July." The nurse called for the thickest blanket in the house and a hot water bag and sent the astonished mother down town for the warmest flannel wrapper, however ugly they might be. The result was that in a few days the child was taking his food perfectly and was thriving as well as could be desired.—Babyhood.

A Gould Baby's Easiest.

Mrs. George Gould went all the way to Paris to buy a layette for her first baby. It was made of hand loom muslins, convent sewed and trimmed with narrow but fine lace. Mrs. Edwin Gould and her mother, Mrs. Dr. Shrady, went to the Women's Exchange, and her order gave 40 American women in reduced circumstances from one to three weeks' work. The little garments were as beautiful as they could be, not trimmed, but made, and the needle women were well paid for their cunning skill. English nainsook was used throughout, and instead of elaborate embroidery the hems and seams were inserted by stitched, and run with fine silk like in width. The little lace used on the yokes and cuffs was real valenciennes and cost 20 cents a yard. About the only piece of extravagance in which this sensible girl wife indulged was a shell shaped bassinet, with a lofty canopy, curtained and flounced with rose colored silk and quilted d'esprit lace. The little mattress, made by a woman, was tufted with baby ribbons, the pillow was filled with curled hair, soft and until it was as soft as moss, and the cambric sheets and pillow cases were probably finer than any handkerchief day Gould carried in his early manhood.—St. Louis Republic.

Teaching Children.

The new system of education by which a child's interest is sustained and his ambition awakened has, together with its many obvious advantages, very real dangers, which the old dry as dust methods were at least free from. However wearisome a task under the old regime, there was certainly no danger of overstimulation or undue tension of the brain. In these days of high pressure, when every possible effort is made to excite intelligent interest in the pupil, it is only too easy by the so called successful methods of the day to produce a mental exhaustion which in itself is extremely hurtful both mentally and physically. Fancy a mother of the period actually saying in good faith, in speaking of a well known teacher: "Miss X. is wonderfully successful with her scholars. They simply love their work, and their progress is something extraordinary. When I remember how I used to hate study when I was a child, I cannot sufficiently admire the present methods. Why, my Elsie thinks of nothing but lessons, and she gets so excited over her books that she is unable to sleep, and I have to give her composition a quiet bear."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Remarkable Little State.

Among the colonial possessions or dependencies of Holland there is a remarkable little state which, in its constitution and the customs of its inhabitants, surpasses the boldest flights of the advocates of women's rights. In the island of Java, between the cities of Batavia and Samarang, is the kingdom of Bantam, which, although tributary to Holland, is in other respects an independent state, politically almost as much so as Switzerland, and since time immemorial governed and defended by women. The sovereign is, indeed, a man, but all the rest of the government belongs to women. The king is entirely dependent upon his state council, composed of three women. The highest authorities, all state officers, court functionaries, military commanders and soldiers are without exception women. The men are agriculturists and merchants. The king's bodyguard is formed of amazons, who ride in the masculine style. The throne is inherited in the female sex, and in case the king dies without issue 100 amazons assemble and choose a successor from among their own sons, the chosen one being then proclaimed lawful king.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Little Fun at Home.

Do not be afraid of a little fun at home. Do not shut up your house lest the sun should fade your carpets, and your hearts lest a laugh shake down a few of the musty old cobwebs that are hanging there. If you want to ruin your sons, let them think that all mirth and social enjoyment must be left at the threshold without when they come home at night. When once a home is regarded as only a place to eat, drink and sleep in, you may look for your boys to be gambling houses and reckless degradation. Young people must have fun and relaxation. If they do not find it at their own hearthstones, they will seek it at less profitable places. Do not repress the buoyant spirits of your children. Half an hour of romping with them does more than many of a home blots out the remembrance of many a care and annoyance during the day, and the best safeguard they can throw around into the world is the influence of a bright home.—Christian at Work.

A Hint to American Girls.

I am convinced that if some neat handed girls, instead of becoming ladies' maids, were to set up as morning "hairdressers in town they would very shortly find the occupation a most lucrative one. In the small French as well as German towns, to say nothing of Paris and Berlin, these hair dressing girls abound. Even women of the poorer bourgeoisie, if not adepts at arranging the hair, are waited upon every morning by the chief lady in the locality turn out. I am told that in Berlin an ordinary "frisir-madchen" receives 10 or 12 shillings a month for attending on a lady every morning. The more accomplished ones are paid at a higher rate. The very market women and laundresses in Paris and Madrid have exquisitely dressed heads, whereas even in the upper classes here a really smart coiffure is at once remarked upon.—London Queen.

Mrs. Wallace's Romance.

The long and happy life of Mrs. Lew Wallace is, it seems, founded upon a pretty romance. General Wallace was but 19 years old when serving his country in the Mexican war. A comrade talked much of a certain Susan Elston, who lived in his home town, Crawfordsville, Ind., and young Lieutenant Wallace in consequence became enamored of a girl whom he had never seen. As soon as he left Mexico he journeyed to Crawfordsville, made Miss Elston's acquaintance, and three years later they were married. Mrs. Wallace is described as slight and of medium height, with regular features and beautiful brown hair, which is now tinged with gray. She has been all her life an enthusiastic reader, and at her best is a witty and brilliant conversationist.—New York Letter.

He Thought It Was Found Out.

A certain Philadelphia gentleman of more name than fame was ordered by his physician to travel for the benefit of his health.

He went to England and after three or four months thought he had decided to blow a trap and was the happiest of luxurior England in dignified and quiet luxury.

Jenk then he hied him with a hearty, good natured Englishman and as they were to become fast friends the American invited the other to attend him on his coaching trip.

The cool of John Bull was equal to the task, and during the days of pleasure that followed each frequently and in a joking manner improved every occasion to impress his own country and anyone in connection with it.

On the evening of the fourth day, as they were driving along a dusty road, the American pulled the horses to a sudden stand and proceeded to read a sign post. "To Manchester 20 miles," and understanding were the words, "If you cannot read this sign, apply for information at the black smith's shop."

"Well, I'll be darned," said the American, "if that isn't the most ridiculous sign I ever saw!"

"Love, old man," replied the Englishman, "that sign is all right. Can't it? I don't see anything the matter."

"You don't, eh? Well, then, you just sleep over it and see what you think in the morning."

The next morning the Englishman came down beaming.

"I say, old man," he said wisely, "that was a funny sign to put up, for don't you see the blacksmith might not be in after all, you know."—Boston Budget.

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

THE REGULAR MEETING FOR FEBRUARY.

The Edison Electric Light Company Receives the Contract for the Lighting of the Borough for Five Years.—Warrants Ordered Drawn for Several Notes.—Other Business.

The February meeting of the Borough Council was held last night. Mayor Saunders and Councilmen Fountain, Hammer, Howell, Needham and Neal were present. Councilman Edwards was absent.

A communication was read from the Plainfield Medical Association, in which a resolution favoring the placing of sewers about the city and borough, was embodied. The communication was received and filed.

Mr. E. M. Williams, third Vice president of the Central Railroad, in answer to the Mayor's letter to him asking for a pass for Chief Marshal Pangborn, wrote that the company would not furnish the desired pass.

Mayor Saunders' letter to the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company requesting the placing of a telephone in the electric light station and another in Marshal Pangborn's house, and the answer received were read. The company will agree to furnish one phone telephone but not two. The company suggested that the borough adopt an ordinance similar to that in the city of Plainfield, relating to the boarding of the poles and wires in the borough.

Mr. W. H. Brock, in a communication, complained of the way the Somerset street railway had been operated since it began operation. Since August there had been about two months that only one car was run. This was in violation of the railway ordinance, and it was the Council's duty to see that the company complied with its agreement. Last month most of the time only one car was run, and not under 30 minutes headway. It made it very inconvenient for commuters when there was but one car running. Mr. Brock's communication was referred to the Committee on Streets.

Two liable on Mercer avenue were petitioned for—one between Duer and Grove streets, and the other between Grove and Washington. It was referred to the Committee on Lights.

Mr. J. W. A. Bonnemeche and others petitioned for a Cornwall on Manning avenue across Warren street. Referred to the Committee on Streets, with power.

The following claims were read, referred to the proper Committees and ordered paid:

Warren Engine Co.	$161.94
W. N. Pangborn	73.00
W. Morrison	20.00
H. Lindt	30.00
W. J. Conroy	2.00
A. L. Force	2.00
W. Runyon	18.90
A. A. Thickstun	85.50
J. McGlynn	6.00
C. W. Krause	6.94
Boice, Runyon & Co.	13.20
T. Reader	5.00
T. R. Crosby	25.00
T. H. Crosby	3.00
Plainfield Gas & Electric Light Co.	2.46
A. A. Thickstun	29.40
J. D. Hollick	19.90
Z. Wilson	20.00
F. Kellogher	6.00
Edison Electric Light Co.	405.00

Collector H. N. Spencer's monthly report was read and filed.

Marshal Pangborn reported that he had collected five licenses, $25.

Mr. Needham, of the Special Committee on Sewerage, reported that as Plainfield had had maps and surveys made of a proposed sewerage system it was time the borough took some action also in reference to the matter. Mr. Needham suggested that the present Council year was almost ended, that the matter be left for the next Council. The committee thought that it was time now for the people to borrow the money and build sewers.

Mr. Fountain reported that two lights had been placed on Manning avenue. He also reported that the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company had submitted a bid for the lighting of the borough for a term of three or ten years, agreeing to furnish 25 candle power lights at $15.20 per lamp per year. A bid was also received from the Danielson Company, which offered light at $17 per lamp. The bonding was received and filed.

Mayor Saunders stated that the work on Grove street was progressing very satisfactorily. The largest part of the filling in had been completed, and it is expected but two or three days more people will be able to drive direct from the mountain to Plainfield. The Board of Freeholders is to be asked to correct the line of the brook so as to keep it from washing through the roadbed.

Mr. Neal offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the payment of a note of $1,000 due Jan. 24. Notes for $600, $1,000, 1,000 were also ordered paid. Two were charged to the street lighting account, and the other to the borough account.

By resolution two poles were ordered erected and lights placed on Race street, one between Somerset and Warren street and the other above Warren street.

The electric light contract was then brought up by Mr. Fountain, who arose and said:

"Your honor will recollect that at the last meeting of the Council a resolution was presented and laid on the table regarding the giving out of the contract for street lighting. There have been bids presented to-night by the Plainfield and Dunellen Companies."

Mr. Fountain was here interrupted by Mr. Neal who arose to a point of order stating that Mr. Fountain was wandering too far from the subject of the resolution.

Mayor Saunders decided that Mr. Fountain was in order.

Mr. Fountain—"I was going to say when interrupted by the wise gentleman on the other side that as Dr. Cooley of the Edison Company was present he be given the privilege of the floor."

Dr. Cooley stated that the Edison Company would agree to furnish light for $16 per lamp per year for the first five years and for $15.50 per lamp per year for the next five years.

Mr. Neal said he favored renewing the present contract with the Company for one year more, in view of the fact that there had been so much complaint about the lights during the past year. At the end of that time they would give a five year contract if the Company's light had been satisfactory.

Mayor Saunders called Councilman Hammer to the chair and took the floor. He said it was evidently not a question of politics. He did not agree with Councilman Neal on the length of time of the contract. He was in favor of a five year contract.

All smiled audibly when in the course of it remarks the Mayor said that he and Mr. Neal might also discuss in relation to the Income Tax Bill. While Mr. Neal might be in favor of it he was not.

Mayor Saunders said the borough had a good contract, well drawn, and that it was drawn by a fine borough counsellor. It was the Council's fault if the Company failed to live up to the contract and give the borough the light contracted for, as the contract contained clauses making the Company pay penalties for neglect to live up to it.

A vote was then taken and the Edison Company was given the contract, all voting aye, except Councilman Neal.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the payment to Street Commissioner Gavin, for supervising the work on Grove street, of one half his usual pay.

The sidewalk ordinance was passed on its third reading and adopted.

Council then adjourned.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Paul, formerly of this city, visited old friends here yesterday.

Mr. Brown of Alleghany, Pa., is visiting at the home of Mr. F. H. Andrews of Central avenue.

Mrs. Edda I. Kelley of North Seventh street Newark, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Scribner of Maple avenue, North Plainfield.

After the concert Monday night Prof. Sharwenka will be tendered a reception by Miss French at her home on West Front street.

Harold Vanderhoff, the three year old son of Constable Vanderhoff of West Front street, was taken with membranaceous croup last night, and is still very ill.

Rev. Mary T. Whitney, of West Somerville, Mass., was invited to preside over the meeting of the Unitarian Clergymen, of Boston and vicinity, last Monday, and did so with grace and dignity. The address was given by Mr. Alexander Russell Webb on "Islam."

Miss May Flanagan, who won such hearty applause by her excellent singing at the entertainment in Music Hall Thursday evening, surprised her friends, who have since been showering their congratulations upon her. She is a member of the choir of St. Mary's church.

The Misses Hockridge of East Fifth street gave a dance to a number of their friends last evening. Among those present were: Miss Cummings, Miss Moore, Miss Ellis, Miss Fisher, Miss Barnes of New York, Messrs. Moore, Dell, Haven, Morrison, Blair and Hockridge.

The hats worn by the ladies in the play "Married Life" given by the Y. M. C. L. in Music Hall Thursday evening, were the creation of Miss Kittie Daly of this city. They completely captivate the audience by their beauty, which of course was helped by the beauty of the girls who wore them.

Mr. Daniel Allen, 61 years old, died yesterday afternoon at Scotch Plains. A wife and nine children survive him. There are seven sons and four daughters. One of the sons is Mr. Joseph C. Allen of this city. The funeral will take place Monday afternoon. Interment will be at Hillside Cemetery.

Home Missionary Society Sociable.

The Home Missionary Society of Grace M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. Jacob Voehl, on Somerset street, last night. A short business meeting was followed by a season of sociability, during which the following programme was rendered:

Song—"He was not Willing that ..... Miss Gleeck
Reading—"Mother's Prayer" ..... Miss Gleeck
Solo and Chorus ..... Mr. Loomis and Mr and Mrs. Powell
Comical recitation ..... John H. Carney

Twelve new members were added to the membership of the Society, making a total now of 35.

After the programme refreshments were served.

The committee in charge of the social part of the meeting consisted of Mrs. F. A. Gleeck, Mrs. Loomis, Mrs. E. Winkler and Mrs. J. S. Lunger.

Mr. Smalley's Will Admitted to Probate.

The will of the late John C. Smalley of Maple avenue, North Plainfield, was admitted to Probate yesterday at Somerville. His daughter Mrs. Edda J. Kelley of Newark is named as the executrix.

MET IN THEIR NEW ROOM

MEETING OF THE UNION COUNTY FREEHOLDERS AT ELIZABETH.

The Vacancy Caused by the Death of Mr. Winans Left Unfilled.—The Board Well Pleased with Their New Room.

The Union County Board of Freeholders met yesterday in their new room in the court house at Elizabeth.

The Board expressed themselves as well pleased with their new room and Mr. Erskon made a motion to extend a vote of thanks to the committee.

Mr. Hubbard suggested that it was a new departure to thank a committee for doing its duty. All appreciate the work, and are well pleased with the appearance of the room. The committee needed no thanks, and such a motion might tend to run the Board into a mutual admiration society.

The vacancy caused by the death of Mr Winans, the representative from Linden, was not filled. A petition from residents of the township, recommending Hiram P. Baldwin for the appointment, was received and filed. As it was so near election time the Board decided to wait and let the people elect Mr. Winan's successor.

Mr. Moore brought to the attention of the Board a matter suggested by County Clerk Oliver. It was in reference to the records of naturalized citizens. There has been no indexing of the names, and the record goes back to 1857, a period of 37 years. If any inquiry is made about the papers of any naturalized citizen, and the exact date is not known, the record must be searched through all the years to find the name. In other counties the names are all indexed. Mr. Oliver has purchased books, and for the future will have the names indexed. He suggested the Board should authorize the back page indexing. The probable cost would be about five cents per name, and would take probably a year to do the work.

Mr. Hubbard thought it would be unwise to order the work begun until some information as to the expense could be obtained. He moved to refer the matter to the Stationery Committee to report at the next meeting.

Mr. Hubbard's motion was adopted.

A large batch of bills was read and passed upon.

A handsomely engrossed copy of the resolutions on the death of Freeholder Winans was exhibited by the committee, and will be presented to the family of the deceased.

BOWLED THREE GAMES.

And the Park Club Won Two of Them.

Three games were bowled last night between the Board of Trade and Park Club teams on the Board of Trade alleys. The first game was won by the Board of Trade in a walk over, but in the other two they suffered defeat. There were a number of ladies present among the onlookers.

The scores were as follows:

An Odd Result of the Revival Services.

Evangelist Wright, who has been holding such successful revival services in the Presbyterian church for some time has secured so many converts, especially among the young people, that a good many parties have been given up entirely, or have been sparsely attended. This would seem an odd result, except for the fact that those who accept the faith he offers must, among other things give up dancing. Some of the parents say the young folks, will get more sleep.

An Orange Sociable.

The Orange Sociable at the German Reformed Church, on Craig place, last night was very much enjoyed by the young people. It was given under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. The programme included recitations by Fred Bock, Miss Newman, Miss Chamberlain, and Miss Sutterlein, and songs by Miss Sadie Bitzus and Miss Nettie Keitlog.

To Go Through a New Street.

Ex-Sheriff Coddington of Somerville is going to lay out a 66 feet roadway across his property on Somerset street, from Somerset street to Watervoit avenue. It is to be macadamized for a width of 30 feet.

Surveys will be made Monday for the street.

The work is to be begun at once and finished by April 1st.

Boettger's American Cut Glass is shown in every respectable jewelry store. Ask to see it. Sold by Goldsmith, Gifts, Gaines, Jewelers, Plainfield. Gifts. Gaines jewelers have trade mark blind C. Boettger & Son, 20 Murray street, New York.

SCORING THE MANAGER.

Keller, the Magician, Says Unpleasant Things About Music Hall and is Applauded.

"Keller, the Magician," was billed to appear at Music Hall last evening. He came, but the Music Hall manager will evidently wish he hadn't. The male part of the audience was in the lively overcoats all evening, the place was so improperly heated.

The entertainment was delayed for some time and finally Mr. Carpenter, a Plainfield musician, was induced to favor with music, and the show proceeded. After a few tricks the manager stepped, came forward to the foot-lights and announced the manager of Music Hall in unstinted terms. He said he contracted called for an orchestra. It was not furnished, and, as he had to have music, Mr. Carpenter, who had paid for his admission, was induced to come forward from the audience and play. Then he apologized for the lack of an orchestra and asked the audience not to blame him; that Music Hall had a bad name in the theatrical world because of the treatment received, but he had come to Plainfield and intended to do his best.

The audience vigorously applauded his sentiments.

The manager of Music Hall, "Hon." James Alfred Demarest, is at present located in a little village in Canada, and perhaps his acting manager, Mr. Clarke, is handicapped by order. If that was the case the censure should be placed on "Hon." Mr. Demarest, who rarely visits Plainfield, although the merchants and the Times might "welcome" him. There is a judgment or two against him because of unpaid bills, which is one reason parties will not furnish him music nor Tan Rawa insert his advertisements of Music Hall plays.

BREVITIES.

—To-night a song service will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—The City Common Council will hold its regular February meeting Monday night.

—About 25 Plainfielders attended the ball of Court General Magher, Order of Foresters, at Bound Brook, last night.

—Joseph Flack, Philip Giese and "Bob" Whittaker received the first degree in Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, at a regular meeting last night.

—The case of Van Arsdale vs. Meyers set down for trial this morning by Justice Hodyon, was discontinued as neither the plaintiff nor the defendant put in an appearance.

—Queen City Lodge, No. 208, I. O. O. F., will introduce a new feature at its meeting Monday night in the way of a "smoker." All Odd Fellows are invited to be present.

—Organist William E. MacClymont of the First Baptist church will give another of his free organ recitals at that church this month. His recitals in the past have been much enjoyed by lovers of music.

The Soloist of the Day.

Concerning Xaver Scharwenka, who will give a concert in the Casino Monday night, the Chicago Inter Ocean has the following:

"The expression of information 'first time' appeared thrice upon the Chicago Orchestra programme yesterday afternoon, and as but five compositions were presented it is reading into that the performance was rich in novelties. Herr Xavier Scharwenka was the soloist of the day, lending a great deal of interest, eclat and pleasure to the concert. It is not every distinguished musical personage who can appear as soloist on more or less singers, in the triple capacity of composer, pianist, and director of one's own orchestra. Liszt could do it, but never here, and even he is one of the few who have appeared in such a variety of artistic endeavor. It is trying indeed, to attempt to give a fair and judicious opinion of so many special work of art, and Scharwenka's concerto is no exception to the rule worthy of social consideration. Scharwenka's second, 'Nationalities,' also given for the first time in America, is much more interesting than the concerto. It is a work of rare impressiveness, dealing with heroic subjects, and only unsatisfactory for conflict of battle, the struggles of heroes, the victories of giants in valor, and the record of deeds of prowess, expression of sentiment and love. It is not a work of surpassing beauty, but contrasts between affection and strife. It is a work of great power that leads gracefully to a climax of surpassing beauty with all the vigor of lusty manhood. There is much that suggests Wagner in the manner, not in the way of reminiscence, but in theory. This work is full of power, strength and vigor and the most inspiring composition Herr Scharwenka has thus far given us. The composer led the orchestra."

Monday night's programme will be as follows:

Broke His Leg Coasting.

Herbert Crum, ten years old, son of Frederick Crum, and other school boys of River Edge, were coasting on a steep hill behind the school house after school last night. Crum and another boy started down hill on a hand sleigh and ran into a tree at the bottom of the hill breaking Crum's leg. Miss Van Strum of Hackensack, a teacher, was so frightened by the boy's cries that she fainted, and was carried to the house of a neighbor. Dr. St. John of Hackensack, set the boy's leg.

HAWAIIAN MATTER NOW

THE TARIFF BILL IN THE SENATE.

Chairman Voorhees of the Finance Committee Says the Wilson Bill Will Be Returned to the Senate With as Much Haste as Possible—Immune Tax Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The debate on the Hawaiian matter began in the house under a special order that will bring it to a vote next Monday at 4 o'clock. The adoption of the order was preceded by a very lively passage at arms between Mr. Boutelle and Mr. Catchings of Mississippi, a member of the committee on rules, which was precipitated in consequence of the former to have the words of the latter excepted by the house and subject him to censure.

Representative Boutelle called to order Representative Catchings for the latter's statement that the rules committee was "prostituting itself" to Boutelle's "fantastic and bellicose gyrations on the Hawaiian question."

Mr. Boutelle made his demand amid much confusion. Mr. Catchings' words were taken down and read from the desk, but on a vote Mr. Catchings was excused.

Mr. Catchings, on account resumed his speech that he was again called to order by Mr. Boutelle for the statement, "The gentleman's politics is affected with a harmless mania for making an exhibition of himself on all occasions."

The words were read from the desk, and Mr. Boutelle insisted on a ruling as to the propriety of the words. Speaker Crisp ruled that the language was not parliamentary. A hot discussion ensued amid much confusion.

Only two speeches were made—the first by Mr. McCreary, which was the opening argument in support of the resolution under discussion and which consisted of a very long, critical and analytical review of the entire situation from the first inception of the revolution up to the time of consummation in January, 1893. It was in every respect a strong arraignment of the course of Minister Stevens, who was boldly charged with complicity in the alleged plot to overthrow the existing monarchy.

Mr. Hitt's reply was marked by great feeling and vigorous utterance. In his denunciation of the policy of Mr. Cleveland and his characterization of the deposed queen he used the strongest possible terms, frequently eliciting the applause of his Republican colleagues.

Mr. Hitt on Hawaii.

Mr. Hitt was warmly applauded at his severe arraignment of the queen. Bombs, by his fierce qualities, had awakened the horror of Europe, but his brutalities did not compare with the infamies and massacre with which this queen intended to celebrate her return to the throne.

Willis had said that the queen had had performed the loathsome duty assigned to him. His dispatches showed how his intimate decency rebelled against the performance of such a task. Mr. Hitt pictured the condition of affairs during the reign of terror existing up to the time Minister Willis' surprise were disclosed. For 50 years the United States had been first to greet a new republic and the last to uphold a tottering monarchy, but now this policy was changed. The gentleman (Mr. McCreary) had set forth the doctrine for the first time that republican institutions could not be established or maintained until a vote had been taken and the republic had been approved by popular vote. Mr. Hitt referred with pride to the business success of the Americans in Hawaii.

At this point Mr. Talbott of Maryland interjected an inquiry as to how Mr. Hitt felt toward the south.

Mr. Johnson—Sit down and do yourself credit.

Mr. Hitt answered that he would be glad to know that the gentleman would do it. Grover Cleveland told him to bend the knee.

Mr. Talbott—I am in favor of a white man's government.

Mr. Hitt continued with a most terrific arraignment of Mr. Cleveland. He had not concluded his speech when the house adjourned.

Mr. Blair's Amendment.

The resolution which forms the basis of the present discussion is the McCreary resolution condemning the acts of Minister Stevens and approving the policy of the president, at the same time expressing the sense of the house that the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands is inexpedient. For this the Republicans have offered the minority report approving Minister Stevens' action and condemning the acts of the present administration.

In the course of the proceedings Mr. Blair of New Hampshire offered in the shape of an amendment a resolution in favor of the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands as follows:

Resolved, That the house of representative approves the recognition of the existing provisional government of the Hawaiian Islands by the last and present administrations and will view with satisfaction the maintenance of a policy which shall tend to consummate in the near future, with the consent of their people, the annexation of said islands to this country, or some other political arrangement which shall equally preserve and promote the mutual interests of both Hawaii and the United States.

Tariff Bill Reaches the Senate.

The day in the senate was not an eventful one. After an hour's debate early in the session the resolution of Senator Peffer was adopted calling upon the secretary of the treasury for the names of persons and corporations bidding for United States bonds and the amount of bids and the rate of interest. The original resolutions of Senator Stewart denying the authority of the secretary of the treasury to issue bonds at this time was then taken up and consumed the remainder of the day Senator Vilas making the principal argument in opposition to the resolution. The senate adjourned without action on the resolution.

During the speech of Mr. Vilas the clerk of the house appeared with the tariff bill, and Speaker Crisp announced his intention to sign it, was duly reported to the senate. By request of Senator Vilas it was laid before the senate and 5,000 copies ordered to be printed at once for the use of the senate.

Senator Voorhees, who as chairman of the senate finance committee will probably have more than any other senator to do with shaping the tariff bill in the senate, said with reference to the prospects for the consideration of the bill in that body: "The Democratic members of the finance committee appreciate thoroughly the interest which the business public and the country at large have in this bill and the importance of an early action upon it as is consistent with the importance of the subject, and it will see that there is no great delay in reporting the bill to the senate, when we shall also do all that is possible to secure speedy action. We realize that what the country needs is repose, and believing that the passage of the bill will be in the interest of the country at large and will be followed by a revival of business activity we shall do all in our power to have the bill disposed of at the earliest moment possible."

No Protracted Meetings.

Mr. Voorhees continued that in time when the committee would be able to report the bill, but he said it would be reported as an earlier date than most people imagined. He does not think that prolonged hearings will be necessary.

Expressions heard on all hands among Democratic senators render it certain that the Democratic members of the committee will shape the bill as it will be reported to the senate without much consultation with Republican members. Indeed it appears to be the fact that the Democrats of the committee have for several weeks been giving the subject very careful attention and are now now almost prepared to bring in their report. Some delay will be necessitated by the consideration of minor details.

The indications are that it will be found impracticable to put the bill through as a Democratic measure with the income tax included. There are understood to be 10 or 12 Democratic senators who do not favor this tax and who would not vote for the tariff bill with this clause attached.

Advices From Rio.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Advices received at the state department from Minister Thompson assert that the blockade has been raised and that the bay is now open for commerce. Minister Thompson's dispatch, which is dated Feb. 2, reports that ships of all nationalities are now coming to the shore in consequence of the withdrawal of the insurgents' restrictive orders and that under the influence of the action taken by the United States naval forces in protecting American vessels against the insurgents' fire commerce is reopening favorably.

OBJECTED TO THE MINISTER.

Why Archbishop Ireland Refused to Attend a Temperance Lecture.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 3.—A few nights since Dr. Leslie E. Keeley of Dwight, Ills., lectured here, and he was indorsed and assisted by many prominent men in the Twin Cities. Archbishop Ireland was announced to speak, but did not do so, giving no explanation. Rev. M. L. Morrill of Calvary Baptist church was originally announced to open the meeting with prayer. He did not do so, but he spoke, and it is said that here lies the reason for the nonappearance of Archbishop Ireland and the absence of Catholic clergy on the platform.

The meeting was in charge of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Keeley league in this city. They had completed all arrangements, and then a kick came. The Catholic clergy were opposed to Rev. M. L. Morrill opening the meeting with prayer. The ladies debated and decided to get Rev. Morrill to relinquish the opening prayer, but insisted that he should read a card or see me in person, and I will do the rest.

TROUBLE IN THE MINES

MEAN TO DRIVE WORKMEN OUT.

The Miners Who Refused to Quit Work Have Rifles, and no Doubt Rifles Are Armed and Desperate Renewal a Deadly Battle Is Expected.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Feb. 3.—For some time the miners in the Montgomery mines have been on a strike and have been trying to induce the men employed by the Stevens Coal company at Acme to quit work, but without avail. Sheriff Silleman of this city received on Thursday a telegram from the Stevens Coal company stating that the Montgomery miners were preparing to march to Acme to drive out the working miners and asking for the protection of life and property. A deputy was sent, and Friday another telegram was received stating that 150 men from Montgomery had started up the creek on foot for Acme and asking for help.

The sheriff, accompanied by seven deputies, left for Acme, which is about 30 miles up the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad. The miners are about 10 miles from the railroad. It is known that the Montgomery miners have been endeavoring to force the men at Acme to quit work and that the operators told them to do as they pleased in the matter.

Strikers Armed With Rifles.

The men decided to continue to work, whereupon the strikers determined to use force, and 150 of them left Montgomery for Acme, armed with winchesters, with the avowed intention of forcing them out.

This party was heard from when half over the 10 mile stretch from the railroad to the mines at Acme. Three hundred men gathered at the mouth of the creek to wait for the train on the branch road to carry them to Acme, but when the crew saw that the officers did not come from Charleston as expected they refused to pull the train out, though the crowd tried to force them to do so.

Information just received from Acme states that the miners there are resisting the strikers. They are about 800 in number and are all armed. Both sides are determined, and serious trouble is certain.

STILL RIOTING.

Bridgeport Strikers Assault Cars With Stones, Snowballs and Bullets.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Feb. 3.—The citizens' committee appointed to try to settle the trouble between the street railway and strikers called on the officials of the road and met with an unlooked for reception. The company refused to treat with the strikers or take any of them back, and from present appearances there will be a long struggle. The cars were bombarded with snowballs and stones.

There was another outbreak of violence by sympathizers of the strikers. As a car in charge of Conductor Mathews passing down Washington avenue a bullet was fired through the windows of the car, narrowly missing several ladies inside. Another car in charge of Conductor Leek was bombarded and the conductor struck on the head with a stone. A squad of police was called out, and the rioters dispersed.

Christians and Mussulmans Clash.

ATHENS, Feb. 3.—The execution of four Christians who were sentenced to death for various crimes in the island of Crete has incensed the Christians of the island against the governor. Their indignation is increased by the fact that several Mussulmans who were convicted of capital charges were pardoned. The fanaticism of both sects has been aroused.

Police Abandon the Barrowcliffe Case.

JERSEY CITY, Feb. 3.—Miss May Barrowcliffe has left the City hospital for the private apartments of Warden Osborn. She is able to sit up and talks well. Her mother says that as soon as May is well she will take her to her home in Brooklyn. The police have abandoned the case.

Poisoned a Whole Family.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 3.—Michael Dike, of Ashgarten, was arrested in Nanticoke Notch on a charge of poisoning Michael Malachi, his wife and three children. Dike boarded with Malachi, who ordered him to leave the house for insulting the latter's wife.

Ran Away With the Hearse.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Horses attached to a hearse containing the remains of Mrs. Kane became frightened and plunged down an embankment. The hearse was capsized in the road, but the casket was only slightly injured.

Caused His Own Death.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3.—During a fire in the Star hotel a man supposed to be William Dill was burned to death. He was drunk when shown to his room and caused the fire by upsetting a kerosene lamp.

Historic Old Roots Burned.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 3.—The Manion House, near this city, was burned. The building was 140 years old and stood on the Gordon farm, where oil was first struck in the so called Gordon sand.

Convicted of Shooting His Mother-in-Law.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 3.—Augustin Prevais of Yarmouth was found guilty of the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Myers, who was mysteriously shot in her home some weeks ago.

Receivers for the Colorado Midland.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 3.—Judge Caldwell of the United States circuit court appointed J. W. Reinhart, J. C. Wilson and J. G. McCook receivers of the Colorado Midland railway.

White and Indian Soldiers Riot.

OMAHA, Feb. 3.—There was a lively fight at Fort Omaha between the white and Indian soldiers, and as a result half a dozen soldiers are now in the hospital.

Another on the Warpath.

TUCSON, A. T., Feb. 3.—Reports have reached here from Mammoth, 60 miles northeast of this city, that the Indians are on the warpath.

Body Found Frozen In the Ice.

WATERTOWN, Mass., Feb. 3.—The body of Christopher Donovan was found frozen into the ice on the Charles river.

Boston's New Paper Suspends.

MR. CHILDS DEAD

The Philanthropist's End Came Early This Morning.

SUDDENLY BECAME WORSE.

Overwork and Anxiety Caused an Attack of Apoplexy.

The Millionaire Publisher and Philanthropist Passes Away in His City Residence With Many of His Most Intimate Friends at His Bedside—Genuine Sorrow Felt Throughout Philadelphia and in Every Part of the Nation—His Great Popularity, How He Built Up, His Newspaper Property From a Losing to a Paying Enterprise—Some of His Charities.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3.—George W. Childs died at 2:57 o'clock this morning. The change for the worse came about 10 o'clock last night, when there was a morbid entertainment of the respiration, and after a daylight it was noticed that his pulse was fluttering. This sudden change was a most painful surprise to Mr. Childs' friends. In the morning his physicians announced that he had passed a comfortable night and that his condition was much improved. Later in the day it was announced that his condition was unchanged. From the fact that the patient had made such a hard battle against what a few days ago had been regarded as a hopeless case many of his friends had almost come to believe that after all he would be able to pull through and was already on the road to recovery. The news of his death spread like wildfire through all parts of the city early this morning, and it was to the theme of almost universal conversation and a source of greater sorrow.

There were present at Mr. Childs' bedside when he died George C. Thomas and James M. Peni of the firm of Drexel & Co., M. and Mrs. John Drexel, Miss Peverse, niece of Mrs. Childs; Miss Stanley, [illegible] of Mrs. Childs, and Colonel Edward Morrell.

His Last Illness.

Mr. Childs' last illness began with a fainting spell, which seized him while he was in his office in The Ledger building at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of Thursday, Jan. 18, just as he was putting on his overcoat preparatory to going to his home at Twenty-second and Walnut streets. He was alone at the time, and when an attendant who heard him fall reached his side he was totally unconscious. Dr. Da Costa, his family physician, was hastily summoned, and restoratives were applied, with the result that in an hour the patient was able to walk, with the assistance of two strong men, to his carriage, which stood at the door. He was conveyed to his city home, and Mrs. Childs, who was at the country place in Wootton, was summoned.

Dr. Da Costa called in Drs. Lydy and Morris, and these three issued a statement that Mr. Childs' illness was nothing more than an attack of vertigo arising from indigestion, from which he would soon recover.

The news of his illness brought hosts of inquiring friends from this city to the door and hundreds of anxious inquiries by mail and telegraph from those abroad. To all was given the assurance that Mr. Childs was not seriously ill. On the following Sunday night, however, the physicians reluctantly admitted that paralysis of the optimistic statements that had been issued was in reality a second attack of apoplexy.

From that time on there have been alternating periods of hope and fear, as the morbidly interesting announced changes for the better or the worse, until at midnight last night came the announcement that he was dead and dissolution imminent.

There is but little reason to doubt that the immediate cause of the attack was overwork and anxiety attendant upon his efforts to see that the memory of his lifelong friend, the late A. J. Drexel, was properly honored. All of the day upon which came the attack was spent by Mr. Childs in preparing for the Drexel memorial services held in the Drexel institute on Saturday, Jan. 20, two days after the fatal Thursday. Twice during the day Mr. Childs had gone in person to the institute, and in person he had seen that all necessary arrangements were completed.

His enforced absence from the ceremony worried him profoundly, and to this fact was largely due the relapse which occurred on the night of Sunday, Jan. 21, since which time there has been an uneasiness in the minds of those who knew his condition which amounted to almost a certainty that he could not recover.

His Wonderful Popularity.

Mr. Childs was probably as widely known as any man in the United States, and there can be no doubt that he was by far the best known resident of Philadelphia. His popularity in this city was wonderful. He was a familiar figure on Chestnut street from the time that when he was in the city he always walked to and from The Ledger office, and so regular was he in his habits that if he did not appear on the street at about the regular time people began to inquire whether he was ill.

The news of his last illness spread over the city in an almost incredibly short time after he was attacked, and inquiries as to his condition began to pour into The Ledger office within a few minutes, and it was not interrupted even during the hour of his death.

To all appearances Mr. Childs was a robust man, not at all suggestive of delicate. He was of a highly nervous temperament, and when the attack which proved to be the beginning of his last illness came almost complete nervous prostration. Those who knew him best believe that he was never a thoroughly happy or contented man since the death of his boon companion and business partner, Anthony J. Drexel. They were almost inseparable in their companionship, and it was a sad blow to have so near a friend carried off so suddenly.

George W. Childs Drexel, the youngest son of the deceased banker, was several years ago determined upon as the one who should succeed his father in the control of The Ledger. The senior Drexel owned a half interest in the paper, and this interest became the property of the son upon the death of the latter. Young Drexel had been carefully educated and trained with this end in view, and he had a remarkable aptitude for the career which had been chosen for him. Shortly after his father's death his name was placed at the head of the editorial columns of The Ledger as the publisher along with that of Mr. Childs as editor and proprietor.

Mr. Childs' private office in The Ledger building, which has long been regarded as one of the most interesting institutions of the city, is daily visited by many people from abroad.

There is a waiting room opening on one hand into the general office and on the other into the private office. There was an elaborately contrived device for the safe method of seeing and being seen—a delightful freedom from red tape that put every one at ease. The architecture and decorations of the room itself are in the Queen Anne style. On one side of the room is a screen of 10 painted glass panels. One contains the portraits of Gutenberg, Faust and Schoeffer, in memory of the art of printing from type. The other panels contain figures emblematic of the art of printing. One exhibits Mr. Childs' motto, "Work Sine Labore," and on four others in old English is painted the commandment, "Let there be light, and there was light."

Birth and Early Life.

George William Childs was born in Baltimore in 1829. The practical part of his make-up was born with him. When he was 12 years of age he spent a summer vacation as errand boy in a book store at a salary of $3 a week and enjoyed it. Almost anybody might be expected of a boy of 13 who enjoyed running errands, and Mr. Childs has not disappointed the expectation. Soon after he removed to Philadelphia and entered a store, doubtless as a mixture of clerk and errand boy.

He would get up very early in the morning, go down to the store and wash the pavement and shine up the place for breakfast, and in the winter he would make the fire and sweep out the store.

This same spirit, when books were bought at night at auction, he would early the next morning go for them with a wheelbarrow. In this way he worked till he was fourteen, when he was in the employ of Mr. Peterson under the firm name of R. E. Peterson & Co. The only interval in his business career was 15 months in the United States navy when he was 13. He liked running errands, but he couldn't stomach the navy. In 1864 Mr. Childs purchased The Public Ledger. Mr. Childs had good business judgment, but it required something more than judgment to pay $150,000 for a piece of property losing that amount annually; it required pluck.

The owner at the end of the first week doubled the price and advanced the advertising rates. There was considerable falling off of advertisements, but the paper had become a medium of communication between employers and seekers of employment, between buyers and sellers, landlords and tenants, bereaved families and their friends, and the first item of patronage was soon regularly, and from then till now The Ledger has grown in prosperity. It paid Mr. Childs at the time of his death more than $1,000 a day clear profit.

His Charities.

Mr. Childs made a great many "immortelles" presents. A few years ago Stratford-upon-Avon was shocked in holiday attire while his people were inaugurating a fountain which the Philadelphia millionaire had presented to the birthplace of Shakespeare. A poem by Oliver Wendell Holmes was read, and the queen thoroughly entertained through her private secretary, "Her majesty is much gratified by your kind and loyal expressions and is pleased to hear of the handsome gift of Mr. Childs to Stratford."

A year later Archdeacon Farrar preached a sermon on the occasion of the unveiling of a memorial which was placed in St. Margaret's church, Westminster, London, by Mr. Childs in memory of John Milton.

Besides these gifts Mr. Childs has contributed to mark the graves of the American poets Paul Hamilton Hayne and Richard Henry Wilde. He also helped to mark the grave of Leigh Hunt. He was the largest subscriber to the Edgar A. Poe monument in Baltimore and to a memorial window in the church at Bromham, England, to the memory of the poet Thomas Moore. He was a large sub-scriber to Mr. Stephens' monument fund.

Declined a Presidential Nomination.

Of Mr. Childs' more practical American charities, even those which are known are few compared to the total amount he has given away. He declined upon at the one time to be nominated for mayor of Philadelphia, and several years ago determined upon at the one time should succeed his father in the control of The Ledger. The senior Drexel owned a half interest in the paper, and this interest became the property of the son upon the death of the latter. Young Drexel had been carefully educated and trained with this end in view, and he had a remarkable aptitude for the career which had been chosen for him. Shortly after his father's death his name was placed at the head of the editorial columns of The Ledger as the publisher along with that of Mr. Childs as editor and proprietor.

A PRINCE OF EGYPT.

His Face Was Red, His Creditors Many, and Now He Is Missing.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—Military and social circles here are discussing a sensation which has been caused by the complete disappearance of Prince Aziz Hassam, a junior Egyptian nobleman who was serving in the First dragoons in the garrison in this city. Prince Hassam, it appears, has been living in a very extravagant style, employing a number of servants and having a number of horses and carriages.

At the opera, the theatres and at several clubs the young Egyptian prince was well known and was much remarked for his stylish appearance and extreme liberality. On the race courses also Prince Aziz Hassam was a prominent figure, as he was a heavy better and an unfortunate backer of fast steeds. Eventually it became rumored that the Egyptian prince had been losing a great deal of money on the races and in other manners familiar to all those accustomed to go in a large city.

Then the prince turned to the usurers and began borrowing money. The usurers accommodated him for awhile, but when his debts amounted to about $75,000 they refused to advance any more money, and the latter was driven to his wits' end in order to obtain funds.

Things became more and more desperate with the prince, and a few days ago the horses, carriages and effects of the Egyptian plunger were seized, and the matter was brought to the attention of the colonel of his regiment, who gave him 30 days in which to pay his debts or to make some satisfactory arrangements with his creditors. Apparently Prince Hassam was unable to come, to terms with his creditors, for it is now announced that he has vanished from the sight of all his acquaintances and that the most diligent search has failed to find any trace of his whereabouts.

THE ALBANY SITUATION.

Wolfert Seated, but an Injunction Ties Up Business.

ALBANY, Feb. 3.—The state senate is in a peculiar condition. It has 32 members and two presiding officers, and all its clerks are forbidden by a court injunction from acting unless directed to do so by the lieutenant governor. The injunction was granted upon the application of Patrick H. McCarren, to Albany County Judge Clute.

Wolfert nevertheless occupied the seat, in dispute Friday, Mr. McCarty making no effort to forcibly eject him. Senator Saxton took the chair and called the roll on the approval of the journal. The Democrats protested vigorously.

A motion to adjourn was then made. It was put and declared carried by Lieutenant Saxton, notwithstanding the lieutenant governor's protest. The adjournment is until Monday, when the struggle must be renewed.

Incomplete.

A moment later she was upon the rocks, and the cruel waves were goring her sides like the horns of so many bulls.

The shrieks and prayers of the human freight mingled with the howling gale.

"Captain!"

Buffeted and beaten, his voice rose above the tumult.

"Captain!"

"What cometh that?"

"The Cannibal Islands," came the hoarse reply.

"Are you positive it isn't New Jersey?"

"Positive."

"Because," explained the slim man, "I'd rather drown than go ashore when it was a mere case of being eaten."

Saying which he climbed into the lifeboat, and the flight of hope was in his countenance.—Detroit News-Tribune.

THE OLD DOMINION.

ENGLAND'S FIRST COLONY IN AMERICA.

The First Lecture of the Course to be given by Prof. John Fiske in the Chapel of the Crescent Avenue Church.

Prof. John Fiske of New York delivered the first free lecture of a series of the course in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church, Saturday night. Mr. Fiske's lectures under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club.

An audience that comfortably filled the chapel was present. Prof. Fiske's subject was "England's First Colony; the Old Dominion." He told of the first efforts to plant an English colony in America. Sir Humphrey Gilbert not being successful in his attempt, his half brother, Sir Walter Raleigh, planned to found an English State here.

He pursued his plan with much devotion and determined to establish homes for the colony.

Up to this time those crossing the ocean to America, merely came to search for treasure and did not come here with the intention to settle and work. The impression abroad being that treasures grew here on trees and all they would have to do would be to come and pick them. Raleigh's plans were different from all the rest, his idea was to transfer English homes from the old country to the new.

Raleigh's plans failed, and after sinking a million and half dollars, he gave up and returned home.

In 1606 a great company was organized in England the object of which was to colonize the Atlantic coast. They got a charter from James I and set sail for America.

The company divided. Part took a northern grant of land and the rest went south.

The northern section came as far north as Nova Scotia, while the grant of the southern company extended from Florida to the Potomac River.

In 1607 the northern company went home. The company that went South attempted to found a colony in Virginia, and but for John Smith would have perished. Some historians do not believe the Smith story, but any one that knows anything of the Indians at that time were satisfied as to its truthfulness. It was their custom to place a white man to burn at the stake, and then if any old Indian wanted him for a son, or a squaw wanted him for a husband, their entreaties in the victim's behalf would be listened to and sometimes granted.

Mr. Fiske said he was quite inclined to give credence to the Smith story.

The colony did not flourish only for a short time. The plan was to place all the earnings together and all live on it. This served to make the lazy all the lazier and discouraged the thrifty. In June 1610 the colony started for home. They were met by Lord Delaware, who arrived just in time to save England's first colony. They turned back and began over again. The old system was abandoned and each man had what he earned. The colony grew rapidly as there was much emigration from the old world.

The year 1619 was made memorable by two things. The first was the arrival of the first cargo of slaves at Virginia, and second by the meeting of the first legislative body in America. The first body of Englishmen met in a little old church. They became known as the House of Burgesses.

The prosperity of the colony in 1620 excited the jealousy of the King of England. He brought quo warrant proceedings against the Americans. Commissions were appointed and cases over here but there found no evidence. The colony was governed by two Governors—one in Virginia and one in England. The main product of this colony was tobacco.

"ENDEAVOR DAY."

CELEBRATED AT THE TRINITY REFORMED CHURCH YESTERDAY.

A Missionary Service Conducted by Mr. Mitsuye Oi, a Japanese Missionary.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity church celebrated "Christian Endeavor Day" yesterday. Last evening the society conducted a missionary service in the church and Mr. Mitsuye Oi of Japan told of the peculiar habits and customs of his people. Mr. Oi, in speaking of the advance his country had made in civilization said that twenty years ago it had not one church, while to-day it has three hundred, three-fourths of which are self-supporting. The advance which Japan has made in scientific means is astonishing. A few years ago it took nine months to make a journey of four hundred miles, while to-day it can be made in thirty-six hours.

The speaker also exhibited numerous worshipped different sized idols which are in Japan by the unconverted Brahmins. When the Japanese become converted they turn their old clothes over to the men who wear them until they are useless. When Mr. Oi was a small child his name was "Tiger Fighter" after which it was changed to "Light Shiner." Mr. Oi, while a young man, was studying in Tokio, Japan, preparatory to taking a government office, when he first heard of the true God. He gave up everything and came to this country to study for the ministry that he might go back to his native country and teach his people of God.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Hyer, of Brooklyn is a guest of Mrs. Mills of Grandview avenue, North Plainfield.

Mr. Herbert Stover moved with his family to New York Saturday from East Ninth street this city.

Miss Dunn of Brooklyn returned home Saturday, after a week's visit with the Misses Madden of West Fifth street.

Saturday Mr. Bartlett moved with his family from North Plainfield to one of the Miller flats, corner of Park avenue and Fourth street.

Mr. Theodore Hoffman, formerly of this city, but now of new York, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Love of West Second street yesterday.

The Woman's Suffrage Association of New Jersey met in W. C. T. U. Hall, at Newark, Friday. Mrs. Powell of this city was elected one the National Executive Committee.

Lawrence C. Collins, jr., died at Scotch Plains, Saturday, in his 23d year. The funeral services will be held at his father's residence, at Scotch Plains, to-morrow morning at nine o'clock, and at St. Mary's Church, this city, at ten o'clock.

The following gentlemen sang in a double quartette at the regular Y. M. C. A. meeting, yesterday, at 4.15 o'clock: Ezra Loomis, Nelson Runyon, William N. Runyon, Charles Hummer, G. A. Hummer, Nelson Y. Hull, A. J. Moore and T. E. Hazell.

Miss Bertie Fawcett of Grove street sailed recently for Belfast, Ireland. Her sister, who was married early last Spring and had gone to Ireland to reside permanently, had cabled for her. Miss Fawcett's brother-in-law had been ailing for some time and her sister had informed the family here that they were going South for the winter. Later came the pleasant news that a little girl had been born. Hardly had this announcement been received when news came that baby's father was dead. Miss Fawcett immediately took passage on a fast steamer and will probably stay for a year with her sister for whom the warm est sympathy is expressed in this peculiarly sad bereavement.

DEAD ON AN ENGINE.

When the milk train which leaves here at 10.17 reached Elizabeth last night the body of a dead man was found sitting upright on the pilot of the engine. The man's head was crushed. The victim was evidently a farmer, about 35 years of age.

Engineer Albert Shedd did not know his locomotive had struck anybody. The body was taken to the Elizabeth morgue.

One of Mr. Rockfellow's Horses Runs Away.

One of Grocerynan Rockfellow's horses ran away this afternoon between one and two o'clock. It started on West Seventh street and ran up Central avenue to Second street where it turned towards Park avenue. Near Trinity church the runaway overtook Hackman Keely's wagon and as the grocery wagon struck the carriage it toppled over. The top was badly wrecked. The horse broke loose and ran to Watchung avenue where it was caught. Mr. Keely's wagon was slightly damaged.

Through Express Trains to Atlantic City.

Beginning Saturday, February 10th, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will place in service the "Atlantic City Express," consisting of Pullman buffet parlor car and day coaches running through from Jersey City and Atlantic City. This train will leave Elizabeth at 2.25 p. m. week days, arriving at Atlantic City at 5.35 p. m., returning leave Atlantic City at 9.00 a. m. week days at Elizabeth at 12.07.

AFTERNOON TEAS.

Three Society Events Saturday Afternoon.

Mrs. Pond's Tea.

One of the most delightful and largest attended teas of the season was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Pond, on Washington avenue Saturday afternoon. The hours were from four to six, and during that time the arrival and departure of guests was almost continual. The list of guests included over 150 society people. The floral decorations were very pretty.

Mrs. Pond was assisted in receiving by Mrs. E. F. Wicks of Elizabeth, Mrs. Clapp and Mrs. Weir poured tea and chocolate. Miss Stevens poured bouillion.

Those present from out of town were: From Elizabeth—Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Wickes, Mrs. Fred. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Weir and Miss Weir.

From New York—Mr. Selah Strong.

From New Brunswick — Mr. Robert Strong.

Tea at Mrs. McGee's.

Mrs. Walter McGee's beautiful home, on Rockview avenue, was the scene Saturday afternoon, from three to six, of a charming afternoon tea, at which a goodly number of the hostess' many friends were present.

Miss Streuli's Tea.

From five to seven Saturday afternoon, Miss Streuli gave a tea at her home, on Hillside avenue, for her guest, Miss Brooks.

The Chicken Case Dropped.

Last Summer Mr. Charles Giese of Elm place sued his next-door neighbor, Mrs. Stoll, for damages which he claimed defendant's chickens had done to his garden. Judge Coddington, counsel for the plaintiff, waived the demand for damages as the defendant was a poor woman, saying all his client wanted was a verdict showing that she was liable for damages. The jury brought in a verdict in favor of Mr. Giese for $5.

The case was appealed and carried to Elizabeth. It was to have been tried today. This morning Policeman Giese was called by Lawyer Hoffett, counsel for Mrs. Stoll, that the suit had been dropped.

May Manufacture Ice.

A representative of an ice machine manufacturing company in Plainfield today tried to induce the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company to purchase a machine for the manufacture of ice. If the Plainfield Company decide to make their own ice they will have to pay for the machine alone $30,000.

—The best 5-cent ice blended flours. The best blended is the "White Wonder."

GRANNY BAKER DEAD.

DIED THIS MORNING AT HER HOME AT LOCUST GROVE.

She was Almost 104 years Old.—A Most Remarkable Woman.—She Could Read and Sew Without Spectacles.

Mrs. Nancy Baker, died her home at Locust Grove, Union county, this morning. She was 103 years, 10 months and 25 days old.

"Granny" Baker was born in Springfield on March 10, 1793. Her maiden name was Nancy Williams. Her father, Foster Williams, fought in the Revolutionary War, and was killed in a skirmish on Springfield Bridge, a few miles from her present home, in 1780. He had assembled with a few brave farmers to prevent a band of renegade marauders from plundering and burning their homes.

The long war had left brave Foster Williams' larder rather bare, and after his death Mrs. Williams gave her two-year-old daughter Nancy into the family of Mr. and Mrs. Hawl for adoption, while she bravely started out to earn her living.

Nancy Williams' adopted parents treated her as one of their own children. They gave her a good schooling and made her an excellent housekeeper. They grew to love the child and she returned the affection.

She never shunned those in disease or affliction and was always to be found at the bedside of a sick or unfortunate neighbor. She had always been known throughout the county and was loved by all.

When fifteen years old she was dangerously ill with typhoid fever and all her hair fell out, afterward returning stronger than before. She was married when seventeen years old to Stewart Mills, a twenty-two-year old farmer. When eighteen years old she contracted chills and fever and did not recover from the disease for a year. Sixty eight years ago she was stricken with a severe attack of bilious fever. She was not ill again until last Spring when she had a severe attack of the grip and pneumonia and was confined for three months.

"Granny" had six children by her first husband, two boys and four girls. They are in order of their ages, Mrs. Mary Keeple, now deceased, Mrs. Hannah Williamson, now 76 years old, and Samuel Mills, deceased, of Westfield. Joseph Mills, aged 88, of Decatur, Illinois, Mrs. Phebe Foster, aged 85, of this city, and her "baby", Mrs. Electa Lyons, who is now 86 years old, and took care of the old lady. Mrs. George A. Moore, of No. 45 East Front street; and R. J. Fowler, No. 140 Central avenue, this city, are her grandchildren. Her only remaining son, Joseph Mills, is a prosperous merchant in Decatur, Illinois.

"Granny" was married for the second time in 1825, when eighty-two years of age, to William Baker, a well-to-do New York shoemaker. He was many years younger than she. He died ten years ago of apoplexy.

MRS. NANCY BAKER.

EVANGELIST WRIGHT'S LAST NIGHT.

The First Presbyterian Church Crowded.

The largest congregation ever at the First Presbyterian church, at a Sunday night meeting, was present last night to hear Evangelist Wright, who, after a two weeks' visit to this city, leaves to-morrow for Passaic.

The auditorium, gallery and standing room were occupied. Many took seats on the platform, being unable to secure seats elsewhere. Even then all could not be accommodated and the Sunday-school room in the rear was thrown open. The services have been well attended throughout and many have been converted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The World's Future.

The editor of McClure's Magazine has performed good service in collecting from distinguished men sentiments and forecasts for the immediate future. Charles A. Dana sends this word, "Obey God and never fear the devil." W. T. Stead's message is, "Work for the union of all who love, in the service of those who suffer." John Tyndall wrote shortly before his lamented death as follows, quoting from Emerson the first three words: "'I covet truth.' The gladness of true heroism visits the heart of him who is really competent to say this." Washington Gladden writes: "I hope men are slowly learning that no man liveth to himself alone." In bitter contradistinction to this ex-Senator John J. Ingalls observes, "The disappearance of evil from the earth is not probable."

Huxley quotes one of his own utterances of 17 years ago to the effect that America has a great future before her—great in glory or great in shame. Then he says, "The one condition of success—the sole safeguard—is the moral worth and the intellectual clearness of the individual citizen." Talcott Williams declares that a spiritual renaissance is about to mark the next great development of thought. Professor Max Muller's sentiment is significant: "We are told that the world will be Slavonic or Teutonic. True. The Anglo-Saxon race in America will have to decide which it is to be."

As to the future of society in material things, only one forecast is gloomy—that of Elisee Reclus, who says that small farmers will be extinct unless they unite and defend themselves. It is interesting to note that two of the prophets, Professor Thomson of the Thomson-Houston Electric company, an electrician, and Professor Remsen, chemist, both predict that at no distant day food will be made artificially, directly from the original elements, by combining together in due proportion its proper components. Professor Houston says this will be done by electricity; Professor Remsen, by chemistry. Perhaps both are right. Professor Houston is also sure that soon mankind will be able to produce electrical energy directly from the burning of coal; then the steam engine will be relegated to the scrap heap.

Edward Bellamy predicts that science will gain control over the nitrogen of the atmosphere; then goodby to the slow, sour and cruel ways of earning a living—welcome ease and abundance. Professor Thurston also forecasts discoveries and inventions that will reduce the hours of struggle for life and needs and give every citizen time for rest, thought and enjoyment.

The Inverted View of Life.

The holidays being over, many vulgar minded human creatures are putting their stock together and asking themselves how they came off in the matter of Christmas presents—that is, how much did I make in goods and possessions out of the kind feelings of my friends? That is what this most beautiful day of all the year has become in the minds of the common herd.

As the herd looks at Christmas, so it looks at the world on other days. This life is a period allotted to them for the purpose of making all they can out of other people. If one is weak-minded enough to make them a present, that is so much gain to them. If they can get the better of another in a bargain, that is smart and shrewd in them, and they pat themselves on the back accordingly.

Well, it is a matter of taste which end of the telescope one looks at life through. A belief is growing in some quarters that life is given to us quite as much to help others as ourselves, and that this is the true meaning of the equality alluded to in the Declaration of Independence. In this growing belief the object of life is to do all the good you can to other people, and thus do the highest, sweetest good to yourself. Life is ours to bestow all we reasonably can upon others, whether of gladness, of sympathy, of material helpfulness or of that higher, loving aid which shall be an inspiration to them in moments of weakness and despair. When we do this, we shall know why we were born.

Mr. John B. McMaster is of opinion that when the American people rise in their might and wrath and declare in public and private that the United States senate shall waste no more time through the obstruction of a factious minority, whether Democratic, Republican or Populist or anything else, then and not till then minorities will cease to filibuster.

FROM OVER THE STATE.

ITEMS CLEANED FROM OUR NEW JERSEY EXCHANGES.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties—Brief, but Newsy.

They Bit at the Bait.

Several persons were swindled in Flemington last week by a man giving the name of Williamson. He claimed to represent a publishing house in Philadelphia. His method was to call at the residence of an energetic man and engage him as an agent of the publishing house. He would then collect a sum of money as security for the books to be sent.

Recalls the Petty Murder.

Detective Cosgrove in Newark yesterday arrested Benjamin G. Gilman, a baker of 60 Bolmia street, on suspicion. The police will not say of what he is suspected, but it is known that G. Gilman was examined by the police a day or two after the Petty murder, and that he left town. He was known to have plenty of money, and this fact attracted attention to him.

ORIGIN OF THE TALL HAT.

Plainfielders who wear high hats will be interested, doubtless, in knowing of their origin. The following is taken from All the Year Round:

The hat proper—that is the raised hat —was first made in England by Spanish hatters about 1510, having been introduced into France a century earlier. The gay young courtiers of the Queen—Elizabeth of immortal memory—shone resplendent in high-crowned hats of rare device, which, like the brilliant Raleigh, they hung round with strings of pearls. Kingsley describes his Elizabethan adventurer, John Oxenham, as having on his head a "broad velvet Spanish hat," and Master Frank Leigh as shading his delicate complexion with a "large sky-colored beaver hat, with a feather to match, looped up over the crest with a pearl brooch."

But hats or caps were worn according to taste or circumstances, and Scott tells us that when Leicester rode bareheaded at Elizabeths side on her entry into Berkenhead his cap, which had charge of his Lordship's black velvet bonnet, garnished with a clasp of diamonds and surmounted with a white plume.

By a statute of 1571 velvet hats or caps were prohibited to all persons under the degree of a knight, and by another, enacted in 1574, to persons except citizens, lords, knights and gentlemen having 40 marks a year in landed estates, was required to wear Sundays and holidays a home-made cap of wool, very decent and comely for all states and degrees. But these sumptuary laws were openly disregarded.

Bubbles, in his "Anatomy of Abuses," describing a pleasing variety of new fashioned headgear—hats perking up like the spout of a tea kettle; no hat at all and frosted on the top like the battlements of a house, and round crowns with bands of every color. The variety of shade with an equal variety of material—silk, velvet, taffeta, carmelet wool, and "a fine hair, which they called castor, fetched from beyond the seas." Whose had not list of velvet or hat of taffeta was held of no account among the giddy-pated youth of the time, and so common a thing was this ostentation in the matter of head covering that "every serving man, country man, or other, even all indifferently, on wear of these hats."

Pen Sketches From Life.

It is the usual habit of the members of the "receiving committee" of the Building Loan, at the monthly meetings, when dues are paid, to simply sign their last name on the books of the stockholder.

At a recent meeting, Mr. Stephen B. Grubb, of Manning & Grubb, was of the receiving committee, and was one of the two who received the cash. The others of the committee keep tally by the book checks. A book was passed in to Mr. Joseph, by one of the long string of members who keep the weekly committee hustling for about two hours. Mr. Joseph checked it off, found it correct, signed his last name, as is the custom, and passed the book out. The member took it and looked at the name "Joseph." "Here!" he said, crustily, "this won't do," and he pushed the book back.

"What won't do?" asked Mr. Joseph.

"That signature," was the tart answer.

"Well, what's the matter with it? It looks all right."

"Yes, but where's the rest of it? Joseph is no name.... Suppose I came here a month from now, or had some trouble, that makes it necessary to show that I have paid. Finish it, Joseph—what?"

"Nothing but just plain Joseph, or Mr. Joseph, if you like," was the calm retort.

"But there's no sense in it."

"Maybe not, but there is a good deal of Joseph," and Mr. Joseph grinned at his little joke.

"But—here's the rest—Put down something! — What's your name? — Joseph—who?" and the man with the book got his temper worked up with his teeth and stopped for breath.

If Mr. Joseph said he guessed the man would have no trouble with the book, or the Joseph part of it, anyhow, but the members had become irate and again demanded to know what Mr. Joseph's last name was and to have it put in his book.

Of course the conversation attracted everyone in the room and those who knew Mr. Joseph and his proclivity for fun had been keeping quiet with difficulty, but they fairly let go, and howled with laughter when Mr. Joseph, in response to the last demand, made the demure answer, that, if it annoyed anyone, he was sorry his name was Joseph, but that's what it was—and he repeated, emphatically, "Joseph, Stephen B. Joseph!"

Then the man caught on and could hardly get out quick enough, and some how don't like to be asked about Joseph now.

THAT PROJECTED ROAD

BETWEEN NEW YORK AND PHILADELPHIA.

Scheme of the Consolidated Traction Company of New Jersey—Paralleling two Railways—The Cities and Towns it will Touch.

The proposed trolley line between Philadelphia and New York, spoken of at various times in THE NEWS, is daily developing. From many towns and cities it is proposed to connect have come reports of the workings of some hidden movement tending toward a great system of electric roads.

It is now perfectly apparent, in spite of the secrecy with which the men who are behind this great scheme have attempted to surround their movements, that the great system of through trolley lines between New York and Philadelphia which was once prophesied to be, is a substantial fact.

The men who are believed to be behind this gigantic undertaking are capitalists of great wealth and large traffic influence. They already control the street railway business of Philadelphia and the largest and most profitable railway system of New York, and they are also the projectors and owners of those extensive trolley lines that, centering at the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry at the foot of Montgomery street in Jersey City, spread out fanlike on a large section of eastern New Jersey embracing Newark, Elizabeth and numerous residence towns.

There is a great deal of talk about the matter in railroad circles. It is regarded as a strange thing that the Pennsylvania Railroad should be so easily persuaded to turn over its entire street railroad property in Jersey City to an entirely foreign company, with the invaluable franchises that went with it. The proposed trolley line would unquestionably hurt the steam road in its enormous Eastern New Jersey business, so why should the Pennsylvania Company give this advantage to the new corporation, even for the consideration of three times the face value of the stock?

Some light may be thrown on this matter by going for the moment underneath the surface. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the New Jersey Central have been at odds for a long time on their business in Eastern New Jersey. The New Jersey Central has threatened to parallel the Pennsylvania line to New Brunswick, and say that precious little of the Pennsylvania now monopolizes.

In reply the Pennsylvania has threatened to parallel the Central's line to Plainfield and spoil that monopoly. The result of these threats has been a stand-off, each road threatening the other, and the two roads remained in armed neutrality. When the trolley first began to attract attention it occurred to each road that this might furnish a cheap and effective way of regaining the coveted business. So both the roads were fully alive to trolley possibilities.

The course of this road, so far as positively developed, is very interesting. The course from Jersey City to Newark by way of the plank road is already well known. From Newark the line runs into Elizabeth by a course quite near the Pennsylvania lines. At Elizabeth, as has been described, the road will follow the bed of the New Jersey Central.

The towns of El Mora, Roselle, Cranford, Garwood, Westfield, Graceland, Fanwood and Netherwood will be by turn penetrated before the line reaches Plainfield.

From Plainfield westward the road will take in Evans and, Dunellen and possibly Bound Brook, but just what will eventually be done at this point is undecided. It is likely, however, that Bound Brook will be included, as it is a flourishing railroad centre, and is growing in size and importance very rapidly.

Having thus tapped all the principal towns of the Central Railroad's short distance traffic near New York, the trolley will swerve to the south and strike New Brunswick.

Just now the business of putting this line through is being pushed with great activity. Agents have been all through the country indicated to make arrangements for rights and franchises. Nowhere is it told what the whole scheme is, however.

The New York Herald to-day publishes a map of the proposed line. The route begins at Jersey City and takes in Newark, Elizabeth, Roselle, Westfield, Netherwood, Plainfield, Warrenville, Evans, New Brunswick, Grasstown Mills, Princeton, Trenton, Bristol, Holmesburgh and so on to Philadelphia.

"Old One Horn."

At the banquet in honor of Westfield's 100th anniversary Friday, Jan. 26th, the historian of the occasion, Rev. N. W. Cadwell, exhibited a veritable museum of relics, which in his quest for information among the old-time residents he had unearthed. One of the most interesting of these curiosities was a big rammod and swab which belonged to the famous cannon which was captured from the British during one of their raids around Westfield. In the engagement attending the capture of the gun, one of the horns by which it was fastened to its carriage was broken off. Therefore it was known as "old one horn," and many a time it apprised the villagers of the near approach of its one-time possessors by the deep roar of its brazen lung.

During the past twenty years the old cannon has been a bone of contention between the fire laddies of Westfield, Plainfield and Scotch Plains, while the proud fire company which spirited it away from its previous hiding-place found many fierce enemies. At present the ancient gun is in possession of Plainfield Engine Co. No. 2.

The Mayor of Knoxville Speaks.

JAMES C. LUTTRELL, three times Mayor of Knoxville, Tenn., writes:

I was nearly totally broken down with a complication of diseases. After trying many doctors, without relief, I took Electric Bitters. Under Elder, and was completely cured.

RAN FROM HER PRINCE.

Princess Colonna Slips Away From French Courts.

HER HUSBAND IN HOT PURSUIT.

Millionaire Mackay's Adopted Daughter Has More Trouble With the Foreign Nobleman Whom She Married—Took Her Three Children and Sailed For New York.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—The Princess Colonna, daughter of Mrs. John W. Mackay, is now on her way to America. This news set at rest a rumor that she and her husband had become reconciled on his giving a satisfactory pledge of good conduct in the future.

After the French court allowed the prince the right to see his children twice a week the princess found her situation intolerable. Besides from the elaborate protestations by the French press of its earlier severities her friends augured unfavorable action by the French court. Hence it was determined that she should remove from its capricious jurisdiction.

The princess, with her three children, left the Hotel Brighton on Tuesday evening as if for a customary promenade. Mrs. Mackay remaining behind to lull suspicion. The spies of the prince and the domestics waited up until 10 o'clock in the morning and then informed the hotel proprietor, who in turn informed Mrs. Mackay of what she already knew.

Fooled the Prince.

When the prince called on Wednesday to see his children, he was simply informed that they were out with their mother, and it was not until his wife had time to board the steamer that he was informed that she and the children were beyond the jurisdiction of the French courts.

All inquiries were purposely misled in order to give the princess time to escape. Her lawyers now propose to continue the fight in America. It is reported that the princess arrived in New York on Saturday. Mrs. Mackay quitted the Hotel Brighton on Thursday, but her destination is known only to her counsel.

Princess Colonna is the daughter of Mrs. John W. Mackay by her former husband, Mr. Bryant. She met Prince Colonna in Italy 12 years ago while on a tour with her mother. He followed her and proposed marriage, although informed that Miss Mackay was only a stepdaughter of the millionaire and would therefore have no legal claim to his fortune.

The prince nevertheless persisted, and as he came from a family that rivaled the royal family itself and insisted that it was a case of love and not money he was accepted.

Their Unhappy Marriage.

In 1883 they were wedded in Paris, and the event was a brilliant one. After the ceremony an income of $175,000 a year was settled upon the princess by Mrs. Mackay in addition to valuable presents. The couple settled in Naples, and in six months the prince began demanding money. It was then found that he was not only dissolute and a gambler, but a cheat as well. He was expelled from the Jockey club in Rome for betting cards, and it is said that Mr. Mackay has paid gambling debts to the amount of $1,000,000.

Colonna finally became abusive and brutal to his wife and children. He visited October last, when the wife left him in Paris and brought suit for separation. As soon as the princess left him Colonna sold all the household furniture and gambled the money away.

Three children were the result of the union—Andrea, aged 8; Blanca, 6, and Marco, 4, all three having been named by the prince.

DEATH IN THE STORM.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 5.—Further details of the storm which swept over this section of northern Alabama show the damage to have been much greater than was at first supposed. At North Birmingham a dozen houses were blown down. James Smith, a railroad section foreman, was fatally injured by the roof of his home falling in. On the East Lake railroad three depots were blown down. At East Lake one house was blown 50 yards and upset. Its occupants escaped unhurt.

The worst damage was at Gate City, where the Congregational church was blown down. The Christian Endeavor society, which 50 persons in attendance, was holding a meeting, and not one of them escaped injury. Mrs. R. H. Pritchard was crushed by falling beams and died at midnight. She was the wife of the superintendent of the Alabama rolling mills, and her home was at Lexington, O. A young man named Williams died from his injuries. Mrs. James Miles received fatal internal injuries. Charles Olson and Jame Hartshorn were also fatally wounded.

From 30 to 40 others received injuries of a less serious character. Nearly every house in Gate City was damaged by the storm. An immense amount of timber in the track of the storm was destroyed. The damage will amount to a large sum. At East Birmingham a church and school building were wrecked. Near Chocoloco a tree fell on Mrs. J. F. McDowell's house, killing her instantly.

Bank Cashier Killed.

STEVENSON, Ala., Feb. 5.—R. C. Ross, cashier of the Bank of Scottsboro, was killed by the four Skelton brothers. The killing was the result of the alleged intimacy of Ross with Miss Annie Skelton.

Offers $50,000 For the Fight.

EVERETT, Wash., Feb. 5.—The president of the Athletic association of this city wired W. A. Brady that the Everett club would give $50,000 for the Corbett Jackson fight.

Valuable Horses Burned.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Feb. 5.—Forty-six head of valuable horses were cremated and two barns of the Hon. Henry C. Ireland were burned down near here.

A Soldier Punished.

BALEIGH, Feb. 5.—A soldier named Lombardine, who for the murder, by shooting at Gibellina, has been sentenced to 20 years' military imprisonment.

Farmers Fight a Street Duel.

BROOKHAVEN, Miss., Feb. 5.—Two farmers who live near here met on the street. A duel with pistols took place, and both were fatally shot.

UNDER THE GUILLOTINE

Vaillant, the Anarchist Bomb Thrower, Executed.

KILLED AT 7:40 THIS MORNING.

All the Rabble of Paris Came Out to See and Found the Gates Old Prison de la Roquette Swarming With Police—His Last Words Were, "Long Live Anarchy!"

PARIS, Feb. 5.—Auguste Vaillant, the anarchist who threw the bomb into the chamber of deputies was guillotined at 7:40 o'clock this morning in the presence of a vast crowd of people at the Prison de la Roquette.

His last words were: "Death to society! Long live anarchy!" There were no incidents of an exciting nature other than this.

The execution of Vaillant was determined upon yesterday. The news was confirmed late last evening. The people began collecting soon afterward, and the crowd kept increasing rapidly in size until 5 o'clock this morning, when a fine rain commenced to fall.

Workmen then started in to erect barricades across all the streets leading into the square, from which the people were driven by the police at 2:30 a. m.

At that hour the gardes republicaine arrived on the scene. The cafes and wine shops were all crowded with the lowest class of citizens, who loudly commented upon the injustice of sending Vaillant to the guillotine, as he had killed nobody.

Four companies of the gardes municipaline and a squadron of mounted guards formed around the square. Meanwhile the crowd continued to increase, and signs of approaching the execution on its part were noticeable.

An ugly rush of men and women up the Rue de la Roquette took place at 4 o'clock, but was stopped by the police. The wooden scaffold upon which Vaillant was executed arrived at 4:15 a. m.

Vaillant's execution settles the question which has for some days agitated Paris whether Vaillant would die upon the guillotine or have his sentence commuted for life imprisonment on the Isle of Pines. The decision that he must die was regarded here as a defeat for the revolutionary party and a triumph for the Opportunists, who since the bomb explosion have been demanding the enforcement of vigorous measures and the strictest application of the law to the anarchists.

There is no doubt that President Carnot, who has been anxious to act in strict accordance with the constitution, has been considerably perplexed as to what course he should take in Vaillant's case. All the memorials and petitions sent to him by sympathizers of Vaillant have been referred by him to the pardon committee at the ministry of justice.

The fate of Vaillant nominally rested with the president, but in such cases he is guided by his adviser, the minister of justice. Despite the efforts of the revolutionary, socialist and anarchist newspapers to compel Carnot to assume the responsibility, he has refused to do so.

Among the most affecting petitions received at the Palais de l'Elysee was one which is claimed to have been written by Madame, the mother of Vaillant, to Mme. Carnot beseeching the latter to interfere on behalf of the anarchist. Many persons doubt the ability of the child to write such a letter, in which expressions are made use of that are hardly childlike.

The police continue to make arrests of anarchists, and the services at the homes of suspected persons are unremittingly kept up, but notwithstanding the vigilance of the police bombs and infernal machines continue to be found in the streets and in houses where they are placed by anarchists, who in nearly every instance escape detection.

Vaillant's Crime and History.

Auguste Vaillant was born at Mezieres, Department of Ardennes, on Dec. 29, 1861. He was an illegitimate son, and led a roving life. At one time he lived in Buenos Ayres and at another in the United States, where he passed three months teaching school. He was married in the United States and by this marriage had a little girl, whose name is Sidonie. He returned to Paris in 1892.

The bomb throwing in the chamber of deputies took place on Dec. 9 at 4:9 p. m. M. Mirman, a socialist whose election had been contested, had just concluded from the tribune after a speech in favor of reclaims, and M. Dupuy, the speaker, had just uttered the words, "I am about to call by a vote upon the commission on the fifth electoral committee," when the explosion occurred.

Instantly the chamber was filled with smoke. Heartrending cries were heard from all sides, and Abbe Lemire, one of the deputies, fell from his bench, hit by one of the pieces of the bomb.

If the dynamite had struck the floor before exploding, a number of people would undoubtedly have been killed, but a woman sitting beside Vaillant in the public gallery jostled his arm as he was in the act of throwing the bomb, and this caused it to strike on the border of the gallery instead of on the floor of the chamber. As a consequence the persons injured were mostly spectators in the galleries, and nearly all the deputies escaped unhurt. About 30 persons were severely injured and were transported in an ambulance to a temporary hospital established in the refreshment room of the chamber.

At first Vaillant, who was among those seriously wounded, was not suspected as the criminal.

To the judge Vaillant told how he made and threw the bomb. He said that he obtained 100 francs from a prosperous millionaire named Chaumet for the purpose of arranging a grand coup. This, after some reflection, he decided should take place in the chamber of deputies, and he at once set about procuring the materials.

How He Made the Bomb.

He purchased the chemicals in small quantities at various shops, pretending that he was a diver and wanted them for use in his business. It took him two weeks to get material enough for his purpose. The arrangement of the tube which was to hold the bomb he personally manufactured. It was necessary that the middle of the tube should be narrow. He warmed the tube over a candle, and when it was soft he pressed it in the middle. It so happened that he broke it in the middle. He destroyed it before he filled one to his satisfaction. He then placed the tube in a saucepan, first filling one end with picric acid. A cotton plug was in the middle of the tube and green powder in the other end. This end was then surrounded with powder. The rest of the saucepan he filled with three pounds of nails. The bomb was finished on Dec. 8, and he fastened the cover on tightly with iron wire.

On the day of the explosion he placed the bomb on his stomach between his trousers' waistband and supported by a leather belt. Then he boarded a street car and went to the chamber of deputies. At 11:15 a. m. he took his place in the line outside the chamber. He did not have to yield his card of admission. Inside he was made to remove his overcoat. He said that he wanted to throw the bomb into the government benches and afterward mount the rostrum and explain his action. One of the nails hit him on the nose, and the smoke suffocated him, so that he was unable to speak.

On Jan. 10 he was tried and convicted in the court of assizes, and sentence of death was passed upon him. Then the presiding judge pronounced his doom. Vaillant shouted, "Vive l'anarchie!"

Previous to the passing of sentence Vaillant asked permission to address the court on his mode of life, and this request being granted he read a written speech in a clear and pleasant voice and fluent manner. In it he spoke in exposure of the injustices of the poor against society.

After his conviction many memorials and petitions were addressed to President Carnot, who turned them over to the pardon committee. On Jan. 25 the hearing of his appeal was heard by the court of cassation, which decided that there were no grounds upon which to grant it, and it therefore rejected it. The only hope that then remained for Vaillant was in President Carnot, who had in his his power to pardon or commute the sentence, but Carnot refused to interfere.

Where Vaillant Was Confined.

The famous Prison de la Roquette, where the condemned anarchist Vaillant awaited the approval of his day of execution, is a prison for persons sentenced to less than a year's imprisonment, and is only a temporary place of detention for those undergoing longer terms. It owes, therefore, its hard reputation to the fact that within its walls criminals condemned to death sometimes as long as four week await the reprieve or confirmation of the sentence.

The prison is situated at the extreme end of Paris and in one of the poorer districts. The dismal character of the neighborhood is intensified by its dilapidated condition, by the surrounding wretched hovels, by the shops containing exclusively funereal monuments, wreaths, etc., and by the vicinity of the Pere la Chaise cemetery.

It is in front of the prison gate on an open space between two small squares that the guillotine is erected on execution mornings. Five large granite slabs mark the exact spot upon which it must stand.

The Prison de la Roquette, which was designed by a German, is a three storied building of massive stone. It is surrounded by two square walls, each about 30 feet high. A walk 15 feet wide separates the prison from the first wall, and another walk equally wide separates this from the outer wall. Sentries are on duty day and night on both of these walls. Only the most reliable prisoners are allowed under escort to sweep them. Escapes are thus rendered well nigh impossible. In fact not even an attempt at an escape has ever been recorded.

The prison proper contains two open inner courts. The first and the larger of the two is surrounded by the four walls, with nothing to relieve their monotony other than the four rows of equidistant heavily barred square windows running in a straight line. The uniform of the prisoners is composed of a gray jacket with brass buttons, gray trousers, gray skull hat and clogs.

Impaled on a Cake Turner.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 5.—A singular accident befell Mrs. George Elliott of Bloomingburg, this county. She had been baking buckwheat cakes and went up stairs to awaken her children. On coming down she brought a lamp in each hand, holding the cake turner in her mouth. She tripped on the stairs and fell headlong. The turner passed through her throat and out at the back of her neck, leaving a painful wound. Both lamps were extinguished when she fell, and more serious consequences were prevented.

Explorer Selous Brings News.

PLYMOUTH, Feb. 5.—Explorer Selous has arrived from Cape Town and in an interview confirmed the statement made by Game Hunter Coryndon of the prominent part taken by two Americans named Bigelow and Ingram during Captain Wilson's fatal pursuit of King Lobengula. M. Selous says that Lobengula is probably on the banks of the Zambesi, which he is likely to cross with 3,000 of his warriors.

Met the Bandits and Ran.

THE HOUSE HAWAIIAN DEBATE.

Time Extended For Discussion of the Hitt, Bentzle and McCreary Resolutions. Secretary Carlisle's Aid In Income Bonds Will Be Sharply Reviewed In the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—The first two days of the present week in the senate will be taken up with the federal elections bill to the exclusion of everything else except the routine morning business, which will probably only be introduction of bills and the presentation of reports and petitions. The senate has agreed that the discussion of the bond resolution of Senator Stewart, which made other business temporarily subordinated, shall be resumed at 2 o'clock of each day until disposed of, shall go over until Wednesday, or pending, postponed by consent of the majority, or by two-thirds vote,

MR. CHILDS' FUNERAL.

It Will Occur Tomorrow, and the President May Attend.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The arrangements for the funeral of the late George W. Childs are nearly completed. There will be brief private services at the residence, to be followed by a public service at St. James' church at 1 o'clock on Tuesday. Bishop Potter of New York, for many years an intimate friend of Mr. Childs, will officiate. It will be assisted by Bishop Whitaker of Philadelphia and Rev. Dr. Blanchard, the pastor of the church.

The remains will be temporarily interred in the Drexel mausoleum at Woodland cemetery, the body to be placed in the catacomb next to the one occupied by the remains of the late A. J. Drexel, the banker, partner and companion of Mr. Childs.

The employees of The Public Ledger will attend the funeral in a body. The list of honorary pallbearers is nearly completed, but Joseph W. Field, who is in charge of the arrangements, will not announce the names until he has received acceptances.

There will be about 300 names on the list. Arrangements are being made for special trains from New York and Washington to accommodate those who expect to attend the funeral.

It has not yet been officially announced, but it is expected that President Cleveland, with the members of his cabinet and several senators and congressmen, will attend. A meeting of the employees of The Public Ledger was held yesterday afternoon. Colonel M. Richards Muckle, who has been employed on the paper over 30 years, acted as chairman. Addresses were made, and a minute prepared by Addison B. Burk, assistant editor, attesting the esteem in which the deceased had been held, was adopted.

There was probably not a single church in this city in which some touching allusion was not made Sunday to the memory of George W. Childs. At St. James' Protestant Episcopal church, of which the deceased was a vestryman, an eloquent tribute was paid by the pastor, Rev. Joseph H. Blatchford. There were few callers at the house, and those consisted of intimate friends of the family.

THE CAMDEN MURDER.

Mystery of Naked Keiser's Death Cleared Up by Two Negroes.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—The mystery surrounding the murder of Henry Kaiser, a wealthy baker, who was shot by burglars in his home in Camden on the morning of Dec. 5, 1893, has been cleared up by the confession of two negroes who were arrested in this city Sunday. The men, who are the names of Joseph Stevens and George Crowell, were taken before Chief of Detectives Miller, and when charged with the murder of Keiser they made a full statement which fastens the crime on Henry Lambert, who was arrested on suspicion on the day of the murder, but who could not be identified. However, he was held on a charge of having committed numerous burglaries in Camden.

The two men said that Lambert had about a dozen watch cases which were stolen from Keiser's house at the time of the murder and which was afterward recovered in a pawnshop in this city.

They also said that Lambert had given them the revolver with which the shooting was done, and they had disposed of it. The revolver was produced, and they identified it. The house formerly occupied by Lambert was searched, and a large quantity of goods stolen from houses near the Kaiser residence was discovered.

TILLMAN'S BLOODY LAW.

Another Dispensary Raid Results In a Fatal Shooting Affray.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Feb. 5.—A warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff Dean for — Bellew, William Center, Perry Moore and his two sons for violation of the dispensary law. Moore Dean, the sheriff's deputy, and five constables went out to make the arrest.

They reached Bellew's house about midnight. They saw Perry Moore, and Dean ordered him to surrender. Moore fired on them. The fire was returned by the posse, and Moore was shot through the lung just below the knee. About 20 shots were exchanged.

The constables then went toward Bellew's house and met him out in a field. Dean ordered him to hold up his hands. He did not obey, and Constable Massey shot him in the breast, killing him instantly. The firing then ceased. No whisky was captured. The coroner held an inquest, but no verdict has yet been reached.

A German Dead Averted.

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—The report is widely circulated in parliamentary circles that a duel was near at hand between Count Herbert von Bismarck and Count von Holstein of the foreign office, and that it was only prevented by the mediation of prominent men, who pointed out that this was not the time to create a new excitement.

Renegade Kid at It Again.

TUCSON, A. T., Feb. 5.—Authentic advices reached here of a battle on the other day in the Bunker Hill mining district, about 65 miles from Tucson, between Rinaldo Clark, a well known ex-United States scout, and a small band of Indians under the leadership of Renegade Kid, which resulted in one squaw being killed.

HOW TO WALK AND RUN.

Experiments of Interest to Physiologists and Athletes.

M. de Raoul, a French captain, began some years ago to try to find out the most economical and least tiring way of walking. There are many manners of walking, some of which are much devoid of grace (the average English woman's is a very good example), but it may be supposed that as far as efficiency is concerned one must be better than the others.

The result of M. de Raoul researches and experiments, as reported by a Paris correspondent of Popular Science News, is the conclusion that, as far as fast walking is concerned, the best method is that which he calls marche enfilerion. The principle is to run without leaping, to raise the body above ground as little as possible, to keep the knee bent, the upper part of the body inclined forward, so that practically you are always running after your center of gravity. The feet must be raised only very slightly.

M. de Raoul, who has now some years of experience, says that he can take any man between 20 and 60 and teach him so run as long as he has lungs to carry him without getting out of breath. Young men can on the very first trial of the method run seven or eight miles without stopping, while with the ordinary tactics they could not have run over one mile. The first kilometer (a kilometer is five-eighths of a mile) is usually covered in 7¼ minutes, the second in 6 minutes and the third in 5 minutes 45 seconds.

M. de Raoul does not advise to run faster than 5 minutes 30 seconds to the mile. An interesting feature of M. de Raoul's researches is that after even a long run according to his method a stiff walk is no trouble at all. The muscles which work in both cases do not belong to the same set, and while one exercise is performed those which minister to the other rest.

Saving Eyesight.

The following rules for the care of the eyes conform to well established laws of eye physiology:

Avoid reading and study by poor light.

Light should come from the side and not from the back or from the front.

Do not read or study while suffering great bodily fatigue or during recovery from illness.

Do not read while lying down.

Do not use the eyes too long at a time for near work, but give them occasional periods of rest.

Reading and study should be done systematically.

During study avoid the stooping position or whatever tends to produce congestion of the head and face.

Select well printed books.

Correct errors of refraction with proper glasses.

Avoid bad hygienic conditions and the use of alcohol and tobacco.

Take sufficient exercise in the open air.

Let the physical keep pace with the mental culture, for asthenopia is most usually observed in those who are lacking in physical development.

A STUDY IN OILS.

An Effective Arrangement of Pink and White Chrysanthemums.

This study of pink and white chrysanthemums should make a beautiful picture when painted and framed and is well adapted for walls of light, delicate tints. To paint it is oils lay in a background of gray, using a cobalt blue, flake white, cork black and a very little vermilion. For the lights in the lighter white flowers use flake white. Lay in the shadows with cork black, white, cobalt and a little ocher. For the centers in the lightest parts use King's yellow, shaded at the edge with a little orange. Keep the shadows thinly painted and load the lights. Lay in the lightest part of the pink flowers, first with white, working in a very little madder lake, and in the darker parts use more madder and a very little white, if any. The centers are King's yellow and white.

For the jar use yellow ocher and a little sadmium in the lights and cork black and ocher in the darks. A little cobalt may be used with the lights on the upper left hand corner and in the center at the top. For the lightest gray leaves use cobalt, cork black and white, and in the medium tones use German green and cobalt, shading to the dark with terra verte or cork black and cobalt, with a little umber. Keep the leaves flat and olive, being careful not to preserve all the sharp, angular appearances in the drawing, advises The Modern Priscilla in presenting this design.

Gilded China Without Brush Marks.

In answer to the question how one can gild china all over so it will not show the marks of the brush The Art Amateur says: The china shown at the World's fair, which looks like gold plate rather than china, is done by a special process not made known to the public. The material for producing this effect, it is suggested, is not gold, but a cheaper material. It is probable that the object to be gilded is subjected to a bath containing the metal coating in solution.

Experiments are being made by amateurs to produce, with gold, this artistic finish with no appearance of brush marks. So far, the most successful experiments have resulted from gilding ones with liquid bright gold and then second time applying a thin coat of burnish gold of good color and quality, flowed on evenly and fired; between this one piece was fired with a broad brush and even stroke and fired. After this, the work is thoroughly scoured with a glass brush, then refired, leaving a slightly matt effect, with no appearance of brush marks. All of this calls for slow and careful work. One less firing might give satisfaction, omitting the first process. The trouble with applying one strong coat of burnish gold rather than two thin coats is that it is certain to leave some brush marks.

PERFECTLY RIDICULOUS!

When we stop and think of how cheap we have been selling goods during the past month, it does seem funny, and no doubt you wonder why we do it, but when the snow turns into slush it takes either boats or bargains to bring the people out.

We are out of boats at present, but

HERE are the BARGAINS.

They say White will soon tire of selling best Amoskeag and Lancaster Ginghams, for 4½c., but we are still selling them at that price. Same way with "Fruit of the Loom," "Dwight Anchor" and "Lonsdale" bleached Muslins—you can still buy them for 7c. per yard.

Our annual sale of Muslin Underwear for Ladies is now on. Two assortments, 25c. and 50c., one third under regular price.

LADIES' RIBBED VESTS—One of the best bargains we have ever offered is Ladies' Summer Vests is on sale this week. Regular value, 25c. each, we will sell them two for 25c. You will want them later, but now is the time to buy them.

HOSIERY—10c., 12c., 15c. and 20c. is the price on four specials in Children's Hosiery. Everyone is a bargain, and well worth trying.

HOUSE FURNISHINGS—We are constantly adding many new and useful articles in our House Keeping Department, and "will pay you, when in the store, to look through this department. There is everything in Crockery, Glass and Tinware, Wood and Willow Ware, etc.

Warming the House.

The hot air heater is superior to other methods of warming the house in that all the air conveyed into the room is fresh, the air, as it becomes cooled, finding an exit through the doors and windows, or if there are open fireplaces they do excellent service in drawing off the chilled air from the floor level. But there are so many poorly constructed heaters admitting gas to the rooms, or of such thin iron that they soon get red hot, that they are sometimes in disfavor. Very frequently, too, the heaters are too small for the house they are intended to heat, in which case they are forced far beyond their capacity, the air being burned before reaching the rooms. It is far better to place a large heater than is absolutely necessary in the house and secure the desired amount of heat with a low fire.—Household News.

A Sure Cure.

It is told of Hannah More that she had a good way of managing talebearers. It would that whenever she was told anything derogatory to another her invariable reply was, "Come, we will go and ask if she be true." The result was sometimes ludicrously painful. The talebearer was taken aback, stammered out a qualification or begged that no notice might be taken of the statement. But the good lady was inexorable. Off she took the scandal monger to the scandalised to make inquiry and compare accounts. It is not likely that anybody ever told second time ventured to repeat a gossipy story to Hannah More. One would think her method of treatment would be a sure cure for scandal.—Harper's Bazar.

Children's Shoes.

Shoes for children should be selected with more regard for comfort than service. A good fit does not imply largeness. They should be an excess of sole leather in length but sufficient snugness in the quarters to prevent slipping. The toes need and must have room, but by lacing the heel, ankle and arch snugly dressed the foot gets support and power to resist fatigue. Athletes insist on these points in those going for a walk or race. Parents make a mistake to ordering wider when longer shoes are required. Until they stop growing children need a half size longer every time they get a pair of shoes.—Shoe and Leather Journal.

Dress and Complexion.

Every woman who is ambitious to look her best should have a list for private consultation of trying colors. Each complexion has its best and its worst possibilities. Most persons can wear dark blue or green, for instance, but very few can wear dark red. It is wise to accept one's limitations and dress within them. If peacock blue is unbecoming, and it usually is, why should women make guys of themselves by donning it? If white is the kindest ally, why not choose white whenever it is possible to have it?—New York Telegram.

Living Love.

Do not keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead, but fill your lives with sweetness. Speak approving and cheering words while their ears can hear them and while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier by them. The kind things you will say after they are gone say before they go. The flowers you mean to send for their coffins lay now, and so forget-en and sweeten their homes before they leave them.—American Woman's Journal.

Ballet Girls.

In France the ballet girl begins her career usually at 7 years old. She is then paid at the rate of 40 cents for each appearance in public, as a demoiselle de quadrille $20 to $40 a month, as a coryphee $50 to $60 and as a sujet $80 to $120. A dancer of the first class will get from $120 to $300 a month, and a star from $2,000 to $10,000 a year. The average English girl will not work hard enough to attain the highest excellence as a dancer.—Paris Herald.

Croup.

For croup the best thing to do while waiting for the doctor—and it will often make his arrival merely a formality—is to put lard on a cloth and sprinkle with sugar and apply quickly to the chest. This will not blister and acts promptly. Doses of syrup of ipecac used with this will relieve almost any case of plain spasmodic croup, and the physician will tell you how to look after the baby the next day.—New York Times.

Ironing Old Silk.

In ironing old silk do not damp it at the moment, but at least an hour before. Sprinkle it thoroughly and roll it up as tightly as possible in a towel. The iron should be tried on a scrap of the silk first. Silk varies in quality and thickness, and an iron which is too hot for one cloth is just right for another.—Exchange.

She Invented a Gridiron.

Mrs. Monschoul, who won the second prize of the New York Society of Ceramic Arts for figures, and whose porcelain pictures are highly much admired, has invented a gridiron which, it is said, will broil steaks and chops more satisfactorily than any one of many other gridirons made.—New York Sunday Advertiser.

A Woman Screwmaker.

New York has a woman screw manufacturer. Her name is Mary Cleary. She lives in a cozy Bleecker street flat and would rather prowl around a big hardware store than go to the grandest opera that ever was sung or the finest collection of pictures that ever was hung.—New York News.

How to Make Beds.

One of the rules impressed upon the mind of the chambermaid brought up in France is, in making beds, the under sheet must be well turned in at the head of the bed and the upper sheet well tucked in at the foot. This rule is thoroughly sensible. —New York Mail and Express.

Miss Dittweiler, who was for many years one of Queen Victoria's personal attendants, is always invited over to spend her Christmas at court. She retired a few years ago to Carlsbad, her native place, but is never overlooked as the season of Christmas comes round.

Do you live in a room that has a window only two feet from a cheerless brick wall? Have that wall painted white. In the summer have window boxes with vines on the outer sill. In winter have a few blooming plants on the inside.

Moorish women have one custom that commends itself to womankind in enlightened lands. It is a point of honor among them never to know their own ages. They have no birthday celebrations.

Chinese women are said to regard the hairpin much as American women do the ring.

EDITORIAL NOTES

What Rich Men Are Good For.

"Why do we not make a better use of our rich men?" asks Mr. Frederic Harrison in The Forum. Then he proceeds to declare inferentially that unless these gentlemen speedily begin to make a better use of themselves the community will take in hand the matter of abolishing rich men altogether. He says, indeed, in so many words: "The great problem which the next century will have seriously to take in hand and finally solve is this: Are rich men likely to prove of any real social use, or will it be better for society to abolish the institution?"

How shall we make the best use of our rich men? If the Harrison idea is carried out, none of our rich men will in future be permitted to go off on a pleasure cruise in a luxurious yacht, sailing around the world and spending $7,000 a month on their own physical pleasure and the gratification of a few friends, while their country, where their ancestors accumulated such vast wealth, is in the throes of a commercial panic and thousands are actually suffering for the necessities of life. It is very nice to get away from the cry of hard times and the appeals for charity, but will it be allowed in the days when we make use of our rich men the Harrison plan?

The writer declares that the rich men owe it to civilization as their bounden duty to cultivate and improve the popular taste. Scarcely anything more delicate or esthetic than a red and yellow circus bill, a horrible variety concert hall ballad or a blood and thunder drama can please the popular taste sufficiently to gain a financial foothold. To appreciate and demand better the common people must be cultivated and refined. They cannot do this for themselves, for they know nothing better than what pleases them at present. It should be, it must be, the task of rich men to build beautiful gardens in which the rarest of orchids and lillies and all the flowers of the earth are displayed free. The rich must also build art museums in which the public may look their fill free of charge on the most perfect achievements of painting and sculpture. So likewise should the highest and best musical and dramatic representations be provided. A nation thus blessed with patriotic benefactors would grow beautiful, wise and fine beyond description. The whole human race would in time be elevated and developed physically, mentally and morally, thinks Frederic Harrison.

The question of the municipal ownership of gas works has been settled in Berlin and 28 other large cities in Germany. For 47 years Berlin has manufactured her own gas and disposed of it to citizens at a handsome profit. In the other cities, after the gas has been made at about the same expense as that at which private corporations make it, there has remained a large surplus which has gone toward paying the expenses of the city government. Philadelphia is now investigating the question of still further extending city ownership of gas works. The manufacture of illuminating gas from water has long occupied attention there. Several private companies desirous of building plants for the city declare positively and solemnly that a good fuel and illuminating gas can be made from water at a cost of 25 cents per thousand cubic feet. One company has offered to construct a water gas plant out and out and let the city test it 30 days on condition of its purchase by the city in case the gas does not cost more than 25 cents per thousand. If a good illuminating gas can be made at this price, then every small town in the country should have its own gas works. What is more, everybody can use gas as fuel, thus doing away with soot, ashes, dust, labor and kindling wood. It will pay the gas companies to sell their product as cheaply as possible, even in cases where a city does not make its own gas.

In a Massachusetts school the teachers are training their pupils in the banking business. A real banking establishment is very well imitated by a device set up in the schoolrooms. Counters are used instead of money, and by means of them banking operations are performed and thoroughly taught to the children. When these pupils go into the world, they will all, girls as well as boys, know the difference between a discount and interest. Actually seeing the papers and check money before them and themselves doing the things they study about in their arithmetics will impress the knowledge of banking upon their minds more in one week than three months' abstract drumming over their books would do. It is melancholy to think of the wry arithmetics to be stuffed into school children. There is one way even better than that adopted in the Massachusetts school, and that is the plan in vogue in some of the educational institutions of Holland. There actual sums of money—the pennies and small savings of the pupils—are used to illustrate banking and commercial business. A bank account is kept always. The boys are ready to enter commercial life as clerks and accountants as soon as they leave these schools.

Weak souls lie down upon the strong ones to be carried. It is better to carry than to be carried.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties.—Brief, but Newsy.

Said to Have Taken Kaierer's Life.

The Camden police claim to have positive evidence that Lambert, one of the men arrested Sunday, is the murderer of Baker Kaierer. Lambert's reputed wife who was arrested at the same time has confessed to detectives that Lambert told her of the murder, and said he shot the aged baker. Joseph Stevens of the second man arrested, also says Lambert told him that he killed Kaierer.

The arrests were the result of revelations made by "Black Strap" Davis, who was arrested in New York three weeks ago for complicity in the crime. Kaierer was murdered about ten weeks ago. He was a rich baker, and, early on the morning of the murder, he heard some one walking on the first floor of his house. He and his son went down stairs to investigate. When they reached the first floor they saw some one go out of a rear door of the hall.

Work for Workers.

The Marshall Thread Works of Kearney began to run on full time yesterday, after running short-handed for some time. The Mile End Thread Works are running on full time. The Edison Lamp Works in Harrison began to run on full time, will run until 7.30 at night—an hour and a half overtime every day. The Montgomery Abbott Last Company are running day and night. The New Jersey Zinc and Iron Works began to work on full time, giving employment to 150 hands. The Ashland Emery Works in Perth Amboy started up with thirty-five men, after having been closed for two months. The full force of men will be at work inside of two weeks.

Impaled on a Post.

A horse belonging to Liveryman Curtis slipped on the ice in front of the Second National Bank, Hoboken, yesterday afternoon and fell sideways on a sharp pointed from hitching post, near the curb, and was impaled. The post penetrated fully six inches into the animal's side. The horse, maddened by pain, struggled desperately to free itself, but it only added to its misery. Patrolman Haw shot and killed the suffering creature.

Last of El Dorado.

Chancellor McGill, in Jersey City, yesterday, ordered Receiver Theophilus Butts to sell the property of the Palisades Amusement Company at El Dorado at public auction, Feb. 20. The El Dorado has been conducted at a loss ever since it was opened.

Is General Harrison to Marry Again?

SHELBYVILLE, Ind., Feb. 6.—The Daily Evening Democrat says: "The Democrat has learned from a source which it believes to be reliable that ex-President Benjamin Harrison and Mrs Stanford, widow of the late Leland Stanford, the California millionaire, will shortly be united in marriage at Palo Alto. The ex-president is now preparing to leave Indianapolis for the Stanford university to deliver a series of lectures and while there will be married to Mrs. Stanford."

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 6.—From a member of ex-President Harrison's family it was learned that there is no foundation whatever for the rumor that he is to marry Mrs. Leland Stanford.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 6.—Frank Hall, who was brought here to prevent his being lynched, was returned to Lebanon in irons. He was identified by Mrs. Askern as her assailant. A mob collected around the courthouse and finally succeeded in getting hold of Hall. A rope was placed around his neck, and as he was about to suffer death at the hands of Judge Lynch he confessed to the crime. Sheriff Trautman persuaded the mob to turn the prisoner back to him. He was returned to the courtroom and sentenced to 21 years in prison.

Predicted Her Own Death.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, O., Feb. 6.—Mary Heffman predicted that she would be dead in three days and began to make preparations for the funeral. She worked hard all day Saturday and retired in the evening, apparently well as usual, and the next morning she was found dead in bed, as she had predicted.

Da Gama Intends to Blockade.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A dispatch from Rioda Janeiro says: Admiral da Gama has given notice that he will blockade Pernambuco Bay and has disposed his fleet accordingly. This step is intended to assert belligerent rights for the insurgents. The action of the foreign commanders is awaited with anxiety.

Dead on the Pilot of an Engine.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 6.—The body of the man who was found dead on the pilot of a Central railroad engine was identified at the morgue as Michael Sheilough, a Hungarian. He had been to a Hungarian wedding in Roselle and was walking on the track when struck.

John Chinaman Celebrates New Year's.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 6.—The 30,000 Chinese in this city are celebrating the Chinese new year. The explosion of immense cache crackers and the fusillade with the tomtoms and gongs of Chinese musicians for supremacy and predominium.

Hon. Edward J. Donovan Ill.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—Hon. Edward J. Donovan, President Cleveland's appointee for the position of commissioner of internal revenue, lies at his Spring street residence dangerously ill with apoplexitis.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

THE REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

Six months interest on the mortgage on the Franklin building, $375, was ordered paid, together with $1,000 on the principal.

Collector Johnson's report showing school taxes collected to be $2,519.81 was received and filed.

The treasurer reported that he had received from R. Reimer, county superintendent of schools, warrants for State taxes for $11,661.58, and the State appropriation was $667.22. $44 for rent of school property, corner Sixth street and Central avenue, was received and deposited in the bank.

A communication was read from Trustee Lounsbery, who was too ill to attend the meeting, suggesting that the Washington Building have better ventilation. After thoroughly discussing the matter, it was moved and seconded that the Committee on Buildings, with Superintendent Maxson, visit the Washington Building, with an expert on such matters, to ascertain what would be the best plans, and report at the next meeting.

The school calendar for the year 1894 was fixed. The Winter term began Jan. 3d, and closes March 23. The Spring term begins April 3d and closes June 22d. The Fall term begins Sept. 4th, and ends Dec. 21st.

Free School Books.

[From Weekly News, Palmyra.]

The Hon. M. E. Matlack, of Mt. Holly, introduced two bills in the Legislature which are of extreme interest. One is House Bill, No. 8, and is for the adoption of free text books for the Public Schools of the State. This is a practice in rapid advancement in the U. S. A bill to this effect was passed in Pennsylvania last winter, and the Massachusetts bill of 1884 was so very successful in its working that several States have since adopted it. The bill before our Legislature is a close model of the Massachusetts bill and is approved of by many of the first educators of our country.

The Massachusetts bill was followed in three years by an increased attendance of ten per cent. at the Public Schools. The other bill is for the establishment for a Forestry Commission, to guard the Forests and Water Supply of our State, Forest planting on the coast also will stop the encroaching of the sand hills, which yearly destroy many miles of good arable lands.

New Jersey ought to push forward these two bills that our State may keep in line of progress with our sister States, New York, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

TRENTON NEWS.

Republicans Make Nominations For State Comptroller and Treasurer.

TRENTON, Feb. 6.—The house of assembly and both senatorial bodies were in session, but no business of consequence was accomplished. No new developments have appeared in the senate muddle.

The Republicans held a joint caucus right after the adjournment of both houses to select candidates for state comptroller and state treasurer. George R. Scuds of Essex had been the leading candidate for treasurer and F. S. Hancock of Mercer for comptroller. A combination was formed last week by Samuel Dickinson of Hudson and David Baird of Camden to beat these candidates.

A lively fight was made to stave off the caucus for a week by the Dickinson-Baird men. In this they failed, and Baird withdrew from the contest. The caucus was presided over by Senator Sodine. A lively debate took place as to the advisability of adjourning the caucus, but this was voted down. Hancock received the caucus nomination by a vote of 34 to 14. Scuds was nominated without opposition.

YET ANOTHER MYSTERY

One More Unexplained Death In Newark, N. J.

STRANGE BOARDER CAME TO DIE.

An Unknown Woman Paid a Week's Board For Him and Then Went Away.—His Name May Be John H. Blake.—Came at His Death Not Known.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 6.—Mysteries have developed in this place with startling rapidity during the last few days, the latest one coming to light in the boarding house of Mrs. May Shay, 119 Central avenue. It came in the way of a summons to County Physician Elliott to visit the house and view the body of a man about 60 years old who had died suddenly (from accident) attendance and who was unknown.

On examining the body Dr. Elliott gave apoplexy as the cause of death. There was no mark of violence on the body, nor was there an indication of other than a natural death, yet the circumstances of the case make it a most peculiar one. The man wore silk underclothing, and his clothing was of fine quality, though slightly worn. The only other article he had in his room besides his bed was a valise. He was fine looking.

He went to the house in what seemed to be a private carriage last Friday. He was accompanied by a handsomely dressed, good looking woman. Board was engaged for the man. The woman paid for one week's board in advance, and left after saying she would call again. Neither gave a name, and the woman at once returned to her carriage and drove away.

The man was taken ill for a short time on Saturday, but on Sunday he complained of feeling ill and remained in his room. Mrs. Shay sent her little daughter to the stranger's room Monday morning to see if he wanted anything. The child received no answer to repeated knocks and then pushed open the door and peered into the room. The man did not move, and she called out, "Mamma, the man is very still."

Mrs. Shay then went up stairs and was horrified to find the man apparently dead. Dr. Cortwright was hurriedly summoned, but when he arrived he declared that life had been extinct some time and sent for the county physician. The latter opened the man's valise and found in it papers which appear to show that the stranger was John H. Blake and that he had been a clerk in the Windsor hotel, Saratoga, and the Park Avenue hotel, Chicago. There was also a complete record of all the race track horses for the last two years.

"I would like to find the strange woman who came here with the man," said Mrs. Shay. "She is tall, slender and dark—in fact a decided brunette. She wore a black coat reaching to her knees and a black dress.

"She was neither pretty nor homely, and for some reason she impressed me as being a church worker. She had a Bible in one of her hands. I never saw her before. A woman next door told me that when about to drive away the strange woman's coachman to go to Main and Walnut streets, Orange.

She Promised to Return.

Before leaving she said she would return on Friday of this week and pay another week's board for the man. She came in a hurry and left in a hurry, and I forgot to ascertain her name. I did not ask the man his name because he was dead and had to be talked to very loud."

The man's body was removed to Mallits' morgue, but as no one has claimed it, nor has any one called at the boarding house in reference to the matter.

Among the papers found in the man's valise, besides those mentioned above, was a letter recommending Blake as an honest and desirable man, who had been employed as chief clerk in a Saratoga hotel. It was signed by Horace Hunter, an attorney at law, with offices in the Stewart building in this city. There were also receipts for registered letters sent by John H. Blake in 1891 from the Oriental hotel, Coney Island, to John C. Cottus of this city; Mrs. C. L. Blake of Boston, Mrs. A. S. Blake of East Orange, N. J.; Waldo F. Adams of Boston and W. B. Dinsmore of Staatsburg, N. Y. There were also receipts for money sent by express to Mrs. A. S. Blake of East Orange.

WEARY OF DEBATING.

The Hawaiian Discussion In the House Drags Slowly On.

TALK ON ELECTIONS BILL ENDED.

The Senate Will Take a Vote on This Measure Today if the Programme Is Carried Out—A Controversy on Franchise Qualifications—The Peckham Matter.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The Hawaiian debate again occupied the attention of the house, a night session being held for pet speeches by those members who desired to talk, but who otherwise would not have had opportunity to do so on account of the limited time allowed.

The debate is attracting much less attention in the house than was anticipated. This is perhaps partly due to the abandonment of the policy of restoration of the administration and partly to the fact that the Long tariff debate has surfeited the house. The principal speeches were made by Messrs. Johnson of Indiana, Boutelle of Maine, Patterson of Tennessee, and Black of Illinois.

Mr. Boutelle's concluding words were very bitter against the administration. He said:

"The honor of the American name is being dragged in the dust by Grover Cleveland, Walter Q. Gresham, James H. Blount and Minister Willis. I have no words to express my contempt for the policy of treachery, duplicity and false pretenses. You on the other side cannot condone this outrage. You cannot make this heroic." (Applause.)

Proceeding, he characterized Mr. Gresham as a "disappointed and apostate secretary of state," who in conjunction with the president sought not only to uproot and overturn an American government, but to degrade the American navy by putting it under the control of a Georgia politician in order to get some one who would haul down the American flag. [Applause.]

Black Replies to Boutelle.

When that order was written, whether by the secretary of the navy or the president, the constitution was violated, and he who penned it rendered himself liable to impeachment. As a partisan, he said, he might well glory and gloat over the present policy of the Democratic party, which, he added amid Republican applause, had been spewed out of the American people. It was a policy of infamy, branded so by a fearless Democratic paper. He concluded with a glowing eulogy of the American flag, terming it a few verses a sort of apostrophe to the stars and stripes written by a native of Hawaii. He was liberally applauded when he took his seat.

Mr. Black, formerly the ex-commissioner of pensions, said in reply that the eloquent words of Mr. Boutelle, so far as they appealed to American honor and American patriotism, awakened the liveliest commendation in his heart, but after all this was now an old story. It was no longer a grave question. The great question of the hour was how finally established. There was no attempt to invade it.

All that the Republicans hoped for by this discussion and all history was political advantage, and the Democratic side of the house did not propose that they should have it. Proceeding to analyze the several resolutions pending, pointing out what he considered their defects or inconsistencies. He argued for a policy of foreign non-intervention. "Let us adore Stevens," said he, "and we think we will get him." [Laughter and applause.]

By the policy enjoined of extirpation, said he, but four-fifths of 1 per cent of all the lands in the Hawaiian Islands now remained to the native population. Never had there been a peaceful conquest in the history of the world.

American intelligence and American energy were paramount there. Let them work out their salvation. Let us declare for a policy of noninterference by the United States and against tolerating foreign interference by other governments, and the supremacy of brain and civilization in those islands is assured. Mr. Black's brilliant peroration was loudly applauded.

Mr. Van Voorhis of New York, a member of the foreign affairs committee, declared unequivocally for annexation. Mr. Griffin of Michigan closed the debate for the afternoon with an argument in support of the McCreary resolution.

In the Senate.

The federal elections repeal bill occupied the entire session of the senate. Senator Chandler concluded his speech, which was extended through the past two or three weeks, and was followed by Senator Palmer, who argued that the law, having entirely failed of its purpose and being obnoxious, should be repealed. An animated controversy of the franchise qualifications of the state constitutions of Mississippi and Massachusetts took place between Senators Frye and Hoar on one side and Senators Gray and Butler on the other, and it is likely to be renewed when the final vote is taken on the bill.

Senator Frye quoted the constitution of the state of Mississippi and denounced the provision requiring the voter to be able to read the constitution or give a reasonable interpretation of a section of it when read to him.

"Does not the senator know that Massachusetts has an even more stringent provision?" inquired Senator Gray.

"No, it does not."

"Yes, it does, and I will show it to you."

"Why, there is not a senator on this floor," said Mr. Frye, "who could correctly interpret the constitution of the United States to the satisfaction of an examining committee, as is required by the constitution of Mississippi."

"That constitution, then," suggested Senator Palmer, "very much resembles the constitution of the Hawaiian islands by the provisional government." [Laughter.]

Senator Hale of Tennessee interrupted to read the fourteenth provision from the constitution of Massachusetts, as follows:

"Every male citizen of 21 years or upward, not being a pauper or person under guardianship, who is able to read the constitution of the commonwealth in the English language and write his name shall be entitled to vote."

"If there had been added to that," retorted Mr. Frye, "the words, 'If he could interpret it to the satisfaction of a committee,' it would make a material difference."

Senate Finance Committee and the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The meeting of the act ate finance committee which is to be held today will determine whether time shall be granted for hearings to those who are interested in articles affected by the bill, and on this decision will depend the time that the bill will be in committee. Senator Voorhees, as chairman of the committee, has informed the Republican members that they shall have the decision of the majority of the committee at this meeting. It now looks as if no opportunity whatever would be given for hearings.

At the evening session of the house only four members were present when Mr. Hall of Minnesota began to speak in support of the administration. A half dozen others came in subsequently, and there was a considerable attendance in the galleries. Mr. Hall of Illinois contended that the attempt of the administration to restore a debauched and discarded queen could not be condoned or wiped out by the passage of a partisan resolution. Mr. Stallings of Mississippi took the position that Mr. Stevens was a party to the revolution and should be censured by the house. Mr. Latey of Iowa and Mr. Stockdale of Mississippi were the last speakers.

The Peckham Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—It is the belief of a conservative member of the judiciary committee that Mr. Peckham's nomination will either be reported back favorably or without any recommendation. The members of the committee who were against Mr. Hornblower, but who do not want to make a report against Peckham, think the best way to fix the matter is to allow it to come before the senate without any recommendation whatever and have all that has been presented to the committee laid before the senate. There are only three members of the committee who are actively opposed to Peckham—Hill, Pugh and Teller—and the others are inclined to report without recommendation.

Recognizing Bonilla.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—United States Minister Baker has transmitted to the state department a decree of the government of Nicaragua, dated Dec. 25, recognizing the provisional government of Policarpo Bonilla, president of Honduras. MARDI GRAS BEGUN.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 6.—The carnival season was inaugurated here in a blaze of glory with the brilliant pageant of the crew of Proteus. The trains brought many belated strangers, and the hotels are full. The crowds on the streets during the day were quite as large as any preceding carnival for the past seven or eight years, and the attendance of visitors from the farthest of Louisiana and from contiguous states was conspicuously large.

The reception of Rex during the day was attended with the customary ceremonies on such occasions. The king reached the city by river and was welcomed with salvos of artillery and the screeching noises of hundreds of steam whistles. The parade of the military was not a great display, but what there was of it was notable in character. There were three visiting companies—the Bienville rangers of Albany, the Dubuque greys and the Boston lancers—and each received applause on the line of march for their excellent marching maneuvers and generally creditable military bearing.

Caused a Panic at a Convent.

QUEBEC, Feb. 6.—Madame Lafortune of St. Paul de Joliette presented herself at the Convent of Assumption and demanded his two daughters from the superioress. On being refused she drew a revolver and began a general shooting. By way of adding to the excitement he produced a package of dynamite with which he proposed to blow up himself and the inmates. One of the nuns managed to call the police, and the man was arrested.

THE ALBANY SITUATION

Republicans Get the Clute Injunction Vacated.

WILL MAKE AN INVESTIGATION.

Lieutenant Governor Sheehan Defends His Position, and Senator Saxton Replies. Greater New York Bill Reaches a Third Reading in the Assembly.

ALBANY, Feb. 6.—The Republicans strengthened their position in the senate controversy by securing the intervention by Judge Clute of his injunction against Clerk Kenyon. The application was made by Judge Saxton on the ground that the clerk was a creature of the majority of the senate and not of the presiding officer, and Judge Clute promptly granted the application.

Two hours before the time set for the session the doors and corridors leading to the senate were besieged by hundreds of people anxious to obtain admission, and when the galleries were opened they were quickly filled to suffocation. The floor, too, was filled with an anticipating crowd, and when the gavel fell there was only a disturbance that the chair had to call on the sergeant-at-arms to take means to clear it out. Even during the prayer there was a hubbub from the men's side.

Lieutenant Governor Sheehan read a long argument defending his position and protesting against the unseating of Senator McCarty. In closing Mr Sheehan said:

If there is authority of law for the consideration of such matters, and if there is precedent anywhere for such a course or if such conduct meets the approval of the people, I am much mistaken. After all, the people of the state will be the final arbiters of this question, and it is for them to decide whether in this controversy, involving a construction of the rules of procedure, the majority of the senate was wrong or the presiding officer.

Senator Saxton replied, declaring that the chair's ruling had been arbitrary and revolutionary.

The regular order of business was finally taken up, and the Buffalo and Lansingburg bills were sent to the committee of the whole without debate. After the introduction of bills had proceeded for awhile Senator Bradley moved to adjourn. Senator Saxton asked him to withdraw the motion and then presented a resolution authorizing the judiciary committee to investigate the subject of the service of the injunction on Clerk Kenyon, how it was obtained, whether or not the legislature had been interfered with, and, if so, who was responsible for the interference. The committee is allowed to sit anywhere in the state and send for persons and papers. The resolution was made a special order for today.

In the Assembly.

In the assembly every seat in the galleries and every foot of standing room in the chamber were occupied long before the opening of the session. Nearly all of the members were in their seats. Colonel George W. Dunn, clerk of the assembly, who was taken ill a day or two before the legislature convened, made his first appearance behind the desk. He was warmly greeted by the members.

A long debate ensued when Mr. Burtis' credit bill was reached on the calendar. The bill provides for submitting the question of consolidation to a vote of the people. Finnegan offered an amendment to the bill inserting the words "having an equal and uniform rate of taxation."

Mr. Burtis protested against loading down the bill with amendments. Mr. Wray favored the amendment. The amendment was voted down, the ayes 74.

Mr. Burtis moved that the bill be recommitted to the committee on cities, to be so amended as to make its meaning plainer than it is in the shape in which the vote will be taken and what shall constitute a majority. Lost. The bill was ordered to a third reading.

The speaker handed down the first annual report of the commissioners of agriculture. Mr. J. F. Terry, from the subcommittee on privileges and elections, presented the testimony taken in the Conkling-McGuire contest in Richmond county. Ordered to be printed.

Chained For a Year and a Half.

Renewal of the Old Fend.

"If a colored waiter at a restaurant," observed the exchange editor, "should drop a roast turkey on the floor"

"That's dead easy," broke in the financial editor. "It would be the collapse of Turkey."

"No my son," said the exchange editor sharply. "That wasn't what I was going to say."

"Then it would be the fall of Greece."

"It wouldn't be a national calamity of any kind," retorted the man of the shears, savagely disemboweling a New York exchange.

"I say it would," rejoined the financial oracle, jabbing his fountain pen into the bleed of paper before him. "If you said a colored waiter, didn't you? It would cause a commotion in Africa."

"And a crash in China," interrupted the real estate editor, looking feverishly about for a weapon of some kind.

"You ought to be Asia-nused of yourself," spoke up the man at the index books, with deep feeling.

"Europe pack of vultures!" vociferated the exchange editor.

"If a colored waiter in a restaurant," said the financial editor, returning gamely to the charge, "should drop a roast turkey"——

"The proprietor would kick the stuffing out."

"There would be a rich pickup for"——

"It would be a very grayious offense against"——

"The waiter would make no bones of"——

"He'd get a dressing down, wouldn't he?" The voice of the exchange editor rose high above the din.

WATCHUNG PARK PROPERTY!
Handsomely situated BUILDING LOTS
now offered for sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes walk of the Central Railroad station.

The New Watchung Park, with its rustic streets and avenues, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place.

Only High Grade Dwellings to be erected. The sale thereof will be restricted, making it a desirable one in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of condemning the streets is now being pushed rapidly.

Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon as the grading and early improvements are completed.

Streets and Beautiful Homes now fronting on Stanford and Waterview avenues have been located on the old Cromantz ball field.

Some of Property Values jumped in Stanford and Waterview avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots are about 50x150 feet in size, and the map of the property, printed in these columns every Wednesday and Saturday, will give the public necessary information as to their location.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP

C.D LONDON SQUARES.

Dating From Charles II's Reign and Associated With Interesting Memories.

The square was invented for the purpose of supplying a number of contiguous houses with a good class without entirely foregoing the advantages of having something green for the eyes to rest upon. The older squares in the west of London chiefly date from the reign of the second Charles' reign. Leicester ter Fields and Lincoln's Inn Fields were made into squares in the reign of Charles II and Soho and St. James' squares were formed during the same period. Portland square most of all has become changed from its original condition by new buildings. But the house—the very room even—in which Sir Joshua Reynolds died still remains and is virtually unaltered, save that it is now used as a bookseller's shop.

ST. JAMES' SQUARE.

The square has the reputation of having been the gayest square in London in the first part of the last century, and it has, although destitute of any striking architectural feature externally, possessed very fine interiors, with spacious halls, handsome staircases and panels in many cases ornamented with paintings of great merit. The history of the place during the eighteenth century is closely associated with royalty and fashion.

St. James' square, depleted in the accompanying illustration, has a host of interesting memories. From the date of its construction (1665) to the present it has been inhabited by eminent or interesting people. George III was born there, and Dr. Samuel Johnson in company with Savage, once lived round and round it for many hours at a time when unable to get a lodging.

Governor, built in 1685, is still held by the aristocracy, its houses being large and handsome and its garden well kept. It is a somewhat curious fact that the inhabitants preferred the uncertain light of oil lamps for the illumination of the square after all the other London squares had adopted gas.

Superstitious About Salt.

In some parts of the north country it is regarded as unlucky to put salt on another person's plate. Hence the couplet:

Help me to salt,
Help me to sorrow.

A saying, however, is supposed to avert the ill omen, on the homeopathic principle that "like cures like." For salt to fall between at table portends (in the words of England) coming dire disaster. The spilling of salt has for generations been connected unlucky in many parts of England and Germany. A curious picture of the superstition on the subject of "The Last Supper" represents Judas Iscariot overturning the salt—a dark foreshadowing of an awful doom.

In the isle of Man there is a lingering superstition that to carry salt in the pocket is a help to good fortune, and to exchange or accept salt is so good an omen that a beggar has been known to decline food unless salt was added to the gift.

The Term Nihilist.

The term nihilist was probably first used by the Russian novelist Turgenef and was given to the party now known as nihilists in derision, because its members sought the destruction of the existing order and government without proposing to substitute any order or government in its place. The earliest advocate of this doctrine was Michael Bakunin, who in 1847 advocated a Russian republic and in 1868 founded the International Alliance of Revolution, a secret society having for its object a popular uprising against all monarchical governments. This society was undoubtedly the parent of the many secret organizations that have since sprung into existence throughout Europe.

The Courteous Swede.

The Swedes are a quiet, taciturn people. There is no jostling even among the lower classes. When a train lands you on a platform or a steamboat a pier, the lookers on lift their hats to the departing passengers and bow to them, a compliment which is returned by the passengers. You are expected to lift your hat to the shabbiest person you meet in the street, and to enter a shop, office or bank with the hat on is considered a bad breach of good manners. In retiring from a restaurant you are expected to bow to the occupants. Bowing and hat lifting are so common that the people seem to move around more slowly than elsewhere, in order to observe the courtesies, says an exchange.

Sir John Moore's Burial Place.

What schoolboy does not know and what man does not remember from his schoolboy days the lines of Wolfe entitled "The Burial of Sir John Moore?" Recall the closing words:

We carved not a line, we raised not a stone,
But left him alone in his glory.

Here an exchange tells that Moore's body did not remain in the unmarked grave where his comrades left it. A few years after the close of the war in Spain the grave was opened, and the remains of the gallant soldier were transferred to the cemetery at Corunna, where a handsome monument was erected above them.

The Value of Gold.

Edison is quoted thus: "Gold is only valuable because it is rare. It is not nearly so useful as iron, which is the real precious metal. Aluminium is too soft. It is light, but it lacks strength. The metal of the future is nickel steel, which combines strength with pliability. Gold is not worth as much as lead in commerce, and brass is more than worth its weight in gold."

A Magnificent Log.

The immense Mexican mahogany log on the south side of the Forestry building at the Chicago exposition was purchased by a London firm. It is 42 inches square and 41 feet long. It contains 6,067 feet of lumber, or 120,340 square feet of veneers cut 20 to the inch.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

TOYHOUSES AND SOLDIERS.

Wonderful Things Which the Ingenious Germans Used to Make Long Ago.

Dolls are decidedly to the fore at this time of year, and there is a good supply of dolls, houses, kitchens, etc., to be seen. But all these modern productions can hardly compare with the elaborate arrangement of dolls' houses in the seventeenth century. Nuremberg and Augsburg were famous for costly toy houses, which contained on the different floors imitations of all the rooms in a mansion, from the basement to the roof, including cellar, stables, laundry, bathroom, kitchen and larder, hall and staircase, sitting and drawing rooms, nursery and bedrooms.

All the rooms were completely furnished. Nothing was forgotten. There are the oxen and horses in the stables, with all the implements for feeding and cleaning beside them. The same is the case in the cellar, where even the mouse trap is not omitted. The kitchen contains all the appliances used for cooking, which but slightly differ from those still to be found in German kitchens to the present day. In the living rooms the furniture is exactly arranged in the then prevailing style. The bedspreads were made of fine cambric trimmed with real lace or embroidery. Looking at the many implements in the kitchen, one wonders what could have been the uses of some of the inner things. Some of these ancient dollhouses, preserved now in museums, cost as much as $500.

Other favorite toys for children at that time were tin soldiers, and this taste survives to the present day. Nuremberg is still famous for their production.

In 1699 a Nuremberg master was commissioned by Louis XIV to make for his son, the dauphin, a mechanical toy, consisting of some hundreds of soldiers, wrought in silver. The soldiers seem to have been connected with clockwork, which made them go through several evolutions, and it is even said that they fired their muskets!

Young and Great.

Washington was a major at 19, a distinguished colonel in the army at 22, early in public affairs, commander of the forces at 44 and president at 57.

Napoleon at 27 commanded the army of Italy. At 30 he was not only one of the most illustrious generals of all time, but one of the great lawgivers of the world. At 40 he was Waterloo.

Gladstone was in parliament at 23, and at 25 was lord of the treasury.

Misuse of Words.

Do not say she is a superior woman, but say she is superior to most women.

Avoid using unmeaning or vulgar phrases in speaking, as "You don't say so." "Don't you know?" "Don't you see?" "You know," "You see," "So, you see," etc.

Remember that as the words cherubim and seraphim are plurals, the terms cherubims and seraphims, as expressing the plural, are wrong.

Remember that a general rule has exceptions, a universal rule has none.

A Japanese Lullaby.

Sleep, sleep on the floor. Oh! be good and slumber;
For when thou art asleep just hear what I shall do, dear.
Far o'er the mountains will I go and buy thee
All sorts of pretty toys and bring them home to baby.
And when thou early wak'st tomorrow morning
Then shalt eat red beans and fish, my baby.

Robin Redbreast.

This is the English robin redbreast—a songster all the year round, but his song is loudest when the snow lies heavy upon the ground and winter storms have torn the last leaves from the trees. He is the Mark Tapley of featherdom—ever "plous bird with the scarlet breast." His spirits rise in proportion as surroundings become cheerless and the thermometer sinks. This sturdy good humor, together with his courage and friendliness to human beings, has won him much affection and fame among poets and writers as well as ordinary folk. Everybody delights in his pretty companionable ways.

The robin redbreast takes his place in the stories of many lands, and even our youngest readers will remember how, in that pitiful tale of "The Babes in the Woods," when the children were dead—

The robins so red
Brought strawberry leaves
And over them spread.

Not to mention that this is also the hero of "Who Killed Cock Robin?"

Cranberry Tarts.

Nothing makes a more dainty tart than cranberries. Prepare pastry shells not over 2 to 2½ inches in diameter of puff paste. Prick them on the bottom thoroughly to prevent them from rising, as puff paste will if left to its own devices, in an uneven and unseemly manner. The edges of course must be left to rise as they please. Fill each tart with a tablespoonful of cranberries after the shells are cold and the cranberries are hot. Set them away to grow cold.

When we stop and think of how cheap we have been selling goods during the past month, it does seem funny, and no doubt you wonder why we do it, but when the snow turns into slush it takes either boats or bargains to bring the people out. We are out of boats at present, but

They say White will soon tire of selling best Amoskeag and Lancaster Ginghams, for 4½c., but we are still selling them at that price. Same way with "Fruit of the Loom," "Dwight Anchor" and "Lonsdale" bleached Muslins—you can still buy them for 7c. per yard.

Our annual sale of Muslin Underwear for Ladies is now on. Two assortments, 38c. and 50c., one third under regular price.

LADIES' RIBBED VESTS—One of the best bargains we have ever offered in Ladies' Summer Vests is on sale this week. Regular value, 25c. each, we will sell them two for 25c. You will want them later, but now is the time to buy them.

HOUSE FURNISHINGS—We are constantly adding many new and useful articles in our House Keeping Department, and 'twill pay you, when in the store, to look through this department. There is everything in Crockery, Glass and Tinware, Wood and Willow Ware, etc.

MR. CHILDS' FUNERAL.

Philadelphia Printers Start Subscriptions For a Monument.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—The arrangements for the funeral of the late George W. Childs, which occurs this afternoon from the St. James Protestant Episcopal church, are as follows: There will be delegations from the Boston and the New York Press clubs, and a number of New York publishers and prominent editors came over from New York on a special train this morning. St. James' church has a seating capacity of only about 1,200, and this will barely accommodate the relatives and immediate friends of the family, honorary pallbearers, Ledger employees and delegations from the various organizations which desire to be present.

The floral tributes are very elaborate. There is a separate piece from every department of The Ledger offices.

The International Typographical union will be represented by two delegates from New York and two from Philadelphia. Seats will be reserved in the church in the following order: Members of the family and friends, pallbearers, employees of The Public Ledger, officers and friends of the Drexel institute, woman's advisory board of the Drexel institute, Typotheta of Philadelphia, members of the New York and New York publishers, George W. Childs division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Presbyterian Ministerial association, Typographical union, No. 2; German Typographia, No. 1; Philadelphia Trades league, Boston Press club, New York Typographical union, International Typographical union, Pen and Pencil club and others. Bishop Potter of New York will preside, assisted by Bishop Baker of Philadelphia and Rev. D. H. Blanchard, rector of St. James' church.

The interment will be in the Drexel mausoleum at Woodland cemetery and will be private. Typographical union, No. 2, of this city held a meeting, and after adopting a suitable memorial the initiatory steps were taken toward the erection of a monument by union printers in Philadelphia. It was stated that subscriptions for this purpose had already been tendered, and a committee will be appointed later to take charge of the matter.

FOR LONG SKIRTS.

A Massachusetts Legislator Frames a Bill Aimed at Wicked Dancers.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—A bill will be introduced today in the legislature by Mr. St. John of Haverhill entitled, "An act for the suppression of indecent dances in public places."

It provides that "no woman shall appear at a public performance in a dress the skirts of which do not come within at least four inches of the floor, and the waist of which is so cut that any part of her person is exposed below the neck."

The second part says, "No woman shall appear in tights or appear at a public performance in high kicking, negligee, hip or skirt dancing." The penalty is $500.

POLICEMAN'S SUICIDE.

It Is Also Believed That He Murdered His Wife in a Hallway.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Policeman Albert Lanahan of the Twenty-ninth district shot himself in the forehead at William Rogers' stable in the rear of 4406 Lancaster avenue. When his friend, Officer Albert Smith of the same district, went to the suicide's home, 4529 Mercer avenue, to inform Lanahan's wife of the tragedy, he found her in the hallway dead, with her face cut in a horrible manner.

The police believe that Lanahan killed his wife, who annoyed him because of her fondness for drink, and then shot himself.

Shot His Stepmother and Himself.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 6.—Charles Messner, a German, shot his stepmother, Mrs. Catherine Messner, at their home on the south side and then shot himself through the head, dying instantly. Mrs. Messner was shot twice in the head, but will recover. The cause of the shooting was a family dispute growing out of the alleged ill treatment by the stepmother of Josephine Messner, the 18-year-old sister of the suicide.

Murder In an Elevator.

CHATTANOOGA, Feb. 6.—J. B. Wert, a prominent insurance man and a leader in church circles, was shot dead by G. N. Henson, president of the Citizens' Bank and Trust company, whose wife Wert is alleged to have led astray. As Henson was coming down in the elevator of the Richardson building Wert stepped in, and as they reached the first floor Henson opened fire, killing Wert at the second shot.

Work For Many Miners.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 6.—Cameron colliery, employing 1,200 men and boys, resumed operations. Hickory Ridge mine, with 900 workmen, also resumed, and Hickory Swamp mine will start to work again in a few days.

Wages Reduced, but Cannot Strike.

PORTLAND, Or., Feb. 6.—General Attorney Cotton of the Union Pacific filed in the United States court the petition of the Union Pacific receivers ordering a reduction of wages and restraining the employees from striking.

Another Strike In Providence.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 6.—Another big strike was inaugurated at the Lymansville mills, and over 500 people are thrown out of employment. The company wanted each weaver to run two looms instead of one.

New Jersey Editors Meet.

TRENTON, Feb. 6.—The New Jersey State Editorial association met here. E. C. Stahl of Trenton was elected president; Charles Dechtele of Trenton, secretary, and James S. Yard of Freehold, treasurer.

Child Burned to Death.

LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., Feb. 6.—The 5 year-old daughter of John Warden, while playing about a stove, ignited her clothing and was burned to death.

Miss Olea Bull Magried.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 6.—Olea Bull, the youngest child of Mrs. Olea Bull, was married to Mr. Henry Goodwin Vaughan at the home of the bride.

A Centenarian's Last Drunk.

McGlynn In the South.

NASHVILLE, Feb. 6.—Father McGlynn lectured at the tabernacle to a large audience. His subject was "The Politics of the Lord's Prayer."

Brooklyn's Fatal Trolley Cars.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 6.—Joseph J. Hauser, 14 years old, living at 1139 Hancock street, was run over and killed by a trolley car.

He Would Try.

Mr. Mouse is of a most undemonstrative man, and an abnormally tidy one as well. In these two respects he is a trial to his wife, who is exactly his opposite. "James," she said, as she bade him goodby when he was about to start for Chicago, "will you remember to hunt up Cousin William, and find out all about Aunt Susan? It is so many years since I've heard from any of that family!"

"Yes, my dear," said Mr. Mouse.

"And will you take particular notice of the Ohio exhibit in the Woman's building—the needle work and the pottery from Cincinnati, my dear old home?"

"Yes, my dear."

"And do you suppose you will remember to put on your overcoat if the wind changes so as not to catch one of your dreadful colds?"

"Yes, my dear."

"And will you try to remember that you have plenty of clean collars, so you needn't go about looking as if you had no wife to see to you?"

"Yes, my dear," said Mr. Mouse, as he turned to take up his bag.

"And, James," said Mrs. Mouse tearfully, "do you suppose you will think of me every day while you are gone and I am here at home?"

"My dear," responded Mr. Mouse, with his mind on catching the train, "I will certainly make a memorandum to do so."—Youth's Companion.

AT VINCENT CHAPEL.

ENTERTAINMENT BY THE YOUNG LADIES' MISSION CIRCLE.

A Programme Consisting of a Tableau — "Pies of Nations," Music, Songs and Recitations.

The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the Methodist church gave an entertainment in Vincent Chapel last night. The chapel was entirely filled, many having to stand. The children took the leading part in the programme and did themselves credit.

Prof. Condo was present with his orchestra, which is composed chiefly of boys, and rendered some very fine music during the evening, receiving well merited applause. Miss Teel, an elocutionist was also present and favored the audience with selections.

In the tableau—"The Pies of Nations," the girls were dressed to represent the women of different nations.

Miss Davis sang a solo in Chinese.

The receipts of the entertainment will be devoted to the purpose of educating one colored girl in the South and another girl in China.

The Society feels feels very grateful to those who contributed uncollected money to the treasury during the evening. There was a large attendance.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, and others are expected to participate in the discussion of the paper, and of the general topic of the evening, "The Abolition and Prevention of State and Municipal Regulation of Vice."

—The "White Wonder" is the most healthy four made. Use no other.

GOT $3 THIS TIME.

JAMES MCFADDEN AGAIN RUN OVER BY A WAGON.

He was More Fortunate This Time, However, as he Has $3 to Heal His Wounds.

James McFadden, who is employed by the city to work on the streets, seemed to be doomed to be run down by wagons. Only last week he was run over while at work on Park avenue by Boice's wagon in which a man named Smith was riding. Yesterday afternoon between four and five o'clock almost to the same spot he again bucked against wagon wheels. Although slightly cut on the head, he was three dollars better off, a few minutes after the accident than he was before.

Mr. McFadden was busily pursuing his daily labor that of brushing up the garbage in the street, and did not notice the approach of a wagon in which Mr. Fay and a companion were seated. They were engaged in earnest conversation and did not notice the old man until the wagon was almost upon him. They endeavored to miss him but it was too late. One of the wheels struck him and knocked him down. His head struck against the curb, which inflicted a slight scalp wound.

Policeman Giese arrested the men and took them to Chief of Police Grant's office. The Chief was out.

Mr. Fay offered to settle with Mr. McFadden for the damage.

Mr. McFadden offered to take $10 and call it square, but finally took $3 and sign a paper exonerating Mr. Fay from blame.

FIRE IN FRUCHT'S STORE.

Supposed to Have Originated From a Lamp.

Between two and three o'clock this morning Mrs. Frucht, whose husband keeps a store on West Front street, was awakened by the smell of smoke in her room. The Fruchts live over the store, and Mrs. Frucht concluded that the store must be on fire. Hastily catching up her two children she ran down stairs and into the street. She aroused a colored man who lives next door and he hurried to the fire department headquarters on East Second street. No. two's company turned out and were on the way to the fire when Policeman Cooney sent in an alarm from box 12, at the corner of Front and Somerset streets.

The firemen laid three lines of hose to the store, but extinguished the blaze by the use of only one stream.

The contents of the place were considerably damaged.

The Melopoia met last night in the Casino and decided to impose a fine for non-attendance or tardiness at future rehearsals, unless suitable excuses were sent in the same evening. The conductor, Mr. Chapman, started the chorus on fine new selections which, for brilliancy and beauty, surpass anything yet taken up.

The next rehearsal will be two weeks from last night, and regularly every Tuesday thereafter, and the rule will be read to the members at the next rehearsal, and then the by-law regarding fines will be adhered to.

Decision Reserved.

On Nov. 8th, last, the case of Moore vs. Taylor was tried before Justice Mosher. The suit was over the ownership of a number of doors. Mr. Moore claimed he sold them to Mr. Taylor, and the latter that he bought them. The men didn't have any lawyers, but each argued his own case.

Justice Mosher decided that there was no cause for action.

The case was appealed and carried to Elizabeth. It came up yesterday before before Judge McCormick. The Judge reserved his decision.

For a Charitable Purpose.

The entertainment at the Congregational church to-morrow night for the benefit of the unemployed, promises to be very amusing, judging from the title of the entertainment which is "The small boy (with his toot), and his musical friends."

The boys' orchestra will be a feature of the entertainment. Those in the orchestra are: William MacKilley, William Lorenz, Harry Bamford, Kelser, Malcolm Barnes, William Nelson, Courtney Keller and Harry Smith.

Increasing their Membership.

At the monthly meeting of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum last night, 14 new names were added to the membership roll. Mr. Charles Lang was presented with a meerschaum pipe as a prize for selling the most tickets for the recent entertainment in Music Hall. The presentation was made by Father Murphy.

Jumped the Track.

Early this morning as engine No. 198, from Round Brook, was drilling a freight car to the switch at the gas house, the rear truck of the car jumped the track. About an hour's time was consumed in getting it back on the track.

80 FEET OF STONE WALL

THE RAILROAD COMPANY TO IMPROVE WEST THIRD STREET.

Through the Efforts of Street Commissioner Meeker, West Third Street Residents will Have a Sidewalk on the East Side of the Street.

Yesterday men employed by the Central Railroad began digging away the embankment on the Third street side of the of the railroad at the corner of Watchung avenue. The bank will be cut down sufficiently to allow the construction of the side walk on that side of the street to Watchung avenue.

The company is going to build a stone wall seven feet high from the Watchung avenue bridge a distance back for 80 feet.

This will be a fine improvement for Third street. Ever since the railroad was built that side of the street has been without a sidewalk, the embankment extending clean to the curb.

Through the efforts of Street Commissioner Meeker the railroad company was induced to lay a sidewalk and curb on that side of the street, first cutting a portion of the bank away. A few feet of the wall was left unfinished, as it was not safe to cut any more of the bank away.

Again Mr. Meeker conferred with the company, and finally succeeded in having the company promise to put up a stone wall and extend the sidewalk all the way through.

ANOTHER RAHWAY SENSATION.

It Looked Like a Murder, but Mrs. Williams Proved it Wasn't One.

Mrs. Becky Williams, of Haydock street, Rahway, had a quarrel with her husband on Monday as they were returning home together. In his anger Williams seized a bundle containing a brown silk dress and other articles of wearing apparel which his wife was carrying and pitched it from the Irving street bridge into the Rahway River. Williams then ran off, leaving his wife to go on alone.

The abandoned garments were found in the river early yesterday by Tinsmith Charles Tice. The discovery created much excitement, as it was furnished that another terror similar to the dissolved "Rahway mystery" of March, 1895, had been unearthed. The Mayor, Chief of Police Augustus Crane and several policemen were kept busy investigating all sorts of alleged clues without avail. The garments were inspected by throngs, but nothing found out concerning them until last evening, when Mrs. Williams reclaimed her property and told the story.

Without any extra adornment the reception room of the Park Club house, on Washington avenue, is most attractive. But when fitted with rugs and cosy chairs, and with the chandeliers as supports for gracefully entwined smilax, the great open fire place similarly festooned, great clusters of beautiful cut flowers sending forth fragrance; potted plants adding their stateliness and grace; in fact everything that good taste could desire, or imagination suggest, then to be appreciated it must be seen.

Those who attended the progressive euchre party given by Mrs. George C. Evans in the Park Club house yesterday afternoon, were expecting a surprise, but the preparations were so complete, the change so marked, that their exclamations of delight were unstinted and must have been ample recompense to the charming hostess, to whose personal efforts it was all due, for the labor entailed.

There were ten tables, and at these the guests either progressed or retrogressed, according to their relative skill, or the luck of the cards. The prizes were exceedingly dainty and well worth striving for.

The winners were: first prize—Mrs. Hopkinson; second prize—Mrs. Lincoln; booby prize—Mrs. Faber.

Those present were: Mrs. Hopkinson, Mrs. S. St. J. McCutchen, Miss Kingman, of Trenton, Mrs. Faber, Miss Murphy, Mrs. John Clapp, Mrs. Van Vliet, Mrs. Townsend, Mrs. George Rogers, Mrs. Joseph H. Howell, Mrs. Munger, Miss Munger, Mrs. W. L. Saunders, Mrs. Frank Curtis, Mrs. John Weir, Mrs. Edward J. Waring, Mrs. Hopkinson of Philadelphia, Mrs. Henry McGee, Mrs. Walter McGee, Mrs. Charles N. Bell, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Miss Vanderbeck, Miss Musgrave, Mrs. Lincoln of New York, Mrs. George P. Dupee, Mrs. Augustus Van Deventer, Mrs. Clifton Wharton, Miss Minnie Marsh, Miss Florence Marsh, Miss Underwood, Miss Laura Underwood, Mrs. James P. Scott, Mrs. Alfred A. Taft, Mrs. Warren of Fanwood, Mrs. George D. Hallock, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. R. A. Heppenn Jr. Mrs. Wm. J. Somers, Mrs. E. S. Beyer, Miss Grace Brown, Miss Emily Sandford, Mrs. James R. Joy, Miss Colton, Mrs. James P. McQuoide, Mrs. H. P. Reynolds, Miss Reynolds.

DEATHS

Funeral services from the residence of her son-in-law, Spencer Willets, No. 10 Craig place, Thursday Feb. 8th, at 1 p. m.

ABOUT MISS SPENCE.

The Novelist, Educationist, Philanthropist and Missionary of Electoral Reform.

Miss Spence, the Australian novelist, educationist, philanthropist and missionary of electoral reform and "effective voting," will lecture on her favorite subjects at All Souls' church to-morrow evening, at eight o'clock.

"Miss Spence is a prophetess who has won honor in her own country. For colonists, men or women, native-born or introduced, are better qualified to represent the province, or for that matter, to represent Australia in the intellectual circles of the older countries of the world. Very few public men in Australia and certainly no other woman have shown such breadth of view and such unostentatious zeal in the service of the public as Miss Spence has displayed. As novelist she has entertained and instructed all sorts and conditions of readers in and far beyond South Australia. As an educationist she ranks high amongst the most distinguished in that useful branch of knowledge. In philanthropy and particularly in that important part of it which relates to Australian State children she is equally prominent. It is no insignificant fact in these days when political position is often deemed to give the highest, if not the only, claim to public esteem, that she should be able to say that in the whole colony there is nobody better qualified to speak upon the subjects which she will discuss during her travels. But not all the objects of her unique mission, her "effective vote" propaganda will naturally be that upon which she will expend the greatest amount of energy. This plan of electoral reform lay in her heart as well as in her head and there is, probably, no more competent exponent of it living than she is. In any circumstances, the advent of an Australian lady lecturer upon such a subject in the United States, which has resolutely adopted the Australian ballot, would be a matter of public interest, for the fame of Miss Spence in connection with electoral reform has preceded her to America as well as to Canada, and this fact will naturally increase her opportunities for giving and obtaining information."

ELECTORAL REFORM. — THE TRANSFERABLE VOTE.

The question of electoral reform is a live question and the experiments thus far made with the Australian ballot will, it seems to me, increase the public desire to hear what an Australian woman who understands the subject may have to say about it.—Frederick Howard, Wister.

Through the efforts of Miss Spence, who is enthusiastic on the subject of proportional representation, a league to promote it was organized in Chicago last Summer, among its members are Prof. Richard Ely, Charles Francis Adams, and many others equally eminent. Miss Spence will bring with her on Thursday, copies of the Constitution of the American Proportional Representation League and other documents explaining the "effective vote" and minority representation.

GATHERING ICE.

The Tiers Work Half the Night.

The Tiers began cutting ice yesterday afternoon for the first time this Winter. It is about seven inches thick.

In order to make the most of the opportunity the men worked until midnight.

Ice was gathered and placed in the house with all the force that could be used to advantage.

The work was resumed to-day bright and early.

To day men also began to cut ice on Demler's pond.

PERFECTLY RIDICULOUS!

When we stop and think of how cheap we have been selling goods during the past month, it does seem funny, and no doubt you wonder why we do it, but when the snow turns into slush it takes rather bouts or bargains to bring the people out.

We are out of boats at present, but

HERE are the BARGAINS.

They say White will soon tire of selling best Amoskeag and Lancaster Ginghams, for 6½c., but we are still selling them at that price. Same way with "Fruit of the Loom," "Dwight Anchor" and "Lonsdale" bleached Muslins—you can still buy them for 7c per yard.

Our annual sale of Muslin Underwear for Ladies is now on. Two specials, 33c and 50c., one third under regular price.

LADIES' RIBBED VESTS—One of the best bargains we have ever offered in Ladies' Summer Vests is on sale this week. Regular value, 25c. each, we will sell them two for 25c. You will want them later, but now is the time to buy them.

HOUSE FURNISHINGS—We are constantly adding many new and useful articles in our House Keeping Department, and 'twill pay you when in the store, to look through this department. There is everything in Crockery, Glass and Tinware, Wood and Willow Ware, etc.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Systematic Relief For the Poor.

A survey of the field of charity this winter makes several generalizations justifiable. One is that since 1873 there has been nothing like the amount of destitution there is this winter. The two panics were 20 years apart. There are probably not less than three-quarters of a million persons out of employment in the country. Of these 200,000 are in New York and Chicago.

The consensus of the wisest opinion in regard to relieving the destitution is that all able-bodied persons who receive aid should be made to work for it or give return in some shape.

The new association is the outcome of a suggestion made at a meeting of the North Jersey Association at East Orange in October last, wherein it was said that the association was too large and should be divided. The parent organization was the largest Baptist association in the United States.

The officers of the new association are Moderator, the Rev. James T. Dickinson, Orange; Clerk, William May, Montclair; treasurer, the Rev. Norman Fox, Morristown.

Old Railway Murder Again.

A clue which may clear up the mystery surrounding the Railway murder of March, 1886, has been reported in Newark, and detective John Gregory may be the "mystery" revealed in a short time.

Margaret Grace, an old resident of Railway, called on detective Gregory, it is said, and told him she knew the murdered girl was Ellen Baker, who had arrived from Ireland only a few days before her death. She said she saw the girl in William Keech's house the day of the murder, and would have revealed the plot then only for fear of Keech; for eight years she has kept the secret and now she says she must divulge it or go insane. She fears Keech and asked to be locked up, but went away assured that she would be protected.

A Patriot at Eighty-two.

Wilhelmina Stiechler, eighty-two years old, committed suicide by hanging herself yesterday in the house of Charles Lehman, her nephew, at Fieldsborough, with whom she was living. She had not come to her breakfast for a year, but always got up to get her dinner. As she did not make her appearance, Mr. Lehman went to look for her. She was not in her room. She was found in the garret sitting upon a box, with one end of a strong cord around her neck the other end of which was tied to the rafters.

New System of Money Orders.

The bill recently passed by Congress makes important changes in the method of transmitting money through the mails. It allows the postal note now in use. Instead of the postal note the bill creates a money order system, by which orders can be secured at rates as low as those now charged by express companies. Orders not exceeding $2.50 the charge is 3 cents, and the fee increased until it is 8c. cents or sums over $50 and under $100. July 1 next is fixed as the date for the new law to take effect.

The Iron Hall in New Jersey.

Thomas P. Curley, of Camden, as receiver of the Order of the Iron Hall for the State of New Jersey, has submitted his report to the Court in Chancery. He says the receipts from twenty-seven branches in the State were $37,405.15. These assets have been loaned and mortgaged to the value of $14,077 and cash amounting to $25,154. The money is on deposit in Camden banks. A number of the order in the State have failed to send in their receipts, and unless they do so by the latter part of the week Receiver Curley will apply to the Chancellor compelling them to make a settlement. If this should fail, as a last resource, contempt proceedings may be begun. Since the appointment of a receiver $224.00 has been expended in legal fees and other expenses. There was a branch of the Iron Hall in this city.

MAKING NEW LAWS!!

LEGISLATORS IN TRENTON SETTLING DOWN TO THEIR WORK.

Several Bills Passed.—One Deprives the Governor of Power to Pay Certain Bills.—A Black Eye for Race-Track Men.

TRENTON, Feb. 6.—The Republican Senate met at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Bills were passed abolishing the office of State House Superintendent; depriving the Governor of power to pay bills for which there is no specific appropriation; repealing the act creating the Electrical Subway Commission; repealing the State Police Force act; repealing the act creating county excise boards; repealing the act creating boards of freeholders in second-class counties to fill vacancies, and repealing the act making bookmaking a misdemeanor punishable by a slight fine.

Senators Winton, Drake and Miller proclaimed that if the race tracks are thrown open for business March 1 they will waive the principles involved in the fight for control of the Senate and join the Republicans. This is said to explain the great anxiety of Gov. Werts for a speedy settlement of the trouble.

The Republican Senate adjourned for the week.

In the House the following bills were introduced: Appropriating $5,000 for the current expenses of the State Labor Bureau; authorizing courts to direct prisoners to be confined in the jails of adjoining counties in certain cases; authorizing the State Treasurer to pay the expenses incurred at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station in printing the bulletins issued from the station containing analysis of fertilizers, etc.

A bill was introduced providing for the establishment of a naval militia for the protection of the sea coast and the navigable waters of the State; the militia to consist of two battalions, one stationed in Jersey City, the other in Camden. The organization is to be connected with the National Guard as recommended by Gov. Werts in his last annual message.

Another new bill prohibits the construction of street railways in cities, unless the consent of the governing body and the property owners as well is first obtained. In case the latter are assessed and decide to appeal, the right to trial by jury is granted.

The following bills were passed: Providing that none but licensed attorneys shall be allowed to appear before recorders and police justices on behalf of defendants; repealing the Trenton, Camden and Paterson Police Justice bill and its supplements; repealing the Race-Track License act.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT TO-MORROW.

The Question of Admitting the Sons of Veterans to be Discussed.

The State encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held at Trenton on Tuesday. There are four candidates for department commander: James H. Burd, of Asbury Park; Jacob White, of Paterson; Henry S. White, of Red Bank, and John S. Shields, of Flemington.

Some action will be taken on the question of admitting the Sons of Veterans into the department. The following circular has been sent to all the veterans in the State:

"There naturally presents itself to every old soldier the question of who will preserve the history and records of past when the Grand Army men have answered their last roll-call. To provide for this, and with a view to perpetuating the patriotic spirit amongst the young men, a strong feeling is manifesting itself among the old veterans to admit the Sons of Veterans (under proper restrictions) into the G. A. R., after the manner of the Society of the Cincinnati, and thus not only perpetuate our order, but bring our boys into our presence and our councils while we are yet living, to instil into them the great principles of the G. A. R., and thus perpetuate our principles during years, as we prepare them to carry on the work that we must soon lay down."

The department of Ohio is already agitating the matter, and little Jersey (always in the lead) is seriously considering the question, when may come up at the next annual encampment at Trenton, February 8th and 9th next."

HIS TRIBUTE TO CHILDS

THE SIMPLE FUNERAL SERVICES.

The Service to Humanity Done by the Philanthropist Editor In Making a Model Newspaper Strikingly Brought Out In Bishop Potter's Remarks.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—The funeral services of the late George W. Childs, held in St. James' church, were notable because of the extreme simplicity of the ceremony, the presence of a host of distinguished men from all parts of the country and the evident sincerity of the grief felt by the thousands who were in or about the sanctuary.

The ceremonies included brief services at the house, a solemn procession on foot to the church, where public rites were held, and a touching eulogy delivered by the Right Rev. Henry B. Potter, bishop of New York. Then came the funeral cortege to Woodland cemetery, where all that was mortal of the great hearted philanthropist was laid away in the marble mausoleum of the Drexel family, side by side with the dust of the late Anthony J. Drexel, whom he loved as one man seldom loves another.

The services at the cemetery were private and very brief. There was a prayer, and the casket was placed in the crypt prepared for it, Mr. Drexel upon the coffin the symbolical handful of earth, and the mortal remains of George W. Childs were consigned to the tomb.

Bishop Potter's Eulogy.

Bishop Potter, in the course of his eulogy, said: "There are lives that stand so out and apart from their fellow men, not, it may be, because of their ambitions past the common level, but because of the sweet and gracious dignity of service of a life that was a constant illustration of the love of God and of man, which is the essence of all religion, that we cannot put them or that which is mortal of them away out of our sight without somehow telling to other ears and hearts the words that burn and the thoughts that throb in our own. So it is here today.

"George Childs—singularly suggestive name! How sweet and filial was the character of the man! George Childs, a citizen and a son of Philadelphia, has lived here among you all these years to illustrate traits in his going out and coming in so eminent that as we come here today they cry out in the language of that old ritual that some of us are familiar with, 'Ah, alas, my brother!'

"For myself I shall always think of Mr. Childs as a great, consistent, potential public teacher. I have not the slightest idea from any personal knowledge how much or little he wrote, but as one looks into the face of the tremendous engines of the public press of our time he cannot but be conscious that behind the men who wrote in it are the men who, because they own it, dictate its public policy and its private utterances.

"I venture to think the day when the services of George W. Childs will be forgotten in this conspicuous particular-alas, one is sometimes tempted to think it a unique particular!—will never come.

"From first to last the man whose body lies there illustrated first in this great community in which he lived and then all around the world—that it was possible to make a daily public print a pure and wise and wholesome thing, fit to come into any Christian home, and yet to make it its vehicle of all necessary intelligence, the illustration in itself of the proper performance of public enterprise, and most of all to make it positively a power for good. He was, as one of the sons of eternal righteousness, a friend of every good cause, a champion of every righteous enterprise.

His Were a Noble One.

"Believe me, my friends, that the significance of the fact is never in this community to be forgotten, the courage that it cost, the large faith that it involved, the steadfast patience and presence of which you and I know nothing; the clear, calm, constant ordering of a great public organ of opinion and welfare of the world's intelligence so that wherever it went it left no foul taint behind it, no sting in the human heart, no brutal word, no vulgar insinuation, no lie that could stain the world's daily history it could lift men up to nobler ideals and make them long to real se them in themselves. Again, I think you and I will remember the friend whose holy lives here this afternoon because while on one hand he organized it wisely and ruled it so that it prospered on the one hand that singular felicity of combining and harmonizing the relations of capital and labor."

The bishop concluded his remarks by stating that Mr. Childs was a man who illustrated in his daily life and walk all the dignity and graciousness of a private citizen, while at the same time he had demonstrated that a private citizen could take part in public affairs purely and solely for the benefit of the public without thought of himself, and that in his private life he was a model to all. He concluded with this adjuration:

"Blessed be God for the lives of such men and for their memories! Men and women of Philadelphia, remember such a life and reproduce it in your own."

FILIBUSTERING AGAIN.

Reed Leads an Attack on the McCreary Resolution.

A DEMOCRATIC QUORUM WANTING.

Home Not Able to Transact the Hawaiian Policy Without It—Voting on the Elections Bill In the Senate Deferred to Allow More Speeches to Be Made.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The Hawaiian debate was concluded, but the entire resolution was not passed because of the failure of the Democrats to secure a quorum when a vote was taken upon it. Much less opposition from the Democratic side developed than was at one time anticipated. Only one speech—that of General Sickles of New York—was made in opposition to the adoption of the resolution, although there was some passive opposition on the Democratic side as indicated by the refusal of several of the Democrats to answer to their names when the resolution was placed upon its passage.

The McCreary resolution was as follows:

Resolved, First—That it is the sense of this house that the action of the United States minister in employing United States naval forces and illegally aiding in overthrowing the constitutional government of the Hawaiian Islands in January, 1893, and setting up in its place a provisional government not republican in form and in opposition to the will of a majority of the people, was contrary to the traditions of our republic and the spirit of our constitution, and it should be and is condemned.

Second—That we heartily approve the principle announced by the president of the United States that interference with the domestic affairs of an independent nation is contrary to the spirit of American institutions. It is further the sense of this house that the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to our country or the assumption of a protectorate over them by our government is unsalted for and inexpedient; that the people of that country should have absolute freedom and independence in framing their own line of policy, and that foreign intervention in the political affairs of the islands will not be regarded with indifference by the government of the United States.

The Minority Substitute.

The minority resolution, offered as a substitute for the McCreary resolution, was as follows:

Whereas, Executive communications in congress disclose that the executive department has instructed a minister plenipotentiary of the United States to negotiate with a deposed and discarded monarch for the overthrow of a friendly republican government to which said minister was accredited, duly recognized by all the civilized nations and to which his public instructions pledged the good faith and sympathy of the president, the government and the people of the United States;

Resolved, That it is the sense of this house that any such intervention by the executive of the United States, its civil or military representatives or officers, without authority of congress, is a dangerous and unwarranted invasion of the rights and dignities of the congress of the United States and a violation of the law of nations; and, further, that the manner of such attempted intervention by the executive and the methods used are unworthy of the executive department of the United States, while the results are pernicious, illegal and indefensible, contrary to the policy and traditions of the republic and the spirit of the constitution.

To the last resolution Blair offered a substitute approving the recognition of the provisional government by both administrations and declaring for annexation. The Blair substitute was voted down and the motion made by Mr. Reed to recommit the resolution were in turn voted down.

When the vote came to be taken upon the main question, however—the adoption of the entire resolution—the Republicans refrained from voting, and the Democrats lacked 17 of a quorum. Mr. Cummings of New York voted for Mr. Reed's motion to recommit the resolution, and Mr. Sickles voted against the McCreary resolution. Mr. Cummings of New York, Mr. Geary of California and Mr. Cockrell of Texas refused to go on record either for or against the adoption of the resolution. These were all the indications shown of a break in party lines on the Hawaiian matter.

The Democrats were confronted with the Republicans. Mr. Broderick of Kansas was the only Republican who declined to follow the lead of his party to refrain from voting. He voted against the resolution. When the Democrats found themselves without a quorum, they passed a resolution revoking leave of absence and then adjourned. They expect to have a quorum present when the house meets today.

No Elections Bill Vote.

The senate will not come to a vote on the federal elections bill, as was anticipated. Several senators who had not hitherto spoken desired an opportunity to be heard on the measure, and by unanimous consent the time of general debate was extended until 3 o'clock today.

The chief event of the day was the speech by Senator Frye of Maine defending the official course and character of Chief Supervisor Davenport of New York city and refuting the alleged slanders and calumny which he said had been heaped upon him by the Democratic party for 20 years. Speeches were also made by Senators Harris, Daniel, Turpie and Peffer.

Senator Daniel spoke in reply to the reference that had been made by Senator Frye in regard to Virginia early in the day and denied that there had been any violent election frauds in that state. The senator from Maine seemed to think it was necessary to resort to force, he said, in order to "See how the federal elections law is worked in that state."

"The senator from Maine," he said, "is very much mistaken. Nothing of the kind has been or will be engaged in detention in Hawaii the greatest counting out scheme ever conceived. There, where the population is 30,000, by the aid of an election officer from Maine in the person of Minister Stevens and with military aid at the polls, 9,000 Americans could set aside the will of the population and changed the government and in one day offered for sale the government which they had thus acquired. Yet the senator from Maine approves that and wants further to pension the dusky queen upon American taxpayers." [Laughter.]

Democrats Will Stick.

In reply to this Senator Frye said that the only fault connected with the Hawaiian Islands is the fault of the president of the United States, and the only harm and wrong committed were committed by him. He believed four-fifths of the intelligent people of the United States today would indorse that sentiment. The senator appealed to the character of Mr. Davenport and maintained it would bear the closest scrutiny.

Referring to the oft repeated complaints of Senator Frye of Democratic frauds, Senator Daniel asked him if he had ever heard of Republican frauds.

"No, I never did," replied Senator Frye.

"No, and you never will. The senator's ears are too well closed to hear them. He never heard of the Credit Mobilier; he never heard of the star route frauds, of the Indian frauds or of the District of Columbia frauds. [Laughter.] He always hears that every Republican was born a saint, and every Democrat was born an imp. [Laughter.] He is content and happy in his convictions. He does not need to be translated to another world in order to be happy. Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise.' [Laughter.] There he is, and there he is content to stay."

At the close of Senator Daniel's speech the senate, on motion of Senator Gray, went into executive session. Five minutes later the doors were reopened, and the senate adjourned.

Republicans Demand Tariff Hearings.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The Republican members of senate finance committee gave out through Senator Aldrich the following communication in reply to that of the Democratic members:

The minority of the finance committee are greatly surprised at the character of the statement which has been handed them and which is said to have been furnished to the press by the majority of the committee in regard to their refusal to give hearings on the tariff bill. The Republican members of the committee, replying on the assurances given them by the chairman during the session of the committee had supposed that hearings would be given as a matter of course and had so informed all parties desirous of being heard. There was no request on the part of the Republican members for any partisan hearing, nor for hearings for any special class, nor any disposition nor desire to secure such results.

The minority believe that all parties—farmers, workingmen, merchants, manufacturers, importers and all others—whether for or against the bill, interested in the rates fixed by the house bill (rates of which they could have had no knowledge before the final vote in the house), should be heard upon matters so vitally affecting their interests.

The right to be heard has never before, so far as we are aware, been denied to the American people by the finance committee of the United States senate, and the minority of the committee believe that this extraordinary action on the part of the majority in refusing to grant hearings is both unwise and unjust and should be resisted by all parliamentary methods.

Important Cabinet Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—All the members were present at the cabinet meeting. The Brazilian situation is said to have formed the subject of discussion. The meeting was regarded as of sufficient importance to prevent the president and Secretary Gresham from attending the funeral of Mr. Childs.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

New Jersey—Amwell, W. C. Durling.

New York—Sumner Hill, F. A. Bliss; West Bloomfield, E. S. Hegeman.

Pennsylvania—Danbyville, Alice H. Mogel; Hillsville, Mrs. Lizzie A. Paden.

New Baseball Rules.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 7.—The committee on rules of the National Baseball league completed its work today. The rules as a whole are not materially changed, but the committee has touched on a few points concerning which there has been considerable discussion. The committee first defines a bunt hit. It next provides that if the ball falls foul while the batsman is trying to advance a runner by a bunt sacrifice a strike shall be called. Noisy coaching is also touched upon, and the umpire is given additional power to remove players in certain cases. A fly to the outfield is not to be counted a sacrifice.

Corbett and Mitchell to Spar For Charity.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—An athletic exhibition in aid of The World's free bread fund will be given in Madison Square Garden on the evening of Feb. 24, and James Corbett and Charley Mitchell will appear just as they did in Jacksonville. They will use the same gloves, fight each other in the same position and in the same dress, and Honest John Kelly will be there as referee. They will give a four round exhibition of scientific boxing for the sake of the charity.

Big Driving Wheel Burst.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Feb. 7.—As the big engine at Spartan's mill had attained about half speed the great driving wheel, 24 feet in diameter and 7 feet wide, split. Pieces of the broken wheel flew in all directions, and in less than 30 seconds the entire mill was a mass of brick dust, splin ters and timbers. It is a total wreck. The engineer was instantly killed by a large section of the wheel falling on him. Two of his assistants were badly injured.

On Fire Of Thursday Island.

BRISBANE, Feb. 7.—Advices from Thursday Island say that a fire broke out on board the Queensland mailboat Dorunda, from Brisbane, while the vessel was off that island. The steward jumped overboard and was drowned, and a second went mad. The flames were finally mastered.

Paul Jones' Novel Trip.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—It was decided that Paul Jones will start from Boston to make the circuit of the world in a year without money and return with $5,000, will start from the Press club next Monday afternoon. He will first go to Providence, from there to New York and then across the Atlantic.

Hanged Himself In His Cell.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 7.—The notorious "Dr." Frederick Meisterfield, who was sentenced to seven years in the state prison for criminal malpractice, committed suicide at that institution by making a rope of his suspenders and hanged himself in his cell.

To Develop Iron Property.

KITTANNING, Pa., Feb. 7.—The Brady's Bend iron company property was sold to Jerome D. Gillette of New York city for $80,000. He acted as the representative of a party of capitalists, who will form themselves into a company to develop the lands.

Boy Killed, but No Arrest.

ATLANTA, Feb. 7.—In Decatur, one of Atlanta's suburbs, John Callaway shot and killed a negro boy with whom he was shooting at a mark. A jury of inquest decided that the shooting was accidental, and no arrest was made.

Price of Whisky Goes Up.

PEORIA, Ills., Feb. 7.—Orders have been sent out from the Whisky trust headquarters raising the price of spirits 2 cents a gallon, and preparations are being made to set all the trust houses at work at their highest capacity.

Borrowing to Keep Laborers at Work.

LOWELL, Mass., Feb. 7.—The committee on finance of the city council negotiated a loan of $100,000 at 3½ per cent to be used in street improvements in order to keep city workmen employed.

Child Scalded to Death.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 7.—While Mrs. James Scully was washing, her 2-year-old son tumbled into a boiler of hot water and was scalded to death.

Tailors in Convention.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 7.—The ninth annual convention of the Merchant Tailors' National exchange began here and will continue several days.

MR. HOWLAND IS ALIVE.

Missing Man Found by a Detective In Newark.

HAS GONE TO BOS ON TO CONFESS.

The Man Who Pretended to Be Dead In Order to Get a $250,000 Life Insurance Was In Hiding All the Time—Now He Is Very Badly Scared.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—After spending the evening and dining with a reporter at a hotel in this city last night Arthur H. Howland, the Boston civil engineer who feigned suicide on Dec. 30 on one of the Fall River boats, took the midnight train for Connecticut, where he is to meet his former partner, W. F. Ellis.

Howland shows the effect of the terrible strain of the last 10 days. His face is pale, sunken and pinched. His nerves seem almost gone. It was discovered by reporters and detectives in Newark and was almost prostrated when those who called at his hotel made known the object of their visit.

He was told by the insurance detective who accompanied the reporters that as no money had been paid on his insurance policies it was extremely doubtful if any arrest would be made.

Very Much Scared.

During the interview it was necessary to brace him up with stimulants, as he showed signs of total collapse. Howland asked if the reporters thought anything would be done about the Wyman draft, thus unconsciously committing himself. He was told that Mr. Wyman had stated to Boston reporters that he had no desire to prosecute Howland, and as the bank had lost no money it would not interfere. The fact is that Howland owes Wyman $7,000. Should Wyman prosecute for forgery there would be small chance of the $7,000 ever being paid. Howland insisted that he would hunt the earth for money to pay the bill.

He was undecided about returning to New York with the reporters and detectives, but after a long talk over the long distance telephone with Boston, during which talk he inquired eagerly for the condition of Miss A. P. Jones, he decided to make the trip. He was told by friends in Boston that he could probably clear himself of everything by returning at once. Then he wrote a cipher message to his brother-in-law, W. F. Ellis, in Hartford, making an appointment for a conference today.

The answer received made the time of meeting early in the morning, and the whole party departed for New York. At midnight the party, seven in all, left the Pavonia ferry station. Mr. Howland will undoubtedly be in Boston.

Heard From Howland.

HARTFORD, Feb. 7.—William F. Ellis, the former partner of Arthur H. Howland, the missing Boston civil engineer, stated this forenoon that a telegram from Jersey City signed A. D. Vance, which he supposes came from Mr. Howland. He believes that Mr. Howland is in Jersey and he knows where he is, but refuses to state.

Howland's Partner Talks.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Mr. W. F. Ellis, when told that his partner, A. H. Howland, had been found and would probably be in Boston today, said:

"I think the man must be crazy. I don't know what will be done. The deception is a hard blow to his wife and mother. No, I do not think he will be arrested."

Hotel Guests Routed Out by Fire.

SOMERSET, Pa., Feb. 7.—The Park hotel, one of the largest hotels in this section, was destroyed by fire. Many of the women and children were taken from the windows with the aid of ladders. One servant girl, Ella Harmon, was overcome by the smoke and badly burned. She may die. The guests had to walk through the snow in their bare feet to places of safety.

Fight With Moonshiners.

WARM SPRINGS, Va., Feb. 7.—News has just been received here of a desperate fight on Black Alleghany mountain, near the West Virginia line, between deputy United States Marshal Hamilton and a party of illicit distillers. Two of the marshals were killed outright, as were also two of the distillers, and one man was badly wounded.

Jersey's Senate Middle.

TRENTON, Feb. 7.—The Republican senators will not give their unanimous consent to the arrest of one of their members by the sergeant-at-arms of the Democratic senate and then appeal to the courts for a writ of habeas corpus. The senate has adjourned for the week.

Charged With Killing Their Blind Sister.

PETALUMA, Cal., Feb. 7.—The coroner's jury in the case of the murder of the blind woman, Nancy Meagher, who was shot on the night of Jan. 30, has returned a verdict charging her two sisters with having full guilty knowledge of the murder.

Pioneer Iron Worker Dead.

CHATTANOOGA, Feb. 7.—L. Schofield, the first man to make railroad and bar iron in the south, died at his home in Rossville, a suburb of this city. He was once associated with Peter Cooper and Abram S. Hewitt.

Died at a Funeral.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Mr. Peter Schenck, a retired wholesale grocer, was stricken with apoplexy and died while attending the funeral services of his old friend, Mr. Wood, at the Friends' meeting house.

Steamer Reported Lost.

NORFOLK, Feb. 7.—A report which cannot be confirmed reached here from Cape Hatteras, North Carolina, that an unknown steamer had struck on the shoals and sunk.

Agent Murdered and Station Burned.

GLASGOW, Canada, Feb 7.—James Skinner, agent of the Great Northern railway at Port Arthur, was murdered and the station burned to conceal the crime.

That Kenyon Injunction.

ALBANY, Feb. 7.—The senate adopted without debate the resolution to investigate the serving of an injunction on the clerk by a vote of 30 yeas, 4 nays.

Monongahela Miners Stop.

WEST ELIZABETH, Pa., Feb. 7.—The mining situation along the Monongahela river is assuming a settled aspect. Nearly every mine is working full.

Tried to Kill His Landlord.

General Amnesty Dead.

STERILIZING MILK.

Simple Unpatented Apparatus With Which It is Easily Done.

The sterilization of milk for children, now quite extensively practiced in order to destroy the injurious germs which it may contain, can be satisfactorily accomplished by very simple apparatus. The vessel containing the milk, which may be the bottle from which it is to be used or any other suitable vessel, is placed inside of a larger vessel of metal, which contains the water. The bottle, it is displayed with absorbent cotton, if this is at hand, or in its absence any clean cotton will answer. A small fruit jar, loosely covered, may be used instead of a bottle. The requirements are simply that the interior vessel shall be raised about half an inch above the bottom of the other, and that the water shall reach nearly or quite as high as the milk.

The apparatus is then heated on a range or stove until the water reaches a temperature of 155 degrees F., when it is removed from the heat and tightly covered for half an hour. The milk bottles are then taken out and kept in a cool place. The milk may be used any time within 36 hours. A temperature of 140 degrees maintained for half an hour is sufficient to destroy any germs likely to be present in the milk, and this is found in practice that raising the temperature to 155 degrees and then allowing it to stand in the heated water for half an hour insures the proper temperature for the required time. The temperature should not be raised above 155 degrees; otherwise the taste and quality of the milk will be impaired.

The simplest plan is to take a tin pail and punch a perforated tin pie plate in the bottom or have made for it a removable false bottom perforated with holes and having a ring an inch high to allow circulation of water. The milk bottle is set on this false bottom, and sufficient water is put in the pail to reach the level of the surface of the milk in the bottle. A hole may be punched in the cover of the pail, a cork inserted and a chemical thermometer put through the cork so that the bulb dips into the water. The temperature can thus be watched without removing the cover. If no thermometer, an ordinary dairy thermometer may be used and the temperature tested from time to time by removing the lid. This is very easily arranged and is just as satisfactory as the patented apparatus sold for the same purpose.

The cleaning directions, which will doubtless meet a want of not a few people, are issued by the department of agriculture at Washington.

How the Devilfish Changes Color.

The Lotos, or devilfish, offers a fine exam-

pie of a curious phenomenon called "mimicism." Popular Science News says: The animal in repose presents a pallid, yellowish color, similar to that of sand. But this color is not fixed. When the animal transports itself from one point to another where the bottom does not have the same tint, it becomes modified and gives room for the new medium, which is diffused over the animal's surface, forming marbled undulations. In whatever place it is found the animal becomes confounded with the surrounding objects.

To this faculty of being able to constantly change its color—useful, for it enables it to escape observation—the poulp joins that of troubling the water around it when it is attacked by an enemy. It possesses for this purpose quite a large gland, the pocket of blackness or ink pocket, containing a blackish liquid. When any one tries to seize the poulp, it contracts quickly this gland, and immediately a very thick black cloud spreads around it. At the same time its skin, a little while so clear, becomes very dark, so that cloud and poulp are confounded to such a degree that it is impossible for the most clear sighted to tell where the animal has gone. It profits by this moment of stupor on the part of its enemy to escape quickly backward or to thrust itself out less quickly into the sand, covering itself with granulations difficult to distinguish from grains of sand. Sepia, used in painting, was formerly manufactured from the contents of the black pocket.

A Fact Worth Remembering.

Rapacious birds and beasts retain their love of destroying after years of confinement, and it is a well acknowledged fact that among those rapacious animals of a menagerie which are reared in confinement we find the most ferocious and destructive examples if they once escape and become aware of their power, writes Dr. Hermann Gilbert in Science. As a fitting illustration of this principle of general acceptance the following instance is offered:

"A friend of mine took two half grown young from a nest of the great horned owl five years ago last spring. These birds were always kept in confinement and were never in the presence of other birds or mammals which might have formed their food in the wild state. Within a few months past the pair escaped from their pen, and instead of flying to the woods they immediately sought out a henhouse at a neighbor's less than 60 rods distant, entered it and managed and killed over a dozen chickens. This is certainly a much more destructive onslaught than is recorded from the visitations of wild owls in my experience."

A Novel Fire Alarm.

A novel fire alarm has lately been produced in France. It consists of a hollow sphere of aluminium supported at one end of an arm, with a counterpoise at the other end, the two being arranged to balance at the ordinary temperature and pressure of the air. The apparatus is not sensitive enough to record natural changes of pressure, etc., but if some unusual cause, such as fire or even a large accumulation of coal gas in the atmosphere, disturbs the specific gravity of the air, the ball drops and rings an electric alarm in falling.

Aluminium Bolts For Boats.

From the known properties of aluminium to resist the action of salt water, it is being used as an alloy—12 parts to 88 of other metals—for bolts for boats. In this shape it forms a combination with copper which has a bright yellow color and is very tough, says The Manufacturers' Gazette.

BOSTON'S UNEMPLOYED.

They Are Advised to Go In a Body to the State House.

BOSTON, Feb. 7.—Boston's unemployed to the number of 5,000 gathered under the shadow of the soldiers' monument on Boston common and let their feet melt into the snow while they listened to the principles of political economy announced by the speakers of the day. Gen. George T. Perry of Lynn, Patrick F. O'Neil of Boston, Herbert N. Casson of Lynn, Morrison I. Swift, Mrs. S. H. Merryfield, Mrs. Gunning and Rabbi David Taylor of Boston.

One speaker proposed to follow the Roman example of invading the senate and said that the unemployed of Boston should throng up to the statehouse, stand in its corridors and send delegations of 500 each into the house and senate to demand their rights, and that they should remain until justice was granted.

The speaking occupied about one hour. A letter was read from the governor saying that he had submitted to the legislature a paper stating the condition of the public works and that most of the authorized work would be completed this year. The mutterings of stupor on the part of its enemy to escape quickly backward or to thrust itself out less quickly into the sand, covering itself with granulations difficult to distinguish from grains of sand. Sepia, used in painting, was formerly manufactured from the contents of the black pocket.

A DENVER TRAGEDY.

Lawyer Carr's Wife Arrested on a Charge of Complicity In His Murder.

DENVER, Feb. 7.—Mrs. Carr, wife of Harry L. Carr, the attorney who was murdered at his home Sunday night by supposed burglars, was arrested on a charge of complicity in the crime. Bessie Sherwood, Jim Tracy, a gambler, and Ted Dolson, intimate friends of Mrs. Carr, were also taken into custody.

The theory upon which the arrests were made is that these people entered into a conspiracy to make away with Carr for the purpose of securing possession of his life insurance, which is said to amount to $20,000. Mrs. Carr stoutly maintains that her husband was killed by burglars.

Carr was one of the most prominent lawyers of the city, but his life, as well as that of his last wife, has been a very rapid and checkered one. The dead man came here from Baltimore several years ago, where he left a wife and two children. He obtained a divorce here. His second wife committed suicide in this city a year and a half ago on account of domestic troubles. Six months later he met Miss Jessie Black, who had recently arrived from Buffalo, and becoming infatuated he married her on Jan. 3, 1893.

Japan Wants Queen Liliuokalani Restored.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—The Japan Herald, speaking of the Hawaiian question, says editorially: A telegram to President Cleveland from the emperor here informs him that his imperial majesty intends to restore the queen of Hawaii to her throne and asks if such a move would be approved by the president. The paper advises that if not, four Japanese men-of-war be sent to Honolulu, with a peremptory demand for restoration of the queen, and says that Japan has the right to interfere for protection of the Japanese on the islands.

Drowned by Her Husband.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Feb. 7.—Mr. and Mrs. John Brock have been missing from their home on Wrightsville sound, a few miles from this city, since Saturday last. It was suspected that Mrs. Brock had been murdered by her husband. Her body was found buried on the beach about four miles north of Wrightsville. Brock cannot be found. The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Mrs. Brock came to her death by drowning at the hands of her husband.

Clergy In a Majority Fight.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 7.—At a meeting of the Presbyterian ministers of the city they decided that in the interest of good government they were bound to take an active part in the mayoralty contest. MET TERRIFIC SEAS.

Four Seamen Swept Overboard and Three Swept Back.

HALIFAX, Feb. 7.—The British steamer Assyrian arrived at this place in distress and was towed into quarantine, where she now lies. She reports that after leaving Newport News all went well until Jan. 30, when in latitude 39, longitude 69, at about 9 p. m., a southwest gale was encountered. The rudder and rudder post were carried away by the tremendous seas, that caused the steamer to broach to, and she sees made a clean breach fore and aft. The after cabin door, made of two inch teak, was smashed to atoms, and the cabin was flooded. The deck railing, made of iron an inch and a half in diameter, was bent and twisted into scrolls.

All the crew who were forward at the time the gigantic wave boarded the steamer were struck by it and buried in all directions, and four were washed overboard. The returning wave brought three back, and the other was drowned before the eyes of his shipmates, who were powerless to rescue him. All this time the steamer, being without a rudder, rolled in the trough of the sea, and the tons of water which constantly deluged her and poured down into her hold seriously damaged the cargo. The accident took place in the Gulf stream 300 miles northwest from Halifax. Fourteen passengers, including the officers, are now in the hospital.

Cairo Dance Stopped In Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Feb. 7.—For several nights past the Cairo dancers have been reproduced at Thespian hall by two young women, said to be the same who were lately interdicted from giving this salacious exhibition in New York city. The mayor has refused to permit further performances of the show. The dance took place on what resembled a pulpit platform. Thespian hall being the name given the abandoned Church of the Messiah.

Rutgers Students Confess to Hazing.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 7.—After chapel President Scott of Rutgers college appealed to the manliness of the students and asked that those concerned in the recent hazing affair confess their guilt. Freshmen and sophomores admitted their complicity. It is possible that the confession and repentance of the students may save them from suspension.

Deeper and Deeper.

There is only one way out of dishonesty, and that is to tell the truth. The process of "lying out of it" may be called, in only a more way of getting more deeply mired. This is well illustrated by the following story:

A man of doubtful reputation was on his way home one night and came across a pile of planks which for some reason had been unloaded upon the roadside. He couldn't, or thought he couldn't, resist the temptation to steal one of them.

He could not go through the village with it and so took a cut across the fields. By and by in the darkness he took a wrong turn into a bogshole and sank in the mire. The more he struggled the deeper he sank, until, getting alarmed, he cried lustily for help.

His shouts brought a neighbor with a lantern.

"Why, Jones, what does this mean?" asked the good Samaritan. "How in the world came you here?"

"I was in a hurry to get home," said the thief, "and cut across. Then I got into this bog. The more I tried to pull myself out, the deeper I got in, and finally I went back to the road and got this plank to see if I couldn't get myself out with that."—The Christian Secretary.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

$5 per Year in Advance. E. W. Marriner, Editor and Proprietor. Office, No. 21 Somerset street, Printers of All Kinds. 1 Cents per Week, Delivered.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST." THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1894. PRICE TWO CENTS.

A POSTAL TO THE MAYOR

CONTAINING YOUR SIGNATURE OF APPROVAL FOR SEWERAGE,

Will Help Swell the List of Property-Owners Toward the Required Three-Fifths —The Present Status of the Sewer Question

The law under which Plainfield is seeking to provide for a system of sewerage was approved April 7, 1893, and its initial requirement is that the owners of three-fifths of the real estate of the city shall petition the Common Council to provide for and cause to be constructed the sewerage system demanded. Petitions have been in circulation for several months with the following result up to Feb. 3d: Of the total assessed real estate, valued at about $5,915,000 the owners of $2,895,570 have signed, leaving $564,330 necessary to complete the requirement of the act. Mayor Gilbert, who has been indefatigable and untiring in his efforts to promote this city improvement, has a list of the owners of $220,000 worth of this amount, all of whose signatures he is very sure of securing during the present month, which will leave less than $270,000 additional to be otherwise secured.

The accomplishment of this preliminary step towards the sewerage of Plainfield is reasonably well assured, and it is to be hoped that an immediate effort will be made by property owners to see that their names are enrolled on this petition, as it would be gratifying to the Mayor and Common Council to know that a very large majority of the property owners of Plainfield were anxious to see this improvement commenced as soon as possible.

A postal card expressing a willingness to sign the petition, and addressed to Mayor Gilbert, will receive immediate attention. Every property owner is especially solicited for his or her signature.

The season is an auspicious one for such an undertaking. Materials of construction are at the lowest prices and labor is plentiful and cheap.

Randolph, Past Master Workman Norman C. Magee, Foreman Edward Mosher and Outside Watchman George W. Clark. There will be one initiation.

A SINGING EVANGELIST.

MR. HERALD OF BROOKLYN TO BE AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

He Will Take Up the Work Where Mr. Wright Left Off.—He is said to be a Bright and Powerful Speaker.

The gospel services which have been held at the First Presbyterian Church for the last two weeks, so ably conducted by the Rev. F. H. Wright, will be continued during the present week. On Thursday evening the Rev. Charles Herald of Brooklyn will take charge of the service. Mr. Herald was one of Mr. Moody's most efficient helpers in the West and conducted a very successful series of meetings in the Cooper Union, New York, some years ago. He is a bright and attractive speaker who has labored in several churches and his services have been sought by many others as well as at conventions, the last one of which was probably the Convention of the Christian Workers recently held in Atlanta, Ga. In addition to Mr. Herald being a powerful speaker he is a singing evangelist and plays. His most successful work is in Brooklyn, having meetings on Sunday and during the week. The size of his congregation is limited only by the capacity of the building on most occasions, and it is only at the earnest solicitation of a friend that he will leave his work for a single night to supplement the work of Mr. Wright.

On Friday afternoon at four o'clock the Rev. William J. Harsha, pastor of the Collegiate Church, of Harlem, will conduct a Bible reading and will preach in the evening at eight o'clock. Dr. Harsha's Bible readings have interested the many who have been able to attend them. He having come from Harlem to help Mr. Wright who labored in their church previous to his coming to Plainfield and where he is most kindly remembered to-day. To those who have heard Dr. Harsha he needs no introduction, and to those who have not heard him the pastor says, "Come and hear him for yourself." All are welcome at one or all of these services.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

Of an Eighteen Year Old Son of William Haynes.

An 18 year-old son of Mr. William Haynes of Park place, North Plainfield, has mysteriously disappeared from home. The boy was employed at Mrs. D. I. Smalley's butcher shop on Somerset street.

Yesterday morning, as usual, he went out in his car orders, and that was the last seen or heard of him.

Mrs. Smalley says she does not know of any reason for the boy's act. He has done nothing wrong about the store that she is aware of to cause him to run away.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Kreuger, of Park avenue is seriously ill with the dropsy.

Mrs. D. M. Moore and son, of East Fifth street, have returned from Boston.

John Wilson, colored, died at his home, on Cottage place, last night, of consumption.

Mrs. Martin, of Hillside avenue, returned to-day from a visit with friends at Chester, Pa.

Mr. J. T. Green of New street is a happy father. It's a boy and was born Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Dunn, of Central avenue, entertained a few friends at dinner last night.

—Several Plainfielders attended a party at Mr. Baldwin's house, Washington Valley, Tuesday night.

Congressman Dunn was in town to-day picking out Plainfield's new postmaster from the numerous applicants.

Mr. Joseph Darly and Miss Ida Schuck will be married at Grace M. E. Church, on Park place, on Thursday, April 19.

Mr. Charles H. Gill, of West Fourth street, died last night, after a week's illness from jaundice which terminated in pneumonia.

James Penny, formerly employed at the Pond Machine Tool Works, has accepted a position with Westphal & Son of Fourth street, in place of Alex. Muir, who has accepted a position at Potter's Press Works.

Mr. A. Monark of Aberdeen, Scotland, visited Plainfield yesterday in the interests of a Scotch Marble Company of which he is a member. Mr. Townsend of Somerset street engaged from him two carloads of Scotch stone.

The funeral of Mrs. Nancy Baker, who died at Locust Grove Tuesday, 103 years old, was held yesterday afternoon at Westfield in the Presbyterian church, Rev. N. W. Cadwell officiating. The church was crowded to the doors by friends of the deceased from all over the State. Interment was in the old burying ground beside Mrs. Baker's first husband.

The following delegates will represent the Y. M. C. A. of this city at the State Convention to convene at Mount Holly this evening: Frederick H. Andrews, A. B. Beers, Charles H. Belknap, George S. Cornwell, T. E. Hazell, A. C. La Boyteaux, W. D. Murray, J. A. Pownall, J. A. Robinson and J. H. Manning. The Boys' department will be represented by Edgar Shepard and Vincent Rittenhouse.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Offered to Plainfield-rs in the Visit of Mr. Spence.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS: —Will you kindly allow me a little space in your columns, in which to call the attention of your readers to the rare opportunity which is offered to them this evening.

It is not often that a woman comes all the way from Australia, to address a Plainfield audience. Miss Spence has so delighted all of us who have had the pleasure and privilege of hearing her, that we hope she may not be the last gifted speaker who may bring us a message from that distant "continental island."

The simplicity of her manner, her shrewd and ready wit, her downrightness, and earnestness, her quaint but pleasing personality, make her talks or addresses unusually interesting and vivacious.

Everyone who has heard her, wishes his friends to have the same privilege. Miss Spence made her first acquaintance with Plainfield at the World's Fair, where she met Miss Kenyon, principal of the Seminary, and the two ladies who met as strangers, had a long and interesting talk on literary matters.

Miss Spence will be guest of Miss Kenyon during her visit to Plainfield. It is to be hoped that all who are able to do so will avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing her to-night at All Souls' church, on Park avenue.

MYSTERIES OF THE DEEP.

Mayor Saunders Talks at Monroe Avenue Chapel About Them.

The mysteries of the deep were explained, in the Monroe avenue chapel, last night, by Mayor Saunders of North Plainfield.

Mr. Saunders, by the aid of a stereopticon, illustrated his subject. From the surface to the very bottom the sea was explained and the various species of coral and their peculiarities were found interesting portions of the talk. The speaker related several of his personal experiences and said that he once fell forty feet into the water without the least injury and also explained about the pressure of the water becoming greater the further one descends.

Everyone can appreciate what a fine talker Mr. Saunders is on these subjects, and to this effect the large main room of the chapel was so well filled that many could find only standing room.

SUED FOR A DOCTOR'S BILL.

Suit Between Dr. Paul and Mr. Mumford.

The case of Dr. Paul vs. Benjamin Mumford was tried before Justice Nodyne this morning. The suit was brought for $50.25, the plaintiff claiming he owed him by Mr. Mumford, for professional services. Mr. Mumford refused to pay the bill on the ground that he had not been treated properly by the doctor.

Some of the testimony was very amusing to the spectators.

Justice Nodyne rendered judgment in favor of Dr. Paul for the full amount claimed. City Judge Coddington represented Dr. Paul. Mr. Mumford argued his own case.

MINISTERIAL RELIEF.

FOR BROKEN DOWN PASTORS OF THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES.

Mr. Whittlesey of New Haven, Chosen to Present This Cause to the Congregational Churches of America, Speaks in this City.

The Rev. Mr. Whittlesey of New Haven, Conn., spoke last night at the Congregational church on the question of National Ministerial Relief.

As an illustration of his subject Mr. Whittlesey referred to Paul, who had established a church at Philippi and was afterwards put in prison.

His old parishioners forgot all about him until after he had languished behind prison bars for five years. Then they happened to think of him and took up a collection and presented it to him. But this was not done until he had been in prison a number of years. The Christian people are kind but they are a little slow sometimes in looking after their old benefactors.

The Congregational church was the first church established to work for the master, but it is the last to provide for its ministers.

The speaker said that was why he felt sure the church at Philippi, which Paul established, was of Congregational denomination, because it was so terribly slow in looking after its old missionary.

The Congregational church, he said, though established 100 years before the Methodist was away behind them in creating a ministerial fund. The Methodist contribute yearly $400,000 for a similar fund.

In addition to the few, who the Committee have been able to help, there are others whose brief and modest letters of inquiry prove that there is far more need of this National Fund than the churches have begun to realize. The convincing and tentative inquiries come not only from Nebraska and Arkansas, but also from New York and Massachusetts. Even in Connecticut, the leading State in this respect, less than a fifth of the churches contribute annually to the State "Fund for Ministers," the provision has never been fully equal to the reasonable requirements of her destitute families. In the mail of a single week in January, there came to the Council's Committee requests for aid for a minister in the South who, after working a large field on a small salary, although so crippled by rheumatism as to need to be carried to his parlance and into his pulpit, was at length compelled to stop; for another in the far West, laid aside by disease of the brain; and for a third who, having organized and housed four churches in two years on his field among the Rocky Mountains, had suffered a dreadful siege of typhoid fever in his home, bereaving him of his beloved daughter, involving him heavily in debt, and compelling him to go a thousand miles from home for special and prolonged medical treatment.

There is need then of this National Fund, because many needy and deserving ministers, widows and orphans are debarred from aid by chances of residence, or by the rules of the State organizations; because in many States there is no provision for their relief; and because in none of the States is such provision adequate.

Cadet Corps Organized.

For some time past there has been talk of organizing a cadet corps in this city, to fill the vacancy in the Third New Jersey Regiment.

Active measures were taken in that line last night by the meeting of Capt. Edwards and Lieut. Bull and most of the members of Leal's Cadet Corps with a few others.

The meeting was held in the Crescent Rink on Watchung avenue. About twenty-five names were enrolled and more are expected to join.

The drill night was fixed as Saturday and it is expected that the new corps will do some fine drilling in a short time.

Found the Doors and Windows Locked, so they Went Away.

Another attempt was made to burglarize a borough house last night. About eleven o'clock the inmates of a house on Grandview avenue were aroused by the noise of some one trying the windows and doors. Finding them fastened the men, for there were two of them seen going from the yard a few moments later, took their departure. The glare from a street light showed that one of the men was tall and slim, while the other was short and thick set.

Y. M. C. A Convention.

The twenty-fifth annual State Convention of the Y. M. C. A. of New Jersey, of which Mr. W. D. Murray of this city is president, will be held in Montair tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday. There will be open sessions during the evening in the First Congregational church, while Friday and Saturday will be devoted to business. Special and practical services will be held in the different associations and prominent workers of the association will deliver addresses. About 250 delegates will be present.

KILLED THE BILL.

Salinger's Measure to Permit Husbands to Sell and Transfer Property Dies in Infancy.

TRENTON, Feb. 7.—In the House to-day bills were introduced as follows: Providing for furnishing a State water supply and creating a State Water Board; repealing the act providing for the appointment of sergeants-at-arms in county courts, and repealing the act prohibiting the use of seines for fishing in certain parts of Barnegat Bay.

Salinger's bill to permit husbands to sell and transfer property without the consent of their wives came up on second reading, and was discussed for more than an hour on a motion to strike out the enacting clause.

Judge Cross of Union made a very effective speech against the measure after it was advocated by Salinger and McEwan, and the motion to kill the bill by striking out the enacting clause was agreed to, 37 to 5.

In accordance with a resolution of the House State Treasurer Gray submitted the following report relative to the receipts and rentals from riparian lands credited to the School Fund: Amount received from March 19, 1890, to Oct. 31, 1891, $69,985.12; amount received during fiscal year ending Oct. 31, 1893, $51,357.84; amount received during year ending Oct. 31, 1893, $31,352.39; amount received from Nov. 1, 1893, to Feb. 5, 1894, $222.55; total, $153,872.68. The expenditures were: Year ending Oct. 31, 1891, $10,000; year ending Oct. 31, 1892, $12,000; year ending Oct. 31, 1893, $15,500; from Nov. 1, 1893, to Feb. 5, 1894, $6,000; total, $43,500. Net amount received from March 19, 1890, to Feb. 5, 1894, $107,372.68. In addition the State has received on account of lands filled with riparian leases amounting to $105,441.55.

Bills were passed permitting Surrogates to appoint guardians in uncontested cases; repealing the act of 1893, giving defendants the right to choose the Justice of the Peace before whom they should be arraigned for a hearing, and authorizing the Board of Freeholders of Cape May County to issue bonds for a new jail.

Mr. Storrs of Essex introduced a bill providing that no sheriff or undersheriff, constable, marshal of policeman shall hold any other civil office, under penalty of vacating the office first held by the office first held. The House adjourned until 8 P. M. Monday night.

Having purchased this building as above address and resumed possession of the restaurant so popular under my former ownership, and having also engaged a first-class chef, old friends and patrons may rely on even better service of good meals, than formerly. The restaurant will be entirely remodelled. Call and see us. 1 16f

Mrs. Ormiston Chant said a good thing about the American people. It was this: "The prevailing type among your best American men is Roman. The prevailing type among your best women is Grecian. They settle things intellectually and so seriously. Your women seem to have a sense of humor, but they have not been accustomed to use it in developing buoyancy of character, and they worry and hurry too much."

Here is one of Matthew Marshall's propositions: "If society, as such, is to see that every one able and willing to work shall be provided with work, it must have authority to regulate enterprise, so that production shall never outrun consumption and that no more workmen shall engage in any branch of industry than can be kept constantly busy."

The manifest destiny of the Indian Territory is to be absorbed into Oklahoma and is part of one of the sovereign states of this Union. The sooner the better for all concerned. A bill substantially to this effect has already been introduced into the lower house of congress.

The farmers of the country through their congress at Savannah have asked for a ship canal connecting the Mississippi river and the great lakes. Besides that, they want the Mississippi and its tributaries improved and some more harbors on the Atlantic and gulf coasts.

The new Louisville tunnel of the Middletown railroad, 12 miles west of Louisville, is the third longest in the United States. It will reduce to almost nothing the dangers of crossing in winter nine miles of the most formidable portion of the great divide.

A writer says: "Every teacher, every public speaker, every person who is called on in the course of his profession or occupation to address, amuse or instruct public audiences, can give illustrations of the curious perversity of human ignorance." Just so.

Oklahoma, too, is knocking at the door of statehood, and her case has been favorably reported by the house committee on territories. The racing that began when Oklahoma soil was first opened to settlement seems to have been going on ever since.

The effect of the stoppage of silver coinage in New Jersey has been to decrease the money in the United States 2 cents per capita. It is larger, however, even now than it was a year ago at this time. Then it was $24.32. It is now $25.35.

Fifty men in the employ of a certain railway company have been discharged because they would not pay their just debts. It served them right. If other corporations observed the same rule, people would not run into debt so recklessly.

It is rather odd that Dr. Stephen, tutor of the children of the German emperor, should have been stricken with sudden insanity. Insanity seems to be somehow hovering in the air around the royal families of Germany.

Hon. W. I. Buchanan of Iowa, lately chief of the live stock department of the World's fair, is getting a good sized boom as candidate for minister to one of the South American republics in the Plata river region.

It is a pity that even the handsomest of the state buildings on the World's fair grounds will have to be broken up and sold for junk. Some of them are bad enough to deserve such a fate, but the majority are not.

It gives one faith in humanity to witness the efforts made in every city and country neighborhood to relieve the sufferings of the poor this winter. It is a good world, after all.

ITEMS GLEANED FROM OUR NEW JERSEY EXCHANGES.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties—Brief, but Newsy.

A Woman Not Afraid of Tramps.

Mrs. John A. Foley, wife of a New York lawyer, living at Hackensack, aided by her large black dog, made a clever capture of two intruders on her premises yesterday. The men were seen entering the barn on the rear of the alley lot in the afternoon; and when ordered away refused to go, answering in an insolent and threatening manner. Mrs. Foley dispatched a messenger to telephone for the sheriff, while she and her faithful dog stood guard over the barn door. When the men saw that they were trapped they started to leave, but were met by so threatening a demonstration from the Newfoundland that they retired, and were soon in custody. Mrs. Foley was highly complimented for the sagacity and nerve she displayed. The prisoners are tramps.

Burglar Lambert's Confession.

Theodore Lambert, the colored burglar, who is accused of the murder of Baker William C. Kairer, in Camden, Dec. 4 last, has made a confession. Lambert admits that he robbed Kairer's house, but claims that the negro, Stevens, who is now locked up as a witness, was with him and committed the murder. The police do not place much credence in Lambert's confession, but believe he committed the two crimes.

Seriously Hurt on a Coasting Hill.

A bob containing seven persons, going at lightning speed down Cedar Hill, Belleville, last night struck Charles Roberts, a lad living on William street. Those on the bob were thrown from the sled and scattered in all directions. Roberts was picked up unconscious. He had sustained a rupture of the spine. James Kearns, one of the coasters, had his front teeth knocked out and Thomas Phillips was injured internally.

Small for Its Age.

A tree on the land of Jesse Sinclair in Holland township, is remarkably small for its age. It is 6¼ inches in diameter four feet from the ground, and is about 95 feet high. In a survey of lands made in 1766 it is designated as a corner to certain lots of land. Mr. Sinclair has known it for at least sixty years. During that time it has probably grown half an inch in diameter.

Gas for South Amboy.

The Mayor and Common Council of South Amboy have decided to grant a franchise to the New Jersey Gas and Construction Company of New York city to build a gas plant and to lay gas pipes in this borough. The work of construction will begin Monday next and will furnish employment for a large number of laborers.

New Iron Pier at Long Branch.

The erection of a new iron pier at Long Branch will be begun at once. It will be located about 1,400 feet north of where the old pier stood, and will be built opposite the Madison Flats, at a cost of about $150,000. It will be mostly of iron, and about 1,000 feet long and fifty feet wide. It will be completed by June 1.

Suicide of a Despondent Woman.

Emily Bracegirdle, a widow, aged thirty-eight, of Trenton committed suicide yesterday morning by cutting her throat with a razor. Her husband died a few months ago and this led to despondency. She leaves three small children, the youngest seventeen months old. Mrs. Bracegirdle kept a little store and had some money.

How an Old Junkman Got His Load.

One of the parties concerned in the McMurray burglary on the Springfield road, between here and the Westfield road, Ephriam Cohn, was arrested late Tuesday in Newark and taken to the Union County jail. Cohn is an old man, and decrepit. For several years he has made it a business to drive out the country roads into Union County with his junk wagon and pick up around the farmer's barns and dooryards anything that he could carry away. The early morning was his favorite time for working, and if he was caught taking anything of value he would say that he was unable to see, and did not know that the things picked up were of any value. On account of his partial blindness and feeble appearance he was let go. He made it his boast that he never returned to his home without a load, and that it never cost him a cent. He generally took a boy with him, who he taught to pick padlocks and open windows, and who he directed to take anything that he could carry. Young Krause, who was arrested for his connection with Cohn in the case, has made a statement that clears up several cases of petty thieving in this county, and implicates other beside Cohn.

Justice Nash yesterday issued summons in the case of Howell vs. Sebring on contract, returnable Feb. 19, and Smith vs. Weber, in tort, returnable Feb. 16.

A Fine Dinner.

Nothing adds so greatly to the enjoyment of a dinner as a rich and carefully prepared soup of fine appetizing aroma and flavor. To prepare a soup of this kind requires long experience and practical knowledge which is very rare. In view of this fact many epicures rely entirely upon Buckins' celebrated soups, and find them not only enjoyable but of unsurpassed degree of excellence. These soups are also really economical, as an equality cannot be prepared from raw materials as cheaply as in a small way.

Climax Gun Club "Shoot."

The Climax Gun Club held its regular monthly "shoot" at the club grounds, on South avenue, yesterday.

In the club event at 25 targets each, with handicap allowance, Charles Smith, William Pearson and Joseph Ziglo tied for first place. Mr. Smith, scratch, broke 25; Mr. Pearson, handicap 4, scored 25; and Mr. Ziglo, handicap 6, scored 23.

There was also sweepstake shooting.

Theatrical Notes.

The bright lines and clever situations, the pretty costumes and still prettier forms of ladies, and above all the excellent acting seen in "The Senator" at the Star Theatre in New York city, has had the effect of attracting large audience to that theatre. Mr. Crane's popularity seems to be constantly on the increase and his welcome has been most friendly and warm.

A VILLAGE MURDER.

One Young Man Shoots and Kills Another on the Street.

CLYDE, N. Y., Feb. 8.—James B. Nichols, a young man of this village, was shot and instantly killed by Fred H. Childs, son of Sylvester Childs, a wealthy jeweler here. Childs met Nichols in the street and fired one shot from behind. When Nichols turned around, Childs fired two more shots into his abdomen, which caused instant death.

Trouble had been brewing between them for some time, Childs claiming that Nichols had been circulating stories derogatory to himself. The murderer was jailed.

Another World's Fair Fire.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The Agricultural building at the World's fair grounds was slightly damaged by a fire that was discovered in the basement occupied by the building, but it was extinguished before it had done any material damage. After the fire was out a section of glass about 100 feet long fell from the roof, narrowly missing a number of firemen who were passing underneath. There were only about three persons left in the building when the fire was discovered, and they were at no time in any danger. The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

Saw Strange Lights at Sea.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Captain Corning of the British schooner W. H. Witherspoon, which arrived from Porto Cabello, reports peculiar phenomena while his vessel was in the Gulf stream on the west coast of Florida. The captain says that he saw strange lights that in a long and varied seafaring experience he had never seen before. Apparently the lights would rise from the water and ascend to a height of about 25 feet, and then after a report similar to an explosion they would go out.

Royal Arch Masons Elect Officers.

The Carr Murder Unsolved.

DENVER, Feb. 8.—The Carr murder mystery continues to baffle the police. Mrs. Carr is still in custody at the county jail, but there is little excuse for holding her. She denies being implicated in her husband's murder. There was no evidence on Carr's life, the two policies for $10,000 each having been allowed to lapse some two months ago.

Private Bank Robbed.

TOLEDO, Feb. 8.—The private bank of J. C. N. Eddy & Co., Dunbar, 35 miles south of here, was robbed. The vault was blown open and completely demolished with dynamite, and scraps of currency were found in the debris. The robbers secured $5,000 in coin, and $1,000 in paper is thought to have been blown to pieces.

Burning of Percheron Horses Barged.

DE KALB, Ill., Feb. 8.—One hundred and forty-eight Percheron horses and three trotters perished in the flames which destroyed one of W. L. Ellwood's big stock barns.

DYING OF HICCOUGHS.

For Ten Weeks John Carberry Has Been Afflicted.

SEVEN DOCTORS WORK IN VAIN.

The Hiccoughs Began While a Barber Was Lathering His Chin—In Ten Weeks the Victim Has Lost 37 Pounds—Physicians Are Interested, but Ineffident.

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 8.—Ten weeks ago John Carberry of 22 Webster avenue was a strong, robust, medium sized man weighing just 187 pounds and in the enjoyment of perfect health. Today he is a mere shadow of his former self, weighing less than 90 pounds and hardly able to talk, much less move.

He is lying on a couch at his parents' home anxiously awaiting death to relieve the agony he suffers. His sufferings are solely due apparently to an attack of hiccoughs which has baffled the skill of seven eminent physicians of Newark and appears to grow more daily, despite their efforts, as well as the one hundred and one home remedies usually applied in similar cases. The most peculiar phase of Carberry's affliction is the manner in which it was contracted.

Began In a Barber's Chair.

Ten weeks ago yesterday he stopped at his barber's, according to his usual custom on Wednesday, to get shaved. While applying the lather, Carberry says, the barber was engaged in telling some chips, and he was suddenly seized with an attack of the hiccoughs. It became so violent he was forced to leave the chair before he had been shaved.

After slipping water and trying several other old fashioned remedies without obtaining relief, Carberry left for Lister's saloon on Belleville avenue, where he was employed as a bartender.

He was rapidly growing worse, and unable to obtain relief by the usual methods, immediately sent for Dr. Chapman, the family physician. Dr. Chapman, after administering several other household remedies he summoned Dr. Chapman. The latter prescribed and cheerily said when leaving that the patient would be all right the following day. But he wasn't, and then Dr. Wendell was called in consultation with Dr. Chapman. Another day passed without relief and Dr. Corwin was added to the list of consultants without any better results.

The doctors were puzzled, the patient grew despondent, and the parents becoming greatly alarmed added in turn to the list of physicians Drs. Lyon, Zeh, Towler and Hall. For several days the seven held consultation after consultation, applied all known remedies, internal and external, without affording the patient any apparent relief.

Prayed For Death.

So it continued from day to day, with the patient rapidly growing thin and emaciated, unable to sleep, eat or drink, and the hiccoughs recurring at regular intervals of every few minutes. Suffering actually begged to pray that death might come to his relief. The doctors say that such a case is absolutely without precedent.

Their opinion is that he has been affected with inflammation of the stomach and have used hot water as an emetic and hypodermic needle, affording the patient even temporary relief. The case has attracted widespread attention, and hundreds of visitors call at the house daily to ascertain the condition of the patient. The outcome is watched with great interest by medical men, and every one of standing in the vicinity has been consulted as to the probable end of the malady.

Carberry, notwithstanding his occupation, is a temperate man and was always regular in his habits. He worked as a ship carpenter until five months ago, when he began to tend bar.

Election Inspector Nevill Guilty.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Peter Neville, Democratic inspector at the last general election in the Twenty-eighth assembly district of the Fourth assembly district, was found guilty in the court of oyer and terminer of neglect of duty. It was alleged that in this district 91 more votes were returned than were actually cast. Neville was charged with having conspired with the other inspectors to return a false count.

For a College Debating League.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 8.—The Harvard union sent out letters to the debating clubs of Yale, Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell calling a meeting of representatives of these colleges in the union on March 3, for the Harvard-Princeton debate, when a debating league, including all six, will be formed.

Barbarous Work of a Drunken Brute.

PRAIRIE DEPOT, O., Feb. 8.—Ovion Devauley returned home drunk, threw his wife down the stairs, dragged her into the yard by her hair and threw her through a barbed wire fence. He then attacked her with a knife, inflicting numerous wounds. Devauley was arrested and narrowly escaped mobbing.

Blown Up by a Keg of Powder.

DANVILLE, Ky., Feb. 8.—W. B. Comer, who was identified with the building of the Cincinnati Southern railroad and who had a contract on the Chicago drainage canal, was killed near Lockport, Ills., by the explosion of a keg of powder. His body arrived here for burial.

Religious Riots in India.

BOMBAY, Feb. 8.—Serious religious riots have occurred at Yeola, 100 miles northeast of this city. Hindoo temples and Mohammedan mosques were destroyed, and several persons were killed and wounded.

Storekeeper Shot.

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 8.—Martin L. Kumps, a Pulaski county storekeeper 10 miles from this city, was shot and probably fatally injured by an unknown negro, who entered the store for the purpose of robbery.

Banger Led a Winner.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 8.—Dan Daley of Bangor, Me., and Frank Zaker, a local pugilist, fought to a finish for a purse of $200 and a side bet. Zaker was knocked out in the third round.

VOTING IN BOTH HOUSES

Senate Passes the Bill Repealing the Elections Law.

McKEARY'S RESOLUTION PASSED.

After Some Lively Filibustering by the Republicans and Some Democratic Opposition the House Indorses the Administration's Hawaiian Policy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The bill repealing in toto all federal laws regulating the control of congressional elections has passed both houses of congress and only awaits the signature of President Cleveland to become a law. After several weeks of discussion the senate finally came to a vote on the house bill repealing the federal elections law, and it passed, by a vote of 39 yeas to 29 nays.

Numerous amendments were presented by the Republicans, but they were voted down regularly and methodically, the Democrats not even asking for the yeas and nays on the debate on the amendatory propositions.

Senator Chandler, after presenting several amendments which were promptly voted down, presented an amendment designed to retain certain provisions of the act of May 31, 1870, and to this amendment he said he would call the special attention of Senator Stewart. "After the senator from Nevada," said Senator Chandler, "had suspended the grand old system of freedom in the senate chamber in securing the adoption of the fifteenth amendment to the constitution he followed it up by the passage of this statute. He declared then that a constitutional amendment was worthless unless congress made a law to enforce it. Does he intend to contribute his vote now to defeat the only section of one of the greatest and noblest acts of his life?"

Amendments All Rejected.

"At the time that bill was passed," said Senator Stewart, "we had just passed through a civil war. We were in process of reconstruction. Many things were necessary then that are not now. We have just entered upon another war. We have entered into a war of the executive against the protecting clauses. [Laughter.] The states have all their rights. They stand on the side of the people. I don't think they have any protection against the federal government. I think the power being concentrated here is most destructive of the interests of the country. Any federal law that might be supplanted by a state law I want to be wiped from the statute books." This amendment was rejected by a vote of 26 yeas to 39 nays.

Senator Perkins of California offered an amendment providing that federal elections law applicable to cities of 200,000 or over instead of cities of 20,000 or over, as provided by the existing law. The amendment was rejected by a vote of 27 yeas to 39 nays, and several other amendments presented by Senator Chandler were rejected by viva voce vote.

The vote was taken on the passage of the bill at 6 o'clock, and it was adopted by a vote of 39 yeas to 29 nays.

Senator Stewart of Nevada voted with the Democrats on every proposition, giving as his reason that he thought the power of the executive was already too great, and that the centralizing tendency of the administration should be checked at once if the republic is to survive. The three Populists—Senators Allen, Kyle and Peffer—also voted with the Democrats on every amendment as well as on the main bill. The measure in its passed form is somewhat mild

WOMAN AND HOME.

A FEW VALUABLE HINTS ABOUT THE CARE OF BEDDING.

Woman's Free Up Corsets—The Right Sort of Wife—Woman and Success—American Women Growing—Married Women's "Duties"—"Its Woman Business."

The young housewife who when buying her first house furnishings can afford a little occasional outlay for slip coverings for parlor, bedroom and dining room will have much timesome labor and eventually considerable expense. These slips for mattresses are the most satisfactory when made of a cheap grade of blue and white ticking—that which retails for about 10 cents. Being light and thin, it washes easily and is still heavy enough to serve the purpose of keeping the mattress clean.

When making pillows and bolsters, it is better to use muslin to contain the feathers, or down, having a good quality of feather ticking outside, which can easily be removed and laundered when soiled without the necessity of emptying the feathers as our mothers and grandmothers used to do.

I remember once calling on a young housekeeper, whom I found on the back porch gingerly dipping feathers with her hands out of a pillow tick into a barrel. Her gray flannel dress and pretty bangs were fluffy with down, and altogether it seemed that if she had prepared for the occasion she could hardly have made matters worse.

We were old friends, so I took the liberty of offering assistance. Picking up the remaining unopened pillow, I asked for a pair of shears and a needle and strong thread. After sinking the feathers low to the end of the tick opposite the end to be closed I ran a basting thread around about two inches from the latter, ripped the seam and basted the ripped edges all around the open end of the pillowcase. Then I drew out the first basting thread, shook the feathers out of the tick into the pillowcase, basted the latter across the end and cut the stitches which united the two, when the tick was ready for the laundry with scarcely any waste or mussing. Where slip coverings are not used, this is the easiest method of preparing pillow ticks for the wash.

When finishing bed comfortables, they should always have a half yard strip of sheeting—the back breadths of worn gingham dresses of a pretty light shade would do nicely—basted across the ends to keep them neat and fresh as long as possible. It is a question whether comfortables are really a cheaper bed covering than blankets, although I believe that delusion still exists with most housekeepers. The latter make the ideal covering for cool weather because of lightness and loose texture, which admits a free passage of the exhalations of the body, and because of the ease and thoroughness with which they can be frequently cleansed. Of late years there has been a white, heavily fleeced cotton flannel blanket put upon the market which makes a desirable substitute for quilts in summer weather. These retail at from 90 cents to $1.50 a pair. They are also to be had in soft shades of gray, blue and pink for schoolboys and farm help. One chafes at their meager dimensions. In order to remedy this I have sometimes torn one blanket in two and sewed the two halves on the ends of two other blankets, using the sewing machine for the work and reining down the rough edges. Of course the blankets thus pieced were used crosswise the bed instead of lengthwise, as before.

Bedding in constant use should daily be exposed for several hours to a current of fresh air and to the sunlight as often as possible. Once a week hang on the clothesline for the day.—Minneapolis Housekeeper.

Wouldn't Give Up Corsets.

One of the most prominent merchants became convinced that the young women in one of the departments of his establishment were injuring themselves by their constant wearing of tightly laced corsets and issued a notification that in future no corsets should be worn during working hours. Instantly there was indignation, and the 35 young women appointed a committee of three to wait upon their employer for a redress of grievances. The employer received the committee very affably and assured the young women that his order had been issued in their interest. He pointed out that their working of corsets did not improve their appearance in the eyes of any one but themselves, as they worked in a department where no visitors were admitted. He further read them a little lecture on the evil of wearing corsets, and being by nature a well disposed soul he gave a dinner to all the young women in the department one evening, at which he had present a well known physician, who told how injurious a thing corsets were. The girls ate the dinner and listened respectfully, but the next day the committee called again upon that employer and assured him that they must ask to be allowed to wear corsets.

"But you will admit," said the merchant, "that the wearing of the corsets at your work is injurious to you?"

The committee admitted the fact, but declared that the experiment of going without them all had made them look horrid in their own eyes.

So the employer yielded the point as gracefully as he could. He is a man whose name is as prominent as that of any retail merchant in New York.—New York Correspondent.

The Right Sort of Wife.

In conversation with a man whose opinion is worth something we were enlightened as to the feelings of the majority of mankind regarding the sort of wife they would prefer if the choice lay between the ancient, worldly wise feminine and the pretty faced doll.

"You see," said this man, "a husband does not like to feel that his wife is his better half save from a moral standpoint. He may admire her intellect and her rare judgment, but just the same he wants to think himself superior and is much better pleased to have a woman look up to him as something infinitely wiser than herself than to hear her assume little airs that tell him as plainly as so many words that she hasn't a very exalted opinion of his mental abilities.

"The doll you can treat like a doll. Not expecting much from her save to have her always look pretty and dressed well, there is no disappointment when she proves to be either naive and candidly admits that she knows nothing of business and has no desire to be enlightened. Of course she is not a companion to be proud of, yet she is preferable to the hard, unbending sister mentally her superior.

"There is a middle sort, though—the ideal wife who rules her husband with a rod of iron, yet never shows her power aggressively. She governs by fact, and the man thinks himself the ruler by having his own way when in reality it is hers. She is bright and witty, but not to the extent of putting him in the shade. She is a capable hostess and an ornament to his home. He never tires of her, because he never really knows her. That is the ideal wife. But how few men meet their ideals!"—Philadelphia Times.

Woman and Success.

If you are a young woman starting out in the world, don't you believe any one who tells you you can't do a thing you feel a strong impulse to try. There is no profession which you can choose where you won't be told it's overcrowded and there is nothing in it worth working for. There is something in every profession worth working for, or all these people wouldn't be in it. One reason that they warn you back is their fear of dislodgment. But you go right ahead with that ideal of yours and keep it just as high as you can. Don't be afraid to place it beyond your limit. Your limit will expand every time you lift your eyes to the ideal, just as the limit of the sunshine on the floor moves and moves imperceptibly as the old earth follows its god, the sun, around the circle. There is always a limit to what one can do surely, but that limit moves, and tomorrow the climax of your strength will be greater than it is today. I knew a girl that

Proportionate Representation as Advocated by Miss Spence, the Australian.—A Very Interesting Lecture.

Miss Spence of Australia lectured in All Souls' church last evening. Her subject was "Australian Answers to Some American Problems."

The Rev. Robert Clark, pastor of the church, introduced the speaker in a very pleasant manner.

Miss Spence said in part:

"It may seem presumptuous for Australia to try to answer problems of America, we who have a population of about one-twentieth of the United States. But you have already followed us in the adoption of the Australian balloting system. In a few States in the United States our plan of searching land titles without the aid of a lawyer has been adopted.

"We take children out of pauper homes and seek for them foster homes. In this way we bring millions of children into our industrial population and diminish our criminal population to almost nothing by cutting it off at the root.

"The subject of proportionate representation was first brought up in Australia in the year 1840. For years I waited for some man to take it up, but I found if it was to be started a woman would have to be the one to start it. Women often wait for the coming of man, and sometimes he never comes, and sometimes they would have been much better off without him. Two years ago I took up the work myself.

"Every one will have you vote for eight New Jersey Congressmen. Each one elected must get one-eighth of the votes cast. On each ballot are placed the names of 14 candidates and you must elect eight. Here in Plainfield you vote for Congressmen in Jersey City, Orange and all the districts. This voting is done under the Hare system, by which we distribute the surplus votes to the next choice.

"We are told that the 'price of liberty is eternal vigilance.' In America I think all the vigilance is by the machine and not the people. By the equitable representation Jersey City will get rid of her ward and district corruption in elections. You can't buy a pure government, and when votes can be bought it shows who of you are in control of politics. The party in power should always be used as a means of the people and represent and do the people's will. The defeated party's aim in the United States seems to be to block the way of the party in power. Your two parties sell themselves to party of progress and put out, when out of office. When in office the motto seems to be "rest and be thankful for four years."

"In Australia we do not change men in office every four years. We elect a Parliament and they appoint the other officers. For five years six officers will receive $5,000 a year each and six others $1,000 each. The next year we reverse this and the men who received $5,000 receive the $1,000 and vice versa.

"You crowl about the probability of a new tariff bill for the first 12 months a party is in power. Then you say 'this new tariff won't hurt me as much as I expected and I never thought it would.'

"Your government does not represent your best people. Simply because your best men wont go out and select men at the primaries, as everything has been cut and dried by the party in power. Any man, who looks at a public office as a political stake. This gerrymandering of States is a terribly unjust business. First the Democrats gerrymander one State and the Republicans the next gerrymander another. One injustice does not serve to rectify another. And the gerrymander of a State by one party simply because the other side has done the same in another State does not rectify that injustice.

"The ward politician has no use for this system of voting for the reason that it will put an end to bribery and the buying of votes. It will not hurt the majority, the majority ought to and always will rule.

"You have a House of Representatives but it does not represent the people. In the House of Representatives two-thirds of the members are lawyers. Is so large a proportion of citizens lawyers that it takes two-thirds of that body to represent them? Ten per cent of lawyers is enough for us in our legislature.

"It is the duty of the party out of power to see that the one in power does right.

"We elect a municipality and they appoint the other officers. We have no Governor nor vote. I like everything about you but your politics. You are a people people but your politics I don't like at all."

Miss Spence fully explained her proposed system of voting by a practical illustration in an election in which the audience were the voters.

Cards, (ballots) were distributed to them, bearing the names of Harrison, George, Atkinson, Cleveland, McKinley, Weaver, Carlisle, Stewart, Reed, Grounland, Bellamy, Francis Willard, Susan Anthony and Wilson.

Eight of the above were to be elected New Jersey Congressmen.

Under Miss Spence's system one-eighth of the total number of ballots cast would elect any one candidate. If he had over one-eighth the surplus votes to be used to elect another candidate. In preparing the ballot the voter must place a figure 1 opposite his first choice, a figure 2 after his second choice, and so on for five or six names.

35 votes were cast, consequently one eighth was 11. A man receiving eleven votes would be elected. Each ballot was declared cast for the man marked number 1. If more than eleven ballots were marked No. 1 for the same man, all over eleven would be given to the man marked No. 2, or the voter's second choice. The first vote resulted as follows: Harrison, 17; George, 2; Atkinson, 1; Cleveland, 36; McKinley, 21; Weaver, 1; Carlisle, 5; Stewart, 1; Reed, 2; Grounland, 0; Bellamy, 2; Willard, 8; Anthony, 3; Wilson, 2.

Harrison, Cleveland and McKinley having 11 votes were elected. All over the 11 were given to the man whose name on the ballot was marked 2. In this way Carlisle, who had received no votes as first choice was elected on second choice on the the surplus ballot.

The eight elected were: Harrison, Cleveland, McKinley, Carlisle Reed, Willard, Wilson and Anthony.

This system could not be used in the election of a president, but Miss Spence claimed that being an executive officer he should be appointed.

At the close of the lecture a vote of thanks was extended to Miss Spence.

CLOTHES PIN SOCIABLE.

A Pleasing Entertainment at Warren Chapel.

Warren Chapel was the scene of much sociability last night when the Y. P. S. C. E. of that chapel held a clothes-pin sociable. The chapel was entirely filled. Each one who entered the door he or she was given a clothes-pin. Each one had a number on it. Each number had a duplicate and the gentleman must find the corresponding number and then take the lady who held it to supper. This proved to be a difficult task as one had no idea where the other one could be found. Finally a young man mounted a chair and called out the numbers which were wanted. In this way the muddle was soon cleared up, and all went to supper.

There was a three-act dialogue, entitled, "Only a Working Girl," in which Mr. A. R. Johnson took the leading role, and in his three months' mustache and long beard found such a complete disguise that very few in the audience knew who he really was.

The following was the programme:

Instrumental.
Fantasia.....Mr. Jessup and son Harry
Stump speech—"How society is run"—
.....Hans Yohnsmichter
Vocal solo—"Anchor".....Mr. H. Clarke.
Quintation Melodies.....Mr. Jessup and son
Three act dialogue, "Only a Working Girl"—
Miss Annie Smith, Miss Sadie Darling, Mr. F. Spiess, Mr. A. R. Johnson, Miss Ella Bostedt, Miss Daisy Darling.

The costumes worn by those who took part in the dialogue won the admiration of the audience. The supper was said by everyone to be excellent.

The proceeds of the entertainment amounted to about $25.

BASIL HAYNES FOUND.

He was Stopping with a Farmer Near South Stirling.

Basil Haynes, son of William Haynes of Park place, whose disappearance from the borough was told in yesterday's News, has been found and taken to the borough lockup.

Basil was traced up and located this morning by Special Marshal Samuel Moore.

Mr. Moore first got track of the boy in the Valley, where he spent his first night at Farmer Winner's place. From there he traced him to Mr. Baldwin's and from there to Farmer Allen's and finally found him at Peter Newmiller's, near South Stirling.

He didn't offer any resistance, but got quietly into the wagon and rode back with Mr. Moore.

Haynes does not give any reason for his act, but said he got tired of working and decided to run away.

PERSONAL.

Miss Mary E. Thorn, of East Second street, is convalescent from her recent illness.

Mr. Lewis Mulford, of Park avenue, has gone to Hunterdon county for his health.

Mrs. Corliss of Central avenue gave a tea yesterday afternoon to a number of friends.

Among the recent patents granted to Jerseymen is one on a velocipede to V. Decker of this city.

Mr. Charles E. Fellerman of Brooklyn died this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Charles E. Theire, on Somerset street.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Charles H. Gill will be held at Grace Episcopal church, on East Seventh street Sunday, at 2:30 p. m.

Mr. Jesse Layton of West Second street, who was stricken with appoplexy in Stewart's wheelwright shop on Somerset street, is reported as much improved to-day.

The next lecture in Prof. John Fiske's series, to be given at the Crescent avenue church, will be delivered Saturday night. His subject will be "The Lord's Proprietary and Their Domain." Admission is free.

To Administer the Oath of Office.

Mayor Gilbert has notified the recently appointed city officials that he will be at his office on Tuesday, Feb. 13, from 5 to 6 p. m., to administer the oath of office to the recently appointed city officials.

A "RAINBOW TEA"

THE LADIES OF TRINITY CHURCH ARE NOW AHEAD OF THE MEN.

Last Night's Tea by Them Places the Green Tea, Formerly Given by the Men, in Significance.—The Decorations Very Pretty.

SOME time ago the men of Trinity church held a grand tea. The ladies did not like to let the other sex get ahead of them, so they planned for a "rainbow tea" which took place in the lecture room of that church last night, from 8 to 11 o'clock.

The efforts of the ladies were crowned with success for it proved to be one of the most delightful teas ever held in the church.

The ladies agreed no pains to make the tea a success, the handsome decorations alone showing that. The decorations were arranged to represent the different colors of the rainbow and branches of evergreen trees graced the walks. Streamers of all colors from the windows and the posts and also in graceful curves from the ceiling. Pretty lamps and sweet smelling flowers decked the tables.

The tables were attended as follows:

Green table—Mrs. Force, assisted by Miss Force and Miss De Camp.

Pink table—Mrs. Van Dyke, assisted by Miss Kriner and Miss Dunn.

Red table—Mrs. MacMurray, assisted by Miss Wilbur, and Miss Van Winkle.

White table—Mrs. Tier, assisted by Miss Arnold, and Miss Smith.

Blue table—Mrs. Clarke, assisted by Miss Gillem and Miss Ellis.

Yellow table—Mrs. Emmons, Miss G. Emmons, Miss Schenck.

Apron table—Mrs. Leggett, assisted by Miss Van Winkle.

Lemonade—Mrs. Woodruff, Miss Woodruff, Mrs. Williams.

Refreshments—Mrs. Demarest, Mrs. Gillem, Mrs. Oliver, Mrs. Kriner, Mrs. Church, Mrs. J. Williams, Mrs. S. Williams, Mrs. French.

Reception Committee—Of which Mrs. Bird was chairman; Mrs. Desbourne, Mrs. Schenck, Mrs. MacDonald, Mrs. Runyon, Mrs. Newell.

RIDING CLUB IN POSSESSION.

Hereafter Admission to the Rink Will be by Card.

The Plainfield Riding Club held its regular weekly ride in the Crescent Rink last night. The ride was the liveliest one of the season. The former proprietor, Mrs Lane, gave up possession last week, on account of the failing health of Mrs. Obl, the riding teacher.

The Plainfield Riding Club has leased the building and Mr. Hand, the owner, is going to thoroughly repair all defects. The members of the riding club each hold a key to the building, and he or she may enter it at will. Each member is privileged to take his or her friends in the rink with them, and this may lead many persons to join the club because of the advantage given in which they may become thorough equestrians. Hereafter the audience will doubtless be a select one as admission will be by card only. In the absence of Capt. Holly, last evening, Mr. Pentz, of Fanwood, led the club. Those present were: Mr. Wartzz, Miss Holly, Mr. Munn, Mrs. Pentz, Mr. Van Boskerk, Miss Holly, Mr. Lozone, Mrs. Saunders, Mr. Johnson, Miss Lloyd, Mr. Cruikshank, Miss Cruikshank, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Stroull; Mr. Moore, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Vail, Mr. Pentz.

MAY PROVE TO BE BURGLARS.

Suspicious Looking Characters Arrested by Marshal Pangborn.

Two suspicious looking tramps were arrested in the borough yesterday afternoon by Marshal Pangborn. They were begging money of passersby on the streets and using threatening language when refused alms.

The description of the men tallies with that given by Mrs. Samuel Taynor of the men she saw on Mrs. Smalley's place, on the night her house was robbed.

They are also believed to be the two who attempted to enter a house on Grandview avenue, on Wednesday night.

The police on the Plainfield side of the brook have also been watching these two men. Between twelve and one o'clock Wednesday night Policeman Cooney watched them for a long while prowling along Front street. All at once they disappeared through an alley way.

For the Benefit of the Unemployed.

The entertainment at the Congressional church last evening, for the benefit of the unemployed, proved very successful and about $60 were cleared. The programme was arranged for and carried out by the children.

Knocked a Lamp Over.

While plumbers and electricians were at work in the cellar of the Clifton building, on Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, one of the men upset a lamp. The blazing flew in all directions, but no damage resulted.

CORRESPONDENCE.

SOMETHING REQUIRING INVESTIGATION.

"A Heart Broken Wife" Writes a Letter to "The News" About Unlicensed Liquor Selling.

The following letter arrived in our mail this morning:

To the Editor of The News:—As a heart-broken wife, I would like to know why the public and the good people of Plainfield, allow, at a meeting of bad characters in a public hall, without a license, beer and whiskey drank until morning, so that the men, before departing for their homes, become beastly drunk.

I sat up waiting for my husband until half-past twelve Monday evening, and when he arrived, I, with my four little children, had to go for safety to a good neighbor. Will The News kindly publish this and have the blessing of a hard working Somerset Wife.

Unless more particulars are given, we do not see very well how anything can be done in this matter. Our correspondent need not travel herself to give some particulars which the police may work on, and, if her husband is, and is likely to continue to be, such a brute as the postings him, the sooner the community finds him out the better.

The air is rife with rumors about a former prominent citizen whose conduct toward his wife and children has become within a few years such as would, in the opinion of many, justify the enactment of the Delaware law for the punishment of wife beaters. In fact, it was the stories of his brutality and of a few others elsewhere, which led Assemblyman Spalding to prepare a law to have the whipping post introduced, so as to punish with the lash those who beat their wives, as this fellow is said to do.

It is but just to the 503 carriers to say that the beats is not one of their number. The above letter might indicate that he was, though it does not say so. He may have been one of their guests. We believe this letter is genuine, and that the alleged offender is probably one seeking to use the bad carriers for political reasons.

The story current about a most worthy wife of a prominent citizen is that she has been compelled to fly from her home at all hours of the night repeatedly with her children, and ask the protection of her husband's father, her sister and sisters-in-law, all of whom have been to her all that such relations could be in sympathy and loving kindness, and in their endeavor to make the husband act as he should, but without avail. This person is said to hang around bar rooms and to drink with anyone he can induce to treat him. We submit the woman's appeal, hoping that, with what we have said, it may lead the erring husband to reform while there is yet time, for the good of himself and happiness of his wife and children. No one wishes to do him any injury, if he will but not like a man ought to act.

Adams Found Guilty.

William Adams and George Shay were tried at Elizabeth yesterday for assault and George English of this city on Nov. 19th last.

The assault occurred on Sunday morning, and, according to the story of the plaintiff, was as follows: On the morning in question he started out to purchase a morning paper and was accompanied by his three children. On his way home he was met by Adams and Shay, who treated him to a drink of beer, after which they invited him to Adams' home. On entering he was accused of having told a Mrs. Furey that his wife had cast a vote. He had no sooner entered Mrs. Furey's home than she was assaulted by him, Shay holding the door and Adams pounding him in the face, from which he was confined to his home for three weeks.

An Infant Criminal Pleads Guilty at Last.

Charles Frulick of this city, who was sent to Jail a few days ago for stealing a gold watch is charged with performing exploits in the thieving line that would do credit to a professional robber. The thefts of a gold watch, a bicycle, a trinket, two sets of boxing gloves, a lot of clothing and a quantity of knit goods are among those laid against young Frulick. He bore all these accusations with the coolness of a veteran criminal, and declared himself innocent.

Frulick said that a man who has since disappeared was the real offender, and that his part was simply to help the man hide the articles in Frulick's fathers garret, where they were found by the police behind a chimney, except the boat, which were sold.

Chief Grant and County Detective Keown, spent half an hour at the jail yesterday, trying to get the boy to own up to the crime and spare the taxpayers the trouble of a trial. He persistently clung to his story, but finally said he didn't know what it was to plead guilty. After being told he plead guilty.

Traction Company's Employees May Tie Up the Road Here in Sympany With Bridgport Strikers.

The New York Herald of to-day says the strike of the employes of the Bridgeport (Conn.) Traction Company to-day assumes a new phase which threatens the company with unexpected trouble, as it may make the strike more extensive and injurious.

The Central Labor Union of Bridgeport has passed resolutions looking to that end which will be circulated throughout New Jersey. The resolutions conclude thus:—

"Resolved, That as the Bridgeport Traction Company is a branch of a syndicate which operates surface railways in other cities, the Central Labors unions of such cities be informed by us of the treatment of the traction company's employes in Bridgeport, and that the withdrawal of patronage by union workmen and their friends be recommended in such cities.

"Finally, be it resolved that a copy of these resolutions be immediately given to the press for publication in Bridgeport, Conn.; Newark, Orange, and Plainfield, N. J."

A Change of Night Operators.

Superintendent Stewart of the Western Union Telegraph Company has made a change of night operators at the office in this city. Charles A. Bird who has held the position for a year and a half, has received orders to report at Jersey City, which means that he is to be placed on the "extra list." This is considered a promotion by operators, as they receive $100 per month whether they are on duty or not. Operator Reed of Elizabeth is to take Bird's place here. Operator Stults has been a very faithful and obliging employe and has made many friends during his year and a half residence here.

VETERANS IN CAMP.

The twenty-seventh annual encampment of the Department of New Jersey, G. A. R., was opened at Trenton yesterday, with a large attendance of veterans. The session will last two days and the chief interest centres in the election of a Department Commander. The candidates for this office are James H. Bird of Asbury Park, Henry S. White of Red Bank, Jacob White of Paterson and John Shields of Flemington.

Department Commander Hartshorne, in his report, called attention to the fact that the State authorities have purchased elegant cases, in which they have displayed in the State House the regimental flags carried by the New Jersey troops that served in the war.

There are 115 posts, with 7,511 members, a net loss of 219 members.

The assistant quartermaster-general's report shows that the sale of supplies have fallen off, and the cost per capital tax was not nearly so much as last year.

The balance on hand Dec. 31, 1892, was $10,609.55; receipts from all sources, $49,902.46; total receipts, $62,512.39. The disbursements were $36,678.77; balance of general fund, $26,253.62; receipts for the relief fund, $50,024.68; disbursement, $7,712.89; balance, $42,312. The department is worth $156,587, including the funds on hand, the value of real estate and furniture. The deaths were 169.

INSPECTED THE ALMSHOUSES.

Report of the Committee on Jails and Alms-Houses.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Union County Branch of the State Charity Aid Association, held in Elizabeth Wednesday afternoon, the following report was presented by the committee on Jails and Almshouses:

On December 13th, committee of the State Charities Aid Association of New Jersey, composed of Mrs. Myers, Mrs. Trumbie and Mrs. Tiffany, visited the alms-house of Elizabeth and Rahway and the county jail of Elizabeth. The Elizabeth alms-house was in a satisfactory condition, the walls white washed and the floors scrubbed. Everything indicated on the part of the keeper and matron proper attention to the needs of the inmates. An old stove of former years was replaced by a good range and a nourishing dinner was in process of preparation. Though the house was crowded to its proper capacity, (68 inmates) the matron reported the health of the inmates to be excellent. The services formerly held by the members of Protestant churches, had been discontinued. Many of the Roman Catholics walk into Elizabeth to attend services at their own church. Two infants were seen in the building but no older children. One woman, subject to epileptic fits was found at times, endangering the safety of other inmates.

The Elizabeth jail was also very crowded, (86 inmates). The Committee was glad to find so worthy a successor to Charles Dodd as Warden, everything evidencing conscientious performance of duty. The committee would earnestly solicit books and magazines to fill book shelves waiting to receive them. Such contributions are much appreciated by the prisoners, and when judiciously selected may be an efficient help to the elevation of character. As is usually the case, the women seemed more degraded than the men, and the warden spoke of the unwillingness to work on the part of many women. The committee noticed that the side of the jail adjoining the church yard was darkened by a number of large trees, making it difficult for the men to read while lying in their cells during portions of the day, and rendering the jail, in the opinion of a physician, positively unhealthy. In consideration of the feeling of sentiment and beauty which attaches to old trees, it might seem almost too much to ask that this defect be remedied though a consideration of this matter by the Trustees of the church would be much appreciated.

The Rahway almshouse lacked certain comforts over which the keeper and matron had no control. The law requiring the complete separation of men and women in such institutions may not be enforced owing to the imperfect construction of the building. The matter was presented to the consideration of the Common Council of Rahway some months since, and it is hoped it will soon receive proper attention. In other respects the Committee is glad to report a very favorable condition of affairs and to accord to the keeper and matron deserved praise for faithful discharge of duty. Among the inmates were one feeble minded woman and three boys. The Committee would recommend that the first would be sent to the Home for Feeble-minded at Vineland, and that homes or work be secured for the latter as soon as practicable before their self respect and self-dependence be destroyed or a childhood passed under alms-house influences.

—The C. Y. M. L.'s will go to Elizabeth to-night and bowl a game in the Journal League with the Alcyones.

MR. CHAPMAN OF THE MELOPOIA.

The February number of Munsey's Magazine in excellence is among the "top toppers" of American publications.

Among other articles it has a profusely illustrated account of "The Musical Societies of New York" and gives half-tone illustrations of the prominent musical directors, among whom is Mr. Wm. R. Chapman, the leader of the Melopoia society of this city.

A portion of the article is given below:

The Metropolitan Society, numbering three hundred voices, has not invaded the field of oratorios, its concerts, with one exception, having been of a miscellaneous character, and including glees, madrigals, serenades, and folk songs. The Metropolitan was organized by Mr. William R. Chapman in 1888, and surprised the public during the first year of its existence by presenting the most formidable array of soloists ever gathered together. It was a revelation to hear such singers. Indeed, Mr. Chapman accomplished a musical feat unknow to his predecessors, and not likely to be repeated in the near future.

The only appearance in New York of Edward Loyd, England's greatest oratorio singer, was at a concert of this society in May, 1891. This bit of enterprise cost the society $1,500, in return for which it secured a packed house as well as the satisfaction of leading all rival organizations. The most important events in the history of the Metropolitan have been the production on April 28, 1891, of Max Vogrich's "Captivity" with the assistance of societies from Kingston, New Rochelle, Stamford, Plainfield, and Greenwich, making a chorus of 800 voices, and the rendering of Beethoven's Choral Symphony at the concert of the Philharmonic Society, April 12, 1892.

The news that the Metropolitan Society, owing to Mr. Chapman's health, will omit their concerts the coming season, has been received with regret by the many subscribers to this admirable organization.

The Rubinstein Club occupies a unique position in the musical world, being composed entirely of female voices, and possessing a larger percentage of solo voices than any sister society. The outgrowth of a Saturday morning class organized by Mr. William R. Chapman in the winter of 1886-6, it has developed into one of the representative societies of the metropolis. The stage picture presented by three hundred women, surrounded by the choicest of tropical flowers, is a poem in pink and white. It would appear that beauty was a qualification for membership, but Mr. Chapman declares that musical ability alone counts in the race for the coveted admission to its ranks.

The Flagman Blamed.

The Coroner's jury, which has been investigating the recent Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railway accident near Hoboken, by which twelve persons were killed and many injured, rendered a verdict yesterday afternoon. They found that Rear Flagman Wheaton of the Dover express neglected his duty in not properly flagging the South Orange train when his train was running at a slow rate of speed, and that he failing to do so primarily caused the disaster.

The jury also found that the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad Company did not have a proper signal system between Newark and the Hackensack bridge.

BLAND WINS HIS FIGHT.

Bill For the Coinage of the Seigniorage Taken Up.

THE MEASURE WILL BE MODIFIED.

Secretary Carlisle Secured a Compromise, and the Democratic Bankers Talked of Various Things and Adjourned Until Monday.—It enters Bill a Law.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The deadlock on Mr. Bland's silver seigniorage bill was broken after four hours of continuous filibustering, when, by a vote of 176 to 4, the house carried Mr. Bland's motion of going into committee of the whole for consideration of his bill. The eastern Democrats and the great mass of the Republicans made a determined opposition, but Mr. Bland was at last victorious.

On the final vote 26 Republicans and all the Populists voted with him, while 29 Democrats who were present joined with the remainder of the Republicans in refusing to vote. It was thoroughly understood that quite a number of the Democrats who voted with Mr. Bland were in favor of certain modifications of the bill, although they would not carry their opposition to the extent of voting against its consideration. It is also well known that Secretary Carlisle and the administration generally are opposed to the bill in its present form.

Carlisle Effects a Compromise.

After the consideration of the bill began Mr. Carlisle appeared at the capitol and had a conference with several of the leading Democrats of the house, as well as those Democrats who were managing the filibuster, and just before adjournment the announcement was officially made on the floor by Mr. Tracy that no further attempt to filibuster against the consideration of the bill would be made.

This is taken to mean that a compromise has been agreed upon and that certain concessions will be made in line with the suggestions of Mr. Carlisle, who, while he is represented as not being against the coinage of the silver seigniorage in the treasury, yet insists that discretionary power ought to be lodged with the secretary of the treasury about issuing the seigniorage either in the form of certificates or of coin, so that it would not be injected in a lump into the circulating medium of the country. He maintains that it would be injurious to put out $55,000,000 suddenly as it would be to withdraw that amount from the circulating medium.

He is also opposed, it is understood, to the second section of the bill, which makes mandatory the coinage of the rest of the bullion in the treasury and the redemption of outstanding treasury notes under the act of 1890 as fast as the coinage takes place.

In the Senate.

The right of the secretary of the treasury to issue United States bonds at this time was again the subject of controversy in the senate. The Senate portion of the bill became up under the rules, and a motion made by Senator Butler of South Carolina to refer it to the committee on finance provoked lively opposition. Senator Quay took a decided stand in favor of disposing of the matter in open senate instead of going to committee, and he thought it was a committee from which it would never emerge, and he intimated that Senator Gorman gave no such courtesy as an apparent justification of Secretary Carlisle's action when the Ohio senator clearly knew it to be illegal.

A strong speech was made by Senator Teller, in which he depicted the deplorable financial condition of the country and called upon his Republican colleagues to bear their full share of the responsibilities of the hour and not attempt to throw upon the dominant party the entire burden of devising relief for the impending crisis.

The resolution finally went over, and Senator Berry called up the house bill compelling the Rock Island railroad to stop at the junction between the two lines of railway to build up rival towns on sites owned by the road for speculative purposes adjacent to the legal sites publicly established by the interior department. His denunciation of the methods of the Rock Island road in keeping representatives here to defeat this bill, he said, had a direct application to the attorneys of the company, who, he charged, occupied the gallery while debate was in progress.

No final vote was reached on the bill, but Senator Berry will urge it again at the beginning of next week. The senate resumed its old practice of adjourning from Thursday until Monday.

In Mr. Peckham's Interest.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Secretaries Gresham and Carlisle spent some time at the capitol in the room of the secretary of the senate, where they met several senators with whom they talked concerning the Peckham nomination. The senators who met the secretaries had no announcements to give as to the conversation, but some of them said enough to either senators to indicate that the secretaries made a strong plea for party harmony and for having the president sustained.

They talked especially with the Democratic senators whose votes are considered doubtful, and they made the point with them that as there is a tendency toward solidification of the Republican vote against Peckham for political reasons the Democrats owed it to themselves and the party to stand united for the president's choice. What effect the interviews had cannot be learned.

Progress on the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The Democratic subcommittee of the senate committee on finance will make their report to the full committee on the Wilson bill early in the coming week, and the Democratic members to the entire committee on the following day, it is present plans do not interfere. It is understood that the adjournment of the senate until Monday of next week was taken for the purpose of giving them the entire time for all points of the bill. The subcommittee occupied the entire day with the consideration of the question of sugar schedules, and no time was spent upon the different schedules of the bill. The subcommittee has been engaged almost exclusively upon the question of revenue, and every day makes it plainer that the bill will be devoted as largely as possible to the question of raising revenue.

The committee is in a unit upon this proposition and is working in harmony in this direction. It has also collated a mass of figures giving the present receipts of the government from various sources of internal revenues on the present basis and making calculations upon the effect of changes made in the Wilson bill which have been contemplated.

The committee is listening to suggestions by other members of the senate and has by some instances in their individual capacities invited them to present views and a few other persons interested have also been given opportunity to put in an occasional word as to the effect of the bill, but as a rule the committee is devoting itself strictly to the business in hand, with the view of getting the bill in shape for reporting it within the time specified if possible.

The committee is also giving careful care to the wishes of Democratic senators, with the view of presenting a bill which will command the solid Democratic vote of the senate, but it says that whatever modification may be made in the line of its general policy of presenting a revenue bill it must be of it can be done consistently.

Unquestionably the committee leans toward a bill more on the lines of the Walker tariff of 1846 than toward any other system, but a member of the committee said it was not true, as had been asserted, that the committee had progressed so far as to agree upon the entire schedule nor anything like it.

The Election Bill Signed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—President Cleveland signed the federal elections repeal bill and it is now a law. Representative Tucker of Virginia brought with him to the White House a gold pen, especially purchased for use in signing the bill. It had already been used by President Stevenson and Speaker Crisp in signing the bill, and after the president had used it it became the property of Mr. Tucker. Representative Pearson of Ohio carried the bill from the capitol.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

New Jersey—Charles Harwick, W. F. Sears, Wellfleet, J. H. Higgins.

New Jersey—Pemberton, Mary Ac Earl.

New York—Fort Ann, Frank Gray.

Pennsylvania—Penn, W. A. Master; Keckburg, J. M. Keck.

Drank Aconite For Whisky.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 9.—P. H. Tracy of Canaan, Conn., visited friends here. He and Fred Wood of the Allen hotel, near Roselle, called on M. B. Oakley, a liveryman. Oakley invited his friends to have a drink. He went to a closet for a bottle of whisky, but got a bottle of aconite by mistake. Each of the men poured out a good drink and swallowed it. The burning sensation caused them alarm, and they hurried to a drug store a block away. Just as they reached the store Tracy fell dead to the floor. The doctors are working on the other two in what seems to be a vain endeavor to save their lives.

Stolen Diamonds Recovered.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 9.—The greater part if not all of the $15,000 worth of diamond rings stolen from H. C. Barnard, traveling salesman for Schaefer & Douglass of New York, at the depot, has been recovered. Good work by City Marshal Rice and Inspector Quilty of the local police force traced the thief in which the rings were pawned. Chief Rice telegraphed to office at Worcester, where it had been sent from this city to T. G. Davis. The thief, who is known as C. H. Doyle, W. Showard and several other aliases, has not yet been captured.

Godey's Magazine Assigns.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—The Godey Publishing company, publishers of Godey's Magazine, assigned to-day. Liabilities are estimated at $50,000, while the assets are very small. Godey's Magazine, which was formerly called Godey's Lady Book, is one of the oldest publications in the United States, being 64 years old.

Strong Man Wants to Fight Corbett.

DETROIT, Feb. 9.—Samson, the strong man, announces that he has decided to challenge Corbett for a fight. Samson strikes a 3,000 pound blow. He says he is willing Corbett should strike him, but that he would surely break Corbett's arm or otherwise disable him at the time.

Bill the Brain Acquitted.

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 9.—The trial of Clark Tucker, alias Bill the Brute, for the alleged burglary of the Ellis cottage last August terminated in an acquittal. A great demonstration was made over the verdict, and several persons were arrested for contempt of court.

HUNTING FOR THE CREW

Steamer Will Start at Once to Find the Kearsarge's Men.

ADMIRAL STANTON NOT TO BLAME.

There Was a Sudden Cry of "Breakers Ahead!" and Then the Good Old Ship Was on the Rocks—Fire During the Wreck—Crew Without Water.

PANAMA, Feb. 9.—The United States warship Kearsarge was wrecked last Thursday on Roncador reef, 300 miles north of Colon. Lieutenant Frederick R. Brainard arrived at Colon with the news of the wreck.

Lieutenant Brainard says that at 9:45 o'clock on the evening of Thursday, Feb. 8, while the Kearsarge was on her way from Port au Prince to Bluefields, Nicaragua, the lookout raised the cry of "Breakers ahead!" and within a few minutes the vessel went on the reefs with great force.

She was proceeding under sail at the time and had, comparatively speaking, no steam up. There was a terrific sea on, and the ship heeled to such an alarming extent that it was feared she would capsize.

In order to ease her and to help her back on an even keel the great gun of Alabama fame was jettisoned. This had no effect in the direction of easing the ship, but it stood up. The next move to save the vessel from going clear over on her beam ends was to cut away the masts, in being evident that it would be impossible to furl the sails in season to relieve the enormous pressure of the wind that was beating down on the uneven sides which weighed high in the air. The question of only a few minutes before the ship would capsize.

When the Kearsarge went over after striking the reef, she went so far that the banked fires in the furnaces were thrown out, and scattering in all directions they set fire to the ship, but this was in addition to being exposed to the savage waves, the merciless reef and the ripping wind, the vessel was in danger of being burned and blown up.

Urged by the desperation of the situation, everybody on board that could be spared from on deck manfully attacked the flames, and after a short, sharp fight they succeeded in extinguishing the blaze before it reached the magazine.

After the fire was extinguished and the masts cut away there was nothing to do but to await an opportunity to get ashore. At daylight the boats were lowered, and the short but dangerous trip over the reefs and through a treacherous surf was attempted. It was accomplished with the greatest imaginable difficulty, and after many hours of hard work and terribly exciting to reaching the shore in safety.

The Crew All Safe.

Provisions were thrown overboard before abandoning the ship in the hope that they would wash ashore to be plucked from the surf, provided the body got ashore alive.

As soon as the officers and crew were landed a camp was established on the islet of Roncador, and everything of value to man's mouth was picked up, but no fresh water was presurable.

He left on the morning of the 4th inst., and reached Old Providence on the morning of the 5th. He immediately sailed from Old Providence on a schooner for Colon, and reached there. He arrived at Colon Wednesday night.

Lieutenant Brainard reported that at the time he left Roncador the Kearsarge was fast going to pieces. He reported that the Kearsarge's company could not reach Old Providence and that they were in need of immediate assistance.

Measures For Relief.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Prompt measures have been taken to send relief to the crew of the old United States ship Kearsarge, which is a wreck on Roncador reef.

The Kearsarge sailed from Port au Prince on Jan. 30 for Bluefields, Nicaragua, to protect American interests there in view of the invasion of the military forces of Honduras. She was wrecked when three days out.

Roncador reef is a little over 200 miles from the Mosquito coast of Central America. Between the coast and the reef lies Old Providence island, only 75 or 80 miles to leward of the reef. It is believed at the navy department that the officers and crew would be able to reach Old Providence without difficulty in case they were in danger of their lives on the reef.

Lieutenant Brainard's report of the news of the wreck the navy department sent a cable dispatch to Lieutenant Brainard at Colon ordering him to charter a steamer and proceed at once to the relief of the shipwrecked crew. The City of Para, it is expected, will get away promptly to the relief of the Kearsarge's crew. It seems to be expected that after she takes them up she will proceed at once to New York, and will not put into the nearest port and send word of the condition of the wrecked ship and crew. This would delay the reception of any further news on the subject till the arrival of the City of Para at New York.

Great regret was expressed by the members of the house naval committee when the news of the wreck of the Kearsarge was made known to them. The chairman, Mr. Cummings, said that the navy could afford to lose any of its vessels at this time, when their presence was required to protect American interests at so many foreign ports.

It was on Sunday, June 19, 1864, that the Kearsarge fought and sunk the rebel privateer Alabama off Cherbourg, France.

It was the good or ill fortune of the Kearsarge to be one of the best sailers in the navy, and that, too, in spite of the fact that she was more than 30 years old and had of course a wooden hull. Her excellence as a cruiser was kept a secret for four years past in the home station, which duty included the patrolling of West Indian waters, and for nowhere at that time she has been within its tropics.

Italy's Submarine Destroyer.

ROME, Feb. 9.—The Polifino, a new submarine torpedo vessel, has been given a trial and has proved an entire success. With Admiral Racchia and Admiral Labrano aboard the vessel traversed the entire length of the gulf of Spezia under water.

LONDON, Feb. 9.—The house of lords has concluded the committee stage of the parish councils bill.

LYNCHERS DISAPPOINTED.

A Company of Infantry In the Courthouse at Wauseon.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 9.—There came near being a lynching at Fort Blanchard when Cyrus Flannigan was arrested for an assault on a 13-year-old girl named Susan Wells. A large crowd of men collected. They had a rope and were bent on lynching Flanagan.

"Bring him out until we string him up!" they cried, but the constables executed a flank movement and took the prisoner down into a cellar and dragged him out of a coalhole unseen. He was taken through the fields to the river and put aboard a train for Pittsburg, where he was locked up. Physicians are of the opinion that the girl will not recover.

MANSON, Ia., Feb. 8.—White and Robinson, the negroes under indictment for criminal assault on Mrs. Hedin and Mrs. Elliot, were brought here guarded by the Alexandria light infantry—60 men. The crowd at the depot was immense, but comparatively orderly.

When court convened, the room was packed with people from all parts of the county. Robinson's case was finally submitted to the jury without argument. A verdict of guilty was returned and the death punishment fixed.

During the morning a line of infantry occupied the front of the bar, and a portion of the day there was a double line with sentries parading the halls. During the noon recess the jail was heavily guarded. The prisoners were returned from the jail at dusk and are now under guard at the Cannon House. White's case will be brought up today.

WAR ALMOST OVER.

Peixoto Orders an Election in Brazil For March 1.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 9.—President Peixoto has issued a decree ordering a congressional and presidential election for March 1. The Constitutional party will nominate Senator Prudente Moraes for president and Senator Manoel Pereira for vice president.

President Peixoto gave a big reception to United States Minister Thompson and Rear Admiral Benham Thursday.

The general impression in Rio de Janeiro is that the rebellion is practically at an end and that it is not likely that there will be any more fighting of importance, as the presidential election will now take up the attention of the people.

The daily cannonading is still kept up, but with less vigor than formerly. The warship Aquidaban and another insurgent vessel have left the harbor. It is supposed that their intention is to intercept President Peixoto's new squadron and challenge it to surrender or fight outside, where it would have no support from the government forts.

Tailors Try an Experiment In Style.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 9.—The convention of the Merchant Tailors' National exchange closed with a banquet at the Monongahela House. The next convention will be held at Buffalo in January, 1895. E. N. Doll of New York was elected president. At the banquet an exhibition of Medes of Chicago, President Doll and two others appeared in dress suits made in the style of the colonial days. The tailors themselves are in doubt as to how the departure from the conventional dress suit will be received by the leaders of fashion, but are willing to try the experiment.

Shipwrecked Sailors Complain.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Feb. 9.—The members of the shipwrecked schooner Porter S. Roberts, rescued in midocean by the Peruvia, arrived here, and they complain bitterly of their treatment by the United States consul at Liverpool. They claim he made no offer of assistance, and when finally prevailed upon to help them get home he only furnished them with steerage passage.

RICH MEN ARE WARNED

Vanderbilt Mansion and Chauncey Depew's House Placarded.

THREAT WAS WRITTEN IN LATIN.

A Notice Urging "Brothers" to Follow Valliant's Example.—"This Is a Marked Man," Read the Card.—Other Houses of Rich Persons Placarded Also.

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Placards of a threatening character, but probably written by some crank, were found pasted on the doors of several rich New Yorkers, and the police are now looking for the man who did it.

Chauncey M. Depew's butler was the first to discover the placard. It was written in Latin, and a translation reads as follows:

"Brothers, remember the glorious example of Valliant! Death to the rich man! This is a marked man. Warn all.

"By the will of the common people."

Vanderbilt's Mansion Placarded.

While this was going on at Mr. Depew's home similar trouble was in progress around the corner in Fifth avenue. Watchman Ryan draws a liberal salary in return for his services at the Vanderbilt mansion. This stately structure occupies the entire block between Fifty-first and Fifty-second streets, and it is Ryan's duty to keep both eyes on all parts of these extensive premises between the hours of 9 o'clock, night, and 7 o'clock, morning.

Ryan saw something white which stood out of the brown stone of the main fence-post which is built into the mansion. He found there a neatly written placard identical in all respects with the one plastered upon the front of Mr. Depew's residence. It was placed with the greatest care directly in the center of the post near its cap, from which rises the massive metal lamp at the Fifty-second street corner.

Ryan closed his stout oaken shillelagh, the mysterious missive showed that no buried hands had placed it in position. Ryan had passed the spot scarcely more than 40 yards from the spot and saw nothing to excite his trained suspicion. No time was lost in obliterating the warning, but the watch is naturally down, and a good part of the placard is still visible.

It was said that the residences of Messrs. John D. Rockefeller, H. M. Flagler and C. P. Huntington were also decorated with these warnings.

Young Woman's Suicide.

BELLEVILLE, W. Va., Feb. 9.—Miss Cora Arnold went to the Ohio river bank, tied one end of a rope to a stout bush and the other about her waist, and then having taken these precautions to prevent her body from floating away she plunged into the river and was drowned. Miss Arnold was 18 years of age, intelligent and refined, and no cause is known for her act.

Strikers Try to Wreck a Train.

Left Mrs. Childs About $1,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 9.—It is authoritatively stated that the value of Mr. Childs' estate will be a little over $1,000,000. The value of Mr. Childs' one-third interest in the Ledger property is stated at $600,000, and the remainder of the estate is estimated at about $240,000. In the will of the late A. J. Drexel it was provided that the heirs of the Childs special agreement, upon the death of Mr. Childs, his interest should be purchased by the Drexel interest at the price named in the agreement. Under this agreement the Drexels will now pay $600,000 in cash to Mrs. Childs, and the name of Childs will no longer be known to The Ledger.

Blamed the Rear Brakeman.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Feb. 9.—The coroner's jury which has been investigating the horrible accident that occurred on the Hackensack meadows on the morning of Jan. 15 rendered a verdict fixing the responsibility of the accident upon Rear Brakeman De Witt P. Wheaton of the Dover express, charged with neglect of duty in not properly signaling the Orange local train. They also censured the railroad company for not having a proper system of signaling on its road.

WOMEN IN BUSINESS.

A DAUGHTER OF EX-SENATOR DAWES WRITES ABOUT THEM.

Miss Edith Dawes Practical Remarks For the Young Ladies on Failures—Hints on Perfection, Calmness and Dealing With Customers.

The appearance of women in every department of business has resulted in the discovery that a woman can do business along business lines and by recognized principles, and also in another discovery—that she is obliged to do so by her environment when generally does conduct her business affairs in a somewhat slipshod manner.

No permanent success is possible except according to strict business methods. In large affairs this becomes evident so soon that either the worker is forced into conformity or the business disappears of its own weight. There is little need to give hints in such cases. Either they are superfluous or they are useless.

But the possibility of self support along new lines has suggested a large number of new occupations to young women who are establishing themselves everywhere in small enterprises. The eventual success of these enterprises depends very largely upon the spirit and method with which they are entered into. And to these energetic and enterprising young women a few hints may be valuable.

It should never be forgotten that "business" and "philanthropy" are two different things. Both buyer and seller frequently confound the two. It may be questioned whether half the failures in business ventures by young women do not arise from this simple fact.

If the proprietor or the woman who goes into business exchanges the privilege of special courtesy to her sex for independence and business reciprocity. Here again a mistake is too frequently made.

A business woman must not consider the weather nor a headache.

She cannot afford to be pleasant only when she feels well and gloomy or unaccommodating when she has had bad news. The public is merciless and cares nothing for her, body or soul.

If she needs a cashier or clerk, it is not enough for her that she has an idle brother or that another might take the place. The first question for her consideration is the efficiency of those relatives for the vacant position.

It seems impossible to pluck out of the mind of a woman the idea that her personal circumstances ought to be taken into account in settling her business affairs. And, firmly rooted as this idea is, it has ruined the business mind of the other sex. It is by no means unknown for a man to go paying interest to his female clerk when funds have disappeared in bad investments, or, on the other hand, to expect considerable financial clarity from her at the end of each month's investments. Neither of these expectations would survive a moment between two men.

Another very fatal lesson for the would be business woman to learn is that she should expect no consideration whatever on account of her sex or her personal circumstances and should give none. The exact filling of contracts and the exact requirement of dues are the foundation of all good business.

Like the list should be one of her early lessons that the exact filling of contracts renders both to time and quality.

Perhaps the most common of all faults in women who engage in small enterprises is the feeling that if they cannot do the work now or furnish the goods by next week they will do just as well. And if called to account for these delays they consider the customers most unreasonable.

Another curious peculiarity in the business relations of women, resulting directly from her too often inexact habit of mind, is her treatment of errors. In the view of many new business women any mistake made in the goods, in orders procured, in work done, must come out of the customer. Here, if a customer gives a definite, plain order, and the dealer does not fill that order, it is the fault of the dealer and should be borne by her. This fault is by no means confined, to women, it is true, but it is specially prevalent among them. The order should be exact and definite—in writing if need be—but once given it is the dealer's place to fill it.

In all the various lines of small enterprises upon which women are now entering and some of which they are inventing much depends upon the way the young business woman meets the would be customer.

A cardinal principle should be to do anything that any one desires. Some way must be found to do it, or to refer it.

Let no possible customer disappear because you could not find some way to meet his or her wishes. Find for the goods wanted, or even go to the city after them, if it be only a dollar's worth. Take the strange job if it have even the most remote connection with your enterprise and do it, though you must privately anlist it. But let the customer always find you ready and always sure to do what he wanted. This insures his reappearance. And if you cannot meet his wishes the first time, he will find some other person or place where they can be met, and that is a fatal discovery.

Be ready in expedient. There is no business, even the largest and most systematic, that is not always meeting with some kind of a wall of some kind, and the ability to quickly and sometimes immediately find a new way out is the question of success or failure.

If you cannot do a thing one way, do it another. If the conditions will not allow of the end desired, change the conditions and that on the spot. She who hesitates is lost in these days. Yet beware how you do it. A woman's natural impulses must not be trusted too far. "Readiness in expedient" is not only readiness, but readiness in expedient. To think quickly and closely, to determine that some difficult requirement shall be met and to see along what lines, if not all the details, and to confine these two lines of thought at the moment is to secure success in any line of business.—Anna L. Dawes in Washington News.

Countess of Warwick.

The Countess of Warwick, better known as Lady Brooke, is admittedly one of the most brilliant women of modern society. Her conversation is sparkling and is marked by a freedom from conventionality which sometimes borders on the Princess of Wales, who has inherited all the love of etiquette of her mother, Queen Louise of Denmark. There are few women in London whose toilets are more perfect in every way and more in harmony with their wearer than those of the Countess of Warwick. She is one of the best in lips to England and drives a four-in-hand, handling the ribbons in a masterful manner.—Paris Herald.

PERFECTLY RIDICULOUS!

When we stop and think of how cheap we have been selling goods during the past month, it does seem funny, and no doubt you wonder why we do it, but when the snow flurries into slush it takes either coats or bargains to bring the people out.

We are out of coats at present, but

HERE are the BARGAINS.

They say White will soon tire of selling best Amoskeag and Lancaster Ginghams, for 4½c., but we are still selling them at that price. Same way with "Fruit of the Loom," "Dwight Anchor" and "Lonsdale" bleached Muslins—you can still buy them for 7c. per yard.

Our annual sale of Muslin Under wear for Ladies is now on. Two assortments, 25c and 50c., one third under regular price.

LADIES' RIBBED VESTS—One of the best bargains we have ever offered in Ladies' Summer Vests is on sale this week. Regular value, 25c. each, we will sell them two for 25c. You will want them later, but now is the time to buy them.

HOUSE FURNISHINGS—We are constantly adding many new and useful articles in our House Keeping Department, and will pay you, when in the store, to look through this department. There is everything in Crockery, Glass and Tinware, Wood and Willow Ware, etc.

Artificial Snow.

A very beautiful and interesting effect may be obtained by a simple experiment with sulphuret of carbon. This is a colorless liquid, formed by the union of sulphur and carbon. It should be handled with extreme caution, as it is highly inflammable. To produce the effect shown in the illustration, you have but to fill a small flask with sulphuret of carbon. Pierce a hole through the center of the cork stopper. Roll up finely a piece of white paper and pass it through the hole in the cork until the lower end touches the bottom of the flask. The upper end should project somewhat above the cork and be cut into narrow strips like a fringe, each strip being made to stand out well from the rest. Let the apparatus stand, and at the end of 15 minutes you will find the cut paper covered with little particles of snow.

The liquid has mounted in the paper by capillary attraction. Coming in contact with the air, its rapid evaporation causes the moisture which drop in the temperature of the air immediately surrounding it that the moisture contained in the atmosphere congeals and appears in the form of snow. This experiment may be successfully tried in midsummer and in full sunshine. It is advisable, however, owing to the powerful and disagreeable odor of the liquid employed, to conduct the operation out of doors or on a window sill.

How Janie Settled It.

"Here comes mamma," said Janie. "Oh, mamma, must I save some of my candy for Grace?"

"I think a good little sister would."

"But Grace didn't give me any of hers yesterday."

"Didn't she? How did you like that?"

"I didn't like it at all. And I want to make her not like it, too, because I think she was real mean."

"Dear, dear! And is mamma to have two mean little girls, then?"

Janie looked at her mother and was quiet a minute. Then she ran and threw her arms around her neck and said: "No, no, mamma dear; you shall not have any mean little girls at all. I guess Grace forgot, and I'll go and give her some of my candy now, so she won't ever forget again."

Her mother smiled. "I think that is the way to make her remember," she said. "And I am so glad I am to have two kind little girls."—Primary Plan.

How to Make a Will-o'-the-wisp.

Of course you know that a real will-o'-the-wisp is the effect of hydrogen gas generated by decomposing organic matter in a marsh and in a state of combustion. But did you know that you could produce this phenomenon in your home? Take an open mouthed glass jar and place some baking soda in the bottom, over which pour a little diluted sulphuric acid, muriatic acid or strong vinegar. Then the jar will fill with combustible gas.

Now lower a lighted candle into the gas until it goes out, leaving the top of the flame still burning upon the surface of the invisible gas. The flame will be fed by the gases coming from the smoldering wick. This will-o'-the-wisp lasts but a short time, but it may be reproduced by raising the candle until the wick relights, then lowering it again. In order to make a success of this experiment see that the air of the room is very still.

A Soft Answer.

Said the wise man, "A soft answer turneth away wrath." Already who believed in this precept said to her 7-year-old Nellie, who is sometimes quite impetuous, "If one of your playmates speaks rudely to you, return a soft answer." "Soft!" "Yes. Now run along and play. Magnus is busy." The child went out on the lawn, where a neighbor's boy was mending a kite. She accidentally broke the kite still more, whereby the boy was made angry. "I don't like you. You're a horrid thing," he said. Little Nellie's eyes flashed, and she was about to reply with a very unkind remark when suddenly recalling her mother's advice about a soft answer she looked the boy right in the eye and said meekly and slowly, "Mush!"—Boston Woman's Journal.

He Stood on His Dignity.

On Sundays Alfonso XIII is "at home" to the little sons and daughters of the Spanish court dignitaries. Part of the entertainment consists of dancing. One afternoon the 4-year-old king, after dancing with a senorita of his own age, tried to kiss the damsel, according to the custom at these juvenile entertainments. The little one, however, retreated before the royal salute. Next Sunday the two danced together again, but when the lady tried to make up for her slip of confidence of the previous fiance and offered to kiss her monarch the latter, instead of giving her his cheek, offered her the back of his baby hand, saying, "I am the king."—All the Year Round.

The Merry Go Round Ahead.

Skipper Jonathan Gumption Yankee Van Was a very kind hearted and amiable man. When he sailed away
Found travel a bore,
He regret'ed to go round on his boat—
It was quite the merriest thing afloat—
And, like the knights in the tourney of old,
With little toy swords his children drew bold
And speared all the doughnuts his good wife made,
And these were the prizes—'twas thus they played.

If here it was done should puzzle your brain,
Just look at the picture, and all will be plain.

Important Facts For Women.

Abnormally developed waists and hips are invariably the result of undue pressure at these points. The muscles, rendered inactive by the force brought to bear upon them, become weak and flaccid, and as a result soft, flabby flesh forms over them. When the pressure is removed and the muscles through exercise grow active, imperfect flesh naturally disappears, slowly, but surely.

The stout woman can improve her appearance by the artistic study of dress and proper care of the body. The thin, angular, ill developed woman can accomplish wonders by exercise. The cavernous neck, with its ugly hollows, may be made full and shapely by deep breathing exercises, rotary movements of the head and active position of the chest, but all padding must be discarded to give flabby muscles a chance to reassert themselves. Protruding shoulder blades will be permanently flattened when the entire chest becomes habitual. Grace will be imparted to motion when the toes are turned outward, and often increased physical vigor results from correct position of the feet in walking, as it is averred by the doctors that weaknesses of the pelvic region are often traceable to the latest manner of walking peculiar to many women.—Jennes Miller Monthly.

Japanese Women In New York.

There is a slow but steady immigration of Japanese women into New York. In the past decade they have increased from four or five to over 50. They are trim, bright eyed little creatures, who take a lively interest in everything going on. Their children are just like the dolls which you buy in Yokohama. They are a trifle awkward in our styles of apparel and footgear and never appear entirely at home in them. Both women and children dress in the simplest modes and in dark colors whenever they go out upon the street. In the privacy of their own homes they drop our fashions and resume the kimono, obi and slipper of Japan. Here they go to the opposite extreme and wear the most startling designs and brilliant hues imaginable. Dressed a l'American, they are usually plain, but when attired in their national costume they are pretty, graceful and attractive. A number of them live in the neighborhood of Sixth avenue and Twenty-second street, but they are now scattered over the city. In religious matters the women are sometimes Christians, more often agnostics and seldom, if ever, heathens. They stand our climate well, but do not have as many children as do their married sisters at home.—New York Advertiser.

Working Women and Chaperons.

If women must be wage earners and breadwinners, so far as they are concerned "chaperons" are impossible alike in England and America. In most factories, workshops and salerooms, in America at least, women are as carefully guarded against insulting approaches or degrading entanglements as women in convents. Therefore there is no reason in the world why in America we should, so far as the girls are concerned, bother ourselves as to whether they have chaperons or not. If there is danger to this class of girls in England because they cannot have chaperons, it might be well for those having the social condition of the mother country at heart to study the methods almost universally in use in the United States, and to the extent of adopting these methods Americanize the working girls of England. But so far as the wealthy classes are concerned, either in Great Britain or the United States, there is no essential difference nor likely soon to be any. The presence of older women in every company adds to the dignity and variety quite as much as to the decorum and propriety.—Harper's Bazar.

Points For Trained Nurses.

At the training schools for nurses no applicants are accepted who are under 21 years of age or over 35. Twenty-five is the preferred age. When application is made by letter, it must be addressed to the superintendent of the school. In reply she will receive a circular stating that a personal interview is desirable. If that is impossible, the applicant should write again, saying so and asking for an application blank. This blank must be filled out in the applicant's own handwriting and returned to the superintendent, together with a physician's certificate of health, a letter from a clergyman and the addresses of three women, not relatives, who have known the applicant for several years. These applications are filed, and when a vacancy occurs the most desirable applicant is selected by the president and is taken for a month on trial. During this month of probation she will, at almost all the training schools, receive her board and lodging. At the end of the month she may be accepted or rejected as a pupil nurse, and the decision is final.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Married Women as Employes.

The action of the last city board of education to married teachers is not shared by the dry goods merchants or commercial men who employ women. They claim that a good saleswoman, clerk or operator is a better servant after marriage. She usually resigns, but the firm is glad to keep her back after the honeymoon. The married saleswomen, typewriters, machine operators, dressmakers and special workers in a representative establishment are said to do more work and give less trouble than the average single woman. The married clerks don't flirt with the floorwalker, they don't gabble with the elevator boys, and they are most patient with customers. The married typewriters don't go to lunch with heads of departments and their clerks and if they read the scandals in the daily papers they do not make the fact public by circulating the clipping. At least that is what the managers say, and they ought to know.—New York World.

New Jersey and Suffrage.

In one of the United States a precedent for the admission of women as voters was furnished during the last century. The state referred to was New Jersey, which, by its constitution of 1776, gave the suffrage to all the inhabitants who had the property qualification. A law passed Feb. 22, 1797, to regulate elections under that constitution provided that every voter should deposit his or her ballot, and that the written tickets should contain the names of those for whom he or she voted. But a later act in 1807 enacted that no person should be allowed to vote except free born white citizens of the male sex. Since then the word male has been inscribed in the constitution of the state of New Jersey, as had already been done in the other states.—Camden Letter.

Suffrage and Bonnets.

Ladies in New Zealand have the franchise. They also take their hats off in the theater. If this is a case of cause and effect, the cause of woman's suffrage is likely to have a boom.—Lowell Times.

PLAINFIELD EVENING NEWS.

$6 per Year in Advance. L. W. Mattice, Editor and Proprietor. Office, No. 21 Somerset street. Printing of All Kinds. 10 Cents per Week, Delivered.

ESTABLISHED 1884. PLAINFIELD, N. J., "THE COLORADO OF THE EAST." SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 10 1894 PRICE TWO CENTS.

WANT MISS J. L. HAYNES.

DETECTIVES LOOKING FOR A FORMER PLAINFIELDER.

They Claim That She was a Member of the Brokerage Firm of Haynes & Sipps.—The Family Moved from Here to Dunellen.

Two New York detectives were in Plainfield yesterday afternoon looking for Miss J. L. Haynes who lived here in 1888. Justice of the Peace Mosher was the first man interviewed by them. It seems that in 1888 an alleged $250,000 sale of land was made in New York by a brokerage firm of Haynes & Sipps. The supposed sale was made to a man named Fulton. Haynes & Sipps sold the property for an old Dutchman living in Pennsylvania. The matter has just been revived by the suit of an auctioneer for $125,000 against the property.

The detectives say they think the whole transaction was a large fraud. The matter is being aired in a New York court and Miss Haynes is the chief one wanted.

During the year 1888 the Miss Haynes referred to occupied furnished rooms in Justice Mosher's house, on East Fourth street. He aided the detectives greatly, by his recollection of Miss Haynes whereabouts up to about a year ago. There were three in the family, the Miss J. L. Haynes referred to, her sister, a widow Owens, and Mrs Haynes, the mother.

Mr. Mosher said the family was in his house only three months, when they moved to the Park House and from there to Mrs. Merckley's on West Second street, and from there they went to Dunellen, where Justice Mosher lost track of them.

The detectives started for Dunellen to follow up the clue yesterday afternoon about four o'clock.

BREVITIES.

—The great variety and uniform excellence of Hockins' Soups have won for them unstinted praise wherever they have been introduced. Not only the best materials, but also care, cleanliness, skill and experience enter into their composition. Nineteen different varieties are prepared.

—Evangelist Crane, who will conduct a series of meetings in the First Baptist Church next week is favorably known to many in Plainfield. He returns to this city after participating in the great revival meetings in this city of Newark. It is expected that he will be assisted in his work here by an excellent soloist, and a strong choir.

—Van Buren & Timpson's real estate office on North avenue has been greatly improved in appearance by the papering and decorating of the walls and ceiling. They have also re-arranged their office desks in a much more convenient manner. They have added an additional improvement in the establishing of a private room in the back part of the office.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Wife Beater Not Even a Guest.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The News said yesterday that it was just as the Hod-carriers to say that the drunken brute who beats and terrifies his wife and children, as complained of in the wife's letter published, was not of our number. As one of the members of the Union, I wish to say that he was not even our guest. The Union met Monday night at eight o'clock, but finished its business and adjourned at 9.30 o'clock. After that the hall was rented to an outsider, for a dance, which was continued throughout the night until morning, but with which the Union had nothing to do except to rent the hall.

NICHOLAS KELLY,
President.

PERSONAL.

Walter Darby is home from Princeton College.

Mrs. A. L. Lang of Watchung avenue, started to-day for Washington, D. C., to visit relatives.

Mrs. Eugene V. Lorton of West Fifth street has just recovered from an attack of the grip.

About 50 of the friends and relatives of Thomas Schafer enjoyed a dance at his home on Orchard place last night.

Miss Ella Bristerli was tendered a surprise party at her home on Chatham street, last night. The evening was pleasantly passed in dancing.

Miss Annie Wyckoff of this city, who a short time ago underwent an operation performed on one of her eyes by a New York specialist, has been compelled to return to him for treatment again. She is now in a New York Hospital.

Many of the young friends of Mr. William Woodland of Broadview avenue were entertained at his home last evening. Among those present were: Miss Leona Smalley, Miss Margaret Miles, Miss Jessie Coddington, Miss Fanny Macready; Miss Edith Miles, Miss Belle Lewis, Miss Jennie Simpson, Miss Minnie Steiner, Miss May MacLaughlin, Miss Etta Blatz, Miss Woodland and Messrs. Woodland, Wootston, Coddington, Dodge, Clark, Morrison, L. Schutt, H. Schutt, Steiner, Kitchen and Mr. Green of Newark.

Street Lights Burning at Mid-day.

People who happened to be on the street at about eleven o'clock this morning were surprised to see the street lights burning at that hour and much curiosity was aroused as to the cause. It seems that one of the dynamos has not been running up to full standard lately and a test was made this morning of the engine to find out the cause.

Caused by the Frost.

Mr. McNabb lays the falling of a portion of the brick cornice on his new building to the frost. He says the Winter has been so changeable, freezing and thawing continually that the brick has become loosened. The portion that fell did not effect the wall. He intends to tear all that side of the cornice off and put it up fresh again.

It is Now Thorpe and Ivins.

Mr. DeWitt C. Ivins has connected himself with Mr. Thorpe, who recently bought out Loomis & Rice's, coal and lumber business. The name is now Thorpe & Ivins. Mr. Ivins was engaged in the lumber and coal business at Bergen Point for a number of years. He was also in the business in Colorado for some time.

His Fine Would Have Bought Almost a Half Ton of Coal.

Dominick Vittell, accused of stealing coal from the railroad, was arrested this morning by Policeman McCue. Vittell was taken before Judge Coddington, who imposed a fine of $2. Vittell's fine would have bought him almost a half-ton of coal.

"Zimmie" Bowled His First Game While Here.

Mr. A. A. Zimmerman, New Jersey's champion bicyclist, while in town tried his skill at bowling for the first time, and rolled his initial game on the Board of Trade alleys. He put up a score of 119, which is considered good for a first attempt.

To Celebrate the Opening Feb. 22.

Mr. Cain to-day reported the new school house, on Somerset street, finished, and all the rooms are now ready for occupancy. It has been decided to celebrate the opening of the new building on Washington's Birthday.

ALMOST IN THE BROOK.

Exciting Runaway on Somerset Street Yesterday Afternoon.

Mrs. Mair, of Smallertown, drove to Plainfield yesterday with a young horse. On the way home about three o'clock a Somerset street trolley car scared her horse so it dashed up the street and across the field near Mr. Urrhahn's place.

One of the traces broke and the shafts were getting mixed with the horse's front legs, when Mr. Urrhahn, attracted by the runaway, hurried out of his house and caught the animal by the head just as it turned and plunged up a little hill at the side of Mr. Urrhahn's barn.

The wagon seemed about to upset as it toppled over on one side when the horse was stopped.

It was very fortunate that Mr. Urrhahn stopped the runaway when he did, for, with two or three more plunges, horse, wagon and all would have been in the brook.

Mrs. Mair displayed much bravery in her endeavor to check her frightened steed and clung pluckily to the reins.

BAD BLOOD BETWEEN MILKMEN.

The Blood Was Only Prevented from Being Spilled by a Policeman.

Two milkmen attracted much attention on Park avenue this morning by a wordy encounter, in which each threatened to pulverize the other. They stood with their fists doubled up like a couple of fighting cocks, each waiting for the other to strike the first blow. But for the interference of Policeman Kiely, who ordered the would-be combatants in if they didn't behave themselves and go about their business, the men would have clinched.

The men obeyed the mandate of the law and each went a different way, and the blood was spilled. As the milkmen parted they threatened to meet "over the brook" and settle their difficulty. The trouble arose, it seems, because one run over the other's lantern on the way to town this morning.

Miss Rossetter Surprised.

Miss Lizzie Rossetter, of Watchung avenue, was tendered a surprise party last night. The surprise was arranged by Mrs. Sturtevant and Mrs. Muirhead. The party met at the home of Mrs. John Stevens, corner Watchung avenue and Second street, and proceeded to the house of the young lady in a body. Miss Rossetter answered the ring at the door bell in person. She was so surprised that for a moment she lost her speech. She soon recovered it though and invited the gathering in. A very pleasant time was spent in dancing to music furnished by Prof. Guttman.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Sturtevant, Mr. and Mrs. Muirhead, Mrs. Stephenson, Miss Stephenson, Miss Etta Connett, Miss Manchester, the Misses Taylor, Miss C. Barting, Mr. and Mrs. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lyons, Miss Mina Wyckoff, Miss MacLean, and Messrs. Harry Barting, Percy Davis, Edward Mackey, William Campbell, Bert McVoy, Joseph Wyckoff, Theodore Mason, and Mr. Miller.

Ten-Inch Ice from Lake Hopatcong.

Ten car loads of ice were unloaded yesterday at the big ice house near Grant avenue, for the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company. Sixteen more were unloaded to-day. The ice is from Lake Hopatcong and is 10 inches thick. It is the thickest gathered in New Jersey so far this year. 250 more car loads have been ordered to fill the house.

"Lessons From Life."

A meeting of the Somerset Teachers' Association will be held at Somerville on Saturday, February 17. Principal Charles E. Bone, of North Plainfield school will make an address on "Lessons from Life." Teachers who visited the "World's Fair" are expected to relate what they saw of use to their profession. Other interesting things have been arranged for the meeting.

Prof Fiske's Second Lecture.

The second lecture of the free course by Prof. John Fiske will be given to-night, at eight o'clock, in the chapel of the Crescent avenue church, on "The Lords Proprietary and their Domains." Admission will be by ticket only until after eight. If any seats are vacant at that hour, those who have no tickets will be allowed to take them.

Arranging for an Entertainment.

The Plainfield Liederkranz, the new German Society, will give an entertainment at their headquarters, in Red Men's Hall, some time next month.

The affair is in the hands of the following committee:—M. Goldmann, Chairman; R. Haurand, Secretary; F. Linke, Treasurer; M. Leichtentritt, J. Richter.

A Broken Axle Delayed the Cars.

The trolley cars on Somerset street were delayed for some time this morning by the breaking of an axle on Mr. Hoagland's express wagon on the tracks. The wagon was loaded with ice which had to be unloaded

Jerseymen Holding Federal Positions.

A revision of the list of office-holders from New Jersey in the executive departments at Washington shows that among the 15,000 positions provided for by law New Jersey holds but 287. The aggregate salaries of these 287 amount to $357,316, as follows: State Department, $3,000; Treasury Department, $10,720; War Department, $45,300; Interior Department, $103,000; Justice, $9,400; Agriculture, $19,920; Labor, $1,000; Government Printing Office, $37,780. The average for New Jersey is as high as the general average is—$1,080 a position.

Mysterious Malady.

A peculiar epidemic is raging in the village of Rio Grande, near Cape May. It began about a month ago in the form of scarletina and chickenpox. The public schools were ordered closed. There were no fatal cases until ten days ago, when the oldest child of Trustee George Neal died of what appeared to be malignant fever. A few days later another child died, and yesterday Mr. Neal's third child passed away with the same symptoms. The disease is spreading.

Lead Pencils as Disease Spreaders.

The Asbury Park Board of Health has advised the school authorities to discontinue the practice of furnishing children with lead pencils. The Board says "These pencils are collected every afternoon and redistributed every morning, thus making it quite probable that each pupil will receive a different pencil each day. We believe that lead pencils passed from child to child in this manner are liable to spread diseases of the throat and certain other ailments."

Duel with Knives.

Fred and John Rittcher, butchers of Woodbridge, quarreled late Wednesday night, and began fighting with sharp knives. Charles Schmidt, 21 years old employed by the butchers, tried to separate them. This enraged John, and he slashed Schmidt in a shocking manner, nearly cutting off one of his arms. The young man is dying from loss of blood. He refuses to make a complaint against Rattcher, and the latter has not been arrested.

Good News for Spinners.

The Barbour Flax Spinning Company, of Paterson, which employs 600 men, women and girls, has given notice that its Grand street mill, which has been run three days a week for the last few months, will resume on full time Monday.

Pen Sketches from Life.

"Mike" used to work for a family in North Plainfield. A portion of his duties was to feed the live stock, among which were two roosters. One, was a lordly shanghai, of which Mike thought considerable. The other was a diminutive bantam. The shanghai was exceptionally large, but the bantam would fly at its head everytime it came near and the awkward giant would run, squawking with terror, pursued by its more active and courageous tormentor. This happened many times each day and always aroused Mike's ire.

"Ah-h-ly' big overgrown baby," he would yell at the fleeing shanghai, "phwy don't y' bit that dusseto a larrup wid sure phut? Sure it od smother him."

One day when the old game was proceeding even more merrily than usual and the big bird was running about in a perfect delirium of terror, saying all kinds of things in chicken language, and being incessantly prodded in the rear by the fiery bantam, Mike entered the house, his face all red with anger, and sputtering out unutterable against the whole shanghai breed. The master so laughed at him and made a remark that the big rooster was not of a breed that fights.

"Fought! fought!" said Mike in great scorn. "Yer the luv av th' saints, will ye just lok at the scale av it" and, at an extra clamor from the yard, he turned and pointed out of the window. "Oh-hly lumborin burg-er av the divil, runnin' away from that carakatore av a rooster. If y' can't fought, an' won't fought, phwy, in th' name av hivin, don't y' sit up on yure porch an phail on him?"

NEW JERSEY CHESS ASSOCIATION.

The Ninth Annual Tournament to be Held on Washington's Birthday.

The ninth annual tournament of the New Jersey Chess Association will be held on Washington's birthday at the Abegyon club house, Elizabeth. The first prize for the championship and the custody of the "C. H. Waterbury Cup" will be open to all resident players of the State, in addition to the custody of the "Waterbury Cup" a prize will be awarded to the winner of the tournament, which shall be his personal property. Appropriate prizes for second, third, fourth, fifth and sixth places will be awarded to the winners in their order. The play will begin promptly at 10 a. m.

The Women's Relief Corps.

The work of the Department Convention of the W. R. C., yesterday at Trenton, was confined to the election of officers, and the finishing up of the business left on the calendar from the previous day. The following officers were chosen:

LOVE AND MONEY GONE.

PROBABLY $100,000 IS MISSING.

He Was the President of the Village, but Used the Bank's Funds to Boom Western Horse Lots and Lost—His Threat to Commit Suicide Not Taken Seriously.

WATKINS, N. Y., Feb. 10.—The greatest sensation that has been created in Watkins and the surrounding country in years was caused when the doors of the First National bank were closed and the following startling announcement was posted on them:

Closed because the cashier has run away.

The cashier was John W. Love, the president of the village and for several years one of the leading men of the place. It has been learned that Love left Watkins some time Thursday night, and the amount which he took with him from the bank's vaults is estimated at about $50,000.

For some time Love and others of this place have been interested in a city boom at West Muncie, Ind., and it is generally believed that he became involved through speculation there. Love is 35 years old and has a family. The bank has many depositors in Watkins and vicinity, and groups of men are to be seen on every corner discussing the matter.

Love left a letter for his brother James, stating that he was insane and would kill himself by shooting or jumping into the lake, but this is thought to be a bluff on account of his taking all the bank's funds.

It is reported that there was $10,000 of state money in the bank. The funds of the town of Dix were also there. The excitement has been intensified by the finding of Love's coat and hat on the dock at McGee's boathouse. It is rumored that a Watkins girl to whom Love was attentive is also missing.

Said He Would Commit Suicide.

When James Love went to the postoffice and got his mail, he received a letter from his brother, John Love, who for 10 years had been cashier of the bank, saying that his accounts were short; that the books had been falsified; that he was unable any longer to bear up under the strain; that no one else was to blame; that he had brought the trouble entirely upon himself, and that he was going away and would commit suicide by jumping into Seneca lake or by shooting.

James Love quickly communicated the news to the bank officers, and a hasty examination showed that there was less than $5,000 in cash in the bank. Further quick examination over other books showed a shortage of upward of $100,000. The comptroller of currency was notified, and he replied by ordering the bank closed, awaiting the arrival of an examiner, and this was done.

John Love succeeded his father in the bank, and the family has always had considerable stock in it. He had the entire confidence of the officers and was given excessive control.

A few years ago he became largely interested in the West Muncie (Ind.) Improvement company, and this is believed to have taken the money. The company bought a big tract of land, platted it into a mammoth town, built some factories and made an effort to get up a land boom. Hard times came, and the lots, it is said, were a drug in the market. It is believed that Love carried them as long as the bank's money held out, and then, seeing inevitable discovery and disgrace upon him, he was criminally responsible, he decamped.

Kissed His Wife and Disappeared.

Love attended to business Thursday as usual and was home to dinner, after which he affectionately kissed his wife and bade goodby and said that he was going to Penn Yan to attend a Red Men's banquet.

Later some acquaintances saw him waiting toward the depot, and to them he said that he was going away. This was the last seen of him, but there are few people who believed that he took the train, as he was well known to all the Northern Central railroad employees, and none can be found who saw him on the train. It is believed if he went away that he was driven out of town, and there are many who think friends of his could tell more about his whereabouts than they do if they were willing.

The bank and many village depositors and a large patronage from the farmers. It is claimed by officers that the honesty will be able to pay 100 cents on the dollar, but conservative men shake their heads and predict that the disaster will be more widespread than is now surmised.

Love was a popular young man and apparently devoted to his family. He never drank, and spread the rumor that his race horse he is not known to have had any extravagant habits. If he gambled or speculated to stock, the people of Watkins do not know it. In fact his disappearance and the revelation following were a complete surprise. Since the receipt by his brother of the letter stating that he had taken the bank's funds no word has been obtained, but this is not surprising, as he had an all night start, and it was not until afternoon that the authorities woke up and telegraphed a description of him to New York and other cities.

RUSSIAN PRISON HORRORS.

A Convict Island Worse Than the Mines of Siberia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 12.—The government commission appointed to investigate the alleged scandals in the convict prison at Onor, on the island of Sakhalien, has issued a report which unfolds a terrible tale of suffering and crime. It shows that in this prison there have been instances without number of horrible cases of beating and lopping off of fingers and arms by saber strokes, while cannibalism, under stress of famine, has been of commonest occurring. Murder, followed by cannibalism, has been frequent, with the sole object of ending a miserable existence.

It is related that there even have been cases where several convicts have endeavored to be convicted of murder when in fact they were not guilty of any such crime. During the whole year of 1893 there was an almost continuous string of convoys carrying the corpses of convicts from Onor to Rykovskaya, the residence of the authorities.

In nearly every case the bodies were so mutilated that they presented a pitiful spectacle and moved the persons who looked upon them to tears and words of indignation. The bodies were interred without the slightest inquiry on the part of the authorities as to how the wounds were inflicted.

The neglect of the prisoners at Onor is said to have been most shameful and criminal. No doctor ever visited the institution, and convicts who failed to perform their work on account of physical incapacity were placed on half diet in the place called hospital, and when it became apparent that they would be unable to perform further duty they were dispatched like animals with a revolver by the inspector and were registered on the prison books as having died from a disease. The principal author of the atrocities, it is asserted, is a former convict of the name of Shakoff, who was a favorite of the district commandant and was promoted to inspector general.

VICAR GENERAL CASEY DEAD.

He Was a Hero During the Smallpox Scourge in Erie.

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 10.—The Very Rev. Father Thomas A. Casey, vicar general of the diocese of Erie, died here. He was born in St. Catharines, Ont., Jan. 1, 1846. He was ordained a priest in 1869 and for a number of years served missions in the then rough and booming oil regions. He came to Erie in 1872 and lived here since.

He did more than any one man to beat out the smallpox scourge of 1873. He acted as nurse and many times drove dead cats and dog graves in connection with his duties as priest. He was a man of vast wealth and gave very liberally to all Catholic institutions. His private list of benefactions amounted to $3,000 a year. He leaves an estate of $250,000. His father was a wealthy railroad contractor.

Triple Lynching.

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 10.—A special from Conway says: Meager details of a triple lynching have reached here from Van Buren county which took place in what is known as the Golden Head Bronco and Bob and Charlie Plunkett were the victims of a mob's vengeance. It is said the three men had killed and robbed an old couple whose names are not given, and for this crime they were lynched.

Big Ship to Be Launched at Bath.

BATH, Me., Feb. 10.—The big sailing ship built by A. Sewell & Co. of this city will be launched today and will honor the state of Maine by bearing her motto as a name, "Dirigo" ("I Lead"). She is the first of her class ever built in New England. The vessel is a four masted schooner, and her measurements are: Length, 312 feet; breadth, 43.15; depth, 25.6; gross tonnage, 3,004.80; net tonnage, 2,855.79.

A Mistake Drove Him to Suicide.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 10.—Captain W. F. Drake of the schooner Angie C. Chase was found dead in his bunk. A pistol lay by his side, and there was a hole through his head. His schooner had been libeled because he had made a mistake in delivering a cargo of railroad iron. The captain's mistake drove him to suicide.

Raid Express Thieves Captured.

COTTOLENE IS MADE TO EAT

Made from clarified oil, expressed from Cottons Seed—as pure and golden as the Southern Sunshine which produces it.

For convenience in handling, there is added to this oil enough beef suet to make it a semi-solid.

The combination of these two pure natural products makes Cottolene, a shortening and cooking fat, with which in healthfulness, cleanliness, flavor and economy, nothing in the world can compare.

IMITATIONS are MADE TO SELL

To sell on the merits of the genuine. To sell by substitution; or by deception. To sell to the injury of the genuine, to the dissatisfaction of the consumer, to the detriment of the dealer, to the loss of all concerned—except the scheming counterfeiter himself.

If you wish the best food and the best health, you should insist that your cooking be done with genuine Cottolene. Refuse all counterfeits.

Sold in 3 and 5 pound pails.

WILSON ILL IN CHICAGO.

The Struggle to Pass His Bill Leaves Him With a Throat Trouble.

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Chairman Wilson of the ways and means committee is seriously ill at the Palmer House with a throat affection. The doctor says that Mr. Wilson's illness is not necessarily dangerous. Congressman Wilson is accompanied by his wife and daughter and Congressman J. C. Tarsney of Missouri.

The party is on its way to Mexico, where Mr. Wilson hopes to recuperate from the worry of the prospective defeat of his tariff bill. En route to Cuernga he was taken with a chill, and on his arrival at the hotel he was compelled to secure medical assistance.

Dr. Evans diagnosed the trouble as tonsilitis and advised him to remain quiet for a day or two. Dr. Evans said that Mr. Wilson's illness is not dangerous, though it might be aggravated into something serious by the neglect to take a needed rest in the mild climate of Mexico, where his trouble will quickly yield to the changed conditions.

Mr. Wilson's physician strongly urged him to remain quiet for a few days, but he declared that the sooner he was in a warm climate the sooner he would recover, and he continued on his journey to Mexico.

CONVERTED A PRINCE.

A Royal Russian Recruit For the Salvation Army.

WILL WAR ON SIN IN SIBERIA

Prince Gallitzine Not One of Booth's Brown Paper Leaders in Washington and Decided to Turn the Ruble at Once—Stopped Here on a Trip Around the World.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—The forces of the Salvation Army have just been strengthened by one of the most notable converts it has ever had. This time it is a member of the royal family, Prince Gallitzine of Russia, who has succumbed to the earnest requests of the lads and lasses to live a better life. Prince Gallitzine has not only been converted, but has consecrated himself to the work of the army for life. He will thus leave his family connections, reflect all earthly honors and give up home, luxuries and comfort for the salvation of mankind in Siberia.

Prince Gallitzine was first heard of in this country when he arrived in Washington early in October. It was his first visit to America, and he intended remaining here a year.

He was on a journey around the world for the Imperial Geographical society of St. Petersburg, which city he left nearly three years ago. He has been to India, Thibet, China and Japan and crossed the Pacific to San Francisco, where he arrived in September.

Converted by a Lassie.

At Washington he was warmly greeted by society. He attracted much attention by saying that his next journey would be from the eastern terminus of the transSiberian railway along its proposed route to Behring straits, crossing into Alaska, he would try to pass through British Columbia into the United States. During his stay in Washington, Prince Gallitzine happened one evening to attend a meeting of the Salvation Army.

He was impressed with their ways, and when he went east last week Staff Captain Patty Watkins of this city was in charge of the meeting. Staff Captain Watkins is a beautiful young woman, with large, soul-lit brown eyes. The eloquent of those eyes and the soulful pleading of her words—to the prince, and he declared that he was converted.

The prince caressed all his Washington companions and came to New York on Thursday. He registered at the Windsor hotel. Then he went direct to the Salvation Army headquarters on Rondo street, where he had a long talk with Commander and Mrs. Ballington Booth. As he declined to attend a meeting Thursday night, he was taken to the army citidal on Fourth avenue, opposite Eighth street, where Captain Patty Watkins is in charge.

The two met again, and near the end of the meeting the prince came forward and consecrated himself to the army.

Will Work in Siberia.

Early yesterday morning Prince Galitzine again went to headquarters and became a member of the Auxiliary league, which is tantamount to joining the army without taking up the uniform. He told Commander Booth he was going to stay with the army for life and had in prospect the opening of salvation work in Russia and Siberia. Over this district Commander Booth has no jurisdiction, so he bade the prince see his father, the general, in London. The prince accordingly has set aside all his plans for geographical research and will sail today for London on the Umbria.

The prince is a tall, stout young man, 40 years old, with soft, refined features and expressive brown eyes. His form is somewhat marred by the absence of his right arm, which he lost by an accident in Paris 12 years ago. He has a mustache and a luxuriant growth of black whisker. His father, who is dead, was aide-de-camp to the czar. His family are descendants of the kings of Lithuania. His immediate family consists of three sisters—Princess Lieven, wife of a former cabinet minister; Mrs. Schwabline, wife of one of the aid de-camps to the czar, and Mrs. Rumen, a widow.

CHILDREN'S FEEDING.

NOURISHMENT NECESSARY FOR GOOD TEETH, BONES AND MUSCLES.

Too Profuse a Use of Superfine White Flour Sows the Seeds of Debility, Dyspepsia and Deformity and Checks the Development of Brain and Nerves.

From nothing, nothing comes. If children are to have good teeth, bones and muscles, they must be fed on food which contains an adequate supply of nourishment for the above structures; otherwise they are half starved and are quite sure to be troubled in after life with decaying teeth, contracted jaws, crooked spines and legs and delicate muscles. In an article in The Tribune not long ago it was represented that the teeth of the American and English children and young people are becoming more and more defective. We have not to look for the chief cause of the decaying teeth which often crowd the poorly developed jaws of the rising generation.

Today our child'en are fed largely upon bread, cakes, pie crusts and puddings made from the finest white superfine flour, which has been robbed of the rolled and bolted from wheat and rye. A careful analysis of these grains shows that immediately beneath the hull lies the dark portion of the kernel, which is hard, and very difficult to grind or roll into a fine flour, and more or less of it is quite sure to remain in contact with the bran, and in bolting the bran out of it is mostly separated from the fine flour. Now, this dark portion thus disposed of contains in excess the very substances required to nourish the teeth, bones, muscles and brain—namely, the gluten and phosphates—whereas the central or white portion of the grain contains an excess of starch, which is easily pulverized and by bolting gives the superfine white flour.

The superfine white flour is composed of an undue portion of starch, which where in proper proportion, as it exists in the grain, is useful in supplying heat and fat producing material, but it does not contain enough teeth, bone, muscle, brain and nerve nourishing materials to sustain animal life for any considerable length of time. Consequently superfine white flour will keep in barrels and bags for a long time without being disturbed by insects, worms or must, whereas the unbolted meal will not keep for any great length of time without becoming unpleasant to the taste. Magendi, one of the most eminent physiologists who have ever lived, demonstrated by experiments that animals fed exclusively upon the finest superfine flour died in a few weeks, whereas those fed on unbolted flour thrived. During the study and practice of medicine for over 30 years the worst cases of scurvy I have ever seen occurred in a girl 5 or 6 years old, who for some weeks would eat nothing but toast made from superfine flour bread. I only rescued her from death by requiring her mother to mix mashed potatoes with the flour from which her bread was made.

Imperfect development of the teeth, bones, muscles, brain and nerves is the inevitable result which follows if children are fed largely on superfine white flour cooked in any form, and deformity, dyspepsia and debility in after life. If parents care for the present health and development and for the comfort of their children in after life, they should never let any superfine flour or bread or cakes made from such flour enter the house where their children dwell. It is difficult to imagine the immense injury to the present and rising generation which is being done by the use of superfine white flour, and the whiter the poorer it is. It should be banished from use, and it is being banished steadily by intelligent and liberal minded people who are not slaves to habit and fashion. I have known a man when trying to walk a mile to get a loaf of graham bread rather than eat white bread. To those who have been accustomed to eat graham bread, sparkling eyes, white bread is tasteless and without substance and altogether unsatisfactory.

Wherever people live on unbolted wheat or rye flour or meal they have good teeth, bones or muscles. I will remember, when in Egypt in 1884, at Thebes, the little Arab girl who, with a bowl of water upon her head, ran over the sand, stones, rocks and hills as we rode upon our donkeys to visit the tombs of the kings, for she had splendid teeth, sparkling eyes and a beautiful and well developed waist, symmetrical in form and graceful in every movement. On a visit to the home of one Arab shopkeeper, or guide, to look at some curiosities which had been obtained from the tombs of the ancient Egyptians, we saw two women grinding at a mill and making the kind of flour which that young girl ate.

There were two millstones, perhaps 18 or 20 inches in diameter, standing in a tray, with an opening through the centre of the upper one for pouring in the grain and at opposite sides erect handles. The women took hold of these handles and turned the upper stone around and around and back and forth, and the flour, or meal, came out between the outer edges of the stones.

I said to our guide: "We have not had a bit of good bread in Egypt, for at the hotels at which we have stopped they think that they must furnish superfine flour bread for foreigners to eat. Now, I want you to make us a loaf of bread from that flour and bring it to our hotel tomorrow, and I will pay you for your trouble." He did so, and it was the best bread we had in Egypt.

It is wonderful to see the improvement in health, development and vitality which frequently comes with delicate, sickly children and even old dyspeptics, who have been living largely upon unbolted wheat or rye flour bread or pudding. But if the stomach and bowels are weak from the want of proper nourishment, or if they are irritable or inflamed, then for a limited time, or until they gain strength and health from the use of this more nourishing food, it is necessary either to sift out with a coarse sieve the coarsest of the bran from graham flour or to obtain flour which has been ground from wheat which has been hulled before grinding, which can be had in some of our cities. If this caution is not heeded by those beginning the use of graham or unbolted flour, it will not infrequently, in the cases named above, prove too irritating at first and its use abandoned and condemned, but for strong, healthy children and adults this flour, bran and all, is just right, as the Lord intended it.—Dr. John Ellis in New York Tribune.

A Stitch In Time.

A small amount of time devoted to examining the house linen each week before sending it to the laundry is very well spent. A small tear in the linen before washing often means a very large one on its return and very often proves to be too large to repair. I also consider that the appearance of clean table linen is spoiled if it is mended before use.

Flowers For the Sickroom.

Druggists ask, "For what purpose is it wanted?" and the same inquiry is made by the New York florist. Bridal flowers are white and fragrant, funeral blossoms are white or green and may or may not be scented, gift bouquets levy on the wealth of Flora, table flowers are distinctively gay, but seentless, and in the selection of favors for the sick preference is given to the same class of goods. The odor of lilies, hyacinths, heliotrope and even roses, so delightful to the healthy, is often oppressive to the patient. Tuberoses, with their overpowering scent, will cause some of persons restlessness of body and distress of mind. Doctors and nurses know this, and so do the progressive flower merchants. In making up an order a variety of color is sought after for the sickroom, with a profusion of delicate foliage, particularly trailing vines, palm branches and ferns. Green is restful to the eyes, red stimulates, yellow tires, and blue is soothing in its effect. Cut flowers displayed in a tumbler or long stemmed glass vase are doubly charming to the tired patient.—New York Journal.

Arrangement of Pictures.

You may not be able perhaps to achieve any marked originality in the arrangement of your goods and chattels, but one direction at least you can be different from other people. This difference lies in the way you hang the pictures on your walls. Every home has a variety of. If its one or so chooses, impress you with a new and charming taste that is indescribably pleasing. This has a marvelous talent in this direction. You never see the pictures in her rooms stung out in a straight line or hung on the right side to correspond with those on the left. Sometimes she will have a large picture and two smaller ones to one side, the third a little lower than the second, but you may rest assured they are never arranged like a mother holding a child by each hand. We all know the way pictures are generally placed over a mantel—a single one or two panels and a square frame. She will have none of this geometrical fixing, but distributes large and small in such a way that you think you have never seen pictures hung artistically before.—Philadelphia Times.

Sorosis Among the Quakeresses.

To the cultivated and gentle Quaker ladies of Sandy Springs belongs the honor of having a woman's organization which was formed in 1857. It is called a Woman's Association For Mutual Improvement, and with few exceptions this society, without a president, constitution or bylaws, has met the last Thursday in every month since it started. Its purpose is to bring together the women who live on neighboring farms and have no sufficient opportunities for social intercourse. Each member is expected to bring some contribution to the entertainment, and an apostrophe to the dying year may be followed by a new method of making soft yeast and an extract from Huxley by a question as to the care of young chickens. During six months of the year the vegetable and flower gardens are generally inspected at the club meetings, which convene at noon, and after luncheon and an evening supper the morning's session is devoted to the discussion of some subject selected at the previous meeting. Last year the subject was "Home," this year it is "Woman's Work in the Home." Each member is expected to write a paper on the subject assigned her, and these are read and discussed at the meetings.—New York Tribune.

Literary Teas.

Every club worthy of the name has its tea hour, even if this precedes the home dinner hour only by a short space of time. There are the Lemuel teas, the Press club teas, the Cambridge club teas, the Brooklyn Woman's club teas and many, many others. The Women's University club teas are held at the fleshier Ladies' Athletic club parlors on the last Saturday afternoon of each month from October to May and are noted for the number of celebrities present on these occasions. College teas are a new phase of the fad, but cultured Cambridge has nothing more delightful socially than the Wednesday afternoon teas at the Fay House, where Mrs. Agassiz receives, assisted by some of the annex girls. The main use of table decorations at most of the teas is to start conversation. For this purpose a gold and white china plate has the portrait of some famous beauty, as that of Mme. du Barry or Mme. Recamier, or the teapot has an inscription, or the spoons are from many foreign cities.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Favorites of the Queen.

Lady Southampton is the brown eyed beauty who constituted one of the principal ornaments of the court of Dublin during her father's term of office as viceroy of Ireland. She was known in the days prior to her marriage as Lady Hilda Dunbar, and her father is the Marquis of Zetland. She is of medium height, of pale complexion, aquiline nose, luxuriant brown hair and a very pleasing manner. An officer of the Prince of Wales' regiment of hussars, Lord Southampton, is a particular favorite of the queen, just like his mother and sister. Of these Lord Hilda Dunbar is a lady in waiting to her majesty, while the latter, now the Hon. Mrs. Crutchley, was until the time of her marriage a maid of honor at court. It was Mrs. Crutchley, by the bye, who was the first of the society women in London to inaugurate the fashionable craze of skirt dancing, her debut being made at the burlesque entertainment given by the guards in behalf of the regimental orphans.—Exchange.

Work For the Artistic Girl.

Mrs. Sallie Joy White tells a pretty story in The Golden Rule of the first shop window, so far as is known, ever dressed by women. Mr. Edward Filene, a progressive young merchant on Washington street, Boston, conceived the idea that the dressing of such windows would be a suitable and remunerative occupation for women. Accordingly he experimented, with the result that one day an artistic "picture window" in the front of his store attracted an admiring crowd. It represented a lady's dressing room, with all the toilet articles scattered about. Madame herself —a beautiful waxen representation—was seated in front of the mirror, while the maid gave the finishing touches to the becoming coiffure. It was the work of women, and it proved what Mr. Filene had claimed—that here was a new field of work for the artistic girl.

Mrs. Lozier on Suffrage.

Mrs. Jennie de la M. Lozier, president of the New York Sorosis, writes in Demorest's Magazine: "I do not expect to see woman suffrage come upon the stage arm in arm with the millennium. If the movement effects any reform, it will be the reclaiming of national buildings and thoroughfares from their masculine uncleanliness. I anticipate a national housecleaning such as this country has never beheld, and the cleaners, a vast army, fully armed with mops, brooms and buckets, will be made up not of men, but of women. Why not? In private homes the housekeeper is a woman. Why should not the housekeeper in our national homes be also a woman?"

Come Hig With a Grip.

A correspondent tells of a unique experience at a hotel where he stopped once for dinner:

There sat next to me a prominent member of the local community—one of those genial souls whose new hats are stentorian attached running down into his legs. For the first 10 minutes I tried to keep up with my fellow diner, but was distanced in no time. I gave up the race and sat down to watch my rival gorge himself, and he did it to perfection. Everything went, from soup to pie, and scores of times I went to several times. Finally his vacuum was filled, and the farmer passed out to the desk, where he planked down a quarter.

"Thank you," said the fresh country lass who was officiating as banker.

I came next and put up the same ante as my former companion had.

"Half dollar," said the maiden as she shook her head at the coin I had tendered.

"What for? The farmer sat right by me, ate three times as much as I did and only paid a quarter. Why do I have to pay a half dollar?"

The query was evidently one too many for the girl, for she retired to the washroom and bawled out:

"Paw, this man wants to know why you charge him half a dollar and only charge farmers a quarter."

"Paw" emerged from the lavatory, evidently bent upon having a row, but the limpidness of my darter's jet-black-whereyou-write-ink eyes melted his anger, and he approached me very gently.

"You had a grip, didn't you?"

"Yes, I did, but I parried it up from the depot myself."

"That don't make no difference. Can't no man with a grip eat in this house for less than half a dollar."—Nebraska State Journal.

COLONIAL HISTORY.

PROF. JOHN FISKE'S SECOND LECTURE.

In His Course at the Chapel of the Crescent Avenue Church, on the Lords' Proprietary and Their Domain.

The second one of Prof. John Fiske's free lectures was given in the chapel of the Crescent avenue church Saturday night, on "The Lords' Proprietary and Their Domain."

The speaker told of the founding of Maryland, in 1633. Lord Baltimore had been granted a tract of land lying along the Potomac, but before he received the royal seal he died. It was then issued to his son, one of whom became the first governor of Maryland in 1634. In the founding of Maryland there was a change of method in the establishing of colonies. Sir Walter Raleigh had tried the individual plan in the founding of Virginia, and next the stock companies tried their luck.

Maryland was founded under the original proprietary form of government, under which the entire risk was shifted upon the shoulders of the proprietors. Their introduction of a different type of government proved very fruitful at first.

Lord Baltimore favored universal toleration. This was, due greatly to the condition of circumstances. He was a Roman Catholic as well as many in the colony. Others of the settlers, who happened to be a majority, were Protestants, so each party had to tolerate the other.

The colony contained many men of wisdom and of high character. The toleration rules proved favorable to the colony, for it grew in wealth and population. Among the new population, however, there came a lot of Puritans. The Puritans could not tolerate the Roman Catholics, for to abide with a Catholic seemed to these Puritans like familiarity with the devil.

Trouble broke out between these two classes when Leonard Calvert asked a ship which proved to be built to a Puritan pirate. This caused the Puritans to overthrow the government and wrest the control from the Catholics. The Puritans were aided by forces from Virginia.

Several years afterward Lord Baltimore again established the toleration government. At length the puritans undermined the government and toleration law was abolished. Catholics were forbidden to enter the colony.

England finally levied a tax on the colonists to help support the church of England. Puritans did not like this any better than the toleration law, so they united with the Catholics against the paying of the tax. Eventually the fourth Lord Baltimore restored the old toleration government, and so it endured up to the time of the revolution. Like Virginia the principal product was tobacco. In 1745 the poor crop of tobacco led many to sow wheat and soon this became the leading crop.

The speaker then told of the granting of large tracts of land to Lord Albemarle and others further south, which they held as Lord's Proprietary.

ANOTHER FIRE IN A STORE.

Origin of a Saturday Night's Fire Unknown.

There was another mysterious fire Saturday in a store kept by a man named Goldstein on East Front street, in the building recently vacated by Terrill & Cale, the undertakers.

At about half past eleven o'clock a man hurried up to R. J. Shaw, just as he was closing his store, and told him there was a fire on Front street.

Mr. Shaw sent in an alarm from box 12, corner of Front and Somerset streets, calling out the fire apparatus.

The firemen laid three lines of hose and soon had the fire extinguished.

The building was not damaged to any extent, but the contents were ruined.

The cause is unknown.

REDUCING EXPENSES.

The Central Railroad's New Rule With Freight Handlers.

The Central Railroad Company is reducing expenses all along the line.

The first to feel it here were the crews on the drill engine who were put on half time about a month ago. Next Jacob Wagner, assistant baggage-master, was laid off, after many years of continuous service.

Now the freight handlers are to be reduced. The four men employed at the freight house beginning with to-day, are to work on short time. The men are to take turns in laying off a week of. Each will thus make three weeks a month.

Mrs. Grobleusky Receives $2,000.

Recorder Norman C. Magee of Central Lodge, No 68, Ancient Order of United Workmen, to-day paid Mrs. Anna Grobleusky $2,000 as a death claim for the death of her husband, John Grobleusky, who committed suicide on December 30th last. Mrs Grobleusky deposited the money in the bank.

A Raffle at Campbell's.

At Campbell's Club House, Saturday night, a horse, a lot of oranges and several turkeys and chickens were raffled off.

The horse, valued at $200, was won by Mr. Carpenter of Poughkeepsie, on a throw of 41.

FELL FROM A HAY MOW.

Mr James McNabb Injured This Morning.

Mr. James McNabb, who lives on the Rahway road has been very unfortunate of late. Only a week ago he was injured by striking himself in the eye with a chisel.

At about 6:30 o'clock this morning Mr. McNabb was again injured. He was in the hay mow and was about to shut a door, which opened outward, when he slipped and fell. He started face downward, and on the way down he turned and landed on his side.

Two physicians were summoned, as it was feared Mr. McNabb was seriously injured, having landed upon the solidly frozen ground.

The examination made by the doctors proved that no bones were broken, but that he was only severely bruised.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE WRONGED WIFE REPLIES.

To the President of the Hod Carriers' Union.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Allow me to thank you for publishing my appeal. I am sorry that I am not in possession of any direct evidence that would help the police to capture the ring leaders at what I understand are the hod carriers' meetings.

I learned from my husband once while he was drunk that the money came out of the funds, and that the beer and whisky were purchased at a saloon and drank in the hall.

My husband had no money before going except enough to pay his dues, yet he always returned from each meeting in a condition of beastly drunkenness, which left him often unable to work for a week.

I am not the wife conjectured in Friday's News. My sorrow is all hidden with my own and my husband's people. I would advise him as an example for other drunken husbands, except for the shame it would bring upon our children. But Mr. Kelly need not affect to believe my husband is not a hod carrier, for he is. Thanking you again, I believe me, Respectfully, A WIFE.

A Little Girl's Description of a "Kind" Teacher.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Two little girls in this place were comparing notes about their school teachers recently. One attends one public school, the other another. Said one, "My teacher is just awful cranky," "Oh," said the other, "My teacher is real kind." She'll let you have the pneumonia."

Her mother overheard the conversation and, surprised, asked, "What is that?" "Why" said her daughter, "my teacher is real kind. She'll raise all the windows down from the top, and let you have pneumonia," and she emphasized this remarkable statement by coughing hard.

I send you this that public notice may be given, but I hope the little girl was mistaken, and that her teacher is not as criminally careless as the child's report would indicate. PARENT.

PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Jackson, of Crescent avenue, have returned from New York.

Mr. Jacob F. Sharp, one of Somerville's most highly respected citizens, succumbed yesterday morning to heart disease. He was a man noted for his sterling honesty and worth. He was the father-in-law of Baggage Master J. F. Garretson of this city. A wife and three children survive him. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon, at three o'clock, at the First Reformed church, Somerville.

Old Employees Dismissed.

There is a stir in the Central Railroad freight department at Elizabethport over the discharge of old employees which have followed the dismissal of Major Charles McGinley, who for seven years was freight agent. Last week the Major's son, Harry, who was freight clerk, was discharged.

Friday, John Collins, who for thirty-seven years has been watchman at the freight-house, and about whose integrity there never has been any question, was told his services were no longer required. Saturday night John McGrath, who for thirty-eight years has helped to take charges of freight, was given his dismissal.

Powell, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Hall, of the Association.

The meeting was a large and enthusiastic one. A number of new members were received. Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, President of the Association, occupied the chair.

LANDED IN A NEIGHBOR'S YARD.

How a Dog Hung Himself and Got Loose.

A dog kept by George Baker, of Warren street, North Plainfield, tied close to a picket fence, caught a collar on a picket of the fence and hung himself until the collar broke, letting him fall into a neighbor's yard. Children playing there became so alarmed that one of them, in trying to get out of the dog's way, fell down and scratched her face. Thinking that her child was bitten, the mother of the child lodged a complaint with Chief Pangborn, who promised to look after the matter and see that the dog was more securely fastened in the future.

Pythian Grand Lodge.

St. Valentine's Day.

St. Valentine's day occurs next Wednesday. Valentines are abundant, and no doubt the handsome love missives will be in demand by amatory youths. The drawback to the practice of sending valentines is the misuse made of what are known as the "comics," which, while intended to be funny, are very frequently used for the purpose of giving expression to malicious and very often slanderous sentiments. They are not valentines, and to give them that name is a shameful abuse of the term.

Teachers Examined.

For the past three Saturdays examinations have been held at the Court house of Trenton, of all applicants for position as teachers in Mercer county public school. Although the number of applicants was only eighteen some very high averages were reached and eleven of them very successful.

Among the members reports favorably was the application of Miss Grant, daughter of Chief of Police Grant of this city.

Ten Workmen Wanted.

Mr. Coddington, of the Plainfield Cold Storage Company, has received the following telegram, which we publish as an aid to any suitable men needing work.

MARCONNIER SHORT LIVED.

Old Residents of Oak Tree Rebelled Against a New Name.

Four years ago when the Lehigh Valley Railroad built a branch road from South Plainfield to Roselle they erected several small stations along the new road. One at Oak Tree, a small country place of a half dozen houses and a store, the company named "Marconnier." This aroused the ire of the majority of farmers in old Oak Tree, who have been unable to keep the old name, which they prized more than the railroad.

Ever since the station had been named the Oak Tree people have been trying to get the company to change the name to Oak Tree. At last Mr. Oliver Kelly was successful in securing the desired result, and Marconnier is no more.

A petition is now being circulated to also have the post office changed to Oak Tree.

From Newspaper Files.

Mr. Andrew D. Mellick, Jr., of this city has a two column article in the Newark Advertiser of Saturday, on "The World Fifty Years Ago," with the following introduction:

"To most persons who, in life's journey, reach the decade separating the old age of youth from the youth of old age—between the fortieth and fiftieth birthdays—there comes the knowledge of the possession of antiquarian tastes. Having now the world both before and behind them, they find a new pleasure in looking back through the vista of years, and especially in picturing in the mind the appearance a familiar place, and society must have presented in a day and age antedating that of their own memories.

"No such retrospection is more fruitful than through the medium of old newspaper files, whose musty columns unfold to the eyes of an interested investigator a fascinating picture of the daily life and experiences in times long out of date."

Union County Teachers Meet.

The Union County Teachers' Association met Saturday morning in Elizabeth. L. A. Goodenough of South Plainfield presided. There was a large attendance of teachers and a number of persons interested in educational work. The devotional exercises began at 9.30 o'clock, and there was a short business meeting. Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh of Philadelphia was then introduced, and delivered an interesting and instructive address on "Practical Pedagogy." After recess Miss L. C. Harris entertained with a vocal solo. Dr. Brumbaugh then gave an address on "Literature in the Public Schools." Miscellaneous business followed.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties.—Brief, but Newsy.

A Babe Thrown in the Ocean.

A number of children playing on the beach opposite Tennessee avenue Long Branch yesterday morning were startled by seeing the body of an infant washed up at their feet. Officer Whelan took it to the city undertaker, where it was found to be a big colored baby, not more than two days old. An iron spike weighing about five pounds was tied around its neck. The infant had been thrown into the ocean from the pier the previous night. The police are working on the case and expect to find the mother.

A Revival Wave.

Metuchen was struck by a revival wave last week, and 82o persons have professed conversion. The meetings were conducted by Evangelist Ralph Gillans, and were held day and night in the various churches. The entire business of the town was suspended during the hours of services every afternoon, merchants closing their stores to attend them.

Evangelist Thomas Harrison began the fourth week of his revival services in the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Jersey City, yesterday. Great crowds attended all the meetings. Over one hundred conversions have been reported. In the Methodist Episcopal Church the Rev. Mr. Gaskeck began a series of revival services yesterday.

Probably Jumped into the River.

The body of an unknown woman was found in the Passaic River near the West street bridge, Paterson, yesterday by the watchmen in the Broomhend Mill. She was about forty-five years old. It is supposed the woman lived in the eastern part of the city, near the factories, and that she jumped into the millrace, which carried her body to the point where it was found. The body was removed to Hinde's morgue.

Started at Reduced Wages.

The employees of the Springfield Worsted Mills, Bordentown, which opened two weeks ago after being closed for six months, taking on some unemployed help, have made a reduction in wages. Those receiving $15 and over a week have been cut 20 per cent., and those under the above amount 10 per cent.

Theatrical Notes.

Professor Darling has just received notice from Athens in Greece of the death of an old colleague in the animal training business named Henry Ruther. On January 13th Ruther went into the cage in Montenegro's Menagerie with three tigers which have been taught to perform. The instant he put his foot in the cage in front of a very large audience the tigers sprang at him and knocked him down. Before help in any way could reach him the infuriated beasts had torn him all to pieces. They made a grab for his breast and it was asserted that they actually tore out his lungs.

"This is the first time in some years that a man has been killed outright by wild animals in a cage," said professor Darling. "As a rule we trainers get really acquainted and any one of us wounds afterwards. There is no man who can withstand the charge of these animals if they once get loose. I am very sorry to hear of Ruther's death, but there is no telling when anyone of us may get a similar notice by a box instead of a bouquet."

Hagenbeck's Trained animals only have a short time to remain at Luttersalz, Fiftieth street and Seventh avenue, New York. The house will be open only to see the wonderful performances.

OFF WEEK IN CONGRESS

Only Two Matters of Importance on the Programme.

PREPARING FOR A TARIFF FIGHT.

Senate Clearing Desks for Lively Action When the Bill Is Reported—Peckham's Nomination May Be Settled Soon—To Vote on Bland's Bill Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—There will be an effort on the part of the senate during the present week to clear up the calendar so far as possible previous to taking up the tariff bill, which, when it is reported to the senate, is expected to exclude the consideration of most other subjects. The speechmaking during the week is to be devoted to a variety of topics, including the Stewart bond resolution, the Turpie Hawaiian resolution and probably the resolution of Senator Hale instructing the committee on finance to grant hearings on the tariff bill.

The speeches on the Stewart resolution will be made during the morning hour and the Hawaiian speeches later in the day. Senators Gray and Daniel have given notice of speeches on the Hawaiian resolution for today, and Senator White of California is among others who probably will address the senate later in the week on this topic.

The bill to compel railroad corporations operating roads in the territories over rights of way granted by the government to establish stations at all town sites established by the interior department is the unfinished business on the calendar, and when it is disposed of the bill to provide for additional appropriations for the government printing office will be taken up and acted on as soon as practicable. There will also be a general effort on the part of the senate to get rid of a mass of bills of minor general importance taken from the calendar and passed.

It is charged in the committee on the judiciary will dispose of the Peckham nomination today, and if so there will in all probability be at least one day during the week devoted to an executive session for the purpose of passing upon this nomination.

Silver In the House.

It is expected that the consideration of the Bland seigniorage bill will be commenced in the house on Wednesday. Today is District of Columbia day, but by special order the time after 3 o'clock has been set aside for paying tribute to the memory of the late Senator Hansbrough, and a fight will probably be made for the three hours previous by Mr. Bland.

When the Bland bill reaches a vote, the general expectation is that it will pass after having been modified in certain particulars to meet the objections of Secretary Carlisle, and by him some latitude and discretion in the issue of treasury notes against the seigniorage and in the coinage of the bullion.

On Thursday the O'Neill-Joy contested election case will come up, and by agreement six hours will be devoted to debate on it. Mr. O'Neill will probably be seated by almost a strict party vote. The remainder of the week will be devoted to the fortifications appropriation bill.

When the Tariff Bill Will Be Reported.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Members of the senate finance committee say that there has been a great deal of misinformation sent out about the time when the tariff bill will be reported to the senate. It is true that the time could possibly be fixed for reporting the bill until the full committee came together. Besides, the bill cannot be reported yet from the subcommittee, and the members of that committee cannot tell when it will be.

It is also said that while it is from time to time announced that an agreement has been reached on certain schedules, as a matter of fact nothing is definitely arranged, and there has been done so far is subject to change by the subcommittee while it has charge of the bill and by the Democratic membership when they come to consider the bill in the full committee. The only thing that seems to be settled definitely is that the intention is to make the bill provide sufficient revenue for the government, and to this end articles will be taken from the free list, and increases will be made in some directions.

The Peckham Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Nothing seems so much in the way of the Peckham case before Judiciary committee on the nomination of Wheeler H. Peckham for associate justice of the supreme court. It is expected that the committee will decide today. The committee's decision is likely to be the decision of the senate. This is especially true if the committee should decide in favor of Peckham. Senator Hill alone has been confident from the first that Peckham would not be confirmed and is now just as confident as ever. The administration is seen confident and say that there would not be the least doubt if they knew the attitude of two men on the committee. It is supposed that these men are Senators Hoar and Platt.

ANNIE PIXLEY'S DEATH.

Her Husband, R. Barr Fulford, Answers the Charges Made Against Him.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—R. Barr Fulford, husband of the well known American actress, Annie Pixley, "The Child of the Sierras," who died in London on Oct. 8 last under, it is claimed, mysterious circumstances, was a passenger on the American line steamship New York. Mr. Fulford was accompanied by his sister, Mrs. William Fraser, and by Annie Jersey, the late Miss Pixley's maid, who is charged with administering certain powders to her, thus being instrumental in causing her death into the estate, valued at from $300,000 to $400,000.

Upon the arrival of the steamship New York at quarantine Mr. Fulford was met by a reporter, who acquainted him with the serious charges which have been made against him by the Pixley family. He published during the week, as to the circumstances surrounding the death of his wife and the alleged forgeries in connection with the transfer of deeds and mortgages to himself by his wife's estate, Mr. Fulford was considerably surprised and shocked when he learned the serious nature of the charges.

"I have been living in the suburbs of London," he said, "and have seen nothing of all this. I therefore do not feel like saying very much on the subject until I have become more fully informed concerning the stories which have been circulated.

"I can say now, however," continued Mr. Fulford, "that it is all the most absurd rubbish on earth. My wife died despite the attention of two of the most skilled physicians in England. I have been quietly resting with my people in London ever since. The course of the Pixley family is no doubt due to impatience on their part because I have not hurried over here and turned over to them Annie's estate.

"In regard to the story that I caused my wife's remains to be cremated in order that no investigation could be made into the cause of her death, I can only say that she was cremated at her own special request, and I can prove this by the evidence of several people."

ALLEGED DIAMOND ROBBERS.

Three Persons Held For the Big Job In Springfield.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 12.—The police think they have found the perpetrators of the recent $15,000 diamond robbery in this city, together with his accomplices. William J. Cummings, a trunk fiim fiammer, was arrested in Boston, charged with the robbery.

He has been identified by means of a photograph for five persons whom the robber had dealings with in this city this week, but there is a twist in the chain of evidence in the testimony of Captain Gosnell of Boston, who says Cummings was in his office at 10 o'clock on the morning of the robbery.

Cummings was arrested in Boston a few days ago for a similar offence, but it late has acted as stool pigeon for the Boston police.

He will be brought here on Wednesday. Andrew J. Andrews, a graduate of Exeter, who has lived here since last May, is under arrest as an accomplice. He was arraigned in the police court and held in $5,000 bonds. William Vieta, alias H. C. Boyd, who was arrested in New York on Saturday, was a fellow student of Andrews. Known to have been in this city last week.

Another Jersey Murder Mystery.

PATTERSONBURGH, N. J., Feb. 12.—Three thousand people lined the banks of Manitua creek and watched the grapplers who were searching for the body of Charles Gans, who disappeared very mysteriously 31 days ago. Additional evidence to support the theory that Gans was murdered and his body secreted has come to light. It is known that Patrick Kerwin and Gans had a fight just previous to the latter's disappearance. Kerwin is unable to give a satisfactory account of his movements for some time subsequent to Gans's disappearance.

Took the Olympia In Tow.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—The unknown steamship which left Liverpool to have foundered on the 5th inst. to the southward of Cape Hatteras is now believed to be the Olympia of Belfast, Captain Coleman, which sailed from the north side of Dublin on the 1st inst., bound to Philadelphia, with a crew of 30 men and a cargo of 21,000 tons of coal, valued at $80,000, consigned to the Franklin Sugar Refining company.

Wilson Not Seriously Ill.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 12.—Congressman Wilson L. Wilson of West Virginia passed a quiet day in his rooms at the Coates House. Dr. D. R. Foster says his ailment is not dangerous. He does not, however, expected to leave for Mexico this morning but acting on the doctor's advice he will not leave until Wednesday or Thursday.

Fire Makes Many Homeless People.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Fire broke out in the woolen mill kept by John Hench and destroyed 10 of a double row of houses. The flames spread with great rapidity, driving the tenants out in the cold with but scanty clothing, and at one time threatened to do much greater damage to that section of the city.

Prominent Pennsylvanian Dead.

LANCASTER, Pa., Feb. 12.—Jacob Bausman, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of Lancaster county, died here after a brief illness, aged 80 years. He was one of the founders of the Lancaster cotton mills and was formerly interested in coal operation in the Shamokin region.

JUSTICE IN THE ROUGH.

In One Instance a Bloody Fight Delayed the Trial.

LYNCHERS HELD COURT ASTILY.

In Indiana the Jury Passed Judgment After the Contestants Had Fought It Out, In Tennessee a Mob Introduces Judge-Lynch With Some Variations.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Feb. 12.—Justice Criss' court at Centerville, a town 16 miles south of this city, was the scene of a bloody fight, in which knives were drawn, and almost a tragedy resulted. John All, a respected and wealthy farmer, defendant in a damage suit for $500 for coaxing William Carpenter's wife from her home, assaulted the complainant on the witness stand and broke his jaw in a pulp.

The fight lasted nearly half an hour, and the courtroom was smeared with blood. Knives were drawn, and but for the presence of mind of the justice in swearing in six constables the courtroom would undoubtedly have been turned into the scene of a fatal affray.

Wouldn't Be Called a Liar.

The trouble which led up to the courtroom fight has evidently existed for some time. William Carpenter's wife left him on Dec. 12 last, and he accused John All and Andrew Dean, both married and respected farmers, of coaxing Mrs. Carpenter from him.

Carpenter sued Dean and All for $500 damages. In his complaint he charged the defendants with paying undue attention to make her leave home. John All, during his statement of the case, was called a liar several times by Carpenter, who was listening to the testimony. All did not like the charges, and when Carpenter was called to testify he accused All's brother of stealing a cow and again called All a liar. The latter, thoroughly angry and unbearable to All, who, on being called a liar the fourth time, jumped on Carpenter and pounded his face in a horrible manner.

The jurymen, justice, attorneys and audience rushed in to part the infuriated men. A number took their coats off, and a friend of Carpenter drew a knife and threatened to stab some one.

When All was taken off Carpenter, the latter drew a knife and made a desperate effort to plunge it into All. When prevented from doing this, he attempted to leave the courtroom, as he announced, to get a gun to shoot All. A moment after the fight began the justice called out six men and swore them in as constables.

When Carpenter and All were parted, the friends of both parties waded in the fight, and the constables had difficulty in holding the men apart. Peace was restored, however, after a time, and the case of the trial was continued in the blood smeared room. From beginning to end the trial lasted six hours and resulted in a verdict in favor of Dean and All. All and Carpenter were fined for contempt. After the trial the friends of both parties gathered at the different saloons and had several fights as the outcome of the courtroom row.

A Tennessee Lynching.

JELLICO, Tenn., Feb. 12.—Henry McCreeg, a negro, assaulted Mrs. Taylor, wife of Silas Taylor, near Buckeye, and brutally beat her, leaving her nearly dead when alive. Hundreds of men searched the country all day long Saturday and on Sunday renewed the search with success. The negro was captured in Kentucky by the officers, who started with him on the train for Jacksboro jail.

At Jacksboro they were met by a mob and overpowered, and the prisoner was taken from them. The officers finally induced the mob to give McCreeg a trial before a justice of the peace. He was given a hearing in the crowd, and after going through the formalities of a trial the prisoner was pronounced guilty and ordered to jail without bail.

Before the mittimus could be written four masked men came out of Taylor's house, which was near the negro's cabin for identification by Mrs. Taylor, seized the prisoner and rushed him up the ravine. The mob kept the officers back until the four masked men had disappeared with the negro.

Several shots were soon heard, and in a short time they returned to the house to explore the thicket into which McCreeg had been taken. They soon came upon his lifeless body hanging from a tree. The dead creature is 18 inches above the ground, and the first one greatly benefits. 25 cents. Sold by H. P. Reylooks, druggist, Plainfield, N. J. 12 18 eow

DEAD, YET ALIVE.

A Medical Paradox Which Has No Parallel in Its Doctors' Books.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Manhattan hospital has a case which beats all mothed records of a similar sort. It is that of a boy who apparently died at half past 1 on Sunday afternoon, but whose heart was still beating strongly at 10 o'clock last night. At that hour it was six hours after he had drawn his last breath. This is several hours beyond any record in such cases. In one case a month ago an infant was pronounced for a few hours after respiration had ceased, but that case stands almost alone.

The patient who has puzzled all the resident and consulting physicians of the Manhattan hospital is William Holland, a newsboy, 16 years old, who lived with his widowed mother, Mrs. Virginia Holland, at 505 Wes. One Hundred and Fifty-ninth street. He was taken to the hospital apparently suffering from pneumonia. Not 30 minutes later he accidentally stepped and apparently died. The orderly in the room ran to Dr. Belknap and announced the sudden death, and the doctor hastened to the bedside.

When he arrived, the boy was apparently dead. Nothing indicated at first that he differed in any particular from any dead person. His pulse at once began an examination and discovered that although the boy had apparently died there was still a feeble pulsation of the heart.

Restoratives were applied and artificial respiration produced by working the arms, just as is done in cases of those who have been rescued from drowning. The result of these efforts was soon apparent. The heart beats grew stronger, and the color of the face changed from that of death to one which plainly indicated that life was still flowing in vein and artery. But still the body lay inert except for the beating of the heart.

The boy had lived hours longer than any one had ever kept this side of the border line of two worlds under similar circumstances at the time of death, and at 15 minutes after 11 he was still living.

A peculiarity of the case is that the boy's heart seems to be upon the right side instead of the left. The case puzzles the doctors in more ways than one. The boy has apparently died, yet lives.

ALL HANDS LOST.

News of the Wreck of the Robert J. Edwards Has Reached Gloucester.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Feb. 12.—The first intelligence of the fate of the schooner Robert J. Edwards and crew, which were given up last Monday, was brought in by Captain Crittenden of the schooner Maud Leighton. Captain Crittenden has been on a trip to George's bank and states that while on the banks on Jan. 31, in latitude 42.30, longitude 63.05, 50 miles from Cape Sable, a carrier pigeon lit completely exhausted on the day's plank. On securing the pigeon it was found to have a tag with No. 119 on it tied to one leg and on the other a dispatch rolled up and tied to a thread which read:

SABLE ISLAND, Jan. 31.

Schooner Robert J. Edwards and all hands lost Jan. 31 during a southeast hurricane.

H. W. HILLIARD.

The dispatch also states that pigeon No. 119 had been liberated at the same time. It was probably intended that both should fly to Halifax. Crittenden kept the bird aboard 15 hours and then liberated him, but he was too weak to fly and fell into the water and was drowned.

SEIZED A PIRATE.

The Mysterious Hudson River Plunderer Known at Last.

RYE, N. Y., Feb. 12.—The local police believe that they have solved a mystery which has agitated the villages along the Hudson river. Reports of burglaries from these places have been numerous for some time past. A mysterious craft frequently seen on the river was supposed to be in possession of a pirate crew. Sunday the boat answered off this village.

Some men went in her sidy and boarded the vessel. They found that her cargo consisted of a miscellaneous lot of goods which would have enabled a dealer to stock a store. The men reported the matter to the police, and when one of the boat's crew came ashore he was placed under arrest.

Acting under a warrant from Justice Dobbith, two bags which the man had taken to the railroad depot and were about to be shipped to New York were seized. They were found to contain books and shoes, both of various kinds, spools of silk and other articles of that character. The goods corresponded with a description of those recently stolen from Fort Salonca.

All For Love.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 12.—News reaches here of a bloody double tragedy at John, 20 miles away. Will Barnes and Tom Young were in love with the same young lady. They met at the young lady's house, and a quarrel ensued. Barnes drew a pistol and shooting his rival in the breast, killed him instantly. Young's cousin, James Bled, and later on Deputy Sheriff Cobbham attempted to arrest him. He drew a pistol, but it did not fire, and Cobbham shot him dead with a shotgun.

Pan-American Telegraph.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 12.—A syndicate of Mexican and American capitalists has been organized for the purpose of constructing a pan-American telegraph line to extend along the Pacific coast from Victoria, B. C., to Santiago, passing through the United States, Mexico, Central America and the Pacific coast countries of South America.

ROW BEFORE THE ALTAR

FATHER HILL KNOCKED DOWN

Father McDonald, the Assistant Priest, Was Taken Suddenly Insane During Mass and Struck the Pastor of St. Peter's With the Chalice—Taken to a Hospital.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 12.—There was an exciting time at St. Peter's Roman Catholic church in this city Sunday, and the spectacle of one priest assaulting another at the altar caused a panic among the large congregation which attended the morning service. The pastor of St. Peter's is the Rev. Father William J. Hill, a man of middle age, while Father Patrick V. McDonald, a young man of about 30 years, is his assistant. The latter was the celebrant of the mass, while Father Hill was at the altar as deacon. When Father Hill commenced the reading of notices for the day, Father McDonald, who was kneeling, suddenly arose, and turning to Father Hill said:

"You can't speak here."

Struck With the Chalice.

Father Hill was taken by surprise and whispered to his assistant to keep quiet, but the latter, who weighs about 200 pounds, rushed at Father Hill and knocked him down the altar steps. Father McDonald then picked up the chalice, and Father Hill attempted to take part in the mass, the former dealt him a blow under the left ear which knocked him down.

The startled congregation was by this time wild with excitement, and several men in the front pews jumped over the chancel rail and prevented Father McDonald from committing further violence. Some of the congregation had in the meantime run to the Butler street station for assistance, and Father McDonald was taken from the church opposite the church and confined in his apartments. Father Hill was also taken to the rectory and a physician called to attend him. He had several severe bruises about the head and face.

Became Suddenly Insane.

Word was sent to Bishop McDonnell, who dispatched Vicar General McNamara to make an investigation. In the meantime Father McDonald had become so violent that it was evident he was insane. Later he was removed to St. Peter's hospital, where it was found necessary to detail a policeman to attend him.

Father Hill said that he was taken entirely by surprise, as Father McDonald had never before manifested any signs of insanity, and he could not account for the sudden demonstration of his mind. The police made every effort to keep the facts from the public, but the affair caused too much of a sensation.

Indiana Pronounced Trustworthy.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—Preparations are now well for the trial trip of the battleship Indiana, which will probably occur next month. An inspection was made by Admiral Walker and members of the stability board have been appointed by Secretary Herbert. The board has already declared the Machias and the Castine unseaworthy, and the intention of the board was to satisfy themselves of the seagoing qualities of the Indiana before she is sent outside for her trial. The result of the tests was entirely satisfactory.

A Pastor's Strange Disappearance.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 12.—The strange disappearance of Rev. J. H. Schnorr of the United German Evangelical church at Washington, this county, has caused a sensation. Rev. Schnorr he left home to attend a meeting of the Masonic grand lodge of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, and nothing has been heard of him since. About the same time Mrs. Steininger, a prominent member of the church, was missing, and her absence is still a mystery. Sunday the church dismissed the absent member.

Accident to a Princess.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The Princess Ena, the fiancee of Alfonso XII., son of Prince Henry of Battenberg and Princess Beatrice, met with a serious accident while riding in the grounds at Osborne, Isle of Wight. A groom was leading the pony on which she was seated when the animal stumbled. Princess Ena was pitched head foremost to the ground. She was able to walk to the house, however, after arriving there fell asleep and has not yet awakened.

A Fiend on Trial.

WATERLOO, Ind., Feb. 12.—Sam Deeters was today placed on trial at Angola for the most heinous murder ever committed in Steuben county. Deeters killed and killed his neighbor, Amos Buehtel, and the latter's daughter. He then wounded William Yates and attempted to kill his own mother by locking her in a barn and firing the building. His mother escaped.

Labor Leaders Under a Cloud.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 12.—John P. Eberhart, president, and William Springer, secretary of the National Glassblowers' association, Knights of Labor, on trial, are charged with malfeasance in office. It is claimed that the officials have turned in no itemized statement of expenses, but this is denied by the defendants.

No Murder Mystery at All.

WARNER, N. H., Feb. 12.—The supposed murder mystery here has been spoiled by the discovery that the alleged victim, Joseph Rinehart, is alive at a farm in Weare. Officers went there and found him living under another name. He cannot explain where he has been since his disappearance.

COLT'S SHOP BURNED.

Half of the Big Firearms Factory Is Ou To Ashes.

HARTFORD, Feb. 12.—Fire broke out in the Colt Patent Fire Arms manufacturing company's factory this morning, and in two hours destroyed about $100,000 worth of property. The burned building is a three-story and basement, 70 by 200 feet, and three stories high, with an immense attic. It was the connecting portion between the east and west armories and was finished only as a workshop by the Colt company. The origin of the fire is unknown.

It was discovered by Tom Dillon, a watchman. The whole eastern end of the burning section was soon a mass of fire. Floor after floor fell through, precipitating all new printing presses, all brought early in the shipments on March 1, into the cellar.

The attic contained all the Colt company's patents in English and Gerrman, Spanish and other languages, and all drawings made by the factory. These burned fiercely, making a magnificent spectacle. The work of the firemen was confined to the western part of the structure, which was saved.

The building and stock of the Colt company is insured through George and Edward W. Beardsley for $250,000. The estimates the total loss in the company at $300,000, half of which is on the building. The Weed sewing machine company and the property of the Bidwell Circle company, lately defunct, but this is thought by V. F. Hall and Superintendent Grover to be much too small for the actual loss.

PRINCESS COLONNA ARRIVES.

She Mysteriously Disappeared From Paris and Is Now In New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—The Princess Evelyne Galatro de Colonna, daughter of Mrs. John W. Mackay, whose suit for a judicial separation from her husband is pending in the courts of France, was a passenger on the American Line steamship New York, which arrived from Southampton.

The princess was accompanied by her three children and maid and her brother, J. W. Mackay, Jr. Tug party traveled incognito and was not known to the steamer's passenger list as Mr. J. M. Morgan and valet, Mrs. Morgan and three children.

Princess Colonna declared that although the sea voyage had done her good. She and her party ate an early breakfast and immediately went on deck in order to view the harbor as the New York came up the bay. While the steamship was making her landing the princess chatted gayly from the upper deck of the New York with her father, who was on the wharf to meet her. The princess expressed to her friends her great pleasure at once more being in her native land, and she and her friends were among the first to step ashore.

The Princess Colonna mysteriously disappeared from Paris a few days ago, and there has been a great deal of speculation as to her movements ever since that time. The proceedings in the pending judicial proceedings were to have come up in the French courts on Feb. 16.

THE HOUSEHOLD

THE CARE OF CLOTHING.

What the Frenchwoman Does When She Takes Off Her Bonnet.

Much of the wear and tear which use up good clothing may be averted by constant care, in regard to which Harper's Bazar gives the following hints: Gowns should be brushed before hanging up to dissolve. It is best to have the clothes put on as possible after taking them off, thoroughly removing the fuzz of street dust and mud from facings, seams and edges. The next morning does not find her gown in her own chamber, but takes it into the bathroom and brushes it beside an open window, or, better still, has it carried out of doors for the operation.

Dress skirts may be carried home in clothing, and more than one of the sex is a very untidy proceeding to put into one's wardrobe an article of dress which has not been thoroughly brushed.

When the Frenchwoman takes off her bonnet, she does not bundle it at once into a bandbox, or throw it hastily on a shelf, or hang it by the strings. Nice shoe, every little loop and bow is pulled out and put into shape, strings are gently caressed into smoothness, jets and aigrets are straightened and laid in position, and the bonnet receives the touch of the brush to remove dust, and then it is laid between folds of tissue paper for the night, that its best appearance, as fresh and new to all intent as when it left the milliner's hand.

Gloves are expensive articles, no matter how economical one may be inclined upon them. But gloves will last a third longer than they usually do if pulled off the hand from the wrist downward, and turned first out, as is done when they are tried on in the shops. If laid by themselves, properly straightened and not crumpled into a tight ball, and if pinched at the fingers to restore itself, a pair of gloves will retain their pristine freshness. It is a good policy to have best and second best gloves and gloves for shopping and running, as by carefully wishing the last mentioned should be of dogskin and sufficiently loose not to cramp the hand. Light gloves may be cleaned more than once to advantage.

A Puffball of a Coverlet.

Two widths of silkoline, with a pattern of tiny moss rosebuds scattered over a pale blue background, formed the outside. Now all that was needed were some fluffy sheets of wadding, a lining of cheesecloth and a little bright colored worsted to bring the modern "comfort" to perfection.

The wadding was chosen because cotton batting by the roll, while less expensive, gives a weight very undesirable in its finish. The secret in placing the filling is to have it in a single layer, which will be very even and possess a thickness that does not suggest clumsiness.

The lining of cheesecloth, which can be bought for 12 and as low as 6 cents, was a deep rose to match the heart of the buds that decorated the turquoise blue silkoline. Measuring the silkoline, it was found that after the breadths had been joined, this lining was ready for the fleecy sheets. One after another they were arranged and then tacked into place. This part of the work completed, the blossom strewn top was given next position, and then began the task of tacking.

A needle and thread quickly caught and held in knotted groups the small bits of wool, a delicious feeling, that had been prepared by placing long pieces of the worsted together, and cutting into lengths, say an inch long, and catching them across the center with the thread, each one after its release partly standing up as if proud of its position. With edges neatly turned in, this model down quilt, for which directions are found in Golden Days, is completed.

Helps to Hospitality.

Everything that looks toward hospitality is prominent at the jeweler's. Notably are knives and forks. Polished surfaces with broken edges seem to prevail in all sorts of knife handles. Nevertheless, however, are straight, raised parallel lines on the stems of forks, expanding in plain, lustrous surfaces at the ends. Knives to correspond have parallel raised lines. The severe chasteness of these is agreeable. Other knife and fork handles are in raised lines.

In carvers perhaps the most acceptable have ivory handles. These are solid, round, with silver ferrules only at the end. Others have the angles inclosed in broken silver edges. The buckhorn handles have swelling curves and are mounted in silver. They have an air of boldness, of hardiness, and, it seems, would be preferred by a proficient carver. Carving sets with silver handles follow the fashions described above by Essie Bee in The Jewelers' Circular.

WOMAN AND HOME.

A WORD TO WIVES AND MOTHERS THEY WILL DO WELL TO HEED.

Some Advice on Training—Custom House Inspectors—A Gracious Princess—A Hotel Incident—Visiting the Sick. Stitches Taken In Time.

Ready in advance of your boys and girls. Be prepared to lead them, and do not, as you value your husband's love, allow him to undervalue and improved while you lose your hold upon those things which constituteone your charm as a woman's attractiveness.

I say about me every day sisters who when they married were, I haven't a doubt, fatally equal, if not superior, to the men we is whom they met their lot. In some occult fashion they drift apart.

A man in daily contact with bright minds, in his traveling, thinking, planning, reading, unconsciously grows away from the woman of his choice, unless she is in turn taken with enough to make up her mind that this shall not be the case.

A man likes at night, when he puts on his slippers and settles down for a smoke, to discuss the topics of the moment and the leaders and the distinguished of the book. Where one woman can do this, a dozen would be utterly at sea if an attempt were made to lure them away from the, to them, always fascinating themes, kitchen and nursery.

Be wary lest in your devotion to sewing societies, brand bonnet and broom you allow blessed opportunities for self culture to slip by, until you find yourself a target for somebody's compassion.

A mistaken notion of duty ties woman down to petty details, when many precious moments might be given to something that would broaden and refine.

To come right down to practical truths. Too much time is given to ruffles and puffs, to scrubbing and sweeping, to tolling, and, in fact, that the purpose of the household may enjoy themselves little by little the frail shoulders of the mother are overweighted, and after a time you will hear her say:

"Oh, I am getting too old to do this or wear that! I leave all the fol de rols to the young folks."

The soft pretty complexion grows hard looking; wrinkles stand out on the hands that were once so fair and dainty. One by one her charms of person disappear, until from a sweet and lovely woman with a mind capable of leading the cleverest thoughts she becomes rather how a household drudge.

The married girls may love their mother, but they can't be tempered with a critical feeling, born of lack of refinement. Her girlish admirer may still be true to her, but even his loyalty cannot shirk the palpable fact that time and carelessness, ugly gowns and a dull mind have obliterated the many charms of person which but a few years ago were so captivating.

It won't do. You owe a duty to husband and children to care for soul, body, manners and mind. Accept this truism before it is too late, and in every grade of life make them subservient to higher ideals. Do this, and old age will creep on space, bringing silver threads and subtly etched lines, will not yet hide the real graciousness of your individuality.—Golden Days.

Dancing Set out Training.

It is the exceptional boy who is fond of dancing school, yet it is the boy, not the girl, who specially needs its teachings. Grace, self possession and a knowledge of what to do with one's hands and feet—all these come naturally far oftener to the average girl than to the average boy, but it is the boy who, not having them, has to be prodded to go where he may acquire them.

Of several women discussing this trait in their sons at a luncheon, three of them agreed that the battle was not only getting the boy to the class, but as well making him do the proper thing after he got there. Said one mother, "I have to bribe my boy to dance with the girls," and it at once came out that the others did the same, and, moreover, the practice was a common maternal ruse.

"And," related a second mother, "the ordinary rate of a penny a dance, the second must to be forfeited if he danced twice in succession with the same girl, did not answer at all with my young man. He demanded 5 cents a partner, and I had to comply. But it did not last long. After one term I noticed that he took his dose of girl with increasing enthusiasm, and I suspected that this was not due alone to her market price. I finally asked him if he did not find that girls were rather less objectionable than he had fancied, and the thought perhaps they were. 'And you really enjoy dancing with them now?' I persisted. 'Well, yes,' he said. 'Whereupon I promptly pointed out that it was hardly honorable to force me to pay him for what was a pleasure. He agreed with me, and since then my prosecution has not suffered, nor has his dancing zeal abated."

It may be a weapon in the hands of mothers with sons disinclined to take dancing advantages offered them that western a man and so fine a soldier as the emperor of Germany severely criticises the dancing of his officers and insists that they shall be proficient in the art.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Custom House Inspectresses.

The inspectress in the port of New York holds an important office. Nine women are employed in that capacity at the custom house. They have an office in the building, and they are in constant service. The inspectresses have the responsibility imposed on them of settling that no woman enters the port with smuggled articles. They search through the mysterious recesses of a woman's wardrobe and the clothing she wears as no male could or would be allowed to do, and the finding of loads of smuggled goods on the persons of women makes a large percentage in the yearly records.

The women inspectors are paid at the rate of $1 per day all the year round. They are headed by a superintendent who details the work. As each steamer arrives from the foreign ports two of the inspectors are detailed to duty on it. They repair to the pier where the steamer lands and await developments. If a woman passenger creates any suspicion, the inspectors take her and submit her clothing to a minute search. They find silks, satins and valuable laces nicely inlaid in the woman's skirt, or diamonds and jewelry nestled away in the most unsuspectable places. Then the women inspectors search through the wearing apparel stored away in women passengers' trunks and do work which the male inspectors would not do creditably.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Gracious Princess.

In The Woman at Home Miss Katherine Lee gives a good long sketch of Princess Louise as a painter and wife, sculptor and painter, as well as royal personage. She tells an incident of the princess' sojourn in Canada, for which she is unable to cite the authority, but which she thinks "is worth recording as an instance of that total absence of fine ladyism" which is, in its best sense, so noticeably absent among our royal ladies.

"It seems that one day the princess was walking without any attendants near her, when she came to a cottage. The only person visible was an old woman busily ironing one of her husband's shirts. The princess was thirsty after her walk, and stopping at the cottage door asked the old woman if she would kindly get her a glass of water. The kind old woman scrambled shortly refused to do so. 'The spring was a little distance,' she said, 'and she was busy ironing her old man's shirt, for he was going with her to see the queen's child on the morrow.'

"The princess, no doubt with a secret thrill of amusement, said that she would iron the shirt if the old lady would fetch her the water. The compromise was quickly agreed upon. The old woman went to the spring, and the princess did the ironing. When the old woman returned, the shirt was handed over to her. Needless to say, it was nicely ironed.

"In exchange for the glass of water the recent laundry woman informed the astonished old woman that she was the 'queen's child.' The startled old woman took the shirt, declaring that her old man should never wear it, but that she would keep it forever as a memento of the 'queen's child.'"

A Hatpin Incident.

I overheard the following conversation the other day in a popular refectory:

"Do your children mind you?"

"I guess they do. They never pay any more attention to me than if I was a dummy. It takes their father to bring them to terms every time."

"I am glad to hear it. I like to know that somebody else besides me has a hard time with their children. I declare, the only way I can get the baby to mind already is to jab him with a hatpin."

I waited to hear no more. With self-precipitation I anchored up my check and fled. I waited another minute I should have said to that mother: "Madam, I will give you a proviem to solve. If, at the age of 3, a child needs the impetus of one hatpin to make him obey, how many mentaxes will it require to keep him in order at the age of 10? And if you are such a person, miserable failure as a mother as a woman now, just at the commencement of an immortal destiny, what have the eternities in store for you?" Why, oh, why are children sent to people who have no more idea about bringing them up than a trout has about training hopvines? It is aquestion that long years, and tons give me much uneasiness.—Martha Evarts Holden.

Visiting the Sick.

Choose the middle of the day for your call. Toward night the patient is weary. By no means go to see a sick person in the evening unless you have been sent for. Do not make long calls, even though your presence seems much appreciated. Be cheerful and quiet; this you owe to those in suffering as much as to the patient. Enter into no lengthy discussions or arguments and avoid all subjects upon which the patient may be sensitive or excitable.

Do not discuss or find fault with the doctor in attendance. The family must have faith in him, else they would not employ him. No matter how intimate you may be with the family, do not press your favorite doctor upon them.

Do not invite upon certain remedies which you know to be a "sure cure," as the attending physician no doubt has tried them long before. A kind suggestion is frequently appreciated, but be very careful about foreign advice upon nurses. Those who are confined to the house with their loved ones for a long time, without prospect of recovery, often have sorrel tearful days or evenings, and a word or look of tender sympathy and heartfelt cheerfulness is more of a help than we can think. If you cannot do that, stay away.—Good Housekeeping.

Stitches Taken In Time.

It isn't because a stitch in time saves nine or saves a shoe that it should be taken as soon as the need for it occurs, but because womankind in general is so much dainties and attractive when just from bed or bath, or when and any ravelings or pinned up ends of lace or ribbon about her.

Artistic disheveliment is all right to talk about, but very few ones fall in love with a slovenly woman. The masculine eye may be slow to recognize certain details of a woman's toilet, but it never fails to detect a loose skirt braid, a rip in the body of a gown or buttons missing from where they ought to be.

Look carefully to these details, for they count against perfection in so great proportion that an entire ensemble is utterly ruined by one of these defects. Pins are all right in their place, but that place is not to keep shoe buttons on. A rip sometimes cannot be avoided, but it can be prevented from growing until it becomes an unsightly gaping hole. Keep the needle and thread ever ready, for even though milliners insure that no hat is stylish that is not pinned together this rule does not apply to the other portions of a woman's wardrobe.—New York Mail and Express.

Making a Home.

It is foolish to talk about fashions in house furnishing. The best bred people, the most artistic and the most real are those who never consent to adopt a thing on its merit of fashion. They put into their homes what they love and desire. They buy nothing because their neighbors have done so and nothing for its price or worth. Those ladies who buy white and gold chairs because they are all the fashion, who are crazy this year for sixteenth century furniture and the next year for Sheraton—why, such ladies are hardly worth consideration. Their home rooms have no character at all. A woman also is in an unhappy fix who is constantly comparing her possessions with those of her neighbors to the disparagement of her own belongings and who desires to cast them aside for new things. A real housewife grows to love her chairs and sofas and her carpets. They are the dear, familiar face of her home, and she should not any more desire its flippant change than she should desire to give up the tranquil monotony of her life for the adventure and constant change of a Bohemian.—Boston Herald.

Feminine Extravagance.

One hears a great deal about feminine extravagance in dress and its deterrent effect upon the marriageable young men, who shrink back in horror from the altar when they consider what it costs to dress a girl according to the dictates of modern fashion. There is to be interesting to read of a certain Miss Pleasure, a new Rown, made in the year 1670, which cost $1,678, and of which it is recorded, "It frights Sir Carr Scroope, who is much in love with her, from marrying her, saying his estate will scarce maintain her in clothes."

Verily she is quickly over under the sun. Not in centuries has there been made a gown so resplendent as that worn by the Medici's queen, whereon were embroidered 3,200 pearls and 3,000 diamonds. And what belle in the last cycle has been arrayed so resplendently as that Mme. de Montespan, who wore at a great court festival "a gown of gold on gold, broidered in gold, bordered with gold and over that gold frieze stitched with a gold mixed with a certain gold which makes the most divine stuff that has ever been imagined."—Exchange.

Children's Eyes.

A physician advises mothers to discard bangs even for their smallest daughters, these very little girls being the only ones whom fashion, at the moment, permits to wear them. There are, it seems, sensitive nerves about the eyebrows which are extended when the hair is long enough to rest upon them. These nerves directly concern the sight, and that important function is thus or less impaired with by this constant though slight weight of hair.

And another physician inveighs against another practice, which has never been regarded as having any specially serious effects—that of having night lights in children's bedrooms. This he pronounces very injurious. Instead of allowing the optic nerves the perfect rest, afforded by darkness, the light keeps them in perpetual stimulation, with the result of causing the brain and the rest of the nervous system to suffer.

Queen Bess' Silk Stockings.

In the second year of Queen Elizabeth, 1560, her silk woman, Mistress Montague, presented her majesty as a New Year's gift with a pair of black silk stockings, the which, after a few days wearing, pleased her highness so well that she sent for Mistress Montague and asked her where she could help to get more. Mistress Montague answered, "I made them very carefully on purpose only for your majesty, and seeing these please you so well I will presently set more in hand." "Do so," quoth the queen, "for indeed I like silk stockings so well, because they are pleasant, fine and delicate, that hereafter I will wear no more cloth stockings."

For Nervous Women.

A physician who is a specialist in nervous diseases says that women should sleep at least nine hours at night and one hour in the daytime. A woman will plead that she hasn't time to lie down a few minutes in the daytime, and she will infringe upon the hours of the night which should be given to sound, healthy, needed sleep in order to finish some pieces of work which could as well be completed on the morrow. She will rush and hurry all day long, and then, when the household is hushed in slumber, she will sit up to read the daily paper, thinking she will not have to pay for the time she is stealing from the hush giving sleep that comes before midnight.

A Sensible Hint.

Before deciding as to the color of your next new dress bear in mind the following rules, which have been given by a well known artist: Choose always such tints as may actually be found in the hair, eye or complexion. For instance, a woman with blue gray eyes should wear blues and grays; a brunette, creams, browns and yellows. Women with florid complexions look their best in plum and heliotrope, also in those grays which contain a tinge of pink and in red browns. Pale women should wear dead blacks, woolen stuffs or velvet. Brunettes always look best in satins or silks, the gloss of which sets off their skins.—New York Advertiser.

The Ringworm Fungus.

The fungus of ringworm is very similar in character to the mold fungus that forms on bread. The different families of vegetable fungi prefer different soils upon which to grow, and the fungus of ringworm forms in no exception, as it grows only on so called epidermal structures—that is, upon the scaly portion of the skin and hair. This fungus will not grow on every person, but children are peculiarly susceptible to it, and when it attacks one child in a family or institution it is apt to spread widely and rapidly. The disease is therefore contagious.—Babyhood.

She Has Voted Early and Often.

Mrs. S. A. Williams of Colorado has voted in Wyoming, Washington, Utah and Colorado and has voted for candidates for every elective office in the state and nation. Many years ago Mrs. Williams, with her husband, endured the hardships and disarrangements incident to mining life, but finally, when they had exhausted their food supply, their last charge of blasting powder brought up good silver ore, and their fortunes began. Mrs. Williams is a widow and attends personally to her many business and mining interests.—Denver Letter

Rev. Anna Shaw on Marriage.

In her speech before the Pilgrim Mothers the Rev. Anna Shaw said:

"I never use the word obey in the marriage service. I would as soon marry a woman that was such a fool as to promise to obey a man in everything and mean it. I wouldn't marry a woman that was such a liar as to promise to obey and not mean it.

"There is nobody that knows so much about the duty of a wife and mother or is so ready to tell what they know as a very young man who has never tried being either one."

Queen Caroline.

In an English book entitled "Footprints of Statesmen," by Reginald Brett, occurs this passage: "George II had not the abilities of his father. Fortunately for him, by his side stood the queen, Caroline of Anspach, who discovered through her that capacity for government which England has been lucky enough to find in female sovereigns."

Her Inspiration.

Miss Mathilde Blind, daughter of Karl Blind, while in Scotland was prompted to write one of her most important poems, "the Heather on Fire," a dramatic story of the woes of the crofters. Miss Blind wrote it after a stay in the island of Arran, where an old peasant woman aroused her indignation by her account of an eviction there.—Woman.

A domestic hint worth noting comes from Germany, where laundresses find their labor is reduced and whiteness insured by immersing the linen in liquid made by dissolving two pounds of soap in three gallons of hot water, to which has been added three tablespoonfuls of liquid ammonia and one of turpentine.

Make your dwelling tasteful and attractive, both within and without. The associations of our early days have a strong influence on the future life.—C. Philips.

Mrs. Ormiston Chant has this fine thing to say of the American woman: "Her good humor under difficulties is surpassed by nothing I have seen."

Don't shut the lids of spots, boilers and saucepans when putting them away. They retain the odors of cookery.

DIDN'T DARE DO IT.
A certain popular but extravagant musician was famous not only for his fine voice, but for his almost irresistible manner. At one time when he was deeply in debt a carpenter to whom he owed a large amount called at his house and clamorously demanded his money.

The musician, who was undisposed at the time, heard the angry voice in the entry below, and going to the head of the stairs asked what was the matter down there.

"Matter enough," cried the carpenter, "I want my money, and I can't get it."

"Don't get it, indeed," said the musician soothingly. "Do me the favor to walk up stairs, if you please, and we will talk the business over."

"No, sir," replied the poor carpenter, "not a step will I step on those stairs! You owe me $100 already, and if I came up goodness knows you'd owe me likely over the $200 before I got down again!"—Youth's Companion.

Just too sad.

First Actor (pulling the trigger of a revolver six times)—Die, you miserable villain!

Second Actor—Your pistol has missed fire, Sir Rudolph, but I am smitten with remorse for my many crimes and will die according to your wish.

Then he rolled on the stage in agony and kicked like a bee steer, while the curtain slowly descended amid the cheers and laughter of the audience.—Texas Siftings.

DISCUSSING CHARITY.

MEETING OF THE CITIZENS' ORGANIZED AID ASSOCIATION.

Reports Read from Several Committees.—Discussing a Possible Method of Taking Care of the Wayfarers, and Giving Them a Night's Lodging.

The Citizens' Organized Aid Association held its regular meeting in the Crescent Avenue Church parlors last night.

Only about 15 members braved the storm and attended the meeting.

The meeting was called to order by President Tyler, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The president said that two meetings had been held since the last meeting of the Council. At a meeting held last Wednesday night at 86 Cleveland J. M. Whiton, Dr. H. K. Carroll and Mrs. H. K. Case were elected members of the distributing committees, and ex-Mayor Charles Place had been appointed to represent the Society for the prevention of Cruelty to Children in the Association.

Treasurer H. P. Reynolds reported that up to date the total receipts had been $158.93. Out of this the following bills had been paid:

[illegible]	2.10
D. S. Roberts	2.00
Evening News	7.29
Total	11.60

This left a balance on hand of $147.33. Bills were also out but had not been rendered of $85.16 Mr. A. L. Force and several other small bills, amounting in all to about $100.

Mr. Reynolds said that A. L. Force had contributed $13.40 worth of advertising.

The report was received and filed.

As Mr. McEuteen, chairman of the Finance Committee, was absent, Mr. Reynolds made the report of that committee, in which he stated that about $600 a year would be needed for Association expenses.

For the Printing Committee, Chairman H. P. Reynolds reported that a two-page circular had been printed and distributed, setting forth the aims of the association. Hour-holders, cards of record for the agent, a small supply of letter heads, about 2,000 subscription blanks for distribution in the churches and a number of copies of the constitution and by-laws had been printed. Mr. Reynolds also stated that considerable printing had been done by individual members and paid for by them. Except for office stationery the committee had no more work to be done. The report was received and filed.

Mrs. Tiffany of the Committee on Cooperation, reported that of 27 letters sent to churches, only 23 had replied that they were willing to co-operate, and five names of those receiving aid from them. Forty-two cases had been reported by the churches as receiving aid from them. This does not include all receiving help, as there are a number that are not reported, of persons who have never applied for aid to any association.

The Kings' Daughters, too, Mrs. Tiffany said, were willing to co-operate and work with the Association. She also reported that 500 theatre tickets had been printed and distributed by the Committee with the Monday Afternoon Club and with the Kings' Daughters. So far about 200 tickets had been distributed. The report was received and filed.

The Distributing Committee's report was made by G. K. Newell. He said the committee had held six sessions, having met regularly each Monday. Mrs. Woodruff had been present at each meeting and had reported each case received by her, and provisions were made governing each case. The Committee had been careful in appointing friendly visitors so as not to interfere with the Relief Association. Since Dec. 26, 115 cases had been reported, of these 16 had received aid before; 29 were new ones; 29 were given work; 41 were referred to the Relief Association; 29 were receiving aid from the Kings' Daughters; 11 received no aid at all. At present, he said, 97 persons were using the wash tickets and were working upon the road. Four friendly visitors had been appointed. The secretary of the committee had letters from sixty-one persons, offering to act as friendly visitors.

A report was read from Mrs. Opdyke, chairman of the Committee on Employment, in which she stated that odd jobs had been secured for several men, averaging from 15 cents to $1.0. One man could go from place to place and in this way do a number of these small jobs in a short time.

Mrs. Tiffany said that her committee had been trying to formulate some plan by which wayfarers might be cared for and given a night's lodging. The committee had a place in a view where a man could lodge for 25 cents. To make them earn this amount the committee could make arrangements with Mr. A. D. Holmes for them to split wood. The only difficulty being that most of the men who wanted lodging applied at night when it was too late to split wood, and the next morning they would hurry away before cutting any wood.

Mr. Newell said that he felt sure some of these men who applied for board and lodging at the police house were deserving, if it and were willing to earn it, because he said he had tried one poor fellow who called at a friend's house while he happened to be there, and that the man had done an immense lot of work for his breakfast.

Mr. Reynolds resigned as chairman of the Printing Committee and Mr. I. C. Pierson was elected chairman in his place.

On motion a vote of thanks were extended to Mr. A. L. Force for his donation and to the other newspapers for the courtesy shown the association and for the interest taken in the work.

To fill vacancies in the distributing committee President Tyler appointed Mr. Riley and Rev. Robert Clark as member of that committee.

Mr. E. M. Cave was elected to represent the Local Union of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, in the Council.

Mrs. George Hallock was elected a member of the Council to represent the Ricketts Friends in place of Miss Webster, resigned, and Mrs. J. W. Yates was elected in place of Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson as representative of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Tomlinson having declined to serve. Messrs. J. T. Slocum and D. E. Titsworth had also refused to act as members of the Council. Mr. Charles J. Fisk was elected to fill Mr. Slocum's place in the Council.

Mrs. Tiffany, of the Committee on Cooperations, was authorized to write to the several lodges and secret societies in Plainfield asking for their aid in the matter of distributing charity.

A plan to give aid to the unmarried men seeking employment was discussed at length, but no definite action taken. As proved only married men with families depending upon them are given work, and unmarried men applied for work, saying that they owed big board bills and had no money to pay with.

BREVITIES.

—Queen City Lodge, No. 228, I. O. O. F., held another "smoker" last night.

—An adjourned meeting of Gamble Engine Company will be held to-night.

—Last night the cars on the street railway were run three together to push through the snow.

—The Epworth League of Grace M. E. Church will give an entertainment in the church Friday night.

—The Assistant Superintendents of the Metropolitan Insurance Company of this district enjoyed a dinner at Ruhway last night.

—To better accommodate those who are to go on Mr. Honeyman's Florida tour, it is postponed until Monday next, when he will personally conduct it.

—The Independent Gun Club met at Mr. Alvin Smith's field on Somerset street, last night, and decided to hold a "shoot" on Washington's Birthday.

—Last night's snow storm drove many tramps to seek shelter about the city. Two of the "knights of the road" applied for lodging at Bedden's livery stable.

Judgment was rendered yesterday by Justice Mosher in the case of Crouch vs. Nelson, for $18 and costs. The suit was brought for the payment of berries.

—The social and mock trial which was to have given by the Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed Church Thursday evening has been postponed until next month.

—Evangelist Crane's meeting at the First Baptist Church last night was well attended considering the stormy weather. He speaks about revivals in general. The meetings will be continued this week.

—Mr. James F. Pangborn, of Plainfield avenue, has made application to the Union County Freeholders to have his daughter, Mrs. Terry, admitted to the Morris Plains Insane Asylum. She is to be examined as to her sanity by two physicians.

—A leading New York firm says "We cannot do it. We have tried hard to, but we give it up, and promise to do so no more. We refer to the old reliable time-tested and table-tested Hecking soups. We have tried for several years to substitute cheaper brands, but we at last give it up, and will hereafter handle no other brand of canned soups. We can buy other kinds a little cheaper, but the people won't have them, and we cannot sell them."

Dunellen Bowling Club Games.

The Dunellen Bowling Club has two bowling games down for this week. Tomorrow night they bowl the Pioneers, at Elizabeth, with the following team: C. B. Young, C. D. Taylor, C. Giles, G. Voehl, J. Hanson, W. Case, F. Sandford, G. Neal, F. Shepard and W. Watters. Thursday night they bowl with the Union County Roadsters, at Rahway, with these bowlers:—W. Watters, C. Giles, J. B. Young, C. Krewson, and C. D. Taylor.

Westfield Also All Expectancy.

Postmaster Whitaker, of Westfield, is now working on holdover time. His commission expired on February 5. Those who claim to know say that Congressman Dunn has endorsed the application of M. M. Scudder and that the appointment has been made, but not yet sent in for confirmation. There does not seem to be any objections raised to M. M. Scudder as postmaster.

Wagons Collide.

Yesterday morning one of Mr. A. M. Griffen's wagons collided with a wagon belonging to a farmer named Fitzgerald, at the corner of Central avenue and West Second street. One of the shafts on Fritzgerald's wagon was broken.

Coldest Winter on Record.

The coldest Winter on record was that of 1709, in which rivers and lakes were frozen and even the ocean several miles from shore. In Europe frost penetrated three yards into the grounds, and people perished by the hundreds in their homes.

A Big Score.

Mr. J. B. Young of this city, a member of Dunellen's Bowling team, rolled a score of 208 last night. He bowled by frames as follows: 33, 63, 20, 109, 127, 147, 177, 207, 277, 208.

SNOW, SLEET AND WIND.

A ROUGH STORM, BUT NO BLIZZARD AFTER ALL.

Snow and Sleet Fell Alternately all Night.—Felt all Over the United States.

WHAT yesterday's weather was Winter in the extreme all will agree. The day dawned bitter and blusterly, with a leaden, sombre sky, and a threatening frostiness in the air. As the day grew older, these threats were effectively realized in nipping blasts and fierce wind squalls, and darkness finally shut in on what was a real question the wildest night of the season.

Early in the day it was evident that the winds were gathering up for a storm.

The storm was not a blizzard, only an old-fashioned snow-fall, continent spread and wild with wind.

It is an undeniable fact that ever since the blizzard of March 12, 1888, people have been nervous about snow-storms, particularly when they begin like yesterday's storm, with thin, fine snow and windy sky. Had there never been a blizzard, the blinding storm of sleet and snow which fell upon the town yesterday would have been taken with perfect equanimity. The memory of it, however, filled their minds, at the height of the storm's fury just before sunset.

It is hard to conceive of a storm which by any possibility could have associated itself with a greater number of disagreeable atmospherical features than the storm of yesterday. It alternately snowed, rained, sleeted and snowed again, with a howling wind ever racing. The only consolation for those citizens who were out in it is found in the fact that no single place in the United States escaped its fury.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

Entertained Their Friends Last Evening at the W. C. T. U. Rooms.

There was a large audience at the W. C. T. U. Rooms last evening despite the storm, and all were well pleased with the entertainment given there by the Loyal Temperance Legion. The programme consisted of recitations, choruses by the school, tambourine drill, piano solos, readings by Miss Etta Rayhert, camp scene by the boys, during which they sang "Resting To-Night on the Old Camp Ground," and this was following by scenes representing the different months, impersonated by the children.

The children who took part were Lillian Hoyt, Lillian Sutton, Lillian Egner, Nellie Agear, Lyla Hartpence, Mildred Terrell, Florence Rugg, Florence Neighbor, Carry Meier, Gertie Coddington, Lizzie Sheiden, Nora Donovan, Mary Jennings, Emma and Nellie Lukes, Masters Albert Ford, Robert Mosher, Chas. and Nelson Petersen, Walter Sherwin, Charles Jennings, John Dond, and Fred. Dunavan.

The work of the legion is under the direction of the Ts, who are represented by a special committee consisting of Miss Winter, the Misses Lewis, Miss Dond, Miss Hughes and Miss Bowers.

There are some sixty-seven boys and girls enrolled in the Legion, and all take much interest in the work.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Ferdinanz has moved from Front street to Mercer avenue.

Miss Bessie Day, of Union, is visiting Mrs. William Baldwin of East Fourth street.

Mr. Charles A. Reed expects to start tomorrow morning for Florida, on a business trip.

Mr. James F. Buckle of Westervelt avenue, who has been visiting his parents in Camden, has returned home.

Rebecca Wilson, the city of Colonel Waning of Samptown, will be pleased to learn that he has recovered from his recent serious illness.

Aged Mrs. Bremmer, who fell down stairs last week, lies at her home on Somerset street in a precarious condition. She is over 70 years old.

Mrs. Loree and Mrs. Dubois of White House have rented the house on Park avenue formerly rented by Dr. Paul, and will establish a first-class boarding house there April 1st.

Miss Marietta Reside, who has just returned from her missionary work among the Kiowa Indians, will speak in the Park avenue Baptist Church, Friday at eight o'clock. Her subject will be about the Indians and her work. All are cordially invited.

Invited to Excelsior's Anniversary.

The officers of the Plainfield Fire Department have been invited to attend the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company, No. 1, of Scotch Plains, to be celebrated at their hall, on Feb. 21st.

The following committees have been appointed to take charge of the affair:

Committee of Arrangements—D. P. Hall, Chairman; J. B. Parks, Secretary, and F. W. Westcott, Treasurer.

Reception Committee—T. J. Nichols, J. B. Parks, and F. W. Westcott.

Committee on Entertainment—J. Robinson, L. Frost, and L. A. Brand.

The speakers will be W. R. Stansbury, J. G. Walker and W. H. Lake.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

WILLIAM MEDRIC OF BAYONNE INJURED IN THIS CITY.

While on His Way to See His Sweetheart, who Lives Here, he was Struck by a Passenger Train.—His Injuries Very Slight.

Yesterday afternoon William Medric of Bayonne started for Plainfield to visit his sweetheart, who is employed by a West Front street dressmaker.

Medric rode as far as the Church street switch on an engine of a freight train. There the train came to a standstill and Medric got off and started up the track toward the North avenue station.

As he stepped upon the West bound track he was struck by passenger train No. 45 which is due at the North avenue depot at 5:4. Medric was knocked off the track upon track No. 4. The engineer stopped and backed down to where the man was lying and took him on board, and to the depot. He was dazed and unable to talk. Dr. Pritts was summoned and, after making an examination of the man, decided that no bones were broken. The man was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where a more careful examination was made, when it was found that his only injuries were two contused bones in the back. At the hospital this morning it was said Medric would probably be out again in three or four days.

Medric's escape from more serious injury was due to the fact that the train was slowing up when it struck him.

Medric was taken to the Hospital by William Wilson in one of the United States Express Company's wagons.

BOARD OF CONVASSERS AT WORK.

Canvassing the Voters in the Borough of North Plainfield.

The Board of Canvassers of the two districts of the borough met to-day and started out to canvass the voters of the Spring election which takes place next month. Those comprising the Boards are:

First District—Messrs. H. H. Brokaw, L. Kline, G. B. Stewart and D. F. Godown.

Second District—Messrs. N. B. Smalley, John Goodwin, David Bodine and Edward Morse.

At the Spring election a mayor and three councilmen are to be elected in the borough to succeed Mayor Saunders, and Councilman Rummer, Needham and Fountain.

Outside of the borough the Township will elect a collector, assessor and town committeeman.

In the township at large are to be elected a freeholder, a township committeeman, overseer of the poor, commissioners of highways, commissioners of appeals, constable, and pound keepers.

The three Councilmen, whose terms expire are Republicans, which will leave the Council one Republican to two Democrats.

AT THE LINCOLN DINNER.

Mayor Gilbert One of the Speakers.

The Lincoln dinner at Elizabeth last night was attended by the following Plainfielders: Mayor Alexander Gilbert, Councilman H. M. Stockton, Ex-Judge W. R. Codington, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, and Justice Vincent W. Nash.

Assemblyman Codding was present from Westfield, and Sheriff Kyte and Dr. Westcott and Mr. L. W. Miller, from Fanwood.

The Hon. John Kean presided. Mayor Gilbert was among those making addresses. His speech is spoken of very highly by those who were so fortunate as to be present.

Mr. Voorhees, father of Union county's Senator, read an article that he had written for a newspaper upon Lincoln's first nomination for president.

Plainfield "Crack Shots" to Take Part.

Close to a dozen of Jersey's representative shooters started yesterday for Harry Mata's three-mile shooting grounds at Shillington, Pa., where they will shoot in the trap tournament of the Reading Shooting Association. On the first two days targets will be used, the third day to be devoted to live birds. Among them are: W. R. Hobart, of Newark; E. D. Miller, of Springfield; T. W. Mortey, of Paterson; TeeKay Keller, of Plainfield; Neaf Agear, of Evens; M. F. Lindsley and E. W. Collins, of West Hoboken; and Fred Van Dyke, of Dayton.

City R publican Executive Committee.

The City Republican Executive Committee held a meeting Friday night and organized by electing the following officers:

President—W. R. Codington.
Secretary—J. B. Coward.
Treasurer—J. Fred. MacDonald.

A Sudden Death.

Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Connolly of Junction came to Plainfield to visit their son, Mr. M. L. Connolly, the butcher, who lives on East Third street. Both were apparently in the best of health. Last night Mrs. Connolly complained of not feeling well. At half past four o'clock this morning she died. She was 69 years old.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Hod-Carriers' Union Said "A Wife" is Misinformed.

To the Editor of The News:—Notwithstanding the statement of "a wife" in yesterday's News to the effect that her husband got drunk in our hall, I wish to say that no liquor has ever been allowed in our hall. She has been misinformed. Her husband, in making such a statement, has done our union a great injustice. We have among us reputable citizens who would not associate with us were such statements as she makes true, as we can soon convince her if she will give us her name and address.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Admiral De Gama May Die.

Rio De Janeiro, Feb. 13.—Admiral Saldanha de Gama, the rebel commander, who was wounded in the neck and arm by Mannlicher bullets during the battle of Armazeo on Friday last, is in a critical condition.

It was at first supposed that the Admiral's wounds were insignificant, but it is said that he is in so seriously injured that he may die.

Every effort is being made to save the Admiral's life.

A Cold Wave Coming.

New York, Feb. 13.—There is a cold wave following close on the tail of the snow storm. By to-morrow morning, it is predicted, the thermometer will be down to 15 deg. centrin, and possibly the mercury might go down and slide around on the 10 spot for a while.

WESTFIELD'S MILITARY COMPANY.

Citizens Plan to Form an Organization of at Least Fifty Men.

A movement is on foot looking to the formation of a military organization in Westfield. Several plans have been suggested and considered, and it has been decided that a battery would best fill the needs of the State. J. H. Vail, Mr. Terry, A. A. Smith, Mr. Reis and Chas. H. Day are interested in the matter, thus insuring for the project a good business basis as well as plenty of enthusiasm. A meeting has been held to talk over organization and other preliminary matters, and it is hoped that a company of at least fifty men will be formed at once with a number of recruits from the neighboring towns, Cranford and Fanwood. The promoters are all men of means, and will take great pride in trying to compete with some of the older companies in Elizabeth and Newark.

Several years ago an infantry company was formed in Westfield, but Gov. Greene refused to recognize it or extend State aid and it fell through, and Company B of Somerville, was mustered in instead.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties.—Brief, but Newsy.

The Legislature Celebrated Lincoln's Birthday.

The Legislature at Trenton, transacted no business last night, giving the night to a celebration of Lincoln's birthday. The Assembly Chamber was brilliant with electric lights, flags, bunting, evergreens and many portraits of Washington and Lincoln were visible. In the men's gallery a band played patriotic airs. Theodore Rogers of the Republican Senate presided, and Cortlandt Parker of Newark and ex-Congressman James Buchanan of this city were the speakers. Only a few of the Democratic members of the Legislature were present.

Fire Startles Flemington.

While plumbers were putting a gaspipe in the basement of the Union Hotel at Flemington, yesterday, Smith Belds attempted to strike a light some distance away and ignited the gas that was pouring out of the pipes. The woodwork caught fire. In the high wind the flames spread rapidly. Only the promptness of the hook and ladder saved the business part of the city. Harry Thompson, one of the workmen had his hair and eye-brows badly burned but escaped other injuries.

A New and Costly Fruit Depot.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has begun the erection of a mammoth fruit depot adjoining the ferry, at the foot of Bay street, Jersey City. The building will be a one-story shed 655 feet long and 155 feet in width, with the necessary offices, and will cost $60,000. The new depot will absorb the fruit delivieries now made at pier No. 28 Desbrosses street, which will be used for general freight purposes.

Horse Thieves at Work.

A gang of horse-thieves, who have been operating near Dover for the past few months, made a raid upon the town last night. They stole a fine animal belonging to Frank Cox, a butcher, also a wagon and some harness. Marshal Hagen started in pursuit of the men at once.

Two Hurt in an Explosion.

An explosion at the Columbia Powder Works, at Farmingdale, yesterday, demolished one of the buildings. There were two men in the building, O. T. Acker and James E. Erving. Acker was seriously burned and bruised. Erving was probably fatally burned.

MONTH'S MIND MASS.

The month's mind mass for the happy repose of the soul of the late Rev. Father Corrigan was celebrated yesterday in Our Lady of Grace church, Hoboken. The edifice was crowded. The Rev. Father Charles J. Kelly, the new pastor of the church, officiated, Rev. Father Callahan of Orange acted as deacon, and the Rev. Father McCarthy of the Seton Hall Seminary, was sub-deacon. The Rev. Father Fitzpatrick was master of ceremonies. Bishop Wigger occupied the episcopal throne, with the Rev. Father Wallace, chancellor of the diocese, and the Rev. Father P. E. Smyth of Plainfield, on either side of him.

After the mass, Bishop Wigger pronounced the benediction over the catafalque upon which the casket containing the body of Father Corrigan had rested. No sermon was preached. The music was elaborate.

Pen Sketches from Life.

The snow to-day was a pleasant sight to many, and especially to the unemployed, who were around at an early hour getting jobs at clearing off sidewalks. Shovels were out in great numbers. So were the small boys.

Two of these boys of the "innocence personified" variety were walking along Somerset street, when a "boxer," a name given a large two sleigh, came along. They climbed aboard, but the driver gruffly ordered them off. They got off. One got on one side, the other on the other. The kid on the right elbowed the driver. The other kid stirred up the horses.

The driver acted as though he would get off and chastise them and they both let drive at the horses. Then, while the driver had the hands full, managing them, they descended in back and head with snow-ball patches, and finally, with one well directed shot, knocked his pipe out of his mouth.

That was the final straw and the man jumped off, tied his horses to a tree snatched his whip from the socket and was ready for his tormenters.

But the tormenters were two blocks off and getting farther each second.

Elizabeth Copper Works Resume.

The fires were started yesterday morning at the plant of the New Jersey Metal Refining Company, on Copper Works, in Elizabeth. The works suspended some two years ago. There were nearly two hundred men employed by the company and they go back to their places. Some of them had been idle for several months, being laid off before the works closed.

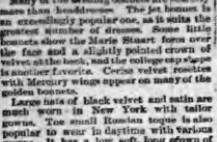
FASHIONS

MIDWINTER MILLINERY.

Very Small Bonnets and Large Hats Characterize This Winter's Styles.

Many of the evening bonnets are scarcely more than headdresses. The jet bonnet is an exceedingly popular one, as it suits the greatest number of dresses. Some little bonnets show the Marie Stuart form over the face and a slightly pointed crown of velvet at the back, and the college cap shape is another favorite. Cerise velvet rosettes with Mercury wings appear on many of the golden bonnets.

Large hats of black velvet and satin are much worn in New York with tailor gowns. The small Rembrandt toque is also popular to wear in daytime with various gowns. It has a low, soft, long crown of black velvet, bordered with a narrow band of fur and trimmed with fur tails or pointed ends of velvet wired in the shape of Mercury wings. Numbered with large hats is a French hat in the new shade of claret colored velvet, trimmed with pink roses, black tips and black velvet strings; black velvet rosettes at the back.



FRENCH HAT. SATIN BONNET. CLOTH HAT.

Gloves of the Season.

We find in the shops of Paris from France, Germany, Italy and Great Britain as well as gloves made in our own country. The pelts of numerous animals are contributed, for the dressing of the resident and antelope, goat and doeskins are employed. For ordinary walking wear men patronize large 7-button gloves with heavy black points cut on the same principle as driving gloves, having a smart appearance. Many of the fur topped, knitted and lined gloves are of English make. Next in importance and for preference as regards quality many place the French goods.

From the French metropolis the glove ace of a fanciful nature, those known as the Louis Quinze having bracelets of stitchery matching the points, either the glove being colored with black stitching, or of black kid with colored stitching. For evening wear up to 16 button length there are conspicuous in pale shades of suede and kid, stitched with any color to match the gown. The evening gloves of French kid include some of the most and most beautiful thats now being worn. From Paris, too, come the perfumed suedes, such as the Princess of Wales always wears. Also those in red Bohemian leather.

The cinderettes are among the best and most expensive gloves in the market. They are of the finest, baby goatskin, and are soft and flexible. The very best hands in the factories are employed to cut these. The kids and suedes from the softer center of the glove industry are worthy of notice. In the case of the latter there are gussets between each of the fingers, to insure a more perfect fit, but none at the thumb. The colors include some dainty grays, mushrooms and fawns, stitched and pointed with thick white silk.

For day wear there are gloves in reds, russets, tans and browns. Some of these have two rows in the narrowest stitching of black, red or white. There are some very fine kid in four or six buttons in lovely tones of ochre, beaver, tan and mushroom, stitched with black. For driving wear the tan glove is told with the back of the hand quite plain.

Fashion Brevities.

French dressmakers have accustomed us to incongruous effects in trimmings. One of the most startling of late is the use of dresses in of black moire antique with a close fitting bodice composed of moire, attached and very lace.

The new dress merits minute description. A skirt of black satin, not over full, with flat bows of the material carried down each seam and a similar trimming in a straight line around the hem. The bodice is made with jacket fronts cut straight, bordered with small satin bows, opening over a black front.

Many outdoor jackets are in a dark tint of fawn cloth, with a triple flounced basque at the waist, having a raw edge; a turn down collar, large in the back; fur at the neck. Another tall wide flap seams, the whole of the bodice and basque apparently tucked. These just meet a difficult want, a stylish garment for the young girl.

Among pretty trifles are folded velvet collar bands in the newest shades, ready to wear with any gown—an invention at which many enthusiastic women will doubtless avail themselves.

The negligee tea jacket—all soft silk and lace—is little worn. The newest models are all trim in appearance.

The old fashioned mode of hairdressing, now revived, is to wear the hair combed down over the ears, though not exactly in the stiff, formal style which our mothers and grandmothers affected.

DEATH IN ICY BLASTS.

WHOLE FAMILIES FOUND FROZEN.

The Storm That Was Born on the Pacific Coast Last Saturday Reached Portland, Me., Last Night and Was Felt at Our Time Half Across the Continent.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Feb. 13.—A terrible blizzard struck this territory early Sunday morning and continues with terrible severity. The wind blows a perfect gale, and snow is two feet deep on the ground. Reports from all parts of the territory in all parts of the territory. In the strip recently opened the people are in a precarious condition. At Red Rock, James Blount and family, consisting of a wife and two children, both girls, aged 10 and 12 years, were almost frozen to death. Mrs Vannie Spencer, a homesteader, 12 miles from Cross, was found frozen stiff. All her fuel had burned out. Many people are still living in tents, and as fuel is scarce their conditions is awful. James Mullig's living four miles south of Perry, was found frozen to death, and his partner, Harvey Newcomb, died from exposure and cold 10 minutes after being found.

At Ponca, Mrs. Jennie Cramer and two children, Lizzie and Sallie, were discovered frozen in a coyote's barrow, 15 yards from their abode.

Colonel Henry Melton, a cowboy, who was with Buffalo Bill at the World's fair, was discovered dead under his horse by a party of hunters near Newkirk.

Whole Families Frozen to Death.

At Anadarka two Indian pupils were found buried under a snow bank. Digging was taken to a house one of the children immediately expired. The other, however, shows signs of recovery.

A report reached here that a family named Sears, residing on a claim near Woodward, was found frozen to death, but no particulars can be obtained.

A letter just in from Alva, another strip town, reports great suffering among the homesteaders near there.

Over 500 head of cattle and cattle were frozen, and volunteer relief committees are now scouring the country gathering together the people and caring for them in the settlements.

Miss Jennie Johnston, a young Indian teacher who came to Alva recently from Tennessee, left her school Saturday night for her boarding house. She has not been seen since. No reports have been received from other west side towns, but it is certain that suffering is great, as the west side people are living mostly in tents. All trains are delayed. Word comes from Cross that Sherman Stout and family, consisting of a wife and five children, were found sitting about a stove, with their throats cut from ear to ear.

The following was found on a table gives a horrible story of murder and suicide in connection with the storm. It was signed by a man named Stout:

Wood all gone; Mollie frozen to death; the rest of us freezing. I have killed my family and now kill myself to prevent further suffering. God have mercy on me.

Stone was a homesteader and lived in a tent. It is thought that after the stove went out he froze to death. Others will be found, along with remains of thousands of cattle.

Blizzard's Antics In Chicago.

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Dispatches from all over the northwest, including Wisconsin and Iowa tell the same story of a furious storm and interruption of business. The blizzard seems, however, to be subsiding all over this section and moving east at a rapid gate. The mercury is now falling quite rapidly.

During the afternoon the storm increased in violence, the wind at times rising to a velocity of 75 miles an hour and the snow growing heavier. This was the worst storm since 1888. Never known, and by 4 o'clock business of all kinds was at a standstill. At that time the big office buildings were practically deserted. Few trains started for home in order to do their traveling before night.

Trains were delayed during the afternoon, and at night most of the eastern roads did not send out trains of any kind. The New York limited on the Erie pulled out with every car loaded, and three hours later it was 12 miles from Chicago, stuck fast, and two additional engines which had been sent after it could do no good. The incoming New York limited on the same line stuck in a snowbank at Fourteenth street, one mile from the depot, and six engines gave it up as a bad job.

The Rock Island started out one passenger train, and it came back after running something over a mile in three hours. The same condition prevailed on all lines, and most of them declared that unless the storm moderated by midnight they would not attempt to turn a wheel.

Owing to the driving snow, which made it impossible to see 50 feet, a wreck occurred on the Lake Shore road at Seventy ninth street and Stoney Island avenue. The Sreman, Luther S. Webster, of Kirkart, Ind., was caught between the engine and tender, and badly crushed. Several freight cars were knocked into kindling wood. On the streets collisions and accidents were numerous. Moses Bloom, Jr., a member of the board of trade, was badly injured. A gust of wind carried him 20 feet, and he struck against the curbstone, fracturing his wrist.

An Exceedingly Dangerous Spot.

An exceedingly dangerous spot to pedestrians was directly behind the Masonic temple, which is 22 stories high. The wind was thrown down in the narrow alley, and it is an awful rate, and whoever attempted to cross the alley was blown off the sidewalk. It was fortunate if he kept his feet. So many people were injured there that a special detail of police was made to keep everybody off that side of the street.

Surf High at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Feb. 13.—A very heavy, severe and blinding storm is raging all along the New Jersey coast. The surf is high, and no doubt before night wrecks will be seen along the beach from Sandy Hook to Point Pleasant. The velocity of the wind is 70 miles an hour, and it is increasing. Too the saving crews from Sandy Hook to Old Orchard are on double duty watching for vessels.

The Electric Railway company has abandoned running cars on account of the heavy snow drifts. The tracks along the shore of the Jersey Central railroad at Navesink highlands, and it is probable that the road will be compelled to abandon trains.

Buffalo in Fast Shape.

BUFFALO, Feb. 13.—Buffalo is practically without a water supply. The mighty northeast wind which is blowing across the water in Niagara river below the intake of the pumping station, and there is but little water in the Dodge street reservoir. In hotels and private houses no water can be obtained above the first story, and but little there.

The water has been blown completely out of the Hamburg canal, and there is but a foot or so left in the Erie canal. Slush and ice are filling the engine well at the pumping station, and if the wind does not abate the gravest consequences are feared. This is the first time in 25 years that the tops of the intakes at the pumping station have been above water. Should a big fire occur the firemen would be powerless. The streets are badly drifted. Street car traffic is impeded somewhat. Trains from both east and west are late. No casualties have been reported. Dispatches from Lockport and Attica show the same condition there.

Boston Gets It.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—Only the advance guard of the storm which blizzard last reached Boston by midnight, but it was howling at the rate of 40 miles an hour, and the streets are fast becoming impassable. The weather bureau reports that during the afternoon the wind, blew 60 miles an hour at Block island. The storm is one of the worst in Boston this winter, and this morning the streets are badly blocked. A high wind still continues.

Toledo People Walking.

TOLEDO, Feb. 13.—Two hours after the blizzard struck this city every street car was abandoned. The wind blew the water up the river from the Maumee bay, and the docks and Water street are inundated. Business has been at a standstill. A blinding snowstorm has filled the streets with drifts, and all trains are behind time.

A Blizzard Accident.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 13.—Between two and three feet of snow have fallen here, delaying traffic greatly. Henry W. Hose, a Central Pacman, from Holley, went back to signal a train at the Allen street crossing and was struck by a passing freight. One foot was cut off. He nearly froze before he was discovered.

Frozen Way Down East.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 13.—A heavy northeast storm is raging here. The harbor is now filled with vessels. The steamer Portland did not leave for Boston, and the steamer Oregon of the Dominion line, from Liverpool, is thought to be out in the harbor receiving the full fury of the storm.

Dunkirk at the Mercy of Fires.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Feb. 13.—Trains are delayed from late or abandoned entirely, and the street railway lines are blocked. The water supply gave out, owing to an accident at the waterworks, leaving the houses without any water whatever and the city totally without fire protection.

Off New Hampshire's Coast.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Feb. 13.—A severe northeast gale struck this coast. A cable message from the Isle of Shoals states that a sloop of war, name unknown, is in imminent peril off the Isle of Shoals. Scarcely any vessels to five. A two masted schooner was sighted making for Gloucester, with sails flying in pieces.

Fleet Blizzard Bound.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Feb. 13.—No damage to shipping is done by this violently. All trains on the Consolidated road are late, and street car traffic is badly blocked. All outdoor business has been suspended. The harbor is filled with vessels.

Storm on the Coast.

ATLANTIC CITY, Feb. 13.—A severe northeast storm passed over this city, causing high tides along the beach and doing considerable damage to telegraph wires. Several gales prevail at sea.

Sound Steamers Did Not Leave.

Trolley Cars Storm Bound.

LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., Feb. 13.—The storm played havoc with the trolley cars in the suburbs.

Nebraska Has Had Her Turn.

OMAHA, Feb. 13.—The blizzard in Nebraska has ended.

Fatal Wreck of a Fishing Schooner.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Feb. 13.—The schooner Osborn between Point and Peaked hills proves to be the Fortune of Gloucester, a fishing vessel, with a crew of 22 men and one boy. The captain and 17 men are all right with the boy and arrived at Race Point station. Two men are lost and two missing.

Her Gold Was Copper and Zinc.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 13.—Mrs. Harriet Morrison of Jackson, Miss., has to the Mint of this city to sell what she thought were two "kings" of gold worth $60,000, for which she had paid $6,000. The metal proves to be nothing but alloy of copper and zinc.

Czar May Move His Capital.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 13.—Sacharin, the czar's physician, has declared that St. Petersburg is not suited for the czar's health and advises him to live at Kieff. The transfer of the court permanently to Kieff, therefore, is only a question of ti e.

Old Statehouse a Freight.

BOSTON, Feb. 13.—Before the statehouse commission Bullivant Houghton of Ames & Damrell declared that the statehouse from foundation to spire was a veritable fire trap. The proposed improvements is heartily favored.

An Embezzler Will Return.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—Louis J. Silva, alleged embezzler of $176,000 from the Rainwater-Bradford Hat company, who has been a fugitive from justice since the 25th of last October, will surrender to the law.

Bradford Academy Student Dies.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Feb. 13.—Miss Elizabeth Heist, a daughter of T. H. Heist, a hotel proprietor of Harrisburg, died of acute appendicitis at Bradford Academy, where she was a student.

Kitty Knocks Kearney Out.

No Yellow Fever at Trinidad.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The steamer Carib Prince, which arrived from Trinidad, reports that the statement that there is yellow fever in Trinidad is incorrect.

Rhodite Makes Another.

CAIRO, Feb. 13.—The Khedive has promoted several of the British officers belonging to General Kitchener's staff of the Egyptian war department.

Bath Iron Works Burned.

BATH, Me., Feb 13.—The Bath iron works caught fire shortly before 3 o'clock this morning and were also at totally destroyed.

ASK THEM Why?

Ask the men who are making imitations of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening, why they give up land and try to trade on the merits of COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess why.

ASK HIM Why?

Ask the grocer who attempts substitution, why he tries to sell an imitation when people call for that pure, palatable and popular vegetable shortening, COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess.

ASK YOURSELF Why?

Why should not YOU use COTTOLENE, instead of lard or any other compound, for all cooking purposes? It has the highest possible endorsement; from Physicians as to healthfulness; from Cooking Experts as to superiority; from housekeepers as to economy. Use COTTOLENE and stick to it.

BOMB STARTLED PARIS.

An Anarchist Exploded One In a Crowded Cafe.

SAYS HE IS VAILLANT'S AVENGER.

Fifteen Persons Were Maimed by the Explosion, but the Only Deadly Work Done Was When the Miscreant Fired Who a Revolver at His Pursuers.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—A young man who secret from instinct of revenge exploded a bomb at 9 o'clock last evening in a cafe beneath the Terodinus hotel, which is situated opposite the St. Lazare railroad station. The cafe was full of people at the time.

A man who had dined in the cafe was seen to raise his arm and throw some thing into the middle of the room. A terrific explosion followed, and the occupants of the room were paralyzed with terror. The air was filled with smoke, and lying on the floor were numbers of persons wounded, moaning and bleeding.

The bomb had landed upon a table, around which a party had been sitting, and this article of furniture had been reduced to splinters. The persons grouped at this table suffered the most. The injured number 15. Nearly all of them were wounded in the legs. Some of them were grievously hurt and were removed to a chemist's shop near by, where they were cared for.

Desperate Struggle to Escape.

In the meantime the man responsible for this cowardly act had not remained to escape. As soon as he had thrown the bomb he ran out of the place and darted away.

The alarm was given by persons outside who had heard the noise of the explosion, and a chase was at once given the fleeing figure. A number of persons joined in the chase. The fugitive drew a revolver when he saw that his pursuers were getting too close and turned and fired several shots, killing a woman and wounding a number of persons. One of the men struck was a policeman, and his wound is considered fatal.

The man was captured when 150 yards from the cafe. He proved to be as under sized, pale faced and beardless man of 30 years. His name is Leon Breton. He had been employed in the cafe as a waiter, but had been dismissed for misconduct. Directly after the explosion the cafe was cleared. The iron shutters were lowered, and then the place was closed. Intense excitement existed in the vicinity, and an immense crowd gathered to discuss the outrage. The news of the explosion also caused a sensation throughout the city.

Before the explosion Breton had been sitting at the counter of the cafe and had partaken of refreshment. No particular notice was taken of him, as the persons were not on as to attract attention.

As he was leaving the place he threw the bomb, aiming at the electric light chandelier. The explosion shivered the plate glass windows, badly destroyed the marble top table, overturned others and smashed all glassware and plates, their fragments flying in all directions.

On leaving the cafe Breton rushed toward the Rue de Rome. At the omnibus which plies between the railroad station and the Place de Michel was passing the cafe as Breton ran out. A policeman was sitting on the top of the omnibus and saw Breton. He jumped to the ground, followed him and ran after him. For a few yards up the Rue de Rome at a spot opposite the Sceaux restaurant.

Crowd Attempts to Lynch Him.

Breton turned on the policeman, revolver in hand, and fired a shot at him. The policeman grabbed him, and both fell. While on the ground Breton fired another shot at the policeman and struck a woman who was passing. The woman fell to the ground mortally wounded. In the meantime a crowd had collected in the street on the shots. The policeman who had grabbed Breton had been badly wounded by Breton's first shot and was stretched out on the side walk. The latter, still brandishing his revolver, regained his feet and was likely to do further mischief.

The people, a large part of whom had followed Breton from the cafe, were in a furious mood and seemed inclined to lay hands on him. They believed at the time that the explosion was the work of a political anarchist, and they clamored for his lynching. The sight of the revolver restrained them at first, but Breton was headed by another policeman, they rushed forward to secure him. Breton again attempted to use his revolver, but the policeman cut him over the head with his saber, staggering him. He was then arrested. The mob again demanded that he be lynched, and for a few moments they seemed likely to get their intentions had not a strong force of police arrived. The prisoner was then escorted to the office of Commissary Aragon on the Rue de Moscow.

Five persons who were passing in the street at the time of the explosion were injured by flying fragments of glass. The inquiry before the examining magistrate showed that the bomb was constructed in the form of a sardine box and contained a chlorate of potash mixture and a large piece of clock work. Breton admitted to the police that he was an anarchist.

To Avenge Vaillant.

Breton told the doctor who dressed the wound which he received from the policeman's saber that his main object was to avenge Vaillant. His hatred of the perpetrator of the outrage was but a minor consideration. He said there were others who would follow his example. His object in all the others of the associates was to destroy the bourgeois society.

Breton was later subjected to an examination by Minister of the Interior Raynal, Minister of Justice Dubost, Chief of Detectives Goron and others. He denied that he was the author of the crime, adding instantly: "I am not an anarchist. The money that I have burst up the better, but I know nothing. I did not enter the cafe. You can suppose that I arrived here from Peking or from Montreal as you please."

Notwithstanding his statements that he was not in the cafe, Breton was fully identified by a woman who was injured by the explosion, who said that it seemed to her that there were two others with him.

In the waiting hall of the St. Lazare railroad station the police arrested a wounded man who was trying to conceal himself. He refused to give his name. From his suspicious attitude and evasive answers to questions it is believed that he belongs to the band or group of Neuilly, of which the police believe Breton to be a member. The authorities think it is probable that the crime was committed by Breton while in the company of accomplices.

The sufferers from the explosion and from Breton's revolver shots number 24. The inquiry begun by the magistrate and magistrates continued until 1:35 o'clock this morning.

MARS AT CLOSE RANGE.

A Harvard Expedition to Start For Arequipa With a Big, Big Telescope.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 12.—It is announced that on March 1 the Harvard college observatory will start an expedition to Arizona to locate a new observatory station. It is stated now that the plan of Professor Edward C. Pickering for years, but it has never before had the necessary financial backing. Mr. Percival Lowell of Boston has just donated a large fund for this purpose, and Mr. Lowell will go as a member of the party.

Mr. A. E. Douglass, now the regular assistant in the Cambridge observatory, will leave before the other members of the expedition in order to make experiments. He will first stop at Prescott, then at Phoenix. Mr. William H. Pickering, who led the Harvard expedition into Peru, will manage this work.

The station in Arizona will be for visual investigation, as the Harvard station in Arequipa, Peru, is for photographic work. This will give the Cambridge observatory two of the best locations in the world. The great Bruce photographic telescope, now being tested, will be shipped to Peru. It will be the largest of its kind in use.

Professor Edward C. Pickering, director of the Harvard observatory, said: "My special reason for hurrying this expedition off at once is in order that a station may be selected in time to observe the opposition of Mars next summer. We will pay special attention to the canals on the surface of Mars, and it is expected that they will be seen double this year. This expedition will return to Cambridge about Jan. 1, 1895."

Stamped His Wife and Son to Death.

TELL CITY, Ind., Feb. 12.—William Artmann, a farmer, while suffering from religious mania, killed his wife and eldest son. The family were eating breakfast when the crime was committed. CROWDING OUT MEN.

WHAT WILL BE THE RESULT FROM THE GENERAL EMPLOYMENT OF WOMEN?

So Far It Appears That There Have Been Considerable Reductions in Wages—The Effect Upon Marriage—Some of the New Fields Occupied by Women.

The letter printed in The Sun by the book-keeper who left his desk for a few days on account of illness and returned to find himself occupied by a woman at one third his salary opens up a new phase of economic conditions quite overlooked in the general excitement and enthusiasm over the great things women are doing in all lines of work. A still more startling story might be told of how three brothers, employed respectively as cashier, bookkeeper and stenographer and earning fair salaries, were discharged and their work given to their own sisters at one-third the price. Competition between the sexes begins almost in the cradle and is indeed lively between knickerbockers and short frocks. The "cash boy" of the retail stores has for the most part changed his sex, and it is in a gingham apron covering a multitude of tatters that the "cash" of the day answers the call of the saleswoman.

The defaulting cashier is going out of fashion, for the cashier is now a girl in the restaurants, the drug stores, some of the large retail dry goods hotels, and she doesn't default. The feminine bookkeeper does not bring a confused and "After the Ball" head to business in the morning because she doesn't drink, and men say who know whereof they speak that she is accurate, more neat and conscientious and is satisfied with much less wages than her brother. Since her day of triumph the male typewriters at the Thirty-ninth street ferry have been discharged, and their places filled by women.

The Staten Island Rapid Transit company have manned their stations with ticket sellers of the gentler sex, and the Brooklyn elevated roads have placed women at the ticket sellers' windows, to the infinite disgust of men, for the reward for faithful service in the performance of the ticket chopper's dreary duty has been promotion to the way of supplying behind the ticket window. Here the women obtain their sinecures over the heads of the men without doing their predecessors at the choppers' box and without any wages higher than before. Since her day of triumph the male ticket-chopper has left the morning by the fire, while the ticket chopper blows his fingers and stamps his feet at the box.

In some of the down town stores and offices where men are the only customers the whole clerical staff is composed of women. In shops, offices, banks girls and women entry clerks, bookkeepers, cashiers, stenographers, typewriters, floor walkers, the male element of average caliber drifts himself hard pressed and forced into lower occupations at smaller remuneration. Women commercial travelers are said to be a great success, and in a number of hot and coffee houses, dry goods and canned goods, as well as the silk houses, the bright, attractive woman of business is excelling her masculine predecessor, ingratiating herself and her samples in the eyes of the merchants and is booking more orders than her discomfited male predecessor.

New Hampshire has three women bank examiners, including a Miss Clark, who has been elected to the responsible place for the tenth consecutive time. The business of the bank has largely increased under her administration, and her good judgment in the placing of loans has resulted in her being made a member of the investment company. At Mount Pleasant, Tex., there is a national bank with a woman for president, who enjoys the added distinction of being the youngest bank president in the country. South Dakota has a woman cashier in its bank, and the Florence Savings bank has a woman treasurer. The money order department of Pittsburg, where the receipts are more than $2,000,000 annually, is exclusively in the hands of a woman.

In Holland, at every railroad crossing, stands a woman waving the signal flag of danger as your train passes. The reason why—because of the prevailing intemperance among the men in Holland. And railroad officials are answerable for the statement that no accident has ever been caused by a watchwoman's carelessness. The conductors on all the street cars in Warsaw, Russia, are women.

Ten years ago a man bookkeeper earned $1,200 or $1,500 a year and supported a wife or sisters with it or less if economically or economically, as he chose. Now, the woman has learned book-keeping and will work for $500 a year, which reveals the fact that with cheap workers and compels the men to work for $600 or $1,000 a year, the aggregate earnings of the two being $900 less than when the man worked alone. Another pen the man who wrote the letter to The Sun made was that men had families depending on them, and therefore could not afford to work for the wages paid to women. No less reliable an authority than Helen Campbell is responsible for the report that 25,000 women in the city of New York alone are supporting their husbands, while many of them have children depending on them as well, and it is safe to premise that quite as many more have old parents or sisters or brothers to assist or support.

The women have been so excited over their success, the hen so incredulous concerning it, that the serious aspects of the question have not made the impression they must make as the leaves loosen the whole body of womankind, and they crowd yet more eagerly into the market places and from very force of numbers crowd themselves into the different employments. Of course now men are greatly alarmed lest the old and honorable institution of marriage fall into innocuous desuetude because men will not be able to marry and support wives on the wages they can earn. If men had had more respect for this old and revered institution and for women to avail themselves of its opportunities, and had lived more fully up to its principles, there would not be so many women fearful of entering into its bonds or eager for release from its indignities.

One thing promised to readjust itself through the great influx of women into clerical work, and that is the raising of the standard and dignity of domestic employments. When you can read in the newspaper genuine advertisements like the following: "An excellent cook wanted; no washing; wages $21. Call Monday between 2 and 3," and "Lady stenographer and typewriter, with practical experience, willing to do general office work; salary $5 a week," always remembering that the cook's salary is exclusive of her board and keep, it looks as though the smart young working woman would presently lay down the quill and take up the saucepan from choice.—New York Sun.

Authoress Helen H. Gardner's greatest wish is to be able to feed and educate the ambitious youth of this country. She is said to believe that through culture and education will disappear the present differences between the rich and poor.

ELIZABETH CADY STANTON.

In the Main She Is Satisfied With Her Past Life and Would Do the Same Again.

"What would you do if you could live your life over again?" a young woman said to Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

The firm, kindly face, framed in puffs of snow white hair, looked thoughtful a moment. Then the gray eyes, which have seen the moving panorama of over 70 years of busy life, turned slowly toward the questioner.

"What would I do if I could begin again? Is that what you mean? Well, as far as regards my public life, I think I would do exactly as I have done. In bringing up my family I would make some changes. I would teach my children myself more than I did. I would not be content with giving them every outside advantage for gaining an education, but I would personally direct them."

"Would you take up the same public work and in the same way?"

"Yes," reflectively, "I could not help working for the enfranchisement of woman. It is born and bred in me. I think woman is the most important factor in the condition of the world. Why? Because she is the mother of the human race. She impresses a child with its temperament and tendencies before it is born. No man has the chance to do for a child what a woman can. It is not possible. And so, if we have better mothers, we will have better men. No, I could never take up any other work."

"And you would do it in the same way?"

"I think I would. Of course I have made blunders sometimes, but they have been indeed in the general plan. It seems conceited, I know, to say that if I could begin over again I would do just the same; that I have nothing to regret. But I have the consciousness of duty, and then, too, my ideas have not changed, as do those of many young people as they grow older. For instance, I never believed in being political in the first place, how can you tell what is going to be politic in the long run? I remember what my old clergyman said to me when I was a young girl.

"'Now, child,' he said, 'always say what you mean. You may be silent when that would be better, but when you speak say that you mean.'

"You know in our woman's suffrage work I have always written what we call our 'State Papers.' When I write anything, I submit it to Miss Anthony, and she often says: 'Don't you think we'd better leave this out? It will rouse antagonism.' And I ask her, 'Is it true?' 'Oh, yes, it's true!' 'Well, then, why change it?' And I still believe that it is the best way to do."

"How about passing the work in the legislature?"

"I think I would do it in the same way. Whenever I had anything to say I went into the legislature and said it and went away. I never went into the lobbies and tried to buttonhole a man and get his vote. With the newspapers, I never went to an editor's office to try to have him print an appeal for us. I wrote out what I had to say and sent it to him and let it go with that."

"Then you would do it all the same way if you had another chance?"

Mrs. Stanton thought awhile.

"There is one thing I would not do," she said at once. "You know I wore the 'bloomer' costume for two years. I regret that. It was such a mortification to my family and friends; it made me so conspicuous and gained me so much ridicule that I think it hindered the other work I was trying to do. Every time I went on the street outside of my own town, Syracuse, I would be followed by a shouting crowd of men and boys. There was a song they used to sing:

"Hoodled the merriest crew!
Mrs. Bloomer's all the go,
Twenty tailors take the stitches,
To sew Mrs. Bloomer's breeches.

"This was unbearable to me, and I took off the costume long before the others did. Another lesson I have learned is economy. If I had been more careful in money matters, I would be better satisfied. As for health, I have always taken care of myself. I used to walk a great deal, ride and drive and be careful of my diet. I walk very little now, because I feel and hurt my knee. But every afternoon I drive in the park. And I have learned the value of sleep. Let me advise you to learn it too. Five minutes of sleep, when you are tired, is worth more than all the stimulants you ever heard of."

"And how about the future, Mrs. Stanton?"

"Oh, I am more encouraged than I ever was. Why shouldn't I be encouraged? And perhaps my unpleasant bloomer experience may have done some good, after all, for I believe that some women will have a dress which will give them the physical freedom they ought to have."—New York Sun.

Bedding For Babies.

Babies of the last generation were raised on beds of down. Now science, fashion and common sense prescribe curled hair for the first pillow as well as the mattress. This matched effects better with the down, an even and healthy temperature is maintained, and it is believed that the brain gets a chance denied the infant who is put to sleep on feathers or stuffed down. Very many parents discard pillows altogether, and in the interest of animal perfection the dimpled, dewy-fleshed creature is put to sleep on a level with the puppies and pussy cats. No linen is used in the up to date layette. The sheets and pillow slips are made of cambric. The little swaddling bands are knitted or woven wool, and the bands of the barrow coats and flannel petticoats, instead of being clumsy folds of linen or muslin, are sheer nainsook, delightful to the touch.—New York World.

Mrs. Thackeray's Affliction.

The death of Thackeray's widow was the breaking of a link with the past which few people, even in England, knew existed. For more than a half century she lived a closed and existence under the closest care. She retained till the last, in spite of her mental affliction, the capacity to enjoy her only source of happiness—work. She was buried by the side of her husband, who was interned to a premature grave by grief over her blighted life. It is a modest spot. The sepulcher was in Kensal Green cemetery. Close to the path a plain, flat stone bears a simple inscription, giving the dates of the birth and the death of the authoress of "Vanity Fair." The grave is surrounded by a low iron railing, around which a luxuriant growth of ivy has clothed it. In summer a few simple flowers bloom in the narrow beds that skirt the turf.—New York Sun's London Letter.

Boston's College Club.

One of the pleasantest organizations in Boston is the College club, which is composed entirely of the women graduates of the various colleges living in Boston. A good time and the chance to meet one another are their principal aims of the College club. It has pleasant rooms on Beacon street, and once a month some one distinguished in art, literature or science is entertained. The other meetings are devoted to tea and talk.—Boston Letter.

That is the way we have been turning our stock as I prices this week. Next week we do the same. The crowds who daily throng our store know a good thing when they see it. Know where a dollar will go the farthest.

This May INTEREST YOU.

$2.29 is the price of 7 yards of Dress Goods—5 yards of skirt lining and 2 yards of sleeve. This is, without an exception, the best bargain in Dress Goods we have ever offered. Be sure and see them.

28 CENTS—On sale this week, 500 Rugs. Regular value, 60c.

4 1-2 CENTS—"Be you going to sell them 4½c Ginghams for 4½c next week?" asked a stranger from over the mountains. We told him yes, and would also sell "Fruit of the Loom," "Dwight Anchor" and "Lonsdale" Muslins, for 7c.

EMBROIDERIES—Our display of Hamburg Embroideries, we think, and every one who has seen them has said, is the finest ever brought to this town. There are five specials: 5c, 7c, 19, 12c, and 18c.

HOSIERY—Hermsdorf is the name of the man who dyes all our Hosiery fast black. Do you know that we import all our Hosiery direct from the makers, and tell them at the same price that the other fellows have to pay for them? You just save 25 per cent. See what we offer for 10c., 12c., 15c., 20c. and 25c. per pair.

HOUSE FURNISHING department is moving all the time. Just now we are pushing our "Golden Brown" Dinner Ware, one of the prettiest decorations we have ever brought out. You can buy just as many pieces as you wish, and it only costs a trifle more than plain white.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

UNCLE NED'S FISH.

He Tells the Children How to Make It Do It Will Swim.

"Tonight," said Uncle Ned as the children clamored for "something new," "I will show you how to make a paper fish which, when you put it in water, will swim away as though alive. Cut out your fish from a piece of ordinary paper. Make it 2 inches long and shape it after your favorite fish, with fins and tails, so that it will look natural when in the water. With a pair of scissors and from a piece of paper he produced a creditable outline of a fish.

"And now," he continued, "measure off an inch from the head and right to the center of the fish; then cut out a hole, as you see me do, the size of a small pea or goose shot. Then draw a straight line from the center of the tail to the hole; then with your scissors cut along the line the whole distance from the tail to the hole. When this is done, cut away a slip below the line sufficient to have a little canal, from the hole to the tail, about the width of a pin's head. Round the corners where the canal opens at the tail, cut out an opening for the mouth and draw in the eye and color the fish, and you have a very fine fish indeed," exclaimed Uncle Ned, holding it up for inspection.

"Now, we should have a long, narrow dish or tub," continued he, "in order to give our fish plenty of room. However, this basin of water will do. If you will watch me closely, you will see that I place the fish on its side upon the water, so that the lower side will touch the water at every point and in order to keep the other side perfectly dry, I throw water on it. Now, if you will watch the fish very closely you will see that it shows no signs of moving. In order to make it swim there is only one thing necessary, and that is very simple," Uncle Ned then went to the dining room and got something from it, admonishing all to turn their heads while he did something mysterious. Then the children turned and watched the fish intently. A moment passed; then the fish moved gracefully away.

"Can any one tell me what makes it move?" inquired Uncle Ned. "Well, then, I will let you into the secret. Here he produced a cruet of oil. "Drop but one drop of oil carefully in the hole in the center of the fish, as I have done. After a little while the oil seeks an outlet, and, running down the canal spreads on the water and impels the fish ahead. This is why it seems to go without any visible cause to propel it."—New York World.

Where Boys Cannot Whistle.

Have you heard that there is a country in Africa where no one is allowed to whistle after dark? The name of this country is Fez. And in Fez the persons who whistle after the shades of night have fallen will very likely be killed, because the people of Fez believe that whistling after dark calls up evil spirits.

If a whistle is heard on the streets of Fez at night, the people jump up out of their beds and run out, armed with guns and knives, to kill the one who is whistling. It is even worse in Fez to whisper at night in the streets, because it is thought that the evil spirit is very near, and that the one who whispers is talking to him.

It cannot be very pleasant to live in the town of Fez, because by night, without thinking, whistle in the evening, and then the consequences would be very bad. Or a girl might whisper to her brother as she is seated on her own doorstep in the evening.

Keeping to the Right.

The custom of walking on the right side of the footway originated 150 years ago. "In the last age," says Johnson, "when my mother lived in London, there were two sets of people—those who gave the wall and those who took it—the peaceable and the quarrelsome.

"When I returned to Lichfield, after having been in London, my mother asked me whether I was one of those who gave the wall or took it. "Now it is fixed that every man keeps to the right, so if one is taking the wall another yields it, and it is never a dispute. The period to which this referred is 1737.

Good Morning to the Wind.

"Good morning, dear old Mr. Windi
You're blowing fresh today.
You call the leaves down from the trees
And make them dance and play.

"We love to watch the work you do.
You're busy all day long.
We're very glad to bid you
'Good morning' in our song."

"My little child, I do the work
God's given me to do;
I bring the raindrops from afar,
And turn the windmills too.

"I whirl and twirl the snowflakes white.
Till into drifts they fall,
And on the ocean swiftly sail
The merchant's ships for all."

A Matter of Doubt.

Riding along the Clover fork of the Cumberland one day, I overtook a mountaineer, and we jogged along together. We talked of timber, crops and politics, and finally got down to personalities.

"Have you always lived here?" I asked.

"No," he replied; "I come from Perry county."

"How long have you lived here?"

"Five y'er, goin on six."

"Married, I presume?"

"Yes, but I reckon it's when I fust come. I worked by the day for the Widder Stevens and boarded with her. That's all the house I had. It's then I married with the two story house onto it you passed about four miles below here."

"It's a very nice place, I noticed."

"Purty rate. Tran it. I married the widder."

"Oh!" I said in surprise.

"Yes, me and her hitched inside of a y'ar."

"That's a good deal cheaper than the old way, isn't it?"

"Well," he said doubtfully, "I ain't shore. In course the property's worth sumpthin, but countin in the widder for a mean ur my peaceable disposition, it ain't nitch deer cheap livin of you might s'pose it was."—Detroit Free Press.

INVALID CHRISTIANS.

WHAT EVANGELIST CRANE SAYS OF THEM.

His Object Lesson Drawn from the Parable of Christ Curing the Young Man Stricken with the Palsy.

Evangelist Crane conducted the second meeting in his revival series at the First Baptist church last night. He took his text from the second chapter of St. Mark and the fifth verse:

"When Jesus saw their faith, he said unto the sick of the palsy, son, thy sins be forgiven thee."

Mr. Crane said in part: Jesus had just returned to Galilee from healing the sick, casting out demons and curing the afflicted. He was in Peter's home. Rumors having reached the ears of the people concerning Jesus, the Scribes and Pharisees wondered whether to add to their power by visiting this man and seeing for themselves what he did. Jesus was in the guest's chamber, next to the roof, which was thronged to the door below, and multitudes, in which were the sick, the afflicted and the lame, gathered outside the house, with but one object—to see if they could get any benefit from Jesus. Mothers with afflicted children in their arms, the suffering, old, and the strong men who were blind, or deaf and dumb were mixed in that multitude. A seething mass of suffering humanity blocked the doors. Suddenly there appeared four men carrying a hammock upon which a fifth person was lying. They pushed their way through that seething mass, amid the curses and hindrances of the many in their way. At last they reached the door. The crowd was too dense for them to make their way up to the room above, where the Master was. Seeing that He was in the guest's chamber, next to the roof, the men pushed their way back and going to the rear of the house climbed a ladder to the roof. Here they tore away the clay and brush forming the covering and at last secured an opening to the room below. Then they let their burden, the man with the palsy, down at Jesus' feet.

The Scribes and the Pharisees crowded back afraid of the disease. Jesus looked at the man, a picture of living death, and said, "My child, thy sins be forgiven thee, take up thy bed and go home." Immediately the sick man arose, for he was sick no more, and cast himself at the feet of Jesus in gratitude.

Such are the historical facts, which I think teach us an object lesson. These four men are the church of Christ, and the poor sick man, the unconverted man here to-night. First the men, were men not children, for it required strength to carry a man to the roof of the house. So the Christians of to-day should be strong men and not babies in religious clothes. Just think of the person who had been a Christian for ten years singing "Jesus, Lead me to the Cross." Leave the cross. Of course we must draw nourishment from the cross, but we must go on. Christ wants strong men, not Christian invalids, to go in the work. Invalids have no appetite for food, and that is the way with a Christian invalid: he does not want more of the spirit.

Another characteristic of the invalid is that he does not want exercise. Just so with the Christian invalid. He will go to church in the morning and listen to a powerful sermon, but that is all he does. He does not go home and try to get souls for Christ.

Mr. Crane will be at the Baptist church every night this week except Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Farley Hope the Snow Will Remain.

Last evening a sleigh ride party of about fifteen persons was made up. The driver was Mr. Walter Smalley. The party stopped at and surprised Mr and Mrs. Anthony Farley and family of Fanwood.

The evening was spent in singing, dancing and an exchange of wit. The jovial party made enough fun and noise for fifty. Those in the sleigh were Mr. and Mrs Canfield, Mr. and Mrs. Kline, Mrs. Westphal, the Misses Gussie Perrine, Miss Tinna and Carrie Undal, Messrs. Wm and Carmon Terry, Miss Phebe Smalley, Mr. Walter Smalley, Miss Annie Farley, and Mr. David Perrine. This last named gentleman furnished the instrumental music and the crowd provided the vocal selections, of which they had brought along a large stock.

Rode to Westfield

A jolly party of young people enjoyed a sleigh ride to Westfield last night. They went to Groom's Hotel where they danced and had a good time generally. The party consisted of Miss Kittie Bilnes, Miss Maggie Schuck, Miss Cora Shepard, Miss Etta Blatz, Miss Lizzie Scheline, Miss Carrie Mohl, Miss Sadie Bilnes and Messrs. Walter Heidl, jr, George Strayer, Peter Bilnes, William Bohl, Frank Schuck, Walter Remly, Thomas David Kramer and Samuel Clawson.

—The pattern makers meet to-night in Red Men's Hall.

—Mr. Wines of Dunellen will give a dinner to-night.

—An adjourned meeting of the Borough Council will be held Friday night.

—Easter Sunday comes this year on March 25th. It will not come so early again until 1913.

—Paul Holmes was convicted, at Elizabeth, to-day of stealing money from Arthur Venable of this city.

—At a missionary concert at the Crescent avenue church to-night the Rev. Dr. Richards will speak on Mexico.

—The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold a business meeting to-night.

—It has been announced that S. W. Reese, of Westfield, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for Freeholder.

—There is good sleighing in town and many fine turnouts are seen on the streets and avenues taking advantage of it.

—A special rehearsal of the Choral Society for songs, solos and duos will take place next Monday afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock.

—A sled belonging to Eugene Hoerster of Grove street, broke down at the corner of Front street and Park avenue this morning.

—The C. T. M. L.'s did not go to Newark last night as was intended and the games with the T. A. B.'s of that place have been indefinitely postponed.

—A West Front street painter, who lives in Southhamptoo, L. I., during the Summer, received a valentine to-day from his girl, signed "Dear Duckey."

—The Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the First Church of Christ held a cake sociable at the home Mr. Henry Van Middlesworth, on Elmwood place last night.

—A class for beginners in the study of applied mechanics will be organized at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow evening. Young men are invited to be present as visitors at the first session.

—The case of Joseph Willis and Martin Muller, charged with stealing trees from Mr. Deaton's Nursery, on Hillside avenue, last December, was laid over to-day to the next term of court.

—A beautiful and costly sarcophagus was sold by J. E. Townsend of Somerset street to-day, to be erected to the memory of the late Thomas Worth at Hillside Cemetery. The monument is of Barre granite.

—One of the members of the "Cracker Barrel Club" received a valentine to-day, presumably from his best girl. The other members of the club threaten to suspend him from membership because he refused to let them see it.

—In these times there are many respectable women who would gladly help their husbands by doing laundry work. Some of these women are also excellent cooks. Benevolent inclined people will frequently find advertisements from these worthy workers in our want columns.

—Hereafter sheets of cardboard are to used in the cars of the Lackawanna road by those who wish to play cards. In the recent accident one man was nearly cut in two by a wooden board, and that is the reason Superintendent Reasoner has ordered 200 sheets of cardboard for card tables.

—Saturday night Prof. John Fiske will deliver his third and last lecture in his course on "Sixteen Great Colonial History. His subject will be "Jacob Leisler and His Times." Admission will be by ticket until eight o'clock. If any seats are vacant at that hour anyone will be allowed to fill them.

—The handsome pet Gordon setter of Mrs. Harder's, which was advertised in The News as lost, was returned to its owner yesterday afternoon. From the looks of the animal's coat, which was full of burrs and tangles, and in anything but its usual natty condition, it was evident that it had been "over the hills and far away." The finder, a farmer, said the dog came to his door and whined to get in. Needless to say, Mrs. Harder is pleased to have the truant back again.

—A recent religious mock trial the following conversation ensued between the lawyer for the defense and a witness:

"Do you know the devil?" asked Mr. Winchell.

"Yes, sir."

"How long have you known him?"

"Ever since I was eight years old."

"How did you get acquainted with him?"

"He persuaded me to take some raisins from my mother's pantry."

"Spell Devil."

FOR A TRUNK SEWER.

CONFERENCE OF VARIOUS TOWNSHIP COMMITTEES.

To Discuss the Advisability of Building a Sewer to Tide Water, at Tremblay's Point, on Staten Island Sound, at a Meeting Monday Night.

The Westfield Township Committee Monday night accepted an invitation from the Cranford Township Committee to join them and the Linden Committee in a conference to be held at the Cranford Opera House next Monday evening to consider the sewerage question in the three towns. This is the first officially concerted action taken to settle a question that has been forcing itself upon the attention of the people of all along the Central Railroad of New Jersey for the past five years. Plainfield, the largest town beyond Elizabeth, has no sewerage system, and the rapid growth of that city has made it imperative that some means of disposing of the sewage be devised at once.

Some time ago a commission was appointed by the Plainfield Common Council to investigate the practicability of constructing a sewer from Plainfield to tide-water at Tremblay's Point, on Staten Island Sound. The committee reported that it was possible to construct such a sewer, but that the cost would be enormous owing to cutting through the rise of ground which lies between the irrigation looking toward the construction of a sewer in that direction was abandoned and the attention of Plainfield has been turned to cremation systems. From Westfield to tide-water at Tremblay's there are no difficult engineering problems to be solved, but the cost would be too great to be borne by any one of the townships along the route. There was a company formed in Roselle to build a sewer from that place to tide-water, and it started with prospects of accomplishing the purpose, but the donation of $5,000 that the Linden Township Committee endeavored to force the racetrack people to make to the enterprise, brought it before the people in such an unfavorable light that practically nothing has been done toward constructing a sewer.

Several months ago, at a public meeting of the citizens of Cranford, a committee was appointed to ascertain the probable cost of a sewer from Cranford to tide-water. This committee reported at a meeting held last week, but, so far as they could ascertain without going into the detail of an actual survey, the cost would be between $50,000 and $75,000. A year ago Cranford constructed a sort of drain-like sewer that empties into the Rahway River. This is in direct violation of the law, as the water from the river is used to supply the city of Rahway, and Cranford is liable at any time to be enjoined from allowing sewage to pollute the waters of the river. Should the people of that town be compelled to close their sewer it would be a serious matter to the health of the community.

At the meeting to be held Monday night it is expected that some plan will be evolved whereby the three townships will join in constructing the much-needed sewer. To build a trunk sewer large enough to meet the necessities of the three towns will cost, according to rough estimates, $150,000. Each township will have to vote on the question of issuing bonds for their share of the expense. A strong opposition to this sewer project comes from the farming interests of these townships. The farmers fail to see just where they will reap any benefit from sewers constructed for the towns, yet if constructed they will be compelled to bear the like share of the expense. There will be no attempt on the part of the farmers to be heard at the joint meeting. They propose to wait until the question of bonding the township is submitted to the voters; there, they feel confident, that they will be able to kill the whole scheme.

The matter is one upon which hangs the future growth of the towns along the Central road between Elizabeth and Plainfield. Courier-News.

Virginia Beach, Via Washington and Norfolk.

One of the most pleasant and destined to be the popular route from the East to Virginia Beach is via the famous Royal Blue Line and steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co.

Passengers taking the Royal Blue five hour fyer leaving New York daily 11.30 p. m., and Philadelphia 1.35 p. m., make direct through connections, arriving at Virginia Beach 10.00 o'clock the following morning. A break in the journey of 30 hours at Washington will prove a relief, and not the least attractive part of the trip, as the Capitol is within a stone's throw of the B. and O. station, and is always an interesting object, if only to look at its architectural beauties.

The steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co. are new, fitted up in the latest, and are models of the modern shipbuilder's art.

Pullman dining and parlor cars are attached to the Royal Blue express. Excellent meals are also served on the steamers.

For rates and further information, call on nearest B. & O. Agent, or address C. P. Dearing, General Eastern Passenger Agent, B. & O. R. R., 415 Broadway, New York. 13-6*

ENTERTAINING THE BOYS.

The First Entertainment of the Year Much Enjoyed.

Over a hundred boys were present at the entertainment at the Boys' Club last night, and that they were highly entertained all agreed. The thanks of the boys are due Mr. Tiffany for the excellent entertainment provided.

The first number on the programme was a selection on the piano by Miss Lena Morgan. Next the Rev. Mr. Goodrich read "Paul Revere's Ride." Then Miss Bowers, of New York recited "Jimmy Brown's Prompt Obedience," and "Little Orphan Annie," in an excellent manner.

The evening's programme closed with songs by Mr. Everett Johnson West End of New York. His rendering of "Drill, ye Tarriers, Drill," kept the boys in a roar of laughter. As an encore he sang "Brannigan's Pap," and "Swinging," still the boys were not satisfied, so he led them in singing "My Country, 'Tis of Thee."

Three cheers were then given for the entertainment and entertainers.

TO MEET IN PLAINFIELD.

Re-Union of the Second New Jersey Cavalry Association.

The Second New Jersey Cavalry, to which Veteran William C. Smith of this city belonged, will hold its fourth annual re-union in Plainfield on the twenty-second day of February. At last night's meeting of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., the use of their rooms was offered the association. A detail of six members was appointed to make arrangements for receiving them. The detail will consist of Comrades Cosgrove and his patriotic persons in Plainfield for funds to defray the expenses.

A business meeting will be held at 10.30, and a collation and reception, to which both the Mayors of Plainfield and North Plainfield are invited.

The detail appointed comprises Messrs. George W. Moore, William C. Smith, Charles H. Westphal, I. L. McVoy, Walter W. Coriell, and John A. Goodwin.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Margaret Gillen died at her home on West Third street yesterday afternoon. She was 70 years old.

Miss Mary Long of Martinsville is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Adams of E. st Second street.

Mrs. Hyde will have charge of the mothers' meeting in the W. C. T. U. rooms Thursday afternoon, at 3:30.

Letter-Carrier Robert Loughlin, of Watchung avenue is ill with pneumonia. Substitute William Sharp has taken his place.

Miss Eudora O. Grant of this city, daughter of Chief of Police Grant, has taken charge of a school at Rosedale, in Mercer county.

Mr. Samuel Terry of Richmond street, who has been very low with pneumonia, has recovered so as to be able to be around the house.

In the absence of Baggagemaster Garretson, who went to Somerville to-day to attend his father-in-law's funeral, Mr. Jacob Wagner, formerly the assistant baggagemaster, is acting in his place at the North avenue depot.

Miss Bowers, formerly of this city, now of New York, who took part in the Boys' Club entertainment last night, is a guest at the home of Mr. Mellick of La Grande avenue. Mr. Everett Wendell, of New York, also one of those to take part in the entertainment, was the guest of Mr. Tweedy of Crescent avenue.

Mr. Evan Davis of Division street, is in spite of his almost seventy years spent in hard work, a sturdy representative of the people of Wales, which is Mr. Davis' birth place. He was born and brought up in the southern part of that picturesque country and owned a large farm. He has been in America almost a score of years, but hopes before many Winters to again visit his former home.

A party of very merry young people met at Mr. Coddington's on Somerset street, last evening, and started from there on a "straw-ride" in a big box-sleigh to Westfield. The girls of the party, it is said, were held in by the boys, who evidently believed there was constant danger of their falling out unless such a precaution was taken. Several other young men drove after the big sleigh in cutters built for one, but on special occasions holding two. Whenever these cutters passed under electric lights it was observed that the girls had developed a sudden fondness for driving. This morning it is said, the young men have one arm in a sling. It is presumed this is because the long exposure sort of warped them.

MAYOR GILBERT VICE-PRESIDENT

Of the Lincoln Association Organized at Elizabeth.

At the Lincoln dinner at Elizabeth Saturday night a Lincoln association was organized with seventy members. The following officers were elected: John Kean, jr., president; Alexander Gilbert, of Plainfield, vice president; Senator Foster M. Voorhees, secretary, and M. W. Haley, treasurer.

The Elizabeth Journal says of Plainfield's Mayor's address—"Mayor Gilbert of Plainfield responded to the toast "The Financial Measures of President Lincoln's Administration." He spoke for over half an hour, and told how Lincoln's time under the advice and direction of the President, Congress had to raise money, furnished, discussed for a single hour, and passed the great measure providing for the raising of $200,000,000 and 250,000 soldiers to prosecute the war. This, he said, was a great lesson to the people of to-day. Mayor Cosgrove's and his sentiment was roundly applauded. The speaker eulogized the election qualities of the great President; told how his personal influence had swayed every branch of the government; how he had saved the country financial ruin, as well as bodily disruption; and in closing told how universal applause greeted by that act that cut short a noble life, making a man a martyr."

What Families Use Liquor?

Much talk is occasioned in Bloomfield by a peculiar census now being taken. A house to house canvass is made by a committee from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in order to find what families use intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

The names of such families are taken by the committee and reported to the union, and they are made a special object of prayer on the part of the union. In the future efforts will be made to have those families give up the use of alcoholic liquors.

She Loses $1,800.

Mrs. Thomas Jackson of New Brunswick either lost or was robbed of a pocketbook containing nearly $1,800 on Monday night. There was a $1,000 bill and a $500 bill and three $100 bills. She had it at 6 p. m. in her pocket and missed it at her home at 9. She either lost it in the snow or was robbed on her way home. She had been carrying it in her pocket waiting for a good chance to invest it.

Thugs at Work.

Thugs last night pounced upon George L. Pettingill, a resident of Asbury Park and attempted to rob him. They waylaid him on Springfield avenue, but he bested them by dealing them heavy blows over the head, which fooled the would-be robbers to the ground. They got nothing else and made off rapidly.

Blood Poisoning from a Safety Pin.

Leonard Higgins, a farmer living near Sergeant's Mills, Delaware township, is suffering from blood poisoning. Some weeks ago in blanketing one of his horses he ran the point of a safety pin-used in fastening the blanket—into his thumb. The result is a terribly swollen arm and much prostration.

Burned by Molten Lead.

James Nolan, employed in the foundry of the Johnson Signal Works at Rahway, was probably fatally scalded with molten lead yesterday. He was stirring the vat and threw in a wet piece of lead, which caused the vat to overflow. His clothes were burned and he was scalded about the face.

Marsh, Ayers & Co.'s Sketch Book.

Marsh, Ayers & Co., of East Front street, dealers in paints, oils, glass and fine paper hangings, have issued a sketch book of papers used by them. The book contains stitches of handsome half decorative wall decorations and interior decorations in general.

They offer the sketches as suggestions of the beautiful interiors they can produce with their new patterns of wall paper for the spring of 1894. The manufacture and application of paper hangings has become an art. Patterns are designed and colored to produce an effect on the wall, not to be simply attractive in the roll. You can make or mar the effect of the handsomest rooms by the selection you make of your wall decorations and your wall decorator. The firm says their stock comprises a careful assortment of the best goods made in every grade.

Valentine's Day.

This is Valentine's Day, and no doubt many missives of tenderness and affection, as well as the grotesque and ludicrous will find their way to plenty of people. There has been a noticeable dearth of valentine display in the show windows from which the People do not have the money to spend for such things that they once did, and dealers being aware of the fact have not made extensive purchases of that class of goods. A load of bread and other eatables dropped in some poor woman's home to-day will be a most cheering sort of valentine. Some coal, too, would kindle a fire of gratitude in many a heart that would not be reached by the most delicately elaborated production of art in the way of a valentine. These would be practical valentines, cheering alike the hearts of giver and receiver.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Bills Passed and Introduced in the House.

TRENTON, Feb. 13.—The House met at the usual hour.

BILLS PASSED.

House 80, prohibits telegraph companies from transmitting news from race tracks; House 13, provides that the joint meeting shall appoint three persons as fish commissioners, two from one party and one of another, to hold office for five years; House 105, regulates the sessions of the Supreme City Distress Court and legislates Judge Thomas F. Rooney out of office; House 112, authorizes courts and justices of the peace of any county to direct prisoners to be confined in the jails of the adjoining counties in certain cases.

House 90, abolishes the office of collectors and assessors in boroughs governed by a commission.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 119, Mr. Kerr, requires all steam railways to adopt a "block" signal system.

No. 120, Mr. Schuchart, prescribes deer hunting except from October 15th to December 15th of each year. Penalty $100 fine for each deer killed.

No. 121, Mr. Wilbur, exempts from the operation of the inheritance tax all bequests in favor of churches, hospitals, orphan asylums, public libraries, Bible and Tract societies and all religious, benevolent, educational and charitable institutions.

No. 122, Mr. Matlack, provides that voters in all boroughs shall vote within the borough for township officers and fixes term of borough directors of the poor at three years.

No. 125, Mr. Belanger, amends an act regulating insurance companies.

No. 124, Mr. Baker, makes trout fishing legal between April 1st and July 31st of each year.

No. 125, Mr. Ginder, abolishes offices of assistant prosecutors in Hudson, Essex, Passaic, Monmouth and Mercer counties.

Counterfeit Half Dollar.

Counterfeit half dollars are in circulation in neighboring cities. The spurious money is light weight, has a greasy, shiny look, but a sharp ring. It is thought that there are a litter of four different makers of the half dollar counterfeits, as the weight and also clearness of the dies differ materially. Some come near the standard weight and are clear cut, while others fall far short of the mark and are more easily detected. The former are especially dangerous to handle, as they cannot be discovered by the ring.

Theatrical Notes.

Not in years, it is claimed, has there been produced such a thrilling and stirring play as "Darkest Russia," which is now running with great success at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, Newark, all of next week. This romantic production, which tells a story of oppression and tyranny, is without doubt everywhere achieving the highest encore, unstinted praise is heard from every point and in terms of high commendation is extolled by the critics as well as by the enthusiastic people.

THE JERSEY MUDDLE.

Governor Werts and the Counsel Go on Passed Bills Have an Interview.

TRENTON, Feb. 14.—The committee on passed bills went to Governor Werts and asked for the bills which he has held for a week, stating that three had expired for his consideration of them. He replied that he had received no bills and the next day. He was asked if he had sent the bills to the secretary of the state, to which he replied in the negative.

He said he could not give the committee bills which he had never received, but would give them the privilege of searching the executive room as well as they were there. This they refused to do. The committee retired. They will send for the bills again and affidavit that they were in the hands of the governor the required time and will be taken to the office of the secretary of the state. The senate adjourned until Thursday night.

The committee on passed bills went to the office of the secretary of state and asked Assistant Secretary Kelsey, who is in charge during the absence in Florida of Secretary Kelsey, if he would receive and file the laws now in the hands of the governor should they be brought to him. Mr. Kelsey refused to give any answer until the laws were brought to him. The Republicans will take no risk of a refusal. They propose to pass an act repealing the law under which the secretary of state is made custodian of the laws and will appoint a custodian. They consider the bills in the hands of the governor as laws.

ALL DONE WITH HAWAII

Mr. Gray Says the Administration's Work There Is Ended.

THE PHILADELPHIA PLUMB FALL

The House Spent the Day Debating on the Bill Repealing Sec. 3—Senate Committee Will Probably Report Wages on the Free List and Retain the Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The time spent to-day in debate in the House on the Wilson bill, the principal question being those by Mr. Culberson of Texas in favor of the measure and by Mr. Coombs of New York in opposition to it, was largely consumed to reach an agreement for closing general debate to-day, with a view of securing a vote, but objection was made. Over 40 members have asked for time to speak, and it may be possible that a special order will be required to bring the bill to a vote, but Mr. Bland does not think this method will have to be resorted to.

Representative Raynor of Maryland contemplates offering an amendment to the pending Bland substitute bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to issue 3 per cent bonds up to $50,000,000 and running 10 years in case the necessity arises.

Mr. Raynor himself has this as a compromise with Mr. Bland, but the latter is not ready to accept it as such. Under these circumstances Mr. Raynor says that he has not yet fully decided whether to offer the amendment and let it take its chances.

Senator Gray Concludes His Speech.

The Hawaiian resolution was again the subject of discussion in the senate. Senator Gray resumed his argument in support of the president's policy and reiterated his charges that the revolutionists were deceived by the United States minister and the United States forces for support of their movement, and thereafter the provisional government deposed absolutely upon the United States troops and the fact for protection and for the maintenance of the government they had established.

The full significance of the present Hawaiian situation came out at the close of the senator's speech, when in a colloquy with Senator Teller he admitted that as a member of the foreign relations committee he understood the efforts of the president, moral or diplomatic, to restore the queen were at an end, and the present minister to Hawaii had no directions to pursue further diplomatic negotiations to that end.

Senator Gray, in referring to this point, said:

"I say as an American citizen that I very much regret that the president of the United States was not able to stifle the outrage and make reparation for the wrong that was committed there on Jan. 17, 1893. But I say that for the honor and future of this country of ours was so involved that it would have been a gratification to every patriotic citizen and the president been able to undo the wrong of Jan. 17, 1893. Why he failed is perfectly well known now. That opportunity is now gone, and I suppose will never return."

Then the senator regret," said Mr. Teller, "that the queen is not on the throne and the revolution not in existence. So far as I am concerned I do not care what Mr. Stevens' conduct was. I am looking to the present conditions, and it seems to me more than wicked and cruel that we do not declare in an emphatic manner that we do not propose to interfere with the government. If our minister at any one locality has been guilty of that country to believe that we are still disposed to carry out the suggestions of the president to restore the status quo, he ought to be withdrawn summarily. He ought to know enough of the public opinion in this country to know that the moment the president withdrew the troops the conviction would there was no possibility that the provisional government would be destroyed and this queen restored to power."

At the conclusion of Senator Gray's argument the house bill championed by Senator Berry to compel the Rock Island railroad to stop its trains at the towns of Enid and Round Pond was taken up, Senator Blackburn taking the floor in opposition to the bill. It was discussed for two hours, but no result was reached.

Work on the Tariff Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The members of the senate finance subcommittee on the tariff devoted almost the entire day to work on the Wilson bill and made substantial progress in the consideration of minor items. They gave, however, comparatively little attention to the more important questions which have from the first been a stumbling block.

There has been quite a radical change in the sentiment about the sugar duty since last week, when it looked as if it were almost certain to be stricken out. There is a chance during the absence in Florida of Secretary Kelsey, if he would receive and file the laws now in the hands of the governor should they be brought to him. Mr. Kelsey refused to give any answer until the laws were brought to him. The Republicans will take no risk of a refusal. They propose to pass an act repealing the law under which the secretary of state is made custodian of the laws and will appoint a custodian. They consider the bills in the hands of the governor as laws.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY SCARED.

He Thought the Rioters Had Sent Him a Package of Dynamite.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 14.—During the trial of the 36 Mansfield coal valley rioters consternation was caused by a boy handing District Attorney Burleigh a square of pasteboard wrapped in brown paper and tied tightly with a string. Mr. Burleigh took it in his hand for a moment, and then jumping to his feet he threw the package on the table. Its size was white as a ghost, and all at the counsel table were scared.

Mr. Burleigh demanded to know where the package came from. There were no archists among the prisoners, and it was known that there were many sympathizers in the corridor outside of the courtroom.

The lawyers quickly recovered themselves, and the examination proceeded, while Detective Goehring carefully cut the strings and removed the paper. The package contained half a dozen old paper books. A smile passed around, and Mr. Burleigh admitted that he had bit on a joke.

The entire party was taken up by the defense in trying to prove alibis, and some decidedly conradictory evidence was produced. One of the prisoners, Henry Fearn, testified positively Plainfield as being among the rioters, swore that he was home with his family at the time, did not know there was a riot and saw no cannon balls burned.

Movements of Ocean Steamships.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The following steamers sail today: Britannic, Liverpool; Rhyniand, Antwerp; Rugia, Naples. The following incoming steamships are due to-day: Brooklyn City, Germanic, Delft, Dundee; North Anglia, Gibraltar; America, London; Richmond Hill, London; Murkland, Rotterdam; Amsterdam; Marsala, Hamburg; Francisco, Hull; Boric, Liverpool; Grecian, Glasgow; Massachusetts, London; St. Regulus, Gibraltar; Loch Lomond, Rotterdam; Westernland, Antwerp.

Shot His Wife and Child.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 14.—Dr. Dunstrow of 1704 Compton avenue walked into the reserve police station and surrendered himself, stating that he had accidentally shot his wife. Dunstrow was locked up, and a police officer learned that the doctor had shot his wife and 5-year-old boy. Both were shot in the head, and the child was killed, but the wife is still alive. Dr. Dunstrow is a son of the late Louis Dunstrow, the millionaire.

Ultimatum For the Potters.

TRENTON, Feb. 14.—The manufacturing potters of this city issued an ultimatum to the 5,000 employes who walked out on strike. The men are told that those who have not returned to work by the 18th inst. may consider themselves discharged. The ultimatum has been met by the strikers with a resolution to remain firm and not to submit to the further proposed reduction of wages.

Theatrical Company's Wild Trip.

GRAND HAVEN, Mich., Feb. 14.—The steamer Roanoke arrived after a terrible voyage from Milwaukee. She was covered with tons of ice. Her sides, decks, cabins and even the pilothouse windows had ice coverings several inches thick. The ice was so heavy that the vessel listed to one side. She had a number of passengers, and none of them expected to see land. The Roanoke was not disabled.

Kentucky Feud in Full Blast.

BARBOURSVILLE, Ky., Feb. 14.—For two days there have been rumors of another battle in Harlan county between the Turners and the Nollins growing out of the recent killing by Dr. Will Nolin of two Turners boys, who had attacked him. One man, Sterling La Rance, has been added to the list of killed, making four persons in all.

Shot by an Unknown Assailant.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 14.—Salvatore la Brano, a laborer of 86 Union street, was standing on the front stoop of his residence when an unknown man approached in the darkness, and leveling a revolver at him he fired, the ball entering La Brano's abdomen. The unknown assailant escaped.

An Unwritten Tragedy of the Sea.

TACOMA, Feb. 14.—A letter was received here from Mate Sturgis of the schooner Josephine Foster, which left this city early in December last, telling of the loss of an unknown vessel about 600 miles at sea en route for Honolulu.

Plumbers' Annual Convention.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—The executive committee of the National Master Plumbers' association met in this city and decided upon Detroit as the place of the annual convention to be held in June.

Johnstown Flood Disaster Fund.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 14.—Hon. James B. Scott, director of Johnstown after the flood and one of the most prominent iron manufacturers of Pittsburg, died here.

To Prolong Prendergast's Life.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—The motion asking for a new trial for Prendergast, the murderer of Mayor Harrison, will be argued today.

Killed in a Runaway.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 14.—George Cave, a contractor living at White Plains, was killed in a runaway here.

THIRTEEN MINERS LOST

Crushed to Death Under Many Tons of Rock.

WERE TRYING TO RECLAIM A MINE

The Men Were All Citizens of Plymouth, Pa., and by Their Deaths Thirteen Widows and Thirty-six Children Are Left Without Support.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 14.—The mining town of Plymouth is in mourning today over a terrible accident that occurred in the Gaylord colliery. Thirteen men, all citizens of that town, lost their lives while in the discharge of their duties. Their names are Miss Foreman, Thomas Phillips, Thomas Jones, Richard Davis, John Morgan, James Kingdom, Thomas Merriman, Thomas Cole, Joseph Olds, Daniel Morgan, John Hammond, Peter B. McLaughlin, Richard Welsh and Thomas Leyshon.

All the victims with the exception of two leave families. One of these lost his wife only a month ago, and four little children survive them. Consequently the disaster throws 11 widows and 36 children on the world's charity.

Had Been Abandoned.

The Gaylord mine, in which the accident occurred, is owned by Daniel Edwards, one of the wealthiest operators in the anthracite region. It is operated by the Kingston Coal company, of which Mr. Edwards is the president. The best coal in the mine was taken out years ago. Then it was abandoned because it could not be operated with profit.

About three weeks ago the company decided to resume operations, and a party of experts went over the mine for the purpose to make an examination. They found matters in bad shape. The last men at work in the colliery had robbed the pillars supporting the roof until they were very thin. A great many falls had taken place, the passages were blocked by the debris, and the air current was poor. Mining experts gave it as their opinion, however, that the mine could be put in good condition again with a small outlay of capital.

The company decided to go on with the work at once. Monday morning a large number of expert miners carrying safety lamps entered the mine and began the work of clearing up the old gangways and propping the roof. They had not been at work long until a squeeze came, which compelled the men to retrace their steps. Foreman Pieton, with 12 picked miners, volunteered to go down the shaft and see what could be done.

The descent was made at 10 o'clock Monday night. Pieton's object was to get as near as possible to the most dangerous part, or where the squeeze was the greatest, in order to stay its progress by beaming the roof with heavy timber.

In cases of this kind the men get as near as possible to the cavein, and by inserting props they endeavor to break off the massed rock overhead to a certain point, then relieve the pressure on other portions of the mine. It seems that in this instance the efforts of Pieton and his men did not prove a success, as the cavein extended far back and the danger limit and a much greater distance than where the men expected to be safe, though they retreated at the first indication of the heavy fall.

Two Escape Unharmed.

This is shown by the vast area of the cavein. No one is left to tell the story. The supposition is that the men were hard at work timbering when the rocky roof came tumbling down upon their heads, crushing them out of semblance to humanity with such force that it was heard between them and the mouth of the shaft 400 feet in thickness.

At first there was some hope that if the men could be reached in a reasonable time they could be saved. This was a false hope, however. The rescuing party had been in the mine only a short time when they were obliged to retreat on account of further caving. A second rescuing party under Superintendent James W. Davis went down the shaft, but soon came back thoroughly disheartened, and finally all hope of rescuing them alive was given up.

The news of abandoned hope soon spread, and the wives and children of the men in the mine, who had assembled at the mouth of the shaft, expecting any moment to see their loved ones come up alive, set up a mech pitiful cry of distress. Mothers wrung their hands and tore their hair, and little children wept bitterly. Two of the women fainted and had to be carried away by friends. Even stout hearted men gathered at the entrance to the mine and wept almost as bitterly as the fatherless children.

This disaster is the worst that has occurred in the anthracite region since 1885, when 32 men perished by a cavein in mine No. 5 of the Susquehanna Coal company at Nanticoke. Their bodies were never recovered, and a monument marks the spot where the men met their death.

Superintendent Edwards says that he will take care of the women and children whose husbands and fathers lost their lives in this calamity. The mine, it is now believed, is a total wreck.

A Prison Burnt Comes In the Flesh.

ZACATECAS, Mexico, Feb. 14.—There is great religious excitement among the people of the town of Jesus Garcia, a mining country over the appearance among them of a beautiful young girl who puts on herself to be their patron saint, Anita.

Mr. Wilson's Condition.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 14.—Comptroller Wilson has satisfactorily recovered to be up and around his room at the Coates House, but his physician says Mr. Wilson will not be able to leave for Mexico until Saturday.

The Steamer Was Not Lost.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The Hamburg-American Packet company issued a notice saying that the rumor regarding the loss of the steamer Victoria is entirely without foundation.

Fishing Smack Missing.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The fishing smack New London Emma, which was reported to have foundered off Fire island in the fierce storm, has not yet been heard from.

Dover Has Another Bank In Trouble.

DOVER, N. H., Feb. 14.—An injunction was granted restraining the Dover Five Cent Savings bank from doing business.

CREW IN THE RIGGING.

After Many Attempts to Rescue the Men They Were Left to Their Fate.

SCITUATE, Mass., Feb. 14.—For many hours the crews of the Massachusetts Humane society's lifeboat and the Damrell Station lifeboat on the fourth cliff tried to rescue the crew of the wrecked schooner Minnie Bowers of Bridgeport, Conn. The vessel had anchored during the night to prevent going ashore, but the heavy northeast gale caused her to drag her anchor, and she was swept in upon the second cliff.

The crews of both the life saving stations were summoned, but it was not for some time that the first line was fired across the bow of the schooner. The line fell far short, and the next half dozen lines also fell short or were hopelessly snarled. Then one from the master of the government station went across the vessel between the fore and mainmasts.

The crew gained it and made it fast to the foremast, but it got fouled and was rendered useless. The men were constantly washing across the vessel at this time. Half a dozen of the crew were in the rigging, and the captain himself, tied up in blankets, was securely lashed to the main shrouds. He had been injured. Captain Stanley of the government lifeboat put off with a crew of 10, but was unable to get within 100 yards of the vessel. The heavy wind and current, combined with the surf sea, drove the boat off, and it was forced to return. Another attempt to rescue the men was made with the lifeboat, but it was unsuccessful, and the men were left in the rigging.

KISSED A MURDERER.

This Led an Impressionable Widow a Situation in the Sheriff's Office.

DUBUQUE, Ia., Feb. 14.—Mrs. May Fanning, a widow employed in the sheriff's office, was dismissed for publicly kissing a murderer. The object of her affections was Hugh Robbard, indicted with Haley and Kent for murdering Policeman Fritz and Talcott. Robbard was sentenced to life imprisonment. He was brought back from Anamosa penitentiary a few days ago to testify for Haley, whose trial is now in progress.

The ensuing murderer was passing through the corridor en route to the courtroom from jail when Mrs. Fanning rushed up, brushed the officers aside, handed Robbard a bank note and a basket of fruit and tenderly kissed him. In the bottom of the basket was found a note to "Dear Hugh," telling him that he had a friend who would never forsake him and signed "Your loving May."

VALKYRIE MAY TRY AGAIN.

She Is Being Fitted Out With Increased Sail and Ballast For a Purpose.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—James McFarlane, late with the shipbuilding firm of Henderson & Co., Glasgow, in whose yards designer Watson looked after the fitting out of the Valkyrie, said that the Valkyrie will try again for the America's cup.

"Depend upon it," said Mr. McFarlane, "Lord Dunraven's ship is not being fitted out with new copper, more ballast and increased sail for the mere purpose of cruising about Long Island sound. She will again be a competitor for the cup."

Syracuse Battery Won.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 14.—The Hendricks Republicans were in court on an order to show cause why their nominations for city officers should not be declared invalid. The proceedings were instituted by the regular Republican organization, which is controlled by Congressman James J. Belden. Justice Vann decided that the holders constituted a separate party, and the Belden people then withdrew the order.

The Pollard-Breckinridge Suit.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 14.—Miss Pollard will arrive here today, and the taking of depositions in the Pollard-Breckinridge case will commence on Thursday morning. Seventy witnesses have been summoned and Miss Pollard will attempt to substantiate the charges made in her suit. Colonel Breckinridge will introduce a score or more of witnesses in rebuttal.

Placed His Body on the Tracks.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 14.—Five highwaymen attacked Peter Major, a butcher of Duquesne, after leaving him into insensibility they robbed him and then placed his body across the railroad tracks. He was discovered a few minutes before the west bound freight train was due at that point. Five men suspected of the outrage are under arrest.

Peixoto Nips a Conspiracy.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 14.—President Peixoto, an opponent of Admiral de Lobo, the governor of Pernambuco, is plotting to make the northern states a separate republic, with himself as president, has ordered General Castro Leite to arrest the governor at the first sign of disloyalty.

Strange Monomania.

NYACK, N. Y., Feb. 14.—M. Hughes, a well known citizen of Piermont, was taken to the insane asylum at Middletown. He has believed for two months past that he has been pursued by six men who have been trying to kill him. On other subjects he appears to be perfectly sane.

To Commemorate an Historic Spot.

BRATTLEBORO, Feb. 14.—A committee of the Maryland Society of Sons of the Revolution, which has in contemplation the erection of a bronze tablet commemorating the spot where the continental congress once met, decided to unveil the memorial on Feb. 22.

The Chess Contest.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The second game in the chess match between Adolf Albin of Vienna and Eugene Delmar of this city was a Hungarian defense and resulted in a victory for the former after 31 moves.

WHAT CROKER WANTED.

An Explanation of His Visit to the White House.

PRESIDENT MADE NO PROMISES.

It Is Said That He Wanted the United States Marshalship of the New York District, Now Held by a Republican, For Tammany and Suggested a Combination.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The Herald today prints the following: An interesting explanation of the object of Richard Croker's recent visit to Washington, where he called on President Cleveland, was given by a Democrat who is not in Tammany ranks. This explanation pictures Mr. Croker as a supplicant for favor and being not exactly refused, but certainly not encouraged.

The statement was freely made in political circles when Mr. Croker returned from Washington that he had sought to gain the Cleveland ear for the purpose of effecting an alliance with the anti-snapper element which has been absorbed by the New York state Democracy.

The gossip had it that Mr. Croker was desirous of making such an arrangement for the purpose of saving Tammany from overwhelming defeat next fall, and the proposed juncture with the New York state Democracy involved a seating loose from the ruined Hill-Sheehan machine in the state.

Wants to Join Forces.

Tammanyites are averse to talking about this report, and leaders of the New York state Democracy decline to discuss the subject for publication. Some of the members of the organization, however, disregarding the possible inaccuracy of these assumptions, reasonably explain that the result of Mr. Croker's visit to President Cleveland and not the object was the desire to join forces with the New York state Democracy.

Mr. Croker, so the story goes, called on the president for the purpose of securing the United States marshalship of this district for Tammany. This important federal place is still occupied by a Republican, although the antisnappers have moved heaven and earth to have this and the other federal places occupied by Republican holdovers filled by good Cleveland Democrats.

Made Croker Smile.

Mr. Croker, it is alleged, blinted at Tammany's sincerity before the last national election, its uncompromising attitude during the weary months since last March and the support of the national administration by Tammany's representatives in congress. President Cleveland, it is said, made no promises.

He occupied the high moral ground of the statesman, and the impression Mr. Croker is said to have carried away with him is that Tammany might not get the place, and that the antisnappers had no mortgage on it either.

The story is not unique, according to report, that Mr. Croker taunted softly after he emerged from the White House, and he then counseled the idea of a combination with the New York state Democracy. He is presumed to have come to the conclusion that Cleveland was no more popular with the antisnapper element than he is with Tammany.

Has a Rating Season.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 14.—The annual review of the whale fishery for 1893, soon to be published, says: The past season of 1893 will ever be noted as a phenomenal one both as to the grounds where the whales were taken and the class of vessels that obtained the catch. Almost the entire catch has been made by vessels, as they were able to penetrate the ice and did so as far as East Mackenzie river, Cape Bathurst and Banks land, where the whales were found in large numbers. The total catch by the entire fleet was 294, as against 214 in 1892.

Ten Cents For Rides; Drinks Free.

PEEDSKILL, N. Y., Feb. 14.—A letter of inquiry from a Kentucky distiller to a saloon credit of the Messrs. Boardman, lessees of the Columbia hotel, has given rise to a peculiar version of the no license conditions of this town. Spies report that room 67 has been fitted up with a buffet and all kinds of liquors. Visitors to room 67 are required to pay the elevator boy a fee of 10 cents and get their drinks for nothing.

Another Earn Line Steamer Wrecked.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 14.—Another of the Earn line steamships has come to grief. The Maritime Exchange received a dispatch stating that the Earn line steamship Oxford, Captain James, from Matanzas, Feb. 10, for Philadelphia, with 29,000 tons of sugar, struck on Long Key shoals on Conch reef, off the Florida coast, about 11 miles northeast from Alligator reef lighthouse.

New Greater New York Bill.

ALBANY, Feb. 14.—The senate committee on cities killed the greater New York bill prepared by the commission and introduced by Senator Cantor, and the committee voted to report the bill of Senator Reynolds providing that the cities of New York, Brooklyn and Long Island shall vote on consolidation and equalization of taxation.

McKinley Their Idol.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 14.—Governor McKinley was nominated over and over again in the convention of Republican clubs of Ohio here for president of the United States, and when he appeared in response to an invitation and addressed the clubs briefly the delegates wildly cheered him.

Caught on a Bridge.

EUFAULA, Ala., Feb. 14.—A Georgia Central train, while crossing the Chattahoochee bridge near here, catught a party of men thrown, with the following result: John Davis, killed; Wallace Green, both legs broken, will die. The others escaped by swinging to the crossbars.

Watchung Park Property!

Handsomely Situated BUILDING LOTS Now Offered For Sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station. The New Watchung Park, with its new streets and avenue, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place. Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.

All modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets will begin immediately. Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon as the Spring as they are needed.

Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Sanford and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Crescent ball field.

Just as Property Values jumped in Sanford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the printed map of the property will give the public necessary information as to their location.

Paul Jones' Peculiar Trip.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—Paul Jones, the athletic young collegian who started yesterday to win a wager by going around the world and earning $5,000 in 12 months, left the Boston Press club for the Boston tavern clad in a suit manufactured out of old wrapping paper. At the Boston tavern his total assets were $2.32. He expended $1.25 for a blanket and 6 cents for needle and thread, and he manufactured a suit of togs. At a big clothing store he received $10 for the paper suit and purchased a complete outfit for $8.98. He then got a job to wait on a table at a restaurant near by, and many people paid 5 cents apiece to shake hands with him. He made a contract with a firm to wear an advertising placard the remainder of the day for $16.

Great War Threatens Servia.

BELGRADE, Feb. 14.—A royal decree has been issued summoning the reserves to assemble on Feb. 21 for a three weeks' drill. The Ristitsch Gazette says that a coup d'etat is being prepared for March 6. The crisis will culminate in a civil war.

WOMEN AS LAWYERS.

PROGRESS MADE IN THE LEGAL PROFESSION BY THE GENTLER SEX.

Some of the Women Who Have Achieved Success.—The Legal Education Society of New York.—What It Has Accomplished and How Its Z Extra Are Conducted.

There is no doubt but the path of the woman who places herself outside of the beaten track of convention is rugged and bristling with thorns, notwithstanding the advances made by the sex in latter years. One needs the courage of Joan of Arc, the patience of Griselda and the perseverance of Penelope in order to make her mark in the world.

Shakespeare seemed to possess a prophetic insight into the future when he created the noble character of Portia to embody the spirit of Justice. However not until a few years ago were the women of Europe or America afforded opportunity to appear in any court save that of love.

Women can scarcely be said to have distinguished themselves in legal profession, although statistics show that there are over 200 practicing law in the United States. About 90 of these women lawyers are associated with their husbands, the two forming a partnership for business as well as for domesticity. In the west, where on the average chance of success than in the conservative east. Women lawyers of New York have had little active work as yet. They seem to be patiently waiting for that tide in the affairs of men or women which "leads on to fortune."

Mrs. Belva Lockwood of Washington and Miss Phebe Couzins of St. Louis are both lawyers of no mean reputation. Mrs. Myra Bradwell, editor of the Chicago Legal News, has authority upon nine points of law. Mrs. Kempin of the University of Zurich now lectures on law before a class of men in one of the Swiss universities. Miss Chassin was the first graduate of a French law school, and Mlle. Bilesco of Roumania is a bachelor of laws and as such entitled to practice in the courts of that country. Many unheyo female lawyers throughout the United States have accepted clerkships in law offices in order to gain experience and confidence.

Some [illegible] women have been enabled to study jurisprudence in the state of New York through the persistent efforts of their own sex. Mrs. Leonard Weber and other women of means and benevolent instincts conceived the idea of establishing a sort of free clinic for legal dispensary, where the poor might receive reliable advice free of charge, and ambitious young lawyers afford the services, but soon wearied of a struggle which brought neither fame nor money. In this dilemma the directors conceived the plan of having the way for those women who wished to study law, hoping to enlist their services in ameliorating the wrongs of the poor. Thus the Woman's Legal Education society was established, with Mrs. Leonard Weber as president and Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobs as treasurer. A chair of law was endowed by the society, and Mrs. Emily Kempin was engaged to lecture. This course, however, only developed a law school for girls who pretend to [illegible] for the practice of law. No one [illegible] the city of New York would at present admit a woman. Chancellor McCracken of the University of the City of New York, with characteristic generosity, upon the representation of the board of directors of the Legal Education society, agreed to receive women desiring to become professionals into the law class of the university, where they are now admitted on the same footing as the male students. They are, however, nonmatriculates. The arrangement has proved emi nently satisfactory to all parties, the women exercising a happy and orderly influence among the male students.

Mrs. Kempin remained but a year in this country, and Professor Tiedman took her place. The chair at the present time is filled by Professor Isaac Russell, a man of rare attainments and great of manner. His lectures are delivered in such an easy and pleasing style that the study of the dry technicalities of the law becomes an agreeable task.

The lectures are given at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., the latter being designed for the accommodation of business women who are occupied during the day. No preliminary examination is necessary in order to enter this class. There are four courses of study, $5 being the charges for each, or $20 for the four. There are 10 free and 20 half free scholarships, which may be obtained upon application to the president of the society, Mrs. Leonard Weber, whose residence is 25 West Forty-sixth street. A prize scholarship of $200, in the form of two years' tuition in the University Law school, is annually awarded to the student passing the best examination. The methods of lectures are strictly scientific, and any legal question propounded by a member of the class will be discussed by the lecturer. Many of the students are verging on or are past middle age, although some of them are young girls. A few of these women intend entering the bar as practicing lawyers, others study for self culture and legal knowledge in case of need. The law library of the university is open to both male and female students.

There would be fewer frauds perpetrated upon unprotected women by unscrupulous executors, trustees and lawyers had even an understanding of the law relating to husbands and wives and knowledge of the difference between bond and mortgage, stocks, unmissetted securities, etc. Instruction in law acquire practical information by business contacts, which few women have the opportunity of doing. Not a day passes but the newspapers give harrowing details of the maladministration of some woman's affairs, by which she loses her all, and study for rudimentary technicalities of common law would prove a great protection to women.

Woman's success in the domain of juris prudence remains to be proved, but there is no reason why a woman of average intelligence should not succeed in imbibing as a remunerative practice, provided she is given an equal chance with her male competitors.

Statistics of colleges have proved the ability of women to cope with men in all the departments of study, her average outranking the male student's, and it is not too much to predict that we shall produce women lawyers, peers of the best among men.—Countess de Montaign in Jenness Miller's Monthly.

A Fifty Ornament.

A woman who has accumulated half a dozen plush workbaskets, of various people, all about the size of a silver dollar, had made them beautiful by treating them till they look like antiques in old ivory. They are set in a deep and narrow oblong of golden brown plush and hung beneath a picture. Plush with a short nap should be used for all pockets and framing of this kind. Soft leather in dark green or maroon is also frequently used for framing flat cases, because it is newer and will not catch dust as will woolen.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

The Boy Orator.

About three years ago the audience at a benefit performance in the Broadway theater was amazed by the eloquence of a child. The lad was perfectly self possessed, and, with a wealth of golden curls floating about his head, a sunny smile and twinkling eyes, he talked in the finished way about the burning questions of the hour. The lad was Walter Leon. Today he is one of the best paid among the performers who play at the leading vaudeville theaters, and although he is barely 7 he is well to do in his own right.

Young Leon's forte is oratory. He has a remarkable gift for extemporaneous speaking and is uncommonly well posted on the leading topics of the times, so that even wise and grave men marvel at his quick and accurate grasp of current affairs. Master Leon is gifted besides and a minute.

One would hardly think to look at him that he is one of the most remarkable children that have ever appeared before the New York public. We have had Wallie Eddinger, Josef Hofmann, Cyril Tyler, Tommy Russell and a dozen others, but they were big boys when they made them selves famous compared to little Walter Leon, for his fame is not newly acquired, although the lionizing by beauty and fashion is of recent date. Four years ago he could recite "Spartacus to the Gladiators" with excellent dramatic effect and a remarkable clearness of enunciation. Three years ago he learned and acted the part of Hamlet, and then, you see, he was only 4 years old.—New York Advertiser.

A Peanut Party.

This makes great sport for home entertainment. A large quantity of peanuts is needed. It is better to roll severally a hundred or more in violet colored tissue paper. Then twist canary colored tissue paper around bunches of three or four together. Before the guests arrive the peanuts must be well hidden, but in such places that they can be readily found—behind pictures or easy chairs or among the flowers in pots. After the company is assembled give each individual a silk bag matching the colors of the tissue paper. The one having the bag first filled receives the first prize, the one who has the most violet colored peanuts the second, and he who has the most canary colored peanuts has the booby prize. This game may be varied to suit taste and circumstances. It is always a frolic and may be followed with [illegible] favorites such as "blind man's bluff," "[illegible] tears," "turn [illegible]," "[illegible]," "[illegible]," "[

GEORGE FOX.

LIFE AND CAREER OF AN OLD FRIEND.

Mr. Aaron M. Powell's Lecture at the Friends' Meeting House, on Watchung Avenue, Last Night.

Mr. Aaron M. Powell lectured last night in the Friends' Meeting House, on Watchung avenue, on George Fox. He said in part:

Every generation has its witnesses for truth.

"Cloud witnesses; the voices of his will, Sound in the slow march of the centuries still!"

Such was George Fox. Two hundred years ago the spiritual view of religion was nearly obscured, buried beneath outward formalities; a gross ecclesiasticism. The English nation was convulsed by war, one element of which, if not the chief one, was a religious strife for supremacy on the part of the representatives of the State church, as against the dissenting protestant sects. The priesthood had become grossly corrupt, mercenary and cruel. The Cromwellian revolution was the outgrowth and inevitable culmination of these unhappy conditions. The need of some potential voice to arrest the attention of the people, to reassert the doctrine of the spirit, had become imperative. With the urgent need came also the man—supported by worthy compeers, men and women.

George Fox was born in seventh month (July) 1624 at Drayton, in Leicestershire, England. His father was Christopher Fox; of whom George Fox says: "He was by profession a weaver, an honest man.

He fully realized that many about him, who professed to be religious be, lievers, whether Protestants or Catholics, were in no sense, true believers. He also saw clearly that the ministry of his time was altogether incompetent. He says, "As I was coming to town, in a field, on a first-day morning, the Lord opened unto me that being bred at Oxford or Cambridge was not enough to fit and qualify men to be ministers of Christ." He could no longer attend upon the ministrations of the priest Stevens, which caused much grief to his parents and friends. The priest also became afraid of him "For going after new lights." He saw also that churches and meeting houses were not the real temples of God; that he did "Not dwell in temples made with hands," but in the hearts of the people. In 1647, when he was twenty-three years of age, his active labors as a missionary preacher may be said to have begun. He travelled and had meetings and discourses with friendly people. In Nottinghamshire he met with a woman named Elizabeth Hooton, who appears to have been much impressed by his views, and afterward became a distinguished preacher among friends.

He came in contact with some curious people.

He had not joined in a profession of religion with any body of people. He now sought the priests of the English church less, and minded more with the dissenting people. The dissenting preachers, however, could give him little or no spiritual consolation. But, as the "inward life" developed in him, he was filled with joy and wonder at the infiniteness of the love of God.

He had now many new openings of truth and was much strengthened by spirit. He seems also to have undergone a physical renewing. He revived the preaching of primitive Christianity. To him it was as a new revelation. He enforced the presence of the Divine Spirit, the "inward anointing" in man; that each individual human soul might be taught and guided in the true pathway of life, immediately by the All Father. Herein was the kernel of his teaching. It naturally brought him then in continual antagonism with the merely professional priesthood, whom his doctrine threatened to undermine, but give him ready access to the hearts and consciousness of many tender, thoughtful people, who became his friends and coadjutors.

In 1648 he began to have great meetings, and a profound interest was awakened among the people, wherever he went.

In 1652 he first visited Swarthmore, and Swarstone, the home of Judge Fell and Margaret Fell. Judge Fell was a man greatly esteemed, and of much influence, which, after becoming acquainted with his spirit and teachings, he used to shield and protect George Fox and other Friends. He opened his house, Swarthmore Hall, for their meetings. Margaret Fell, his wife, became an effective coadjutor in establishing the Society of Friends. A Friend's meeting, commenced in 1652 at the invitation of Judge Fell in Swarthmore Hall was continued there till 1690. From that time till the present it has been held in Swarthmore Meeting house, which is still standing in the near neighborhood of Swarthmore Hall.

On the eighth of the first month (January), 1672, George Fox accompanied by Robert Widdors and William Edmundson took leave of Jamaica and embarked for Maryland, where they were landed after a long and perilous voyage of nearly seven weeks. Maryland two hundred years ago, as indeed our whole country, was to a great extent a wilderness. The description which George Fox gives of his journey from Maryland through New Jersey to Long Island, and thence to New England and back, the details of which I cannot here reproduce, reminds one most forcibly of the marvellous progress which has been made in the two centuries in the means of travel and communication.

While in Maryland George Fox did much to extend among the people an interest in Friends. The 25d of 5d month (March), 1673, they sailed from Maryland direct for England. They had a very favorable passage and arrived at Bristol the 26th of 6th month (April.)

Friends had now become a numerous body of people. In fraction through the life and career of George Fox, we find him not only a man unusually gifted as a preacher in that quality which reached and quickens others, but that he was also an efficient organizer. At an early period, (in some localities as early as 1652) he began to establish quarterly and monthly meetings, "for looking after the poor, taking care for orderly proceedings, and other matters relating to the church of Christ."

This was two centuries ago, and even now how much in advance of the custom of most popular churches wherein women are allowed little or no service in the ministry, and only a subordinate voice in the general direction of the work of the church.

This last ten years of his life were spent much of the time in and about London when not visiting friends in the more remote parts of England,—except that in 1684 he paid a second visit, of a ten months, to friends on the continent.

In England as in our own country many meetings are very small, many others have been discontinued. Whereas in the time of George Fox the circle of friends enlarged rapidly, and great spiritual activity charactized the era. Now the opposite is manifest. Inertness and stagnation prevails instead of zeal and enthusiasm. To the thoughtful observer, the end is not difficult to forese if this tendency be not arrested. As a people, friends cannot hope to maintain for a very long period a denominational existence upon traditional merit, the labors of the Fathers. George Fox, as we have seen, was foremost in the application of religion to human needs—not as limited by lines of denomination. These needs continue. Intemperance, poverty, crime, injustice, oppression, great spiritual darkness,—these abound. Their causes it should be our task, as it was of George Fox to remove. If we do this work of the world faithfully and well, willing to lose our denominational life, if need be, we shall then draw others unto us and strengthen our failing lines. Exhortations to fally and save the traditional form mostly, be they ever so often repeated, will not avail and are proving powerless to save.

I have no no doubt:—

"The Lord of the seed-field takes care of his own,
And the world shall yet reap what our sowers have sown,"

But—

"We need, methinks, the prophet hero still,
Saints type of life and martyrs strong of will."

NO CAUSE OF ACTION.

Verdict in the Case of Smith vs. Weber.

The suit of Smith vs. Weber for damages was tried before Justice Nash yesterday afternoon. Smith, it will be remembered is the boy who was bitten by a dog recently while he was delivering papers.

The boy testified that he had been bitten, but that it was dark and he could not tell whether it was Mr. Weber's dog or not. He saw that it had a little white and a little black on him. It was not shown that anyone else saw the dog that did the biting. Mr. Henry was the first upon the scene and he testified that he saw no dog.

Mrs. Weber swore that she found the dog chained at his "coup" immediately after she had been told of the biting.

Dr. Herbert, a veterinary surgeon, testified that he had gone to the "coup" and untied the dog and brought it down town, that showed that it was not a vicious animal. Col. Moore of Fanwood and Mr. Henry Nisewich both said that to their knowledge the dog was not vicious.

It was also shown that the dog did not belong to the defendant in the case, Mr. Weber, but to his wife.

Justice Nash decided that there was no cause for action.

Inventor Marx's Woes.

Mr. Ernest Marx, a photographer, with a studio in his residence on the third floor of the big six-story double-decker apartment house, No. 203 West Ninety-eight street, New York, who formerly lived on East Front street, this city, has been experimenting some boyhood with a method for gluing photographs. He became convinced Tuesday night that he was at last about to solve the secret he had so long sought to fathom, and he sat up late to follow out his pet theory.

A mixture was in an iron pot on a table, and Marx was engaged in examining it at one o'clock in the morning, when an explosion smashed the iron pot into atoms, and Marx's, with his face and hands covered with the fluid, which burned him like so much vitriol, was hurled to the other side of the room. He refused to go to the hospital. He will probably recover, but will likely be disfigured.

In Justice Nodine's Court.

Yesterday Justice Nodine rendered judgment in the case of Conklin vs. Cronck, for $62.36. The defendant failed to appear.

The "Magic City" is selling immensely. Wanamaker of Philadelphia, sold 4300 copies in three days. On sale at White's, 5c. copy.

A SUPPOSED SUICIDE.

EDWARD ECKHART TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL WITH HIS THROAT CUT.

He Lived at Bound Brook.—A Deep Gash in His Throat Almost from Ear to Ear.—His Recovery Doubtful.

Edward Eckhart, a butcher, 25 years old, of Bound Brook, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital this morning with a deep gash in his throat almost from ear to ear.

It is supposed that he tried to commit suicide.

It is not known whether he will recover or not, but the chances are that he will not.

He was taken to the Hospital by members of the lodge of Free Masons of Bound Brook.

He is unmarried.

PERSONAL.

Mr. George Fiering, driver for No. 2's engine Company, is sick with the grip.

Mrs. L. B. Woolston and son of Dover street are visiting relatives in Camden.

Mr. Jacob Voehl of Somerset street is confined to the house with rheumatism.

Judge Coddington was absent from his office, this morning, being kept in his room nursing a severe attack of neuralgia.

Route Agent John Kerr of the United States Express Company will move here from Morristown next month.

Mr. C. J. Thier, the general agent of the United States Express Company for New York, will make Plainfield his home, after March 15th. He has rented a house on Second place.

President Teale and Secretary Coward of the Plainfield Camera Club expect to attend the meeting of the New Jersey Division, American League of Amateur Photographers, at Orange to-night. Officers will be elected.

Mr. Alfred Simmonds of Watchung avenue, who was so seriously ill for about fourteen weeks with typhoid fever, is now so much better that he hoped, in a few days, to be able to resume his Yale College and resume the studies almost forever interrupted by his illness. Mr. Simmonds is one of the most promising students in the electrical engineering class.

Miss Maude Pruett was tendered a surprise party last night at her home on Craig place by a number of her young friends. The surprise was arranged by Miss Percy Emmons and Miss Bertha Thorn. The party went to the home of Miss Thorn and then proceeded to the home of Miss French. The evening was most enjoyably spent in dancing, and the playing of games. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Miss Lillian Glenn, Miss Lillian Schoonmaker, Miss Florence Barnes, Miss Bertha Thorn, Miss Florence Duck, Miss Percy Emmons, Miss Stella Swain, Miss Bessie Valiant, Miss Nellie Schutt, Miss Edith Hartbut, Miss Ada Woolston, Miss Edith Vegan, Miss Mary Collier, Miss Maude French, Miss Edna French and Messrs. Volney Green, Sidney Titsworth, George Smith, Maxwell Honeyman, Raymond McGee, Everett Peck, Arthur Peck, John Van Winkle, Harry Drake, William Van Deventer, Henry Brower, Howard Martin, Herbert Moore, Herbert Schutt and George Horn.

The game party of young people who went on a sleigh ride to Westfield the first evening, started from Mr. Coddington's, on Somerset street, again last evening. Their destination was the Watchung Lyceum, in Washington Valley. The young men were reported to be suffering from a sort of carnature of the right arm as a result of the exposure on the previous straw ride. Possibly the left arm is similary affected to-day. The Lyceum was closed, as expected, so the party drove to Fanwood, Scotch Plains and up in a big circle, home. Before home was reached the cold air had created a full grown appetite in most of the young people and one of them, a rather bright youth, according to the report of a surveyor, went into a hotel to get some sandwiches. This youth soon appeared with a bundle and said: "I ordered sandwiches, and what do you think I got?" This was a poser. Some suggested pie, others brickbats, or a bill, and one guessed "Salt." Finally he was asked "what?" and he replied, "Why sandwiches, of course!" If such brilliancy continues the sleigh rides may be given up.

A Sleigh Collapsed.

About eight o'clock last a sleigh belonging to Mr. Mumford of Arlington avenue, collapsed in front of the depot on North avenue. In the sleigh were a young man and two young ladies, besides a number of boys, who were stealing a ride. Suddenly without warning the runners spread apart and the whole party landed in the snow. The horse was unhitched and the wreck was hauled by several boys to Mr. Mumford's place of business on East Third street.

ABOUT MEXICO.

A Very Interesting Talk on the Subject by the Rev. Mr. Richards.

At the Chapel of the Crescent Avenue Church last night the Rev. Dr. Richards, who recently returned from Mexico, gave a talk on Mexico.

Mr. Richards briefly outlined his trip without going into the details. He said he and Mr. Speer first visited Monterey, where the first conference was held. In describing the city he said it put him in mind of an ancient city in Bible times. Its houses were only one-story high.

In speaking of the peculiarity of the people in naming their children Mr. Richards said he met a man whose first name was Jesus Christ and a little girl whose they called Jesus.

Mr. Richards in explaining the mode of travel said that they went across the country in a stage, to which were hitched several mules. The mules were always kept on the run, a man running along on either side to apply the whip.

He said the men were something wonderful, for while they changed mules seven times in the journey they did not change the men who ran alongside the stage all day.

Mr. Richards explained the customs of the people and the country in a very interesting manner.

A WAGON WRECKED.

Accident on Somerset Street Yesterday Afternoon.

Between three and four o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. Thomas Jennings of Dover street and a farmer named Bloom were driving on Somerset street. When near Mountain avenue their horse, frightened by an approaching trolley car, jumped directly in front of it. The car struck the wagon. The men were knocked out and the wagon was almost a wreck. In falling one of the men landed on the car-track. The motor-man's quick presence of mind undoubtedly saved the man's life, for he stopped his car within half its length.

Both Mr. Jennings and his companion were more or less bruised but no bones were broken.

Mr. Jennings' horse broke loose from the wagon and ran to Scotch Plains.

Another Member of the Last Grand Jury Dead.

John Berry, of Rahway, located about mid-way between this city and Rahway, died Tuesday evening from the effects of an attack of the grip. He was a member of the last grand jury, and while serving with that body contracted a severe cold, which later developed into the grip. The attack left him exceedingly weak, but he began slowly to improve. Last week, however, he suffered a relapse, and continued to fall until death ceased. Mr. Berne was unmarried. He is the second member of the last Grand Jury to die within a short time. The late Mr. Bernhardt B. Gray of this city was the first.

Holy Cross Brotherhood Meeting.

Holy Cross Brotherhood held a regular monthly meeting in the choir room of the church last night. There was a goodly number of members present, and after the regular business of the meeting had been attended to, and the reports of the various committees heard, the advisability of giving an entertainment in the parish building was discussed. It was decided to give such entertainment shortly after Easter. After the meeting adjourned, the remainder of the evening was spent in a pleasant and social way.

Coal in Bags.

The new firm of Thorpe & Ivins has introduced what is a novelty in this vicinity, although used for some time in certain Eastern States. This novelty is the delivery of coal in bags. Each bag contains 100 pounds, and is made of heavy canvas. This method of delivery, it is claimed, does away with all noise, dust and dirt, and, Messrs. Thorpe & Ivins believe, will find immediate favor.

Met a Shocking Death.

Frank Hepaik, a laborer employed at the A. Parden Terra Cotta Works at Fegth Amboy, met a horrible death Tuesday night in a glaze mill in the tile department. The glaze mill is a deep pit in which are two shafts of revolving knives. Hepaik was at work feeding the mill when he lost his balance and fell into the pit.

Before the mill could be stopped the man was literally cut to pieces. He leaves no family. The body was taken to Coroner Burke's morgue.

Smothered by a Dog.

A three-months'-old infant of Charles Salmon, of Buckshore, was smothered to death Monday evening by a large Newfoundland dog sleeping on its head. The baby was left alone early in the evening and was sleeping. The dog went to the bedroom unnoticed and coiled himself on the child. It was dead when found. The distracted father shot the dog.

Killed While Clearing the Tracks

James Jones, a laborer employed by the Central Railroad Company, while shovelling snow off the tracks in the Communipaw yards yesterday morning was struck by a train and instantly killed. He leaves a wife and five children in destitute circumstances.

Pen Sketches from Life.

A youth of about ten years, with a bundle under one arm, his face flushed and hair blowing, raced wildly after a sleigh on one of the main streets yesterday morning.

For fully a block and a half he plowed his way through the deep, loose snow, and then, when, at last, with puffed cheeks and exhausted body, he grasped the back of the sleigh, it did seem cruel that the rubber overshoe should come off one of those swiftly moving feet and fly a dozen rods to one side.

He did not observe the absence until another boy in the sleigh called his attention to it, and with a very rueful face looked back, the case was clear.

A thoughtful passer-by observed, "To a minister there is material for a sermon."

An unladen grocery sleigh on a side street in North Hudson avenue attracted the attention of a rather large small-boy yesterday afternoon. He chased it, caught up and climbed in. Three other young gamins, observing his success, also ran for a ride. The successful boy, when these latter finally grasped the tail-board, suddenly stooped, and, deftly snatching the hat from one boy's head threw it in another's face, and, then, with a twisting shove, tossed off the third boy, who stood on the curb. The other two went down over his body.

At this final result the boy in the sleigh set up a shout of glee, at the same time standing up and waving his hand in derision.

His noise caused the driver of the sleigh to turn around. Taking in the situation at a glance, he leaned forward and touched his horse lightly with the whip.

The animal sprang forward, the sleigh gave a lurch, the gleeful yell of the boy in the rear ended abruptly, and the boy himself—well, he took the prettiest possible dive over the tail-board into a small snow-bank.

By the time he got his eyes clear the other three street-arabs were upon him and almost buried him in snow before they felt satisfied. It was a clear case of the bitter bit.

Virginia Beach, Via Washington and Norfolk.

One of the most pleasant and destined to be the popular route from the East to Virginia Beach is via the famous Royal Blue Line and steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co.

Passengers taking the Royal Blue afternoon express leaving New York daily 11.30 p. m., and Philadelphia 1.35 p. m., make direct through connections, arriving at Virginia Beach 10.05 o'clock the following morning. A break in the journey of 24 hours at Washington will prove a relief, and not the least attractive part of the trip, as the Capitol is within a stone's throw of the B. and O. station, and is always an interesting object, if only to look at its architectural beauties.

The steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co. are new, fitted up in the latest, and are models of the modern shipbuilder's art.

Pullman sleeping and parlor cars are attached to the Royal Blue express. Excellent meals are also served on the steamers.

An Intelligent Horse saves a Doctor's Life.

Dr. J. B. Harrison of Westfield, had a narrow escape during Monday night's storm at the railroad crossing at Garwood. There are no gates or lights at the crossing and the driving snow prevented his seeing an approaching eastbound freight. His horse and the engine reached the crossing at the same time. The animal had intelligence enough to turn down the track inside the moving train, thus saving its own life and that of the doctor.

Revival of "Brother John."

The "Senator" will be succeeded by "Brother John" at the Star Theatre in New York City on Monday night. This play it will be remembered was originally presented in New York last Spring, when it made a hit of pleasing proportions. The author is the well-written by Martha Morton, a young American girl, and like all of Mr. Crane's other productions, it is essentially American. After closing its run in Gotham, the play went to Chicago, where it was one of the largest successes of the World's Fair season. In the play Mr. Crane will be seen as John Hackett, the kindly hearted hatter, whose whole being is wrapped up in his little family of two sisters and a youngster of whom he literally cut to pieces. He leaves no family. The body was taken to Coroner Burke's morgue.

FOREWARNED.

He Was a Fraud, For She Had Plenty of Stuff in the House.

At 9 o'clock the other evening a bareheaded, plainly dressed woman about 30 years of age walked into a Grand River avenue drug store and asked:

"Has a man been in here within an hour and asked for poison?"

"No, ma'am," was the reply.

"Rather small man, with a goatee and freckled face?"

"I don't remember any such man."

"Got a squeaky voice, and he'll tell you that he was tired of life and longed for rest?"

"No; no such man has been in here, ma'am."

"Well, he may come. He's my husband. Every week or two he tries to bluff me, and when he finds he can't do it he threatens to poison himself. He went away this morning saying I would never see him again, and that I would read of his death in the evening papers."

"Yes, ma'am."

"You'll know him the minute he walks in. He'll ask you for arsenic—10 cents' worth of arsenic."

"Yes'm."

"He'll begin to blow about his skills you are putting it up, saying as how it makes life miserable and full of woe, and that he has decided to die."

"Yes'm."

"Then he'll begin to shed tears and claw off and say perhaps he'd better make one more effort to live with me, and the result will be that he'll walk out and leave you 10 cents out of pocket."

"I see. I'll be on the watch for him."

"Yes, you'd better. He's played that trick on every druggist within half a mile here. I keep laudanum, rough on rats and strychnine in the house all the time, besides three or four ropes about enough for him to hang himself, and there's no earthly need of his beating a drug store. He just does it to get sympathy and have a chance to say that I bought four 10 cent novels in one week."

"I see."

"If he comes, just grab him, turn him around and lift him outdoors, and I'll be very much obliged to you, and it may help to make a better man of him. Good evening."—Detroit Free Press.

Whose Baby?

"Sleep!" echoed the portly gentleman to a question the man in the next seat had put to him. "Sleep? I sleep all night like a baby."

"Whose baby?" queried a nervous, harassed looking fellow, with a strange glitter in his eyes. "Whose baby, I say?" he repeated in a harsh, grating tones, that startled every passenger in the car, for they did not know he had been a parent only a year.—Life.

TRYING TO STOP DEBATE

Mr. Bland Wants Some Limit Put to the Discussion.

A QUORUM IS LACKING TO DO IT.

The Absentees Will Probably Be Called Back—The Senate Spends Another Day on the Bill to Correct a Railroad—More Presidential Nominations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—All efforts to agree upon a time for closing the debate upon the Bland bill have so far failed, the debate is still proceeding without limit. Mr. Bland will probably permit this to go on until tonight, as there are quite a number of questions who insist upon their right to be heard.

The opponents of the measure have decided that they will insist upon a quorum of the full membership of the house, and will not at every stage of the parliamentary procedure hereafter, so that a motion to close debate will require a quorum of those who are in favor of it. There are many members of the house who are absent at this time, and it will probably require two days at least to get them all in. The sentiment now among the friends of the bill seems to be that it will be best to let the opposition have its own way in the matter, however, be given no opinion.

Bland Speaking to Both Houses.

The debate was without startling incident of any kind, the only interesting feature of the day being a question of veracity raised between Mr. Pickler and Mr. Bland as to how the latter would vote on the proposition to increase the duty on diamonds during the tariff debate.

Mr. Brosius of Pennsylvania argued against the bill. "By this bill," he said, "the financial honor of the country is being put up at auction to enable it to pay its debts."

In concluding Mr. Brosius held up a silver dollar.

"This," said he, "is the only dollar ever issued by the United States stamped with the double curse of being depreciated and irredeemable. It is worth 49 cents and redeemable in nothing except itself. It is a cheat, a fraud and a disgrace to the United States, and for that reason I am opposed to continuing its coinage." [Applause.]

During the speech of Mr. Walker's speech Mr. Reed and Mr. Bland got into an angry altercation over the limitations of the debate, which ended only when Mr. Hatch, who was in the chair, was vigorously pounding for order, and the sergeant-at-arms was at last called upon to see that the gentlemen kept the peace.

The entire time of the senate was consumed in the discussion of the house bill providing for the sale of a right of way to a company to stop its trains at the new towns of Enid and Round Pond, in the Indian Territory. The measure is especially championed by Senator Berry of Arkansas and is proving a subject of great attention, as some Democratic senators see in the proposed exercise of congressional power a usurpation of rights. No action was reached on the bill, but a vote will probably be taken today.

The Peckham Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Senator-elect McLaurin of South Carolina expected to arrive today, and it is supposed that he will take his seat and be sworn in upon the assembling of the senate. In this event he will become a senator in time to participate in the executive session this afternoon, and his first vote of importance will be either for or against the confirmation of the nomination of Mr. Peckham. He professes to know now just how he expects to vote, but the opponents of confirmation are very hopeful of securing his vote upon the basis of the statements attributed to him in published interviews.

Outside of so much importance would not be attached to the vote of any one senator, but the leaders on both sides of the Peckham contest are so uncertain as to the result that every senator's vote may be the signaling every effort to hold what they have and gain all that may be possible. Senator Gorman, chairman of the judiciary committee, said that he believed that the majority against Peckham would be from 4 to 8.

Senate Executive Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The senate committee on foreign relations held a meeting, at which Chairman Morgan informed the other members that he had begun the preparation of his report upon the Hawaiian investigation and had it under way. He asked for a meeting of the subcommittee which has had this subject under consideration for Saturday next, when he said, he might be able to present a rough draft of the report, though he had not decided as yet whether it would be necessary to present it so early. It is probable, however, certainly. If the report should be such that all the members of the subcommittee can accept it, it is probable that the full committee would follow in the course and thus dispose of the question so far as the committee is concerned at an early day.

If a majority reject and a minority necessary by conflicting views, as seems probable, there would be some delay. The testimony will not be made public until the report is signed upon or possibly not until it is presented to the senate. A member of the committee who has been present at all of the meetings said that there would be very great disappointment over the testimony, when printed, among those who have expected it to reveal many important matters.

The Shipwrecked Crew of the Kearsarge.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Secretary Herbert has received a cablegram from Rear Admiral Stanton at Colon saying that he would comply with the secretary's orders and take care of the wrecked crew of the Kearsarge to New York on the steamer City of Para. It is believed here that the latter vessel has already sailed for New York.

Pickering Not Executed Yet.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The action of the agreement of both parties to the Bering sea arbitration tribunals the last time it convened was interpreted by the arbitrators as not entirely satisfactory to either the United States or Great Britain. It appears, however, that the dissatisfaction was largely caused by the failure of the arbitrators to take action in the broad principles upon which the arbitration was based. These matters are now the cause of some concern in the state department, and for some days there have been much correspondence and many personal interviews between Secretary Gresham, Sir Julian Pauncefote and Minister Bayard with a view to their adjustment.

Presidential Nominations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

Connecticut—Naugatuck, F. E. Driscoll. New York—Chas. Daniel Stockwell; North Hempstead, L. I., Jacob Schmidt; South Dover, J. P. Chase; Tannersville, Michael Lachey; Jr. Windham, E. M. Cole; Camp Chase, G. N. Hyde.

Pennsylvania—Carrettown, Andrew Eckenrode; Sidepark, R. E. Keuler; Kelleapolis, Frederick Kelley.

Presidential Postmasters.

Postmasters—John J. Quinn, Roselle, N. J.; James E. Mulligan, New Brighton, N. Y.; Peter Wilson, White Plains, N. Y.; Peter Cafferata, Canonsburg, Pa.; Frank McDonald, Dunmore, Pa.; Edson S. Warner, Montrose, Pa.; Charles A. Jenks, Punxsutawney, Pa.

Shedding Light on Its Extinguisher.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Acting Secretary of the Treasury Curtis, in a letter sent to congress, recommends that the beacon light on the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor be extinguished. The cost of the light for seven years has been $64,750.81. According to the lighthouse board the beacon is not an aid to navigation.

Plans For a Whaleback Warship.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Secretary Herbert communicated to the senate a letter from Superior (Wis.) dispatch that he has appointed a board of naval officers to examine the plans of Captain Alexander McDougal for a whaleback warship.

Naval Officers In Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Two naval officers in the Asiatic squadron are to be court martialed. Paymaster H. R. Smith of the Concord and Engineer Engineer Armand Hartrank of the Baltimore are both charged with drunkenness.

A Cabinet Rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—The senate in executive session rejected Benjamin Leather of Kansas, attachments to be consul at Sherbrooke, Que.

A PEACE COMMITTEE.

West International Disputes Settled In a High Court of Nations.

BOSTON, Feb. 15.—Secretary Benjamin F. Trueblood of the American Peace society gave out the names of the International committee that will draw up plans for an international tribunal of arbitration. The committee is composed of nine men appointed by the American society. Its object is to induce the civilized nations to establish a high court of nations for the settlement of international disputes.

The appointment of the committee is the outgrowth of the Columbian peace congress held in Chicago. The committee is to be a permanent one, with power to add to its members and to fill vacancies. It has been organized in two sections, an American and a European section, and the sake of expediting the work their labors will be carried on independent of each other. Mr. Cephas Brainerd of New York, who has been made organizing chairman of the American section and Hon. W. A. Hunter, M. P., London, for the European.

A Divorced Actor's Troubles.

ALBANY, Feb. 15.—Robert Mantell, the actor, has been scheduled to appear at the Leland Opera House in this city for the past three nights, but has not made his appearance. The reason given is that he is ill with the grip, but the fact is that New York attorney for Mrs. Mantell has been in this city awaiting to collect back alimony amounting to about $1,700. Mantell is in New Jersey.

Lost His Life Trying to Save His Hat.

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., Feb. 15.—Michael Peppin, a Hungarian, lost his hat in a mass of clay which was going through a mill at the Parden factory, and in attempting to pick it out he lost his life. As he reached for his hat his hand and arm were drawn into the cogs, and before he could be released every bone nearly stopped his body was smashed to the hips.

Annual Meeting of the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—The annual meeting of the Associated Press was held at the Auditorium annex hall in this city. Members from all parts of the country were represented. A banquet was enjoyed, after which there were several speeches. Mr. Melville E. Stone of the Chicago Inter Ocean was the presiding officer of the entertainment.

Paul Jones Gets a Good Start.

BOSTON, Feb. 15.—Paul Jones, the latest globe trotter, has got as far as Providence. He had started 6:16 in this city in his boots, and $100 of this he deposited in a bank before his departure. He says he expects to make this quarters of the $5,000 he must earn in a year in this country.

MORE BOMBS TO COME.

Paris Threatened With Other Dynamite Outrages.

PLOT TO BLOW UP THE 7 RATED.

Henry, the Latest Bomb Accuser, Said to Have Accomplices Whose Arrest Would Be Expected at Any Moment—Threats Against President Carnot's Life.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—The identity of the bomb fiend of the Boulevard St. Michel is Emile Henry, and he is a brother of Fortune Henry, who is now undergoing a term of imprisonment at Chairvaux for instting to the explosion at the house of the agent of the Panama scheme which Henry used details of his acquaintance had arranged before leaving London. It was the intention of Henry and his accomplices, according to the latest advices, to kill as many as possible, and it is believed that the prisoner's associates will be heard from in some manner before long. The police of this city are engaged in an active search for Henry's fellow conspirators. They took another photograph of Henry, which shows him to have short, stiff hair, restless eyes and a youthful face.

Planned to Wreck the Opera House.

The prisoner, according to the police, came from London in company with three other anarchists, and the London police assert that they have information which leads them to believe Henry and his accomplices previous to leaving England had planned, among other outrages outlined, to cause a terrible explosion in the Paris Opera House, which was to be accomplished in addition to the explosion of several bombs, the exiting off of the gas supply, thus preventing the attendants from lighting up that place of entertainment after the explosions had extinguished the electric lights.

It was stated in the lobbies of the chamber of deputies that the police who have been on the trail of Henry's fellow conspirators are now close upon them and that their arrest within a very short time will be announced. A bundle of anarchist leaflets printed in England, in addition to those reported from Algiers, is in the possession of the police of this city. These leaflets also contain threats to murder President Carnot and threatened the lives of the ministers and deputies.

The Prisoner Talks.

Inspector Duchatel, referring to his interview with Henry, said:

"Henry remarked that he alone was responsible for the explosion in the cafe beneath the Hotel Terminus, adding that Vaillant was a child to put nails in his bomb in order to blow up the bourgeois. Henry also said that there was better material than that to be had, and he was surprised that the bomb did not have more effect than it did."

Henry is guarded by two detectives, who have instructions, according to the French system, to endeavor to induce the prisoner to talk.

The impression is general that a special system is necessary to punish bomb throwers, and that such cases be withdrawn they should be tried by drumhead court martial and executed immediately without the chance to pose as heroes.

Mrs. Mason's Remarkable Experience.

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Feb. 15.—At a Free Methodist meeting here Mrs. Herman Mason went into a trance and remained in that condition for three hours. When she regained consciousness she had been with Jesus. She also said the devil was with her all the time trying to get her away, and that he talked with every soul after its departure from the body. The Free Methodists are greatly excited over the matter.

HARCOURT'S RIDICULE.

The British Chancellor Says Chamberlain Is Responsible for Home Rule.

PORTSMOUTH, Feb. 15.—At an enormous meeting in the drill hall here Sir William Harcourt, chancellor of the exchequer, ridiculed Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's idea of a "settlement" that would sink all minor differences and had in view only the common interest of the country. He said that such a party would end, as all such parties always do, in a fiasco and be ended, in its purpose being its last member. It has been the dream of Buling broke and of many leading foreign states.

Passing to the question of the position of the home rule leaders, Sir William declared with much emphasis that the bishops were the most militant, the most aggressive antagonists of popular rights.

Tumultuous cheers gave evidence of sympathy with this declaration, and stood repeated cheering Sir William said that the government would stand by the statement made on Tuesday by Mr. Acland, vice president of the committee of council, Lord Salisbury had thrown down the gage of battle, and they would not shrink from the fight.

The audience here rose in a body, cheering frantically and waving hats and handkerchiefs.

The Daily News says: It is the impression on both sides of the house of commons that the lords will not proceed to extremes. Lord Salisbury's disaster Liberal allies have created the worst apprehensions with which they view the effect of the possible loss of the parish councils bill on their electoral prospects.

SHOT A SOLDIER.

His Comrades Prevented From Taking Revenge For the Insult.

PRESCOTT, A. T., Feb. 15.—Private Reilly an of Company G, Eleventh infantry, stationed at Whipple, who was shot and fatally wounded two weeks ago by Frank McQuillan, a gambler, was shot four times and killed by Frank Suffee, a barkeeper in the Royal saloon. Reilly an had a fight with Suffee on the night he was shot in the fore, and while in the hospital being treated for his wounds he sent word to Suffee that he would be killing him. He was discharged from the hospital a few days since. Last night he came to town, and going to the saloon where Suffee is employed, drew a shotgun and commenced shooting. Suffee returned the fire, with the results stated above.

When news reached Whipple of Reilly an's death, it was only by great precaution taken by Colonel de Russey and the other officers that his comrades were prevented from taking their guns and avenging his death.

Two officers, with drawn swords and side arms, stood guard over the gunracks of the company to prevent the troops from obtaining possession of their guns. The saloon in which the killing occurred is the same one in which Reilly an was shot before and is in a disreputable portion of the town. Further trouble is feared.

SLEIGHERS IN A FIGHT.

They Left a Roadside Hote Wrecked and Bloody.

SIX MEN WERE BADLY STABBED

The Row Began When a Western Cowboy Refused to Apologize to a Young Man on Her an Accident—Two Pennsylvania Towns Were Considerably Stirred Up.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 15.—A bloody fight in which several Shamokin and Trevorton persons were terribly cut and bruised, occurred at Fisher's hotel in the latter place. The furniture of the hotel was smashed with blood which had been drawn from broken heads, and the barroom mirrors were badly shattered.

With the possible exception of Harry Lewis, who received a frightful knife thrust in the neck, the men will recover. A list of those most seriously wounded is as follows:

Mrs. Leah Fisher, head and arm cut. Ephraim Jones, face cut off. Harry Lewis, head and neck cut; Richard Lytle, face cut and body bruised; Springgin Williams, face cut and shoulder dislocated; John Wintert, face badly cut.

Several sleighing parties from Shamokin were quartered at the hotel at the time of the fight. It began over an insult offered to a young woman by a man by a Missouri man, Dick Lytle, who is a cowboy home on a visit.

The Cowboy Started In.

The latter refused to apologize, but afterward to show the boys how they fight out west. As he drew a bowie knife the Shamokinites started for him, not accepting the challenge, and a pitched battle ensued. A number of Trevorton men joined hand, with the Missourian, and chairs and bar fixtures were used as weapons.

As the barroom furniture became exhausted the disputants crowded into the dancing room, where the piano and chairs furnished rough handling. While Lytle was chasing Springgin Williams through the saloon Landlord Fisher jumped over the bar and struck Lytle a blow on the throat. The latter easily shook him off and attacked him with a bowie knife. Fisher grabbed his man for the second time, and the Missourian made a vicious jab and had it not been for Mrs. Fisher a murder would have resulted.

She had been attracted to the scene on account of fears for her husband's safety, and seeing his peril she pushed through the infuriated mob and thrust her body between the knife and her husband.

Although his wife was hurt, the landlord again plunged into the fight. Springgin Williams, from Shamokin, was battling with four men against the side of the bar when the cowboy mistook him for a friend and aided him in reaching the door leading to the street entrance. Here Williams was again assailed, but he managed to jump into a sleigh and escaped.

Vigilance Committee Formed.

Harry Lewis had been felled and lay senseless on the floor, with blood gushing from a number of wounds. He had tried in vain to secure the deadly bowie knife, and as a result was the most injured of the entire crowd.

Messengers were dispatched to many homes requesting citizens to appear and quell the disturbance. Many of the efforts in town could do nothing. A vigilance committee was formed, and men were sworn in as deputy sheriffs. They had hard job in clearing out the saloon, and the fighters then resumed the struggle on the sidewalk, where Lytle, the cause of the disturbance, was knocked senseless with a brick.

Persons friendly to the Shamokinites secured their sleighs, and piling them in an obscure street led the now thoroughly worn out combatants to the cutters and started them homeward.

Before they got out of the town, however, a dozen enraged Trevortonites procured sleighs, and a lively chase ensued, but the latter having slower horses soon abandoned pursuit.

Officers from Trevorton came to Shamokin and served warrants on a number of the participants in the deadly struggle. They will be taken to the late scene of conflict for a hearing. All those who were in the Trevorton faction are also under arrest, and several shots were exchanged during the struggle.

M'KANE TRIAL ENDS.

Very Near About Agreeing and Were Locked Up All Night.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 15.—The trial of John Y. McKane began this morning promptly in the alleged election frauds at Gravesend, but ended after one hour and several necks. Judge Barrett, in consulting his chamber to the jury, directed the latter to retire and agree upon three heads. The first was whether the crime charged against the inspectors really or merely formed have ended, in its purpose being its last member. It has been the dream of Bolingbroke and of many leading foreign states.

Passing to the question of the position of the home rule leaders, Sir William declared with much emphasis that the bishops were the most militant, the most aggressive antagonists of popular rights.

Tumultuous cheers gave evidence of sympathy with this declaration, and stood repeated cheering Sir William said that the government would stand by the statement made on Tuesday by Mr. Acland, vice president of the committee of council. Lord Salisbury had thrown down the gage of battle, and they would not shrink from the fight.

The audience here rose in a body, cheering frantically and waving hats and handkerchiefs.

The Daily News says: It is the impression on both sides of the house of commons that the lords will not proceed to extremes. Lord Salisbury's disaster Liberal allies have created the worst apprehensions with which they view the effect of the possible loss of the parish councils bill on their electoral prospects.

SHOT A SOLDIER.

His Comrades Prevented From Taking Revenge For the Insult.

PRESCOTT, A. T., Feb. 15.—Private Reilly an of Company G, Eleventh infantry, stationed at Whipple, who was shot and fatally wounded two weeks ago by Frank McQuillan, a gambler, was shot four times and killed by Frank Suffee, a barkeeper in the Royal saloon. Reilly an had a fight with Suffee on the night he was shot in the fore, and while in the hospital being treated for his wounds he sent word to Suffee that he would be killing him. He was discharged from the hospital a few days since. Last night he came to town, and going to the saloon where Suffee is employed, drew a shotgun and commenced shooting. Suffee returned the fire, with the results stated above.

When news reached Whipple of Reilly an's death, it was only by great precaution taken by Colonel de Russey and the other officers that his comrades were prevented from taking their guns and avenging his death.

Two officers, with drawn swords and side arms, stood guard over the gunracks of the company to prevent the troops from obtaining possession of their guns. The saloon in which the killing occurred is the same one in which Reilly an was shot before and is in a disreputable portion of the town. Further trouble is feared.

WOMAN AND HOME.

HOW MOTHERS MAY MAKE HOME ATTRACTIVE TO THE CHILDREN.

New English Woman Diet—Appropriate Decoration — A Good Correspondence Plan — Earache in Children — Physical Culture of Children.

There has come to our house a little fellow between and think. He is of rather kind mind to train, four souls to keep pure! How is this to be done? I love never to be two extremities, and one is dangerous to the child as the other. One mother allows her child to roam the streets at large—the second requires her children to stay at home without putting herself in extra trouble to make home attractive. Both love and intend to do well by their children, but don't stop to think sufficiently why it is that children prefer the streets or how the home could be made the more attractive of the two. It does not require many toys or luxuries. Is it toys the child wants on the street or is it the child a cartload of toys and leave it so itself, and it will soon tire of them.

What is the great street attraction? Mothers, stop and think. What can it be? It is simply this: A mind stronger than the child's, a stronger mind that lends some interest to the weaker, and these ideas are eagerly grasped and held by the little one, be they good or bad. This is why a child had always rather play with a child older than itself. The stronger always attracts and influences the weaker.

Now that we have found wherein lies the street attraction, let us find the where-with to make home more attractive. This seems easy, especially since nature has kindly given the child a love for mother, home and its own toys. Surely the mother's mind is stronger than her child's or the street urchin's. If so, then home can be made more attractive by the mother becoming interested in that which interests the child. Many cry out: "I haven't time to invent new plays for my children. I can't stoop to play with them."

You will not have to stop your work long. In fact, you will not be stopping your work at all, for isn't the watching ever and training of your children the most necessary and sacred of all the work that the Father has given you? Take a few hours to read some a playhouse, as near where your work as possible, for the little girl. Give her a box or two, some broken dishes, her doll and a few general directions. Show the little boy where and how to make his barn and corrals. Give him some chips, horses, string harness and a tow wagon. Tell them that Mrs. —— must really go home, ask them to call on you, then go about your work, and they will go about their play with a will, never thinking of the streets, and will be as happy as larks and as busy as bees for three or four days, providing that you suggest something new in awhile and call on them at least once a day.

Take your book or paper when you call on them, and ask suggestions when they call on you, and ask questions which will cause them to think of something new to do. For instance, ask the little boy if his horse is sick. He will say yes and start out in less than a minute to doctor him. Ask the little girl if she has cleaned house lately, and she will commence at once to change everything in her play house.

You have your children so near you, you can hear and see what they are doing, and should you hear or see anything wrong call them to you at once and correct that wrong before it has time to take root in the heart. Your children will have plenty of company if you will allow it, and I really think it best, providing you have it positively understood that no bad language or misconduct can be indulged in on your premises. In three or four days the children will need a complete change. Let a hurricane pass over their house and burns. You sympathize greatly with them and suggest new buildings, churches, schoolhouses or anything new. As they grow older, this same stronger mind, wielding out to more intelligent things and always keeping the lead, will hold the young and useless as well as the child. —Minneapolis Housekeeper.

How English Women Diet.

Over in England, where for six months in the year all the smart folks are staying at each other's houses, the fatal penalty of obesity follows their luxurious style of living, and nobody can keep slender except by artificial means. The women rise late, and perhaps are driven to the race course or to luncheon with the shooters. Returning home, they do a little needle-work or write letters or play some light game until tiffin, after which they read or talk until dinner, where the inexorable custom of champagne, the temptations thrown in their way by an excellent chef, the fatal fruits and liqueurs, all tend toward their ruin. And after dinner it is quite on the cards that a belated game of poker may lead to the further indigestion of a little supper before retiring. Of course the result of all this feasting is one which arouses research in the best methods of avoiding the accumulation of fat, and the latest discovery is that an occasional week's diet on game, chicken and fish, with moderate exercise the rest of the time, will avert the disaster.

The menu of the day for this week's fast includes the early cup of tea with saccharine instead of sugar and a squeeze of lemon. Breakfast, fried sole. Luncheon, roast pheasant. An hour later, a glass of claret. At tiffin, only tea with saccharin and lemon. Dinner, boiled turbot, grilled chicken or boiled rabbit. That is literally all that is allowed, excepting salt. A glass of claret may be indulged in an hour or so after dinner, and in the middle of the morning and at bedtime a glass of boiling water with the inevitable lemon, should be sipped. Of course this diet is no use at all to hardened cases, but the young transgressors, those only beginning to go down the primrose path that leads to obesity, will be grateful for the recipe if it is faithfully followed once in awhile for a week.—New York Sun.

Appropriate Decoration.

In furnishing a parlor or drawing room, it is a good idea to carry out a tapestry effect in all fabric decorations. The knowledge of good embroideries and needlework is how so general that there is no excuse for using the flimsy stuff which is offered. It is a comparatively easy matter to make handsome curtains for furniture, and the old time embroidered chair seat is coming back. But let us hope that it will come in a more healthful shape than that in which it aforetime vaunted. Instead of crewels on canvas, in which long eared poodles reposed upon impossible shaped cushions, there are conventionalized sprays, vines, flowers and arabesques, that are much easier to do and have an infinitely finer effect than the worsted work in which our grandmothers delighted. And while one is about it why not leave out the worsted idea altogether? The market is full of handsome and durable materials that neither moth nor dust will injure. They are cleanable, of fast colors and will last a lifetime. The rope linens make superb embroideries and with proper material as a foundation leave nothing to be desired.

There is a rough, handmade, homespun linen that is coming into use as a foundation for embroidering. Wrought with linen threads, this makes a sort of tapestry that will go down through the generations to come. It is quite as handsome as silk and much more practical than the sheen crewels that painstaking needles ever executed.

There is reason and sense in devoting one's time to making beautiful things of this sort, and the satisfaction one feels in having done something that will last gives greatly to the pleasure of using this new and elegant material.—New York Ledger.

A Good Correspondence Plan.

Here is a good suggestion for the girls. It relates to an ingenious scheme devised by a class of young ladies at school together a few years ago. One of them, an English girl, thus explains it:

"There were nine of us in the class, and we were all promising to write to each other continually, but in our hearts we knew that such a correspondence could never be kept up. Finally one of the girls suggested a circulating letter, and the idea pleased us all.

"At the expiration of one month from the time we parted, the first girl wrote a letter telling what she had been doing and everything about herself which would be likely to interest the others. This letter was sent to the second girl, who, after reading it, wrote her own letter and sent the two to the third.

"The third, fourth, fifth and all the others in turn added their letters, until the ninth on the list sent them all to the first. Then the circuit was complete, and we had the circulating letters fairly under way.

"Now of course the envelops always contains nine letters, and each girl, when it comes to her, takes out her own letter, writes a new one telling what she has been doing in the meantime and starts it on its travels again.

"You can have no idea how interesting it is to receive the letters, and how anxiously we all await their arrival when our month comes. We have kept it up for nearly four years, and each time the letters come round the pleasure of reading what all the girls have to say seems to increase."—Harper's Young People.

Earache in Children.

Earache is a common complaint in some families, and a sickness in the ear of more or less severity follow every time of taking cold. If the child is old enough to hold his head in the proper position, gentle syringing with warm, increasing to hot, water, is a great relief. Every mother of very young children knows that this is impossible with them. The little head is turned and twisted, and water goes everywhere except where it ought—into the ear. On a cold night, too, at mid-night, the operation is not feasible. A little sweet oil heated in a spoon over a flame and three drops of laudanum added, poured upon a bit of cotton, will usually afford relief. When the ear begins to discharge, warm water, in which a little powdered boracic acid has been dissolved, may be used several times a day, and when the trouble seems to be over a physician ought to make an examination to blow out the cotton. Parents are cautioning that frequent nose and mouth blowing are not the better plan for children that are to be exposed and overheated. They often cause, if neglected, serious results later on.

A child who is subject to earache should be kept indoors during the winter, kept from too long play in the snow, well protected, but not overheated about the head and ears. On coming in from out of doors let him have his hot or cup of tea a few minutes, and then slipped back before taking quite off, that the change from the close covering may be gradual.—New York Times.

Physical Culture of Children.

You can easily plants and trees to grow straight and in proper form. Then why not cause children to grow into well formed men and women? You notice a difference in the carriage, poise and movement of a well raised man or boy from that of one who has had no training. The girl who has taken dancing lessons and practiced school gymnastics is more graceful, if not more rugged, than the girl who has worked hard all of her life and had no other training than that prescribed by necessity.

There is no good reason for any one being unsightly and awkward. True, there are those who are somewhat lacking in shapeliness, whose figures are more or less ungainly. Yet if they are easy, of pleasant and unobtrusive they will not suffer by comparison with others who are built to correspond more nearly with Mr. Apollo Belvedere or any other Greek model.

Nevertheless, more attention should be given to the physical culture of children. For a half century at least we have been living all of our attention to mental culture, allowing the delicate bodies of the children to develop in a haphazard way.

It is gratifying to know that many of the leaders in school affairs are calling attention to this particular thing and urging schools everywhere to introduce some easy, practical system of physical culture. —Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

Sitting Room and Library.

A cosy room that is to be both library and sitting room is furnished with a color combination that has impressed me as both cheerful, artistic and not too fine for daily use. The walls of the room are a light terra cotta. The floor is covered with ingrain filling of a warm olive, and over it is one large eastern rug that contains many colors, but the prevailing tone of which is terra cotta, that inclines to deep old pink.

The davenport is of dark mahogany corduroy, with many colored pillows. This study table of mahogany has ormolu mountings. A mahogany rocking chair, much like a sea chair, has the back and seat cushioned with figured corduroy that is neither green nor blue. A large wicker chair that is stained mahogany has a cushion of the same color. There are several smaller chairs of mahogany. The bookshelves, which are "built in" on each side of the fireplace that crosses the end of the room, and the curtain to them are of flax velour in olive. The drapery curtains are of ecru groundlace, with cross stripes of light olive and a hairline of old pink.—New York Post.

French Women Detectives.

One of the high officials of the French detective department is responsible for the statement that a number of ladies well known in Parisian society do not disdain to offer their services occasionally to the police for cash down. These are the amateurs, but there are others who receive regular salaries, varying from 800 francs to 1,200 francs per month. In illustration of what he means, this official relates that one of his friends who had bought a house in the neighborhood of the Arc de Triomphe gave a house warming party, and a day or two before the date he called and expressed the hope that the official would not send him any of his spies. "Have you the list of the guests?" asked a colleague, who happened to be in the room, with a significant smile. The list was handed to this official, who presently returned it with the remark: "You may be useless to trouble you. You have already five here." The functionary added that the ladies who made a specialty of foreign politics were numerous, but cost more.—Paris Journal.

The Face as an Index to Disease.

Incomplete closure of the eyelids, rendering the whites of the eyes visible during sleep, is a symptom in all acute and chronic diseases of a severe type. It may also to be observed when rest is rendered unsound by pain, wherever seated. Twitching of the eyelids, associated with the occilation of the eyeballs, or squinting, betrays the visit of convulsions. Widening of the orifices of the nose, with movements of the nostrils by the points to enlarged breathing, from disease of the lungs or their pleural investment. Contraction of the brows indicates pain by the effort. Sharpness of the nostrils, pain in the chest, and a drawn upper lip, pain in the abdomen. To make a general rule, it may be stated that the third of the face is most altered in expression in affections of the brain. The middle third, in disease of the chest, and the lower third, in disease of the organs contained in the abdominal cavity.—Hygiene of the Nursery.

Wedding Expenses.

There would be no such question as that which often arises on the occasion of a wedding, as to sharing the expense, if one palpable fact were borne in mind. The bride is not yet married, and until after the festal day is still influenced by that decree which ordains that a woman should not receive monetary assistance from a man. Consequently it is the worst of taste for a groom to pay for anything except the presents which it may seem good to him to make and the clergyman's fee. All other outlay must be, as it has been hitherto, attended to by the family of the bride, and no more now than at any former time should the future husband take the burden off that family's shoulders. His turn begins on the day after, and never before that, while those who get rid of expense hereafter must bear that for the bridal.—Philadelphia Press.

Natural Obstinacy.

"I believe I am naturally obstinate," said a woman recently. "The things I am expected to do I can't bear to do and am sure to leave till the last minute. I can't think what else I could be like under such and a natural disinclination to do the things that I have to do."

Natural obstinacy must be a common complaint. More than one person is pleading guilty to it. It is so much easier to do the things that are not forced upon us, and the general wear and tear in the former case are much greater. Surely the woman who has the physical strength and energy to be on go all the time is to be envied, if one is to believe all one hears, of the ones who keep up a round of going without a time for rest in between are in the minority, few and far between.—Brooklyn Citizen.

Table Screens.

Small table screens of threefold form, with panels of celluloid, are the newest invention for the preservation of the eyes. They are very dainty, charming trifles, with white enameled frames and panels, on which flowers are painted, and they serve to shield the eyes without entirely cutting off the light. They can be easily shifted and moved about to suit the varying necessities of the individual who never occupies a single chair for any length of time, and they are extremely pretty in themselves, so that they serve a double end. The very fact that they stand upon the table and are not connected with the lamp is an advantage, for they so shield the eyes of one without robbing others of the group.—Decorator and Furnisher.

Cross Examining a Woman.

"Let me give you my dying advice," said Rufus Choate. "Never cross examine a woman. It is of no use. They cannot distinguish the false from the true once told. They cannot eliminate the part that is for you from that which is against you. They can neither combine nor shade nor qualify. They go for the whole thing, and the moment you begin to cross examine one of them, instead of being bitten by a single rattlesnake, you are bitten by a whole rattlesnake. If you are engaging in a case absolutely desperate, dared to cross examine a woman."—Green Bag.

The Guests' Needlebook.

Speaking of guests, it is a good idea to leave a needlebook with needles threaded and ready for use in the spare room bureau drawer. A braid or a button is loosened, a sleeve gives way, a bit of cloth is frayed, and the woman of the house has not always her workbox with her. A thimble and a needlebook furnished as above, with a pair of scissors, are thoughtful additions to comfort.

That faithful royal widow, Victoria of England, always wore on the blue plump wrinkled wrist a bracelet in which is a miniature of her departed husband. On the other wrist she wore as constantly a bracelet with the miniature of her latest great-grandchild. The reign of each baby is brief, there are so many of them.

"It is a singular fact," says a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, "that the sign of every victory in modern times has been attended by a wonderful advancement in the material, political, literary and even military progress of her country."

Chicago has 30 police matrons, with a head matron over all. The W. C. T. U. has a committee of women who strive to keep out political influence in the appointment of women as matrons and to get women who are total abstainers.

Toothache in children is sometimes aggravated if not caused by too much fruit. A pallid tongue and whitish appearance of the mouth indicate this condition, which of course needs only the correction of abstinence and possibly a laxative.

A Philadelphia woman has what she calls her "good luck lounge." It is simply a wide, soft couch, piled with comfortables and pillows, but the power of thinking as a mascot is in the number of pillows. There are 13.

A word to the wise—a woman with a cheerful expression and a manner of repose always appears years younger than her age.

My Matrimonial Views.

I will not wed a widower, to have my leavings;
Tormented by the virtues of his "late, lamented."
I will not wed a bachelor, with heart of solid stone,
To spend his evenings at the club and leave me all alone.

I will not wed a millionaire, to be accused of crime;
If he should chance to pass away a bit before his time.
A poor man's wife I'll never be, to bake and wash and cook,
With half a dozen little ones to add to all my toil.

I will not wed a handsome man, a "spark" would not suit me—
They're bound to have another wife, and sometimes two or three.
A homely man is not my style—a "dude" I would detest—
I could not love a solemn man or one who's prone to jest.

I will not wed the man who seeks for years my love to gain;
The very slowness of his suit would always cause me pain.
I will not wed the man who claims to love me at first sight;
In fact, I will get wed at all, until I get a chance.

WAS SITTING ON A CHAIR

HOW EDWARD ECKHARDT WAS FOUND WITH HIS THROAT CUT.

His Partner Found Him Sitting on a Chair with a Pool of Blood at His Feet.—He was a Very Popular Young Man.

Concerning Edward Eckhardt, who was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday as told in THE NEWS, with his throat cut, the Bound Brook Democrat has the following:

Eddy Eckhardt has for some years been one of the most popular young men in town. Of a jovial, genial and generous disposition and withal of fair business habits he found everywhere friends and never an enemy.

It was therefore a saddening shock which struck the community this morning, when the news was spread that Eddy had been found in his own shop with his throat cut from ear to ear.

Crowds of people assembled near the little shop on East Main street, the scene of the tragic occurrence, and the facts were at once forthcoming.

Eddy, a nephew of Mrs. L. Kreiling, and long a trusted driver on one of Kreiling's delivery wagons, recently relinquished his engagement there in order to go into partnership with Frank Travers of New Brunswick, who recently opened a meat shop here.

The new business was to begin this morning, but at 6.30, when Mr. Travers arrived he found the door fast although from the light within he could plainly see Eddy sitting on the chair in the rear room.

The sight which then greeted the gaze of the New Brunswick butcher was appalling.

A moaning man on a floor flooded in blood sent the New Brunswick man homeward with a shriek that brought out the neighborhood—even to the inmates of the unfortunate house wherein the unfortunate man has lately made his home.

Drs. Fisher and Davis found the cut to extend from the left ear to the centre of the throat. They made the proper appliances and said that with good care the man might live.

Several theories as to the cause of the occurrence are advanced—that while cutting down a sheep his knife may have slipped or that in momentary mental aberration the act was committed.

BREVITIES.

—The Borough Council will meet in adjourned session this evening.

—Jacob Kliner, of North Plainfield, has bought the Scotch Plains stage route.

—The Epworth League of Grace M. E. church will hold a sociable in the church to-night.

—To-night the Young People's Society of the Crescent avenue church will hold its regular weekly meeting.

—Twenty-eight car loads of ice arrived this morning from Lake Hopatcong for the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company.

—Constable Vanderhoff, of West Front street, has received from a friend at Clarksville, Va., a wild duck and a wild turkey.

—There will be a noonday prayer meeting at the First Baptist church from twelve to one, to-morrow, led by Rev. Arthur Crane.

—It has been decided by the committee of arrangements to make the masquerade ball to be given by Ions Council, D. of F., an invitation affair.

—Justice Nash, who had charge of the settling up of the affairs of the defunct firm of Davis & Atkinson, has settled with every creditor but one.

—Rev. Arthur Crane will speak and Mr. March, of Rockland, Me., and the Association choir will sing at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday at 4.15 p. m.

—The revival meetings being conducted at the First Baptist church, by Rev. Arthur Crane, continue with increasing attendance and interest.

—In the absence of Chief Marshal Fangboru, of the borough to-day, his son Harry, who is a special marshal, was placed on duty. The former went to Somerville and Trenton.

—Preparations are now being made for the fair and festival to be held in St. Vincent chapel on Thursday, (Washington's Birthday) and Friday afternoons and evenings, Feb. 22d and 23d.

—Wednesday night Crescent Division, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, installed officers, after which adjournment was made to Himm's Hotel where a sumptuous repast awaited them.

—At the convention of the the Somerset County Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor, at Bound Brook, tonight, the singing will be led by Mr. Horace Martin of North Plainfield.

—A dog was killed by a trolley car on East Front street this morning. The motorman on No. 5 took the animal on his car and carried it into the borough, and left it at the switch on Somerset street.

Reception to Their Pastor.

A reception to the pastor, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Richards, is to be held at the Crescent Avenue church parlors Friday evening, Feb. 23d. Special music is to be a feature of the occasion. It is to be gotten up by the young people who will issue invitations to the congregation to attend.

"This is the building that holds the men, who make the money for making the machines, which make the guns to kill the men, who, as foes would strike at the home of liberty by Uncle Sam built."

THAT "BIG" CONTRACT.

THE POND MACHINE CO. GETS IT AT LAST.

The Contract is to Equip a Government Plant at Watervliet, N. Y., with Machines for Making Tremendous Guns for Uncle Sam's Army.

Superintendent Stebbins informs us that the Pond Machine Tool Works have at last been awarded the big government contract reported exclusively in THE NEWS of Jan. 26, but the contract, we are sorry to be compelled to say, is not as big as was at first reported. It will not necessitate the employment of any additional force, but is equal to about four months out-put ordinarily of this large concern.

The contract is for machinery for the Government sixteen-inch gun plant at Watervliet, N. Y., the heaviest machines weighing about 400,000 lbs., and there are seven machines in all.

We are glad the concern has got the contract, even if it isn't as big as our hopes and the hopes of the mechanics and merchants and all the others who will be benefitted by it in this locality.

The company made the machinery a few years ago for the Government plant at Watervliet to manufacture twelve-inch guns, and gave such excellent satisfaction that they are favored in this case as being safe to trust with the plant for the making of the still larger guns.

Above is a picture of the plant in this city in which this great work is done, it being said that there are only three or four in the country of equal capacity, for such work.

ALMOST BLOWN FROM THE ROOF.

Narrow Escape of a Plainfield Workman at Westfield.

Men at work slating a roof at Westfield to-day were compelled to stop work on account of the strong wind, which blew the loose slate off as fast as if it were paper.

One of the workmen, James Wagoner, of this city, narrowly escaped being blown from the roof. He lost his hold and was falling when a fellow-workman caught hold of him and so saved him from injury.

Paswood Township Committee Meeting.

The Paswood Township Committee held a meeting last night to hear the annual reports from the township collector and treasurer and from the board of engineers of the fire department. All the reports were very satisfactory.

Committeemen Miller and Terry were present. Committeeman Shepard was absent.

The report of the Board of Engineers, of which Dr. Westcott is chief engineer, showed the department to be in a flourishing condition with about 100 active members.

The committee will meet again to-morrow night to wind up the year's business.

One Runaway Caused Another.

Before seven o'clock this morning a horse belonging to Mr. D. B. Roberts run away, after throwing its driver out of the sleigh at Netherwood. The horse ran down South avenue to North avenue through Park avenue to Front where it got in the way of a street car. The car smashed the sleigh. The horse was caught and taken home.

As the runaway passed through North avenue it frightened another timid animal attached to a baker wagon, thus causing another runaway. The baker's horse was stopped by Edward Dooley, an employee at the Metropolitan stables.

The Firemen Defeated.

The bowling game between the Board of Trade and Alert Hose Company teams last night resulted in the victory for the the former. The score:

PERSONAL.

Dr. Carman of Somerset street is suffering with the grip.

The Dunellen Call says that T. C. Bodine anticipates moving to Plainfield in the Spring.

The death occurred yesterday morning of Miss Isabella Mooney, aged 46, at her home at Scotch Plains.

The Rev. Herbert Randolph, pastor of Grace M. E. church, was married Wednesday to Miss Wood of Jersey City.

Miss Julia Stelle and Miss Lizzie Manning, of this city have been visiting Mrs. W. F. Randolph, Sr. of Randolphville.

Miss Beeside, a young lady missionary from the Kiowa Indians, will speak at the Park Avenue Baptist Church, tonight.

Prof. John Fiske of New York will deliver the last of his series of lectures at the chapel of the Crescent avenue church to-morrow night.

Among the delegates participating in Mrs. Florence Howe Hall of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron M. Powell, of East Sixth street, this city, are also attending the convention.

Mr. M. C. Dobbins, Past Commander of Winfield Scott Post, No. 71, G. A. R., has received an invitation to attend to-night a reception to Commander-in-Chief Adams at New York.

Norman P. Dunn died yesterday at Scotch Plains, aged 19 years. He was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Dunn. The funeral services will be held at the residence of his parents, Mountain avenue, Scotch Plains, to-morrow afternoon, at three o'clock.

Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut will conduct the services in Grace M. E. church next Sunday morning and afternoon. In the afternoon the Sunday-school will celebrate its second anniversary, at which time there will be interesting exercises, with an address by Dr. Hurlbut.

There was a children's party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Reinhart, Netherwood, from three to six, yesterday afternoon. About 50 children were present. They were entertained by Prof. Henderson of New York with a magic lantern exhibition and a Punch and Judy show.

Samuel Anderson, colored, a brother of Peter Anderson, of Manning avenue, died at four o'clock this morning, after an illness of several months. He was a cook in a restaurant in Brooklyn up to the time of his sickness. He was formerly cook in his brother's restaurant, when he kept on Front street.

The Jersey City Kosz says: "An enjoyable reception was held Wednesday night at the residence of Mrs. Gimbocchio, No. 329 Pavonia avenue. Mrs. Gimnocchio was a Miss Tonnelle, and the house to which the reception was held is the old Tonnelle homestead. Dancing was indulged in until an early hour. During the evening songs were sung by Prof. Boutes of Plainfield."

A sleigh load of young people went for a good time to Westfield last evening. Among those in the party were: Mrs. Purser, Miss Ida Edsall, Miss Jennie Baldwin, Miss Bessie Day, Miss Viroulon Ricketts, Miss Katie Williams, Mrs. William O. Baldwin, Miss Annie Kemperman, the Messrs. Edward Urhahn, George Moebus, William Ricketts, Henry Myers, Dick Baldwin, Harry Baldwin, Charley Baldwin and Mr. Alfred Purser.

Mr. E. C. Perkins, of Central avenue, and Mr. W. H. Riley of Richmond street, the gentlemen who attended the recent meeting at All Souls' church on Park avenue, which was addressed by Miss Spence, were so much impressed by the force and truth of her views that they joined the "American Proportional Representation League." This league was organized through the efforts of Miss Spence, shortly after her visit in Chicago, and, although only of less than three months growth, is represented in all parts of the United States. Messrs. Perkins and Riley were the first Plainfielders to join.

Westfield to Have Night Policemen.

The Westfield Township Committee Wednesday evening appointed F. B. Pennington and G. H. Koester policemen for night patrol, and instructed them to rigidly enforce the cruelty to animals ordinance and prevent lounging on the street corners.

The "Magic City" is selling immensely. Wannmaker of Philadelphia, sold 4000 copies in three days. On sale at White's, 3c. copy.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

THE PARIS LOSES HER RUDDER.

And When 800 Miles at Sea Has to Return.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 15.—The American line steamship Paris, which sailed from Southampton on Feb. 10 for New York, is lying in a disabled condition off Daunt's Rock. All are well on board and in no danger. A pilot and tug have gone to her assistance.

The crew reported that the Paris, during the hurricane on Tuesday last, lost her rudder when 800 miles on her way to New York, and was compelled to put about and try and make for Queenstown, where her rudder might be repaired, intending from here to put back to Southampton, where she could be thoroughly repaired.

A jury rudder having been rigged, the Paris was able to steer in a kind of haphazard manner, and succeeded in reaching Daunt's Rock in safety.

"COBWEB SOCIABLE."

An Amusing Form of Entertainment at Hope Chapel.

A new, though very amusing form of entertainment was introduced at Hope chapel, in the way of a "cobweb sociable," last night.

The "cobweb" part was worked with a lot of strings. Each string had a piece of ribbon tied to one end of it, while the other end was held by a doorkeeper. As each male entered he was "put on a string"—that is, he was given one end of it and to find the other end it became necessary to follow up the string through innumerable chairs and places until the ribbon was found. Then his troubles were not over for it was then required of him to find the girl among those gathered in the chapel for a companion for the evening. The girls voted it a most delightful success, and why shouldn't they when they didn't have any of the "cobweb" to unwind, for that fell to the lot of the men.

Woman Suffragists Meet.

The twenty-sixth annual convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association began at Washington yesterday morning with a large attendance of delegates, representing all parts of the country. The session was devoted to the presentation of reports and the annual address of the president, Miss Susan B. Anthony, who stated, among other things, that a petition signed by a million names would be presented to the New York Constitutional Convention, in May next, for the elimination of the word "male" from the suffrage laws of the State.

Serving Notices to Clean the Sidewalks.

Persons who neglected to clean the snow from their side-walks were served with notices by Chief of Police Grant yesterday.

The failure to clean snow or ice from sidewalks and gutters is a violation of the City Ordinance, the penalty of which is five dollars for each offense.

Those notified were ordered to clean their sidewalks and gutters without unnecessary delay.

ELECTRICITY MAY SAVE HIM.

About the Man who Drank Aconite for Whisky.

The following was published in THE NEWS a week ago:

Drank Aconite For Whisky.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 9.—P. H. Treay of Canada, Conn., visited friends here. He and Fred Wood of the Aldene hotel, near Roselle, called on M. B. Oakley, a liveryman. Oakley invited his friends to have a drink. He went to a closet for a bottle of whisky, but got a bottle of aconite by mistake. Each of the men poured out a good drink and swallowed it. The burning sensation caused them alarm, and they hurried to a drug store a block away. Just as they reached the store Treay fell dead to the floor. The doctors are working on the other two in what seems to be a vain endeavor to save their lives.

Yesterday Mr. William Groben of Aldene was in town and reported that Wood was in a fair way to recovery, although the prospects did not appear so favorable for the other survivor.

Mr. Wood's probable recovery is believed to be due to the application of electricity. His physician has used an electric battery on him regularly, with the remarkable result of forcing the poison through the pores of Wood's skin, so that not only keys in his pocket, but also his under-clothing, have been turned black.

The poison was kept in the livery stable of Oakley to horses sick with colds. It was in a flask similar to the whisky flask which the keeper had to treat his friends with.

Mr. Seader Surprised.

An agreeable surprise was tendered Mr. Henry Seader at No. 84 Harmony street last evening. A very enjoyable time was spent in playing games. A prominent feature was a donkey party of which Mr. Frank Splaine captured first prize and Mr. G. Taynor the "booby" prize.

Among those present were: Miss Sadie Searing, Miss Anna Searing, Miss Minnie Zeim, Miss Maggie Shepherd, Miss Jennie Shepherd, Miss Minnie Bolsterli, Mrs. Chas. Lipincott, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Seader, Miss Cora Burdick, Miss Ida Call, Miss Jennie Sutphen, Miss Lottie Happy, Miss Jennie Taynor, Miss Hattie Taynor, Mr. Chas. Taynor, Mr. S. R. Proud, Mr. Daniel Gittis, Mr. Frost, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Splaine, Mr. Gowley, Mr. Crawford, who assulted him at the station in that place. Brown was in Cranford New Year's eve attending the watch meeting at the Methodist church, and on his way to the station was set upon by drunken Irishmen and badly beaten. The Constable sought refuge in the railroad station, out of which he was dragged by Crowley, who claimed he had orders to eject any one who entered. Crowley will be sentenced Saturday.

New Jersey's Senate.

The Republican Senate held a brief meeting at Trenton last night to receive a House message and to place on its calendar all the bills passed by the House this week. These bills all receive their final consideration to-morrow.

Before adjourning for the night the Camden police bills were advanced to a third reading. These bills relate as well to Paterson and Trenton. They abolish the Democratic management of the Police Departments in those cities.

The act to annul all licenses heretofore granted for race tracks was also advanced to third reading. There was no debate upon the measure.

Killed His Wife.

George Andrews, colored, of Washington, was convicted yesterday, of murder in the first degree, on a charge of having killed his wife. Last October he and his wife entered his brother's house and in twenty minutes Andrews came out and said his wife had committed suicide and that he had tried to prevent the act.

An examination of the woman's body showed six cuts across her throat and that her hands were badly lacerated.

To Break the Deadlock.

Gov. Werts, "Bob" Adrian and the Governor's private secretary, J. S. McMaster, held a conference in the First National Bank Building, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon, in relation to the Senatorial deadlock in Trenton. It was intimated that the Governor was desirous of making new overtures to the Republicans, but the nature of the plans proposed was not divulged.

A Jury to be sued.

A Theatre Man's Novel Way of Advertising.

Another brilliant scheme has been projected from the teeming brain of J. M. Hill. It is not founded on precedent. It was about in the ear-marks of a great philanthropic purpose, but Mr. Hill, without doubt, expects that in the long run it will rebound to the interest of the combination vaudeville performance that he privates at popular prices at Herrmann's Theatre.

Every person that purchases from twenty-five to fifty cents admission to Herrmann's beginning next Monday, and Mr. Hill yesterday, "I will present with my compliments, a coupon not in the city of San Antonio, forty miles each and adjoining. All that they will have to do after buying a ticket will be to obtain a document at the box office at certain hours when they may sign. They will then take it to the box office of the Harbor City Land Company, which has just been located in the Stanford Theatre building, and will have to pay three dollars for the making out of the deed. There is a payment of that kind in all similar transactions."

The Suburban Railway Company.

Articles of incorporation were filed at the County Clerk's office in Elizabeth yesterday by the Suburban Railway and Electric Company, whose capital is placed at $750,000. It will begin business with $50,000. The incorporators and stockholders are James R. Maxtiffer, of Rahway; W. B. Hosmer, of Boston; John S. Barnett and Charles H. Newnall, of Lynn, Mass. The principal office will be in Elizabeth.

North Plainfield Borough, Somerset County, N. J.

We call particular attention to the reports, because of the blunder in the latter, in regard to the statement that the real estate value is only some $220,000, which is as it appears in the annual report of State Treasurer Beppenheimer, from which our extract is made. Instead of $220,000, the valuation is in the neighborhood of $2,000,000. In 1890 the value of the real and personal estate of North Plainfield was $1,877,000, an increase in five years of $419,000, nearly 24 per cent., or nearly five per cent. per year. There is no reason to believe that it has not kept up this ratio, and to be in 1893 from 15 to 20 per cent. more in value than in 1890. There are other discrepancies, that are misleading, as for instance the tax rate and the indebtedness. The Plainfield report gives the tax rate correctly, the report covering all the taxable property, but the North Plainfield report does not.

Neither report gives the indebtedness on school property which is in both localities worth many thousands of dollars, and must be borne by the tax-payer just the same. The fault may be in the questions asked by the State Controller's circular, and to carelessness in proof-reading of the State documents. In either case the blunder is inexcusable in a State document purporting to give statistical information.

There are other blunders fully as glaring all throught the State Treasurer's report relating to other localities. For instance, Somerville, according to the report, has no property valuation whatever. Now, we know that the value of property in that enterprising locality is not far behind that of North Plainfield, though because of the difference in the form of local government it does not appear as it ought.

If the State goes to the expense of having an annual report in pamphlet form it ought to be made so as to be a complete financial statement, so as to be worth something for purposes of comparison.

Literary Note.

The March number of The Forum (which, by the way, will begin Volume XVII.) will contain the sharpest and, it is believed, the most helpful discussion of the Income Tax that has anywhere appeared. THE VOTE ON PECKHAM.

Laid Over Until Today to Allow More Speechmaking.

HIS OPPONENTS ARE CONFIDENT.

During a Three Hours' Executive Session Senator Pugh Vigorously Condemned the Nomination, and Senators Lindsay, Harris and McPherson Sustained It.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—There was some surprise when the senate, after being in executive session for three hours, adjourned without taking any action upon the Peckham nomination. It had been supposed that one sitting would suffice for the thorough consideration of the subject, and it was not considered probable that either side would ask for an adjournment, or that, if it should, the other would grant it without vigorous protest. The adjournment, however, came about by the result of general agreement, and so little importance was attached to it that not one of half a dozen questioned upon the subject could remember who moved the adjournment.

Representatives of both sides of the controversy assert that the adjournment is without any significance whatever. It became apparent to all that it would be impossible to conclude the consideration of the question before late in the night, as there were several speeches still to be made, and many senators had engagements, some for the theater and others for dinner parties.

Anti-Peckham Men Confident.

The anti-Peckham men say somewhat more confident of the result today than are his friends. They display estimates of the vote, giving 45 votes against confirmation, sufficient to insure rejection, and 11 doubtful, of which they claim they will secure 10. Of the 45 votes 41 are Democratic, while displaying no estimates and not making such explicit claims, are still hopeful and say they are making gains.

The fact that, in spite of the move an executive session, there was a much fuller attendance of senators than usual, and that there was a deep expectant and anxious interest on the faces of the majority of those present. When the doors were closed, the business of the session—action upon the nomination of W. H. Peckham to be associate justice of the supreme court of the United States—was inaugurated with little delay, and Senator Pugh, as chairman of the judiciary committee, took the floor in opposition to confirmation.

Mr. Pugh spoke with great feeling, warming up as he progressed with the subject until he gradually developed into quite a strong denunciation of the appointment. He took the ground against the entire nomination was an unworthy one, saying in effect that Mr. Peckham was not by temperament or training calculated to give satisfaction as a member of the highest judicial tribunal in the world.

He also thought Mr. Peckham was inconsiderate of the senate, and his course was against him on this ground. He thought that Democrats should take this phase of the question into consideration. He had read in the newspapers and had letters from attorneys residing in New York in support of his position.

Lindsay Defends the Nomination.

Senator Lindsay made a the principal speech in reply to Senator Pugh in advocacy of confirmation of the nomination of Mr. Peckham. He spoke about the same length of time that Senator Pugh did. Senator Lindsay made a general defense of the selection as one calculated to in every way meet the requirements of the high office, and said that no one could have a higher appreciation than himself of the qualities necessary to render a man acceptable for service on the supreme bench. He believed, too, that the president had disregard for all the proprieties in making the appointment, and he thought he should be commended rather than criticised for the requirements as did Mr. Peckham.

He admitted that letters had been received by the judiciary committee criticising Mr. Peckham for some peculiarities of disposition, but said that in no instance had any one charged a lack of integrity or of a high sense of honor. While such letters had been received, it must also be borne in mind that letters just as strong in indorsement as the others were in condemnation had also been sent to the committee, and they came from men of just as high standing at the bar and as capable of forming intelligent judgment. He attributed many of the condemnatory letters to the peculiarities of New York politics, dwelling at considerable length upon the phase of the opposition and treating the politics of the Empire State as one of the complicated questions of the day—an extremely difficult mystery beyond the comprehension of the ordinary, uninitiated mortal.

Senators Harris and McPherson made brief speeches during the session, both in support of Mr. Peckham. Mr. McPherson spoke of him from the standpoint of personal acquaintance, and said that knowing him as he did he was satisfied of his fitness for the office.

Senator Harris' remarks were devoted to the general question of the president's right to appoint and of the senate's privileges of advising, saying that in a case like the present, when the appointee was worthy, it was the duty of the senate to confirm.

It was late when Senator Vilas began to speak in favor of confirmation, and as it was evident that he was prepared to make a long speech a suggestion was made that perhaps it would be more satisfactory to postpone further consideration of the nomination. Several senators stated that they had engagements for the evening, and all assented to the proposition.

Oklahoma Towns Site Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The president of the United States came to the rescue of the Oklahoma town site bill, and by his vote he broke the tie and passed the bill over the head of the Rock Island Railroad company to stop its trains at the new towns of Enid and Round Pond.

This measure has been under discussion in the senate nearly a week and has been one of the most hotly contested bills of the session. The railroad company, according to the advocates of the bill, secured control from the Indians, in advance of the opening of the territory, of the town sites adjacent to the sites of Enid and Round Pond, regularly established by the interior department, and the trains of the Rock Island road have refused to stop at Enid and Round Pond unless the passengers should come two or three miles down the line of the road in order to receive their freight or transact any business involving railroad transportation.

As Enid and Round Pond are alleged each to have a population of 2,000 inhabitants or more, the pressure exerted upon the railroad company's action has been so strong that it has found its way to congress. The measure on the final vote stood 37 to 37, and the vice president promptly cast the presiding officer's ballot by handing the desiding vote in favor of the bill. The senate amended the measure, however, and it must go back to the house for the consideration of that body. Senators Berry of Arkansas and Palmer of Illinois were the principal champions of the bill, and Senators Blackburn of Kentucky and Platt of Connecticut were its leading opponents.

The Woman Suffrage Convention.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The ninth session of the national woman suffrage convention was very largely attended, and above seated on the platform included District Commissioner Truesdell, Senator Teller of Colorado and Representatives Penna and Bell of the same state.

The president's address was delivered by Miss Susan B. Anthony. It was a brief, interesting and critical review of the cause of woman suffrage, with frequent casual allusions to the action of the courts.

Senator Teller was then introduced and spoke for a short time on the woman suffrage question, paying particular attention to the history of suffrage in the territory and had existed in Colorado and adjacent states.

Henry B. Blackwell of Massachusetts next spoke on "Municipal Suffrage." Colorado. Rev. Anna H. Shaw of Pennsylvania briefly addressed the convention and asserted that the men of Colorado had not divided their power by giving the full ballot to women, but had thereby doubled that power. Miss Anthony then introduced Susan Cooper of Wyoming, a paper having for its subject, "Our Stars of 1894—Kansas and New York," was read by Mrs. Lavina M. Johns of Kansas, and another on the same subject, written by Mrs. Jane Brooks Grenleaf of New York. The convention was closed by Representative Price of Colorado.

In the House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The debate on the Bland seigniorage bill in the house was characterized by several strong Democratic speeches against the measure. Mr. Bland has given up hope of reaching an agreement to close debate by unanimous consent, and today he will move to close debate. As the opponents of the bill will decline to vote, it will require a quorum of the advocates of the measure to carry this motion. Mr. Bland does not expect to secure a quorum today, but as soon as this lack of a quorum is demonstrated steps will be taken to compel the attendance of absentees, and Mr. Bland is confident that on Saturday, or Monday at the farthest, a quorum will be present to pass the bill.

Smythe Did Not Interfere.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—In response to an official inquiry Mr. Smythe, the United States minister to Hayti, has informed Secretary Gresham that there is no word of truth in the report that he had attempted to interfere in the administration of Hayti. The affair in the Haytien Hippodrome had in consequence suggested his recall.

The Kearsarge's Crew.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The officers and crew of the wrecked United States steamship Kearsarge are expected to arrive at New York at 9 o'clock this morning. The men will be placed on a receiving ship, and the officers will be kept near at hand to give their testimony before the court of inquiry.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

New York—Sprigbits, August Lange; Marthasville, William Dorsheid; Porter Corners, F. E. Randall; St. Johnsburg, C. H. Antill.

Pennsylvania—Loans, Christopher Dennark.

Mayor Sargent Refused to Entertain.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 16.—Mayor Haynes of Newark, N. J., and prominent Newark officials arrived here to inspect the almshouse. It was expected that Mayor Sargent would entertain them, but he positively declined to extend to the visitors the hospitality of New Haven because he stated no money had been appropriated for such a purpose. They were then handed over to the town officials, who entertained them. Much indignation is expressed over Mayor Sargent's action. The Newark gentlemen are highly indignant.

New York State Normal School Burned.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 16.—The State Normal and Training school at Oneonta was destroyed by a fire which was discovered by the janitor at 6 o'clock this morning in a waste paper room in the basement. An alarm was immediately given, but owing to heavy snow drifts a long time for the fire department to reach the building, which stands on a hill. The firemen made a hard fight, but without avail, for in less than two hours the building was in ruins.

Negro Tortures in Georgia.

ATLANTA, Feb. 16.—Special to Apalthorpe comes the story of such a horrible murder that Governor Northen has doubled the usual reward for the criminals. Bob Collins, a negro, was murdered in his home by seven white men, stripped, beaten with a hungry tines, scraped and cut with a blunt knife and left naked nearly seven hours in a freezing temperature. He died just after being found.

Only Twenty May See the Hanging.

FREDERICK, Md., Feb. 16.—Sheriff Daniel P. Zimmerman distributed over 400 tickets to parties to witness the execution of William Leonard in the city jailyard here today for the murder of Jesse Anderson. Judge John M. Mellvaine said Mr. Zimmerman that this was contrary to law and that he should allow but 20 persons to view the execution.

The Union Pacific Loans.

OMAHA, Feb. 16.—The employees of the Union Pacific are jubilant over what they term the victory gained in St. Louis by Judge Caldwell ordering General Solicitor Thurston to revoke the new wage schedule order.

American Poachers in Canada.

MONTREAL, Feb. 16.—The government of Quebec is after three Americans who are slaughtering moose on the upper Laurentian river. They refused to obey game inspectors.

SELF EXECUTED RED.

An Anarchist Blown to Atoms by His Own Explosive.

HAD A BOTTLE OF DEADLY STUFF.

His Wife a Trusted Leader of the London Anarchists, and Rooky, the Paris Bomb Thrower, Had Recently Been at His Home—Was Under Surveillance.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—A Frenchman who is said to have been known as an anarchist was blown to pieces in Greenwich park. Near by were found fragments of a bottle which evidently had contained explosive materials. The police have heard the report of the explosion, which came from the direction of the observatory, and hastening thither they found a man kneeling on the floor and in a pool of blood. His hand and wrist had been blown away, and his face and body were covered with wounds.

He was only able to say, "Take me home." Where his home was it could not be learned from the papers in his pockets, and he was therefore conveyed to the Stewart's hospital, where he died an hour after reaching there. The conjecture of the police is that he stumbled and fell and in this way caused the explosion of the contents of his bottle, which was in his pocket.

The man was about 30 years of age. There was nothing on his person which would disclose his name or address, except a name of Bourbon was in his coat pocket, and the fact also which this affords is all the police have to depend upon to discover who he was.

According to a report, the man has been a trusted leader in the circle of anarchists. Judging from documents written both in French and English which were found on his body, this supposition appears to be justified. It is thought that he had been made police surveillance and had left his domicile very hurriedly. He lived in a house in Tottenham Court road. He evidently was recklessly, carrying explosives along streets in a crowded railway carriage from Charing Cross. His house was watched constantly, as there was a club which was frequented by consulting of desperadoes of all nations. Henry was there only a few days ago.

Bad Recipes For Making Bombs.

Tight was also found in he man's pocket a card on which the name "H. Bourbon, Autonomie club, Windmill street," was written. In his pockets were $13 in gold and some loose silver. There were also several foreign bills, all of them undated, and various papers relating to anarchist entertainments and engagements. The dead man wore a red tie.

In the inner pockets were found several recipes for the manufacture of bombs written in Latin. The police have found pieces of bone and flesh and portions of the man's hand a long distance from the spot where he fell. The doctor who examined the body found pieces of glass embedded in the stomach and a huge piece of flesh hanging loose from the right thigh, which could only have been cut by glass propelled by a powerful explosive

The Chronicle, in an editorial article, urges the authorities to be cautious about accepting the theory that a new plot exists in London. It says that there is no doubt that Anarchists, disturbed in their own countries, have been driven to England, but it says that it is unlikely that they would hatch plots against the government under the eyes of detectives.

All Paris on Guard.

PARIS, Feb. 16.—The Palace of the Elysee was well guarded last night. The guests who attended the president's ball had to show their tickets twice before they could gain admittance.

Examining Magistrate Meyer has elicited statements from Henry, the bomb thrower, which will lead to serious raids upon houses in which anarchists are supposed to reside and to many arrests, both in Paris and the provinces. The Gaulois says that a well known and desperate anarchist has left London for Paris on a mission which involves the perpetration of another outrage.

The Rothschilds' bank in this city is guarded by an extra force of police as a result of anarchist placards posted upon the door of the bank, announcing that a meeting of the society would be held inside the building and requesting the bankers who were skillful in the locksmith trade to bring with them skeleton keys and crowbars in case the safes were locked.

THE BURIED MINERS.

It May Take Three Weeks to Recover Their Bodies.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 16.—Mine experts are now of the belief that it will take at least three weeks, if not longer, before the bodies of the 13 men who perished in the Gaylord mine can be recovered. Mine Inspector McDonald of Pittston and assistant Inspector Hughes superintendents of mines had into the ill fated mine and made a thorough examination of the wrecked workings. They came to the conclusion that the task of recovering the dead in this way was a gigantic one. The fall of rock was so heavy and packed the gangways so tightly that it may be necessary to use explosives to loosen the debris and timber along the work. This will not be resorted to, however, unless it is found that the surface has settled for the last time and that no danger is to be feared from above. Superintendent Lawall of the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal company, who was one of the party that went down in the mine, says there is a possibility that the entombed men may not be as far back in the mine as some think.

The fact that one of the 13 heard the rumblings of the big squeeze and the consequent danger and gave the alarm. In that case all of the men may have dropped their tools and fled toward the foot of the shaft.

How far they got of course is not known. They may have been within a few feet of the foot of the shaft, and again they may have been struck down before they got a chance to run very far. The only incentive that prompts the rescuing party to hurry is the belief that the bodies are near them. In case the bodies are not recovered by Sunday it is almost a foregone conclusion that the men were caught under the fall where they were working.

The search for the bodies will be an expensive undertaking for the Kingston coal company. The highest wages must be paid for expert miners, and while the search is being conducted no coal can be mined, and the employees simply put their time on "dead work."

M'KANE IN JAIL.

The Convicts Time May Be Sentenced For From Two to Ten Years.

BROOKLYN, Feb. 16.—John Y. McKane is spending today as a prisoner in the Raymond Street jail. He will stay there until Monday morning at 10 o'clock, when he will be brought up for sentence before Justice Bartlett for complicity in the Gravesend election frauds.

The scene in the courtroom when the jury brought in a verdict of guilty was a tumultuous one. McKane glanced swiftly toward the jury, but only once. Then his frame began to tremble, and if he made an effort to conceal his agitation it could not be observed. The agitation of his counsel was all great as his own. Lawrence Buckner, who was the only legal representative of the defendant in the courtroom, observed the usual right for the defendant—namely, to ask for an arrest of judgment and for a new trial.

These motions will be made at the proper time, he said. While these formalities were taking plate in the courtroom friends of the defendant were rushing through the halls crying out: "He's found guilty! He's found guilty!"

Just before the jury was discharged Foreman Wood arose and said, "Your honor, the jury has a recommendation to make." Clerk Byrne then received a letter which the jury had written and which was signed by the 12 men. Without looking at it, Justice Bartlett said, "I suppose, gentlemen, that this is a recommendation to mercy."

"It is, your honor," replied Foreman Sackett.

Justice Bartlett put it into his pocket, saying, "I shall give due consideration to the recommendation, gentlemen, in my efforts to perform my duty properly." Justice Bartlett then left the courtroom.

The crime for which McKane was convicted is a felony, for which he can be sentenced to not less than two and not more than 10 years' imprisonment.

Fell 1,150 Feet.

FRANKLIN FURNACE, N. J., Feb. 16.—Phillip Zimmerman, employed by the Sterling Iron and Zinc company, was instructed to descend the new shaft of the mine. The bucket caught in the trapdoor of the cover and upset. Zimmerman fell to the bottom of the shaft—1,150 feet. Every bone in the body was broken. Zimmerman was recently married, and his young wife is frantic with grief.

J. B. Scott & Co. Assign.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 16.—The announcement is made that a few hours after the death of J. B. Scott, whose funeral took place here Thursday, the firm of J. B. Scott & Co. made an assignment to Colonel James Collard, president of Pittsburg Insurance company. No figures are given, but a member of the firm says the concern is solvent, and the business will be continued as before.

Continental Railroad Horror.

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—A dispatch from Siemans, Russia, says that a railroad accident has occurred on the Samara-Zlatoosk railroad near Jelan. Two engines and 13 carriages and trucks were thrown from the track. Thirteen people are stated to have been killed and a large number wounded.

TORN BY CHIMPANZEES.

Keeper Goss' Terrible Experience in Central Park.

HE WAS ALMOST TORN TO PIECES.

The Beasts Held Him Fast in the Dark and Bit Off One Toe and One Finger, Besides Tearing His Flesh—Rescued by the Police Just In Time.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Edward B. Goss, a newly young Texan who had charge of the big anthropoids Chiko and Johanna on the south floor of the arsenal in Central park, is in the Presbyterian hospital suffering from many lacerated wounds inflicted by the angry enraged animals.

The appearance of a squad of gray coated policemen, commanded by Sergeant John B. Mulholland, probably saved the Texan from death. As it was, he lost the middle finger of his right hand and the great toe of his right foot. Johanna bit off the toe, and Chiko chewed away the finger. He also tore the right wrist and nearly severed the other fingers of the hand in his rage.

Goss had taken off all but his undergarments and was about to go to bed in a room just back and east of the cage in which the two chimpanzees are kept, when he heard Johanna clap her hands and grunt in a manner indicating that she wanted something to eat.

Attacked In the Dark.

In order to get from his own bedroom to the room where the food for the big monkeys is kept Goss had to pass through a door in front of the cage. The lights in the room were out, and the keeper could not tell exactly where Johanna and Chiko were sitting. About four feet from the front of the cage is a glass partition through which the public view the antics of Chiko and Johanna. The keeper passed between the partition and the front of the cage.

As he turned the southeast corner, just breaking in with his clothes, Johanna, who had been crouching there, reached out her long and muscular arm and caught the luckless Goss by the right foot, throwing him on his face. He fell with his arms extended.

They reached just a few inches beyond the partition separating Johanna from Chiko. The angry cry of the female chimpanzee and the fall of the keeper aroused Chiko to a frenzy. He reached forth and grabbed the right arm of the Texan.

The two animals drew the keeper close up to the iron bars of the cage. Chiko got Goss's right hand through a space between two bars and tore at it furiously. Johanna bit and clawed the right leg of the keeper with similar ferocity.

Rescued Just In Time.

The cries of Goss were heard by the policemen, who rushed in with pitchforks and lighted the gas. The moment the door was burst open the chimpanzees released their victim and made a quick retreat to the rear of the cage. The sudden invasion of the gray coats and the gleam of the pitchforks was too much for their brute courage.

When Goss was released, he was so faint from loss of blood that he could not stand. The sharp teeth of the animals had torn several of the main arteries, and he probably would have bled to death but for the quick work of the police. He was taken to the hospital to a call for an ambulance. Less than five minutes after Sergeant Mulholland gave the call the ambulance was there.

The surgeon thought that Goss was dangerously hurt, inasmuch as there was a probability of blood poisoning.

Want to Share Millions.

CHICOPEE, Mass., Feb. 16.—J. and F. Delmagne are looking up the interests in an immense fortune which they have reason to believe is awaiting them in Dubuque, Ia. In 1798 a French Canadian by the name of Antoine Delmagne left this city of that name and accumulated a vast fortune, which is said to amount to $48,000,000. Dr. Balsquard Welberby, Conte, Dubuque, and C. A. Dubuque, of Chicopee, has in his employ a couple of lawyers looking up the matter, and it is found that the Delmagne heirs are the only family that he left no will. There are about 37 relatives who would share alike in the immense estate.

The New Watchung Park, with its new streets as it sweeps, will be among the most desirable residence sections in this pretty locality.

Only the Grand Avenue Property has been sold. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed forward.

Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light poles and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as they are needed.

Secretary of Board of Health Hosea now presiding on Scudder and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Crescents' ball field.

Just as Property Values jumped in Stanford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x120 feet in size, and the sale of the property, situated in these columns every Wednesday and Saturday, will give the public more early information as to their location.

NEWS OF AN ADVOCATE OF AMERICANIZED DELSARTE.

She Tells How Old Age and Its Wrinkles May Be Combated—"Let Go the Worry and Fret" and Follow Out the Physical Expression of That Idea.

As a rule, Delsarte and Chautauqua strike the uninitiated with terror. Life seems too short to delve into their awful mysteries, and so to the average mind Chautauqua and Delsarte never mingled with wabbling, gold-spectacled women who pose in gymnasium gallery in gowns and talk vaguely about "Delsarte." But when you hear a sweet-faced, soft-voiced little woman in a dream of an ivory crepe gown, with unruling lit-tle silk buckskin all over it and great, soft, white hands that suggest the whisper of Sandalphin, the angel of glory, talk downright sensible things about health and grace and the relation of the body to dress and how to keep from growing old and ugly and fat, and when she tells you this is "Americanized Delsarte" you begin to think that maybe, after all, there's something in it, and that Francois Delsarte knew what he was talking about.

Mrs. Emily M. Bishop, who is the teacher and pronouncer of the artistic and physical self culture at the great Chautauqua summer school, has been lecturing at Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, on these questions of so vital interest to women. For breathless hours a woman with soul so dead who does not long to keep young and slim and active never

Mrs. Bishop, who is a striking illustration of the logic and good sense of her theories, is not a bit of a faddist. She does not attitudinize, nor does she wear costumes calculated to give any self respecting nervous an attack of nervous prostration. A woman, full of fire and dew—a sort of unspotted physical dynamo. Her department at Chautauqua is the largest numerically and financially, having achieved twice the revenue ever secured by any special class of work there, and that, too, in spite of the handicap by certain limitations in the organization.

I saw Mrs. Bishop at the close of one of her lectures and asked her, "How may women keep from growing old?"

"Old age is going out of fashion," replied she. "Seventy-five now, you know, is considered a reasonable maximum. Of course is not the lines on the face that make the carving of thought and suffering, but the soft halo of white hair is rather the loss of elasticity of the body, of the power to do physical acts that were once as easy as to wink. If people will think old age and expect it, they will not be disappointed. Many a woman of 40 has the form and expression of a woman of 80. We can keep our bodies young by systematic exercise. Muscles that are not duly exercised, you know, lose their shape, flatten and shrink. Think of the shame when at 75 he has the flexibility of a young girl. It is a well known fact that women who are actively engaged in literary, social and philanthropic demands remain young longer than those whose lives run in unessential, narrow grooves. This is not so much the difference in the kind of work, but the difference in the thoughts back of the work, for when one's thoughts are not given to general interests one becomes absorbed in self. Flexibility, the distinguishing characteristic of youth, may be preserved by certain physical exercises. Obesity, that foe of women, should not be stayed away, but rooted by certain exercises. Above all, expel thoughts of infirmity and time."

"Will you give some exercise for the mitigation of abdominal corpulency?"

"Yes. Stand normally. Slightly but firmly contract the abdominal muscles. Raise the arms laterally to the level of the shoulders, with the hands extended, palms upward. Keeping the arms and hands in this position, slowly bend the torso to the right side. After holding the position a moment, raise the torso to its normal pose; then let the arms sink to the sides as the breath is gently exhaled. Next inhale and raise the arms as before, twist the torso to the right and bend backward in a direct line with the right arm. After holding the position for a moment, raise the torso, untwist it and then let the arms sink to the sides as the breath is exhaled. These bending and twisting exercises develop flexibility, give a rounded contour to the waist and prevent an undue accumulation of adipose over the hips."

"You have given an exercise to prevent adipose. Can you suggest something for wrinkles?"

"One of the places where the marks of age are first seen," replied Mrs. Bishop, "is in the muscles of the neck. From this cause many a woman with a fine throat and chin at 75

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

AN ADJOURNED MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

Reports Read from the Different Committees.—The Street Committee Suggests that the Road Appropriation be Increased to $4,500.

Mayor Saunders and Councilmen Edwards, Fountain, Hummer, Needham and Neafie were present at last night's meeting of the Borough Council.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mr. James C. Peck and others petitioned for two additional electric lights on Grand avenue between Myrtle avenue and the bridge and two on Myrtle avenue, between Girard and Sycamore avenues. The matter was referred to the Committee on Lamps.

The following claims were presented and referred to the committee:

A. M. Griffen	$9 50
J. S. Van Horne	1 50
Geo. W. Wilson	10 00

Collector H. N. Spencer reported taxes collected since last report as follows: For 1891, $388 31; for 1892, $857.17; for 1893, $7,785. The total taxes collected for 1893 amounted to $11,174 31.

Mr. H. N. Spencer also reported having received from the county clerk $439.50 license money. He had also received $39.92 from the North Plainfield township committee for half of the cost of repairing Rock road.

The Street Committee's annual report was read, showing that during the last year Chaffin avenue had been macadamized, as had also Duer street from Craig place to Emily street, Rock road had been graded and covered with crushed stone and Greenbrook road was repaired, and numerous crosswalks laid. There had not been much progress in the laying of better side-walks, but under the new ordinance it was thought there would be a marked improvement. The committee suggested that the appropriation for street work be made $4,500 this year, instead of $3,500 as heretofore, as the present sum admits of very little new work outside of keeping the streets already macadamized in repair. The committee thought that with a larger appropriation the streets would be macadamized quicker, and it would be a saving in the end, as at present the streets that are macadamized are used so exclusively that they continually need more repairing than would be the case if there were more streets macadamized to admit of travel. The committee stated that Macadam road had ordered that every effectual aid in their work, and that to him was due the credit of having Grove street improved without any cost to the borough. The committee reported a balance on hand of $190.82.

Mr. Fountain, chairman of the Fire, Water and Lamps Committee, reported that during the year a new hose tower had been erected for the fire department, that a new steam gong had been purchased for the use of engine No. 1, and Engine Company had responded to all calls with alacrity, and that any money put in that department was well spent; that the Edison Electric Light Company had agreed to light the borough for $10 per lamp. The light interest expenditures for the year were $7,527 95, while the taxes collected amounted to $8,485.45; leaving a balance on hand of $957.50. In the fire department the expenditures has been $21,170.95, receipts, $3,000 00, leaving a balance on hand of $1,376.81, after a $500 note due March 5th, is paid.

Mr Needham of the Auditing Committee, reported that the books of the borough clerk and collector had been audited and found correct.

Borough Clerk Vetterlin read the borough report, which was outside of the fire department, police service, and streets, and included salaries of the officers and the expense of the lockup. This report showed that the expenditure had been $3,816.85, and the receipts $3,650.24, leaving a deficiency of $166.61.

On resolution one light was ordered placed on Mercer avenue, between Duer and Grove street, and one between Grove street and Washington avenue.

The Committee on Printing and Stationery were authorized to have printed 1,000 copies of the borough reports, and have the reports published in the same way as the prints the pamphlets provided the additional cost did not exceed $10.

There was considerable discussion before the above was arrived at. Mr Hummer said he thought the newspapers should have some compensation for sending reporters to report all the meetings and place their doings before the public. If the three papers did not report their meetings the people wouldn't know there was a Council in the borough. This showed a kindly spirit in Mr. Hummer. The newspapers, however, publish the doings of the people's representative because they are of public interest, and never expect to serve the public or go out of business.

Chief Marshal Pangborn made his annual report. The increased force was giving satisfaction. The Marshal suggested that time clocks be placed about the borough. During the year 169 arrests had been made. Sentences had been imposed, aggregating 10 years, four months and seven days. The police station, he said, was in good order.

The report of the License Committee showed that the expenditure for the year had been $5,105 69 and the receipts $5,721.76; leaving a balance on hand of $616.07.

Council adjourned to meet again in two weeks.

25 NEW MEMBERS.

Columbia Lodge, No. 58, A. O. U. W Growing Rapidly.

At the regular meeting of Columbia Lodge, No. 58, Ancient Order of United Workmen, last night twenty-five new members were initiated. They were as follows: Judge William Coddington, and Messrs. Herman Weber, C. B. Clifton, R. A. Meeker, F. W. Dunn, S. Schlief, J. H. Bilmes, R. H. McCullough, E. F. Miller, W. R. Starling, J. M. Herbert, H. Wurster, C. Keller, L. H. McKenzie, F. D. C. Martin, C. Moffett, Edward Nelson, George Faller, John Duck, W. J. Stephenson, J. H. Doane, George Neal, M. Ballentine, H. J. Fleischhauer, and F. W. Hobard.

Supreme Representative John Dieudonf was present and made an address. Speeches were also made by several others. A collation was served.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Rittenhouse of this city has been granted an increase in his pension.

Mrs. Leland of Central avenue has returned from a visit with friends in northern New York.

The body of the late Mrs. Connolly, who died in this city Tuesday, was sent to Easton yesterday morning by Undertaker Casey.

Pastor Hand of the First Church of Christ will go to Newark to-morrow morning to be present at the meeting of the Disciples of that place. He will return to be present at the evening service in Plainfield.

Mr. Louis S. Bond, who recently resigned as superintendent of the Boys, Club, has secured a position as salesman in Mr. White's dry goods store, on West Front street. He is to go in the underwear department.

Mr. and Mrs. Lockey of West Second street gave one of their children a birthday party last night. The guests were entertained by singing and music. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Addis, Mr. and Mrs. R. Morris, and S. J. Pickens of Newark, Mr. Clarence Mundy, Mr. and Mrs. C. Hanson, Miss Hanson, Miss Sadie Addis, Mrs. Traynor, Mrs. Wessie, Miss Keller, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bilyeu, and Mr. S. King.

The Rev. John F. Pingry, Ph. D., died yesterday at his home, 445 Westminster avenue, Elizabeth. He was the founder and Dean of the Pingry school and had a wide reputation as an educator. He was born in Newburyport, Mass., in 1818. Among his ancestors were Gov. Pingry and Judge Pingry of Vermont. He leaves a widow and three sons, Dr. James O. Pingry of Duchess county, N. Y., Frank Pingry of Minneapolis, and John Pingry of Elizabeth.

Last Sunday evening there was a very large attendance at the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The Epworth League attended in a body, thus forming a chorus choir in the service of song. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Barrow, preached the first sermon of series for young people. His subject was "Discontented with Home," the first of "Three Chapters in the Life of a Young Man!" To-morrow night he will give the second chapter with the subject, "The Wanderer."

Miss Katie Carty entertained a number of her young friends last night, at her home on Orchard place. The evening was most pleasantly passed with games and music. Among those present were: The Misses Katie and Lizzie Flanigan, the Misses Lizzie and Nellie Casey, Miss Nellie Begley, Miss Kate Kiely, the Misses Nettie, Lizzie and Susie Goff, Miss McIntyre and the Misses Day, and Samuel Dennick, Samuel Goff, Edward Twohey, William Van Dyke, A. Sperring, D. Somner, J. Connors, Patrick Guiney, and George and Edward Blackburn of Brooklyn.

Tried Their New Piano.

The Sunday school of Grace M. E. Chapel of Park place, and their friends enjoyed themselves last evening at an evening sociable. The chapel was entirely filled. A handsome new upright piano has been added to the church effects and some very fine music was rendered.

The following was the programme:

Piano Solo	Miss May McDonald.
Auto-harp selections	Miss Alice Carroll.
Reading	Mr. T. W. Powell.
Vocal solo	Miss Grace Carroll.
Violin Selections	by Lyman Wrench.
Reading	Mr. Powell.
Auto-harp selection	Miss Alice Carroll.
Violin selection	by Lyman Wrench.
Piano solo	Miss May McDonald.
Refreshments	Everyone.

Yesterday's Fire.

At 4:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon the cost in a chimney on the house occupied by Jacob Hay, a colored man, of Stiger's Alley, took fire. An alarm was sent in from box 12. When the firemen arrived the chimney was red hot and the building was in danger of catching fire from it. Chemical Engine 2 pushed fire extinguisher soon did the business.

That Dead Dog Will Trouble Some one.

Board of Health Marshal Whiteley is collecting evidence to prosecute the person who brought a dead dog from Plainfield and left it in the Borough yesterday. The penalty is not less than $10 nor more than $20, and imprisonment.

Invited to Inspect the New Building.

The trustees of the North Plainfield Public School invite those living in the district to call and inspect the new building on Somerset street, between the hours of one and four next Thursday afternoon.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Unjust to the Melopois and Mr. Chapman.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The Press of last evening stated that Mr. Chapman, the leader of the Melopois, right after the finish of the last concert which was not up to the standard, rushed down into the dressing room and vowed in language strong that he would not stand such doings, that his reputation would be ruined, and then the Press goes on to state that the members promised to do better hereafter. The statement might not be worth notice, because any one who knows the Society, knows better, but there may be those that know the Society nor its conductor who might believe the statement. A gentleman like Mr. Chapman never uses such language as is imputed in the Press article, and especially before ladies, nor would such a Society as the Melopois stand it if he did, Mr. Chapman realized that he was, in a measure to blame. As one member put it "He was not here rehearsing for several nights, and at the few last rehearsals kept changing the time, and, in one instance, the notes, so that those who were present were slightly bewildered, and those who were not, felt lost on the night of the concert." Death and illness robbed the Society of several valuable voices. But the next concert promises to surpass anything yet, and the members are attending promptly and regularly.

VALENTINE'S DAY MEETING.

A Valentine Contributed by Ellory Leonard Decided Upon as the Best.

The High School Lyceum held a Valentine's Day meeting in Assembly Hall, yesterday afternoon. President Seymour Marsh presided. Valentines were read by Henry Wells, Albert Woltman and Fred. Goddard.

A silver watch-key was given as a prize for the best valentine contributed. The committee to decide which was the best was composed of Miss Needham, Miss Thompson, Miss Williams, Miss French and Miss Fountain. They decided that the best Valentine was the one contributed by Ellory Leonard, one of the former presidents of the Lyceum, who now lives at Bolton, Mass.

"Festival of Days."

The "Festival of Days" at Vincent Chapel last night proved a very pleasing and successful entertainment. Those who represented the days were:

"Christmas Day"	Clifford McGee.
"Decoration Day"	Frank Hyde and R. Davis.
"Wash Day," (Monday)	Grace Brown.
"Ironing Day" (Tuesday)	Lilly Chandler.
"Birthday"	Mary Needham.
"New Year's Day"	Helen Weir.
"Father Time"	Mr. Clark.
"Easter Day"	Miss Clark.
"Mother's Day"	May Ford.
"Hot Day"	Sarah Moore Douglas.
"Valentine Day"	Sadie Howell.
"Thanksgiving Birthday"	Edward Goodwood.
"Red Letter Day"	Edna French.
"Fourth of July"	Bessie Smith.
"Arbor Day"	W. Cornwell.
"Rainy Day"	Lulu Davis.
"Children's Day," Miss Pepper, and Master and Miss Sloan.

"Plainfield, That Hotbed of Republicanism."

At Rahway Thursday night occurred the annual "blow-out" of the noted Rahway Peanut Club, which is composed of old, hard-shell Democrats. The banquet was held in Coriell's parlors, on Main street, and proved to be an elaborate affair.

Among the toasts was one by County Attorney William K. McClure, of this city, on "Plainfield, that Hotbed of Republicanism."

The Stove Fell Apart.

Last evening about nine o'clock as two men were carrying an old stove, containing a quantity of hot coals, from one room to the other in Mr. John P. Emmon's new building, at the corner of Duer street and Greenbrook road, the stove fell apart. The hot coals were scattered over the floor and immediately the wood began to burn. The men secured shovels and shoveled the burning coals out of the window.

To Make it the Best Ever Held.

Alphonso S. Hill, secretary and treasury of the Second New Jersey Cavalry Association, has sent out circulars to the members to meet in this city on Feby. 22d. It is the intention of the Committee of Arrangements to make this re-union the best ever held, and everything will be done to make the comrades feel that they have enjoyed this re-union. Some noted men are expected to be present.

Mrs. Harder Got Her Pension.

Mrs. Harder, of Somerset street, North Plainfield, ever since the death of her husband, who was an old soldier, has been endeavoring to secure a pension from the Government. Her petition was successful and Thursday she received $400. She will, hereafter, get $10 a month.

Ran at a Two Minute Gait.

A horse belonging to Mr. Van Buren of East Ninth street ran away with the coachman on Park avenue about eight o'clock this morning. As he reached Ninth street the driver succeeded in regaining control of the animal. The horse ran at about a two minute gait.

The "Magic City" is selling immensely. Wanamaker of Philadelphia, sold 4500 capes in three days. On sale at White's, 5c. copy.

A MEMBER SAYS THE DEED FORBIDS

The Rev. Mr. Jennings Selling the Church to Get His Salary.

For some days past rumors have been current that Rector J. B. Jennings, of the Episcopal Church, Westfield, had threatened to sell his church to the Catholics in order to obtain money which he claims is due him on his back salary. This recalls the fact that the vestry of this church has been trying for over a year to get rid of Mr. Jennings, having pref.-ered charges against him. The case went through the church courts and Jennings was ordered several times to vacate his parish, but he clung on and appealed finally to the civil courts.

The matter is now in the hands of the Supreme Court and a decision is looked for at any time. The rector is not receiving any compensation for his services, and is hoping that the courts may decide in his favor and allow him his back salary in full.

It is known that the Catholic Church is looking around for larger quarters. Their congregation has been growing the past year or two, and their present building is unsuited to their needs.

A member said: "I know there are all sorts of rumors about our church being sold, but I have not paid the least attention to them, because there is a clause in the original deed which expressly forbids the church property being sold or mortgaged. As for Mr. Jennings being able to collect any salary from the church I don't believe he can legally get a cent from us, for I understand that at the time his wife got a separation from him and endeavored to get alimony he swore that he received no salary from the church, and subsisted entirely upon his weekly collections."

BREVITIES.

—To-night there will be a song service in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—Next Thursday night the Dunellens will go to Rahway and bowl a game with the "Last Nine Club."

—On Tuesday night of next week the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum members will have a "smoker."

—Justice Mosher has issued a summons in the case of Linke vs. Sullivan, on contract, returnable Feb. 21st.

—Congressman Dunn yesterday introduced a bill to appropriate $300,000 for the projected public buildings in Elizabeth.

—Edsall and Doane and Edsall still continue their special sales. Observing purchasers say that their goods cost less than in New York.

—Mr. White says that over 300 copies of the first number of the "Magic City" were sold at his store yesterday. He says don't miss a good thing. The price of No. 1 is five cents.

—The Rev. Arthur Crane will conduct the 4:15 meeting at the Y. M. C. A. to-morrow afternoon, which will be proceeded by an 11 o'clock meeting at four o'clock in front of the Y. M. C. A.

—A boy horse with harness and bells on was caught at the corner of Fourth Fourth street and Park avenue at about five o'clock yesterday afternoon. It is not known to whom it belonged.

—A number of sleigh riders stopped at G. F. Randolph's on Duer street, at nine o'clock last night, where they enjoyed themselves until after midnight. They were from Westfield.

—Mr. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of Hope chapel, has had his residence on West Fifth street entirely repainted, repapered and re-decorated. The work is most artistic. Messrs. Pearson and Bathman of 319 Watchung avenue were the decorators.

—A Massachusetts paper tells of a colored woman who had been lately converted, but was so unforignate as to fly into a passion over the ups-doings of one of her friends. Her mistress remarked upon the impropriety of such conduct in the case of one about to join the church, and received this frank response: "I have superinured religion, and I'se gwine to join the church, but, Miss B., I'll scold dat nigger fust!"

—Mr. F. W. Miles, of Somerset street, has, until within about a year, conducted an entirely wholesale florist business. His retail trade, however, has grown to such an extent, mainly because those who have traded with him have been so well pleased, and have sent their friends, that now he intends to give more direct attention to it. His extensive greenhouses are located on Somerset street at the terminus of the electric street railway. As will be seen by advertisements to make this re-union the best ever held, and everything will be done to make the comrades feel that they have enjoyed this re-union. Some noted men are expected to be present.

As Usual, Mr. Spencer's Books Were O. K.

The Borough and Township Auditing Committees examined Tax Collector H. Newton Spencer's books the other day. They found them all correct.

HIS EXCELLENT CHARACTER.

Saved an Absconding Bank Cashier from State Prison.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 17.—George H. Simpson, the young Rahway bank clerk who took $1,000 of the bank's money and went to see the Corbett-Mitchell fight in Florida, but returned and gave up half of the money, was taken before the Union County Court this morning.

All the preachers of Rahway, the City Council and a number of lawyers petitioned for leniency.

Because of the prisoner's previous excellent character, he was only sentenced to the county jail for four months.

In the City Court.

Fred. Metzel and Jack Hogan who were arrested Feb. 4th by Policeman Fredericksen, and trial set down for today, were found guilty this morning by Judge Coddington, of drunken and disorderly conduct and fined $5 each, which they paid.

A boy named Hospert, from Scotch Plains, was arrested by Policeman McCue for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk. Judge Coddington fined him $3, which he paid.

Hackman John Lynch was arrested by Policeman Giese for violating the back ordinance by soliciting trade on the sidewalk. It was clearly a misunderstanding by Mr. Lynch, and the court suspended sentence.

Wagon Damaged by a Sleigh.

Yesterday soon one of Mr. Hedden's carriages was run into at the corner of Park avenue and Front street by Robinson Pound. The sleigh came out of the scrimmage unscathed, but the carriage was considerably damaged and the axle bent.

A Woman's Flight.

On the 5.20 train from New York last Tuesday evening W. H. Byram, a bank clerk living at Madison, became obnoxious to a woman with whom he occupied a seat and several passengers interfered and Byram went to another car. When the train arrived at Madison a resident accompanied the "woman to a cab, as she feared that Byram, who was under the influence of liquor, would attack her. As the woman was stepping into the cab Byram appeared and with his umbrella aimed a blow at the man but struck the woman on the head. Byram was then dragged away by bystanders and he left for his home. No arrest was made, although it was said that the woman will apply for the apprehension of Byram and asked that he be placed under bonds to keep the peace.

Caught in the Snow on the Tracks.

Wm. Giffhorn, of Spottswood, at noon yesterday attempted to cross the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at French street New Brunswick, with a three-horse sleigh load of wood. The team got stuck with the sled on the east-bound track and Mr. Giffhorn unhitched his horses. The gateman told him to hitch up again and get the sled away and they would flag the expected train. The horses were restlached but almost immediately ordered away again. As the Philadelphia express came through it struck one horse and badly hurt another. Mr Giffhorn and his assistant narrowly escaped death.

Prospects of Good Skating at Red Bank.

The ice on the Shrewsbury River is now nearly four inches thick and in fairly good condition. Secretary Walsh of the National Amateur Skating Association was in Red Bank yesterday afternoon, and together with several members of the North Shrewsbury Ice Yacht Club, thought there would be a possibility of a race on Monday. If the ice continue good, the skaters will be notified to come to Red Bank on Sunday afternoon to be in readiness for the race.

Will Save Many Lives.

The test of a patent fender for trolley cars, which was made yesterday morning on a Central avenue car in Roseville, near Newark, was highly successful. The test took place at the general repair shops of the Newark Traction Company. Car 53 was fitted with it and successfully picked up a 200-pound dummy lying on the track. The car ran at a good speed.

Three old men, weighing from 150 to 180 pounds, were picked up.

Virginia Beach, Via Washington and Norfolk.

One of the most pleasant and destined to be the popular route from the East to Virginia Beach is via the famous Royal Blue Line and steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co.

Passengers taking the Royal Blue express leave New York daily 11.20 p. m., and Philadelphia 1.35 p. m., make direct through connections, arriving at Virginia Beach 10.05 o'clock the following morning. A break in the journey of 24 hours at Washington will prove a relief, and not the least attractive part of the trip, as the Capitol is within a stone's throw of the B. and O. station, and is always an interesting object, it only to look at its architectural beauties.

The steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co. are new, fitted up in the latest, and are models of the modern shipbuilder's art.

Pullman dining and parlor cars are attached to the Royal Blue express. Excellent meals are also served on the steamers.

DISASTER ON A WARSHIP

Thirty-nine Men Lost Their Lives In Kiel Bay.

THE MAIN STEAMPIPE BURST.

Gustloe Ironclad Brandenburg Was Being Prepared For a Forced Draft Trial at the Imperial Dockyard When the Explosion Took Place—A Sad Day For Kiel.

KIEL, Feb. 17.—A horrible accident occurred on board the German ironclad Brandenburg, near Friedrichsort, three miles from the Dusk lighthouse, as the entrance to Kiel bay. The big vessel for some time past has been in Kieler harbor, one of the best havens in Europe and the chief war harbor of Germany, undergoing various experiments. Friday was selected for a forced trial draft.

To get the ironclad in first class condition for that 60 artificers were sent aboard from the royal dockyard. While 11 of these artificers were in the engine room a terrific explosion took place. The main steampipe of the starboard engine had burst. For above the noise of the escaping steam were heard the heart rending cries of the injured and dying.

Panic temporarily spread among the crew, but after a moment's hesitation every effort was put forth to rescue the unfortunate men in the engine room. It was then found that of the 11 artificers all but one had been killed. The man who escaped owed his preservation from the fate of his comrades to the fact that at the moment of the explosion he was standing on a ladder near the top of the room. His companions were all on the floor of the room. When the steam had cleared away and the dead and wounded, a further search was made among the crew for the dead and injured.

A Scene of Destruction.

It was then discovered that 39 men in all had been killed and nine injured. This list includes the 10 dead artificers. Thirty-seven of the men were killed instantly. Two of the wounded died in a short while after receiving their injuries.

Frightful as the accident was, news of it has not yet reached Kiel in an exaggerated form. It was at first said that 46 men had been killed and as many wounded. Four steamers were promptly dispatched from Kiel to the scene of the disaster. They carried a number of physicians and surgeons and a large quantity of medical supplies. The guardship Pelikan, with Prince Henry of Prussia on board, also put off instantly to the Brandenburg's aid.

The dead and wounded were carried from the Brandenburg to the steamers and conveyed to Kiel. The injured were taken to the hospital. It is believed that all the injured will recover. The details of the accident are very hard to obtain. It is said that as soon as the explosion happened all hands were summoned on deck, and the pumps were rigged.

It was not then known what the accident amounted to, and fears were entertained that the Brandenburg was in danger of sinking. All day long the most intense excitement has prevailed in Kiel. Most of the dead and injured lived here or in the neighborhood, and many of them were men of family. The wharves were crowded from the time the steamers left for the scene of the explosion until they returned with the injured. As the dead and wounded were borne from the vessels to the shore the air resounded with the cries of the bereaved. A strict inquiry will be made into the cause of the disaster.

Paris Had to Put Back.

QUEENSTOWN, Feb. 17.—The American line steamship Paris, which sailed from Southampton on Feb. 10 for New York, broke her rudder post during the storm last Sunday when about 360 miles west from here and was obliged to put back to this port. She is now safe at anchor in the harbor, and her passengers will proceed to New York on the Berlin, which will call here Sunday.

The Rhode Island Meddler.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 17.—The Democratic members of the legislature decided in caucus to invoke federal aid to oust Governor Brown. On the suggestion of ex-Governor Davis it was voted to forward a resolution to congress explaining the present legislative restrictions, asking the government to interfere and compel the senate to meet the house of representatives in grand committee.

A Ghost In Murderers' Row.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—The prisoners in the county jail are alarmed, or pretend to be, over the stories of visitations by the spirit of George H. Pahlke, who was hanged there on Jan. 26. Pahlke-Burdgraf, the murderer of Mayor Harrison, is said to be specially alarmed and in great terror of a personal visitation from his late neighbor in murderers' row.

Roasted by Molten Metal.

CHATTANOOGA, Feb. 17.—At Citico Furnace three young negro tramps huddled together and went to sleep on the slag dump. Their presence being unknown, a car containing slag in white heat was run on the dump and emptied upon the tramps. Two escaped, but Buck Porter was burned under the seething debris.

Hundreds Adrift on an Ice Floe.

HELSINGFORS, Russia, Feb. 17.—On Thursday night an ice floe broke away on a great ice field and carried off 500 persons and their wives and children. They were on the ice at the time by the accident. Food, clothes and fuel were sent to them, and their rescue is probable.

New York State Encampment.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 17.—Arrangements are now completed for the twenty-eighth annual encampment of the New York state department of the Grand Army of the Republic, which will take place here next Wednesday and Thursday.

Pioneer Safe Manufacturer Ill.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 17.—Thomas W. Barnes, the pioneer manufacturer of fireproof and burglar proof safes, is lying in a critical condition at his home here as a result of a fall down stairs.

One of Pollock's Form Raided.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 17.—Advices from Rio Janeiro say that Admiral da Gama's sailors have captured the stores of guns and ammunitions at Fort Armacao.

Judge Brentano Threatened.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Judge Brentano has received an anonymous letter warning him that unless he is lenient with Prendergast he will be killed.

Snow Threatens Railroad Travel.

ROCHESTER, Feb. 17.—Because of the deep snow and high winds serious trouble is anticipated on the railroads in this vicinity.

HIS PARTY CALL.

He tore him from the merry throng
Within the billiard hall;
He sent parties an engraved copy
To pay his party call.
His thoughts were dire and dark within,
Dismission to fate.
"Ah, me! These social debts incurred
Are hard to liquidate."

His boots were slender, long and trim;
His collar tall and swell.
His hats were made by Dunlap,
And his coats were cut by Bell.
A symphony in black and white,
"Of ear ant" the pride,
Yet he fingered on his watch
He would that he had died.

His feet caressed the lonely way.
The pave gave forth no sound.
They seemed in pitying silence clothed.
Wet and dead he was bound.
He approached the mansion stealthily;
The steps looked cold and chill.
He glanced into the vestibule,
But all was calm and still.

He fingered nervously the bell.
His exclosure in his hand.
He saw the mirror in the hall—
Solemn, stately, grand.
Suddenly his spirits rose
The drawing room loomed dim;
The menial filled his soul with joy
With, "Mrs. Skeers's no one in."

With deadlish glee he made away
His heart was airy and light.
Happy that he went and paid
His party call that night.
His steps turned to the billiard hall
Blissfully he trod.
He entered. "Well, returned so soon?"
Erupted, "Boys, thank God!"

Seven cues were yet to rest
Within their upright beds.
And sixteen different tiles were placed
On sixteen level heads.
Sixteen men upon the street
In solid phalanx all,
And sixteen men on duty bent
To pay their party call.

When the fairest of her sex came home—
At early dawn, I ween—
She slowly looked the words all out
They numbered seventeen.
With calm relief she raised her eyes,
Filled with grateful light:
"Oh, merciful Fate, look down and see What I've escaped this night!"

PECKHAM'S REJECTION.

The Senate Refused to Confirm His Nomination.

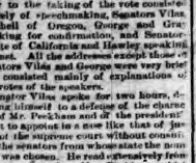
VOTE STOOD 41 TO 32 AGAINST.

This Result Was Only Reached After Many Hours of Executive Session—Mr. Peckham Refuses to Talk—Mr. Hornblower Says He Is Sorry—The Vote in Detail.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The senate, after devoting the better part of two days consideration of the nomination of W. H. Peckham of New York to be associate justice of the supreme court, took a vote on a motion to confirm the nomination, and the result was rejection by a vote of 32 to 41.

The proceedings of the executive session prior to the taking of the vote consisted entirely of speechmaking, Senators Vilas, Mitchell of Oregon, George and Gray speaking for confirmation, and Senator White of California and Hawley speaking against. All the addresses except those of Senators Vilas and George were very brief and consisted mainly of explanations of the votes of the speakers.

Senator Vilas spoke for two hours, devoting himself to a defense of the character of Mr. Peckham and of the president's right to appoint in a case like that of Judge Peckham to the supreme court. Without consulting the senators from whose state the nominee was chosen. He read extensively from letters concerning Mr. Peckham which had been laid before the judiciary committee, giving extracts from the letters of personal friends invited in the case and declared his belief that Mr. Peckham was a man entirely fit for the position. He had given the subject careful consideration and had deliberately reached the conclusion that Mr. Peckham should be confirmed.



W. D. PECKHAM.

California People Interested.

Senator White of California said that the selection of a supreme court judge was a matter which greatly interested the people of California. There was now, he said, pending in the courts of that state involving the ownership of the water front of valuable property in that state, estimated to be worth $20,000,000.

This suit would eventually reach the supreme court and be determined by that tribunal. He had observed that some of the friends of the nominee in the present instance were men who were interested in the result of these suits, and while this might be a mere coincidence it was sufficient to decide him against the nominee.

Senator Mitchell said that he had become convinced from an investigation of all the facts that Mr. Peckham was well fitted for the supreme bench. He called attention to the fact that eminent lawyers of New York and elsewhere had spoken in the highest terms of him. He stated that a lawyer who had personally known all the supreme justices for 30 years, and who had both acquainted with Mr. Peckham during that time as well, had assured him that the nominee was entirely capable of filling the office. The senator from Oregon was not prepared to say that he was a great deal like the late Justice Miller—firm and judicial.

The speeches of Senators Gray and Hawley were brief, but emphatic, the former for and the latter against confirmation.

Throughout there was heard speculation as to what will be the president's course in view of the rejection of the second of his nominees for the associate justiceship. No one, peace-applies is not "quite will venture a surmise or suggest a name. The supreme court is now in recess and will be until the 5th of March, so that the necessity for a full bench will not be urgent until that time.

The Vote in Detail.

The following is the vote in detail:

Yeas—Messrs. Bate, Blackburn, Brice, Butler, Caffery, Dixon, Faulkner, George, Gray, Hale, Harris, Hawley, Kyle, Lindsay, McLaurin, Mills, Mitchell (Or.), Mitchell (Wis.), Palmer, Pasco, Pettigrew, Pratt, Proctor, Ransom, Roach, Sanford, Shoup, Smith, Stockbridge, Turpie, Vilas, Voorhees and White (La.)—total, 32.

Peckham Not Sorry.

Notwithstanding Hornblower Sorry.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—A dispatch was received at the house of Mr. Wheeler H. Peckham and sent up his card. Mr. Peckham was asked what he had nothing to say to the representatives of the press in regard to his rejection.

Mr. William B. Hornblower was seen at his house. He said: "I am very sorry that the senate has refused to confirm Mr. Peckham's nomination. Of course, under the circumstances, it is proper that I should say very little on the subject. I am only sorry that Mr. Peckham was not confirmed. I say this because I think that Mr. Peckham would have been a good addition to the court, and would have filled it with credit and dignity." Mr. Hornblower courteously declined to express himself any further on the subject.

QUORUM STILL LACKING.

Mr. Bland's Efforts to Face His Seignorage Bill Unsuccessful.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—In the house Mr. Bland began his energetic tactics to compel a vote on the silver seignorage bill. The bulk of the Republicans and the Democratic opponents of the measure inaugurated a filibuster, with the intention of forcing him to produce a quorum of the advocates of the bill to pass it, and the entire day was consumed in roll calls. The highest number of votes Mr. Bland was able to poll was 159 in favor of his demand for the previous question on the motion to close debate. Of these 145 were Democrats, 9 Populists and 9 Republicans. Mr. Page of Rhode Island and Mr. Hooker of Mississippi refused to join the filibuster, but voted against the motion. The Republicans who voted with Mr. Bland were as follows: Bowers of California, Broderick, Doolittle, Funston, Marsh, Herman, Post and Street.

Finally Mr. Bland abandoned any attempt to secure a quorum then, and after passing a resolution instructing the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph for absentees a recess was taken until evening, the evening session being devoted to the consideration of private pension bills. Mr. Bland expresses the opinion that he will have a quorum present today, but the general impression is that he will not be able to secure one until Monday.

At the first evening session of this congress for the consideration of pension bills Mr. Kilgore of Texas blocked all proceedings. Mr. Martin, chairman of the committee on private pensions, announced that there were but 34 bills on the calendar. He moved to go into committee of the whole. Mr. Kilgore promptly demanded a division, which developed the presence of but 32 members, and Mr. Kilgore made the point of no quorum. Many appeals were made to Mr. Kilgore by Mr. Clark, Mr. Richardson, Mr. Marsh and others, but he was obdurate.

Secretary Morton Hanged in Effigy.

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., Feb. 17.—Hon. Sterling Morton, secretary of agriculture, and his youngest son Carl were hanged in effigy in the city park. The city has been greatly excited all day over the affair, and strenuous efforts are being made to discover the guilty parties. The cause of the outrage is supposed to be the infection among a few D[illegible] over recent appointments made by the secretary.

Dynamite Ladies Screamer Wrecked.

DELAWARE BREAKWATER, Del., Feb. 17.—During the high wind which prevailed here the schooner Hendee, from New York for Norfolk with salt and dynamite, went ashore at a point between Point of Cape and the hospital. The tug Juno made an attempt to get her off, but failed on account of the high wind and heavy seas. The crew was landed by the life savers. The vessel is full of water, and nothing can be done until the wind abates.

Sure of McKinley's Election.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 17.—A local paper prints the following: Congressman R. H. Funstone of the Second district is making his canvass for renomination in that district on a new plan. He says that McKinley is sure to be the next president, and he is confident that if he can but gain practice of a re-election he will go into the cabinet as secretary of agriculture.

Beck Investigation Ended.

BUFFALO, Feb. 17.—The evidence is all in in the Sheriff Beck investigation. Sherman S. Rogers will sum up for the prosecution, and Referee Bentley will leave Buffalo today, taking with him transcripts of all the evidence and the voluminous briefs of the attorneys. Mr. Bentley says that it will be some time before he can reach a decision in the matter.

Starving Man in a Fatal Quarrel.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 17.—While a number of unemployed men were standing in line at St. Mary's infirmary waiting for food, which is being distributed to the poor by the Sisters in charge, two of the men got into a quarrel, and one, Reuben Rads, was stabbed three times in the back. He will die. His assailant escaped.

No Steam In the Almshouse.

BUFFALO, Feb. 17.—The inmates of the Erie county almshouse are suffering for want of fire and water. The building is heated by steam, and since the water famine there has been difficulty in filling the boilers. The almshouse contains 324 paupers and the hospital 307 patients.

The Parish Councils Bill.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The house of commons rejected without a division a number of amendments made by the house of lords to the parish councils bill. There was a division in the lobbies, and the government obtained a majority of 53.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

SIGNING A PETITION TO PRESENT TO THE COUNCIL.

Protesting Against the Granting of Licenses West of Plainfield Avenue.

—For Six Years the Council Has Refused to Grant Licenses in that District.

The largest audience for months gathered in Hope chapel last evening.

The reason that in many breasts the bad waking was to raise their voices against the granting of licenses west of Plainfield avenue.

For six years the Council has refused to grant licenses in the west end, and this fact, it was claimed, has much to do with making that section such an orderly and respectable place of residence.

The speakers of the evening were moderate in their expressions—calling no harsh names and avoiding that intemperance of speech, which sometimes makes temperance addresses faulty.

They dealt with facts and figures, and were listened to most attentively.

Without excitement—but calmly and deliberately, the audience signed a petition which will be presented to the Common Council to-night.

The respectable people of the west end are determined to keep saloons away, if their influence can do it.

BREVITIES.

—The "Tu" will hold a devotional meeting on Tuesday, February 20, at four p.m.

—The Young Men's League of Hope Chapel will elect officers to-night. Every member is requested to be present.

—"Lee Kay" and Neal Apgar of this city, attended a "shoot" at Reading Pa. recently and were among the winners.

—Queen City Lodge, No. 208, I. O. O. F. will initiate one candidate to-night. The Lodge will also hold its second "smoker."

—The C. Y. M. L.'s of this city have accepted a challenge from the Catholic Club of Jersey City to bowl a series of games.

—There will be an adjourned meeting of the City Common Council to-night to take action on the liquor license applications.

—There is to be a party at 213 Plainfield avenue on March 7th, in celebration of the birthdays of Miss Kate Sutterlin and Miss Lizzie Hall.

—There is talk of establishing a local telephone exchange at Westfield, independent of the telephone company. Henry Miller has the matter in charge.

—The Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a special sewing meeting to-morrow, from 9.30 a.m. to 3.15 p.m., in the Bible class room.

—Columbus Lodge, No. 58, Ancient Order of United Workmen has received a dispensation to hold a special meeting on Feb. 20, to receive propositions for membership.

—Saturday afternoon a sleigh belonging to Baker Voehl was upset on Cottage place, and bread and pies were scattered promiscuously in the street. The horse attempted to runaway but was caught.

—Plainfielders expect to attend a shooting-match at Earle' half way house, Rahway avenue, between Elizabeth and Rahway, to-morrow afternoon at two o'clock, when Messrs. Batsch and Dackerman, of Elizabeth, will be fitted against each other; the match is $100 a side.

—The first number of the Grace Parish Record, a monthly publication, issued by the Young Men's Association of Grace Church, made its appearance yesterday. Mr. Henry S. Clay is the editor. Mr. Lewis G. Thompson is the treasurer of the Association, and the subscription department is in charge of Mr. W. G. Bartindale.

—"What is a bargain?" is answered in Edsall's advertisement in another column. God he suggests that it may prove a money saver to those who will read it. Now Spring dress goods and hamburgh embroideries are shown in great variety at Edsalls, and at prices far below what they have ever been offered for before.

—The committee in charge of the coming masquerade ball to be given under the auspices of Iona Council, will have invitations ready for contribution on Tuesday. Members can have the same by calling upon any of the following, who comprise the committee: Mr. J. Wm. Klein, chairman; Mrs. Fred Westphal, treasurer; Mrs. A. Weigman, secretary; Mrs. John Stephenay, Mr. David C. Allen.

Clean the Sidewalks.

Residents who live on Grant avenue complain of the condition of the side-walks in that vicinity. One resident said last night that the sidewalk on that avenue from Fourth to Seventh streets was "a mud hole, sokle deep." This he said, was caused by the snow which had not been cleaned off and which melted and caused the trouble.

GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

CELEBRATES ITS FIRST ANNIVERSARY WITH SPECIAL EXERCISES.

The Sunday-School also Celebrates the Occasion.—Rev. Dr. Haribut of New York, Speaks at all the Meetings.—A Notable Occasion.

YESTERDAY was the first anniversary of the dedication of Grace M. E. church, corner of Park place and Somerset street, North Plainfield, and the occasion was appropriately observed.

The pastor, who has recently taken unto himself a wife, was absent on his honeymoon, but Rev. Dr. Haribut, a former prominent Plainfielder, but now of New York, was present and preached at the morning, afternoon and evening services. His morning subject was "Jesus at Jacob's Well," and his evening subject "Characteristics of the Successful Church," based on the words, "Men of understanding who knew what to do"—1 Chronicles, xii, 32.

The cozy little church was well filled at both the morning and evening services, and Dr. Haribut spoke with his usual vigor and clearness.

There were special anniversary exercises at the afternoon session of the Sunday-school, beginning with singing by the school, followed with a solo by Miss Alice Carroll, who was in excellent voice. Next there was a recitation by Tina Veeck, and singing by a quartette of male voices, a solo with accompaniment by Misses Haynes and Glenk, and reading by Miss Emma Stevens, the exercises being concluded with an address by Rev. Dr. Haribut, on Sunday-school work, which is with him a special study, he being one of the fire superintendents of the Sunday-school Union of the United States.

Altogether the day was a notable one in the life of this young and energetic church.

FRACTURED HIS ANKLE.

Fred Barton of Second Street Injured Saturday.

Fred Barton, 17 years old, a delivery clerk for a West Front street butcher, has met with an accident Saturday. While delivering meat he slipped as he endeavored to jump from the seat of his sleigh, catching his foot in an iron brace on the side. He fell in such a manner as to twist his ankle terribly. Before the horse could be stopped young Barton was dragged a considerable distance. He was taken to the office of Dr. Berg, where it was found that his ankle was fractured.

Saturday night a sled load of young folks rode to Mr. Samual Smalleys on Randolph Road and spent the evening pleasantly. Dancing was indulged in until 12 o'clock, when supper was served, after which, "Home, Sweet, Home," was played. Those in the load were, Mr. and Mrs. Klein, Messrs Wm. and Carmen Terry, Robert Bassett, David Farley Mr. and Mrs. Caufield, Misses Gussie and Mattie Perrine, Misses Tena and Carrie Undal, Miss Gabriel Reeton, Miss Edith Bassett, Miss Dora Frederickson, Miss Anna Farley and Miss Mamie Nelson.

A Coasting Accident.

Saturday night there was a coasting accident on the Netherwood hill. A sled on which were a number of boys ran into a horse rack. Allie Davis received the severest injuries.

LEISLER AND HIS TIMES

JACOB LEISLER'S SOLE AMBITION WAS TO BECOME GOVERNOR.

His Desire was Finally Gratified and he Became Commander-in-Chief of New York City to be Overthrown and Executed.—Prof. Fiske's Last Lecture.

Saturday night Prof John Fiske delivered the third and last of his series of lectures in the Crescent avenue church. His subject was "Jacob Leisler and His Times."

Jacob Leisler first became known, the speaker said, during the time of James II, whose great scheme was to join New York and New Jersey with New England.

Leisler was of Dutch parents and for 20 years he had been one of New York's most prosperous citizens. One day in 1689 he refused to pay a certain amount of duty on some articles on the ground that no government existed. This was the signal for many to rebel against what they had long felt was an arbitrary tax. This gave Leisler a number of friends and admirers. Leisler's ruling passion was his hatred of the Catholics. His aim was to be governor. He held that no good would come of having the Catholics in control.

On May 27, 1689, Lieutenant Governor Nicholson got into a altercation with one of the guard and whatever he said it was exaggerated so that it was immediately said by Leisler's followers that Nicholson had threatened to burn the town.

Nicholson's enemies, among whom was Leisler, demanded the keys of the fort from the lieutenant governor, and Leisler and his followers took command. On June 3, Nicholson sailed for England and Leisler assumed more dignity, declaring that the time had come for the Lord Jehovah to rule New York. Leisler formed the city government out doors. Soon a letter came from England addressed to the "Commander-in-chief of New York." The letter was meant for Nicholson, but since it bore no particular name, it was received by Leisler, whose vanity was tickled to the bursting point, thinking it was for him. All went well for awhile, but soon however Leisler, as governor, found that he wanted taxes to run the government, such as he himself and refused payment, which caused trouble. Men refused to pay the tax, and were put in jail by Leisler.

During this time Frontenac had arrived in Canada with a French fleet for the purpose of seizing and capturing the settlements in New York State. His first expedition, after a long march, during which his party suffered intensely from exposure and hunger, they fell upon Schenectady in the dead of night. The gates of the surrounding palisades, had been left open making the attack very easy. Out of the 150 souls in the settlement 80 were killed and 90 captured. The French then returned to Canada, taking with them many who were taken by the Iroquois Indians and many of them killed. The news of the bloody affair at Schenectady spread like wild fire.

It soon reached the ears of Leisler, who immediately sent 100 men to Albany to help guard the city.

Leisler was not recognized at Albany as the governor. Finally he grew tyrannical, put boys on the streets would call him names and throw stones at him.

On January 1691, the true state of affairs in New York became known in England and a governor and a lieutenant governor were sent over to take charge. The ship containing the governor was delayed a long while. Meanwhile the lieutenant governor had arrived and demanded that Leisler give up the command to him. This Leisler refused to do without a written order from the King. As the new governor did not arrive, Leisler became bolder, and, after calling upon the King's troops to disband within two hours, he ordered that they be fired upon.

The next morning the vessel bearing the new governor cast anchor in the harbor. He handed and read aloud his commission. Leisler was put in prison and the men he had had imprisoned were set at Liberty. Leisler was convicted of treason and condemned to death, and on May 16, Leisler and his son-in-law were executed where the World building now stands on Park Row, New York. This execution caused a bitter feeling that did not die out until the Revolution.'

These lectures have been given under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club, which deserves high praise for them.

A SERMON TO PYTHIANS.

PLAINFIELD KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ATTEND CHURCH.

In Honor of Their Thirteenth Anniversary.—Their Principles Described by the Rev. Mr. Goodrich.—Both Unity and Perseverance Lodges Present.

YESTERDAY was the 13th anniversary of the organization of Knights of Pythias. In celebration of the event Unity and Perseverance Lodges of that order attended divine services at the Congregational Church last night. They proceeded to the church in a body. The Rev. Mr. Goodrich preached a special sermon to the order. He said in part: "Gentlemen of the Knights of Pythias, I welcome you here to-night on this your thirtieth anniversary. It gives me great pleasure to welcome you for the principles which you have adopted as your base and upon which your Order is founded. Your name you get from Pythas and "Friendship" is your motto. Take the adventures of and Damon Pythas. Damon is in prison and it is the day before the one on which he must die. Pythas is at the altar with his bride and just as he is to be married someone whispered in his ear. He leaves his bride and finds his way to the prison where Damon is confined. He sees Damon and then proceeds to the king and begs that he might stay in Damon's place while Damon goes to bid farewell to his wife and children who as yet are ignorant of his fate. The king is astonished, but grants the request, and Pythas is locked up in prison while Damon is set free. The day of the execution arrives but Damon does not, and at last the hour is nigh but still he cometh not. Pythas mounts the scaffolding and lays his head on the block. The executioner is ready, the tyrant king is there and the multitude is anxious for the death-stroke, when away in the distant is seen a small cloud. Nearer it comes and soon a man on horse-back is visible. He rides to the out-side of the throng, dismounts and pushes his way to the front, mounts the scaffold, pushes away his friend Pythas, and throws himself on the block. Its Damon and he is ready to die. The tyrant king is spell-bound with amazement, but, at last, the spell in his heart has been touched and he acts Damon and his eternal friend free. Friendship saved Damon's life and it can also save others.

Again, here we are at the court of the Heorew king. His armies are coming in from the field of battle victorious. With the king's guard comes a ruddy faced shepherd boy.

The captain of the guard presents him to the king as the one who has helped a theif most to defeat their enemies. The king becomes very friendly with the little shepherd boy and they make a convenant together. Soon the king's friendliness for the boy decreases and at last he threatens to drive him from the kingdom. The boy leaves and goes with his father and the king consents to let him remain. But the people turn against the shepherd boy and he is obliged to fly into the wilderness. Again the king's son pleads with his father and the king in his anger with his son and throws his spear at him. The boy leaps aside unharmed but he dare not again speak to his father on the subject. He, however, visits the shepherd boy in his exile and cheers him with words of hope and comfort, and tells him that when his father dies that he shall sit on the throne and that he will serve him. Soon the people rose up against the king and a war followed. The king and his two sons were killed and his other son wounded.

The former shepherd boy takes the throne after finding the only remaining king's son, provides for his comfort and welfare, and the reign of the famous King David is begun. So we need in friendship of one to another in time of misfortune. The whole world needs friendship and love for ones fellowmen. A man who is living for himself and for others, is at peace with a song in his heart for others. In this great country of ours think of the great number of poor people who are striving to keep the wolf from the door unaided and who die without a friend in the world. We need friendship. There is danger about and we should stand together, although there be no tyrant or Saul to be feared, we have sin, danger and evil customs to contend against. Men in business need friendship. Business men who in moments of trial and tribulation are about to give up, need friendship.

The greatest deed of the civil war, who did it? I should not say Grant at Vicksburg, nor Sheridan at Winchester, when he rode twenty miles and turned the tide of battle, but at Fredericksburg where the dying soldiers were piled up on the open ground crying for water while shot, grape and canister were flying all about them. A confederate soldier, Private Richard, behind the confederate bulwarks, was unable to withstand the appeal, and going to his general told him that the general told him he would be killed if he ventured out, but, filling his canteen he went out between the ramparts of the Federal soldiers on one hand and the confederate on the other, and bore the cooling draught to his fallen foe. What the world needs is a lasting friendship, and brotherly love. It is very hard for a man to love all his fellow men, but what man with the love of God in his heart cannot love his fellow men? Love is the secret of a father-men do not let us forget the love of Jesus Christ who died on the cross for us. His only gift that the whole world might be saved."

SIX YEARS FOR McKANE.

Coney Island Loses Its Boss.

New York, Feb. 19.—Shortly after ten o'clock this morning, and after the counsel for the defense and prosecution had made a few remarks, Justice Bartlett before passing sentence on John L. McKane said:

"I am not at liberty to disregard the recommendation of the jury.

"The penalty should not be severe enough to excite sympathy, but severe enough to express condemnation of the crimes which have been committed."

The sentence of the court that the former boss of Gravesend spend six years in Sing Sing prison was then given. The maximum penalty for the felony of which McKane was convicted is ten years in the State prison and a fine of $1,000, or both.

McKane flushed when sentenced, seated himself, leaned back, closed his eyes, clasped hands across his paunch and twirled his thumbs.

The crowd in the Court House in Brooklyn was enormous. The Gravesend delegation, when it found the door to the gallery locked, picked the lock and seated themselves in comfort.

WHAT IS A BARGAIN!

Answer—

A Gold Dollar for 50c Sure.

But they are very scarce just now. The nearest approach to them is the Clearance Sale Bargains now going off rapidly at Edsall's.

Our definition of a bargain, viz: Genuine, good, seasonable goods sold at a less price than their actual value, and that is what we are doing every day in order to reduce our stock prior to removal into our new quarters in the Boice new building.

We are aware that the word "Bargain" is a very much abused word, and is largely discounted by a majority of readers of "ads."

Yet it is hard to find a word as expressive to the advertiser as this word.

TRULY, there is much a thing as a genuine bargain, not withstanding, some will sell half cotton goods for all wool, and imperfect goods in large quantities, and inferior goods for best quality, and call them bargains. We don't want to scare anybody, but rather than have it so will say that when we advertise an article as cheap, or a bargain, we will prove it every time by a personal inspection of the goods. We repeat, emphatically, that you can find now plenty of real bargains at our Clearance Sale. New Spring goods in great variety.

WITH AN ACTOR.

Imogene Golden and Chas. Dyas Said to Have Eloped.

Charles Dyas, an old actor, who has lived in Somerville for the past five years, and who lost his wife about six weeks ago, eloped last Friday with an 18-year-old girl of that town. No trace of them has been found.

Dyas, his wife and one son, now about 21, went to Somerville to live about five years ago.

After the funeral Dyas began to act strangely and repeatedly tried to borrow a pistol, saying that he intended joining his dead wife, as it was misery to live without her.

One morning the man employed at the cemetery found him lying on his wife's grave, with only his night clothes on. He went to the Somerville railway depot last Thursday and checked a trunk to Trenton, saying his son's wife was going home. Dyas and Miss Imogene Golden, a sister-in-law of John Wallis, a business man, went to Prall's livery stable at 7 o'clock and hired a rig to take them to Bound Brook. The driver left them at the depot there, and nothing has been heard of them since.

A Preacher Threatened.

Rev. H. F. Thomas, a colored preacher of Rahway, has recently received a letter signed "The White Cap Delegation," ordering him to leave the city before the end of the month or take the consequences. The letter was written in red ink and in a disguised hand, and bore a skull and crossbones in the upper corner.

The Rev. Thomas is the Baptist minister whose congregation is in the Bell Avenue Church, Newark, demanded his resignation some time ago. He has since resided in East Rahway, and is booked to build up a congregation. The Rev. J. J. Franklin was doing like service among the Arkansas or Southern Negros. Jealousies were aroused.

Old Landmark Burned.

The covered bridge over the Raritan River at New Brunswick, an old landmark, was entirely destroyed by fire yesterday morning. The fire was started by the explosion of one of the lamps on the structure. The bridge was built seventy-eight years ago, and was on the direct road to Bound Brook. The bridge cost $40,000, and was insured for $15,000.

Virginia Beach, Via Washington and Norfolk.

One of the most pleasant and destined to be the popular route from the East to Virginia Beach is via the famous Royal Blue Line and steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co.

Passengers taking the Royal Blue Riverhead flyer leaving New York daily 11.30 p. m., and Philadelphia 1.35 a. m., make direct through connections, arriving at Virginia Beach 8.00 o'clock the following morning. A break in the journey of 2½ hours at Washington will prove a relief, and not the least attractive part of the trip, as the Capitol is within a stone's throw of the B. and O. station, and is always an interesting object, if only to look at its architectural beauties.

The steamers of the Norfolk & Washington Steamboat Co. are new, fitted up in the latest, and are models of the modern shipbuilder's art.

Pullman dining and parlor cars are attached to the Royal Blue express. Excellent meals are also served on the steamers.

For rates and further information, call on nearest B. & O. Agent, or address C. E. Shaw, General Eastern Passenger Agent, B. & O. R. R., 415 Broadway, New York.

In the City Court.

In the city court this morning Edward Bergen of Cottage place was arraigned to answer to the charge of trespassing on the railroad and with drawing a knife and threatening to kill Anthony Parsons, colored. Bergen pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 60 days in jail on the latter charge and 30 days on the other.

The next case called was that of Mr. and Mrs. Motley. Yesterday Mr. Motley sent for an officer to arrest his wife who he said had broken the windows and was smashing things in general. Mrs. Motley swore that it was her husband who was to blame and that he had come home drunk. Judge Coddington evened matters up by fining each $5.

Upon leaving the court-room the husband and wife declared that they did not want to see each other again, and that hereafter they would be two.

End of Summit's Wire Fence Case.

The last chapter in the famous wire-fence case of Summit was enacted Saturday morning in the Union county Court at Elizabeth, when David Reibel, of Summit, the man who it was finally discovered stole the wire fence of Mrs. Elizabeth Langton, was sentenced to pay a fine of $15. William Burke, the young man who urged State's evidence and disclosed the real culprit, whom he had assisted in taking the fence, had the indictment against him nolle prossed.

OFFICERS OF THE Y. M. C. A.

The State Committee Appoints Standing Committees.

The New Jersey State Committee of Young Men's Christian Associations met in the parlors of the Newark Association Friday afternoon to hold its annual meeting. Representatives from all over the State were present, Ekanah Drake presiding. The principal work was the election of officers and appointment of standing committees for another year.

Two Plainfielders were appointed on the standing committees, W. D. Murray was elected a member of the advisory committee and the committee on extension work. Mr. G. M. Thropp was also appointed on the committee on extension work, and on the committee on Associations.

William Adams and Paul Holmes Sentenced.

William Adams, of this city, who was convicted of assaulting Mr. Kinglish, some time ago, was sentenced to five months in the county jail Saturday. Paul Holmes, of this city, for the larceny of $19, will spend three months in the county jail.

Murder of a Recluse.

OTTAWA, O., Feb. 19.—One of the most atrocious crimes ever committed in the state of Ohio was perpetrated near this place during the night. Part of the story and has just been discovered. The victim was Rev. Joshua C. Briggs, who for some time past has been conducting revival meetings at Woodlawn, a small town 10 miles west of here. He stirred up quite a feeling among the better class of inhabitants of the town, much to the hatred of the lawbreakers. Last Monday night when the big storm raged in this section Briggs was some distance from the little church when the fiends took and killed. His throat was cut from ear to ear, and his breast was stabbed and his heart almost torn out. Briggs' watch and pocketbook were missing, and everything of value on his person was gone.

Peculiar and Fatal Accident.

KNOXVILLE, Feb. 19.—A peculiar accident occurred here by which Oliver Ledgerwood, a young lawyer, was killed and two others were slightly injured. A car upon wire cables crosses the Tennessee river just below the city and is operated by a stationary engine on the north bank of the river. A cable snapped and struck the car with such force as to partly demolish it, leaving the car suspended over the river 200 feet in the air. There were eight passengers in the car, but all except Ledgerwood escaped without serious injury. They were rescued by being let down by ropes into a boat on the river.

Double Murder at a Wedding.

RALEIGH, Feb. 19.—News comes of a double murder at a wedding in Alleghany county. Among those present was a Dana Slaughter of Carroll county, Va. Just as the wedding ceremony ended there was a row, during which Slaughter sprang at John Bare and stabbed him to the heart. Bare fell dead, and Slaughter made an attempt to again stab him, but the bride caught his hand. She was cut in the hand and arms. Slaughter dashed for the door, and on the way he stabbed Ed Lobb, killing him instantly, and then he fled. He was captured two miles away.

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The fourth game in the chess championship match between A. B. Hodges and Jackson W. Showalter resulted in a draw. The score now stands: Showalter, 2; Hodges, 0; drawn, 2.

TARIFF BILL DELAYED.

It Will Be Another Week Before the Committee Finish It.

CLEARING UP WEEK IN THE SENATE

No Stand Now Confined of a Quorum in the House and Speech Getting For His Supposition Sun—A Friendly Letter from Blaine to Ex Mayor In the White House.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The fight over the silver question will be renewed in the senate today, and Mr. Bland is confident that there will be a quorum on hand to order the previous question either today or Tuesday. Once the necessary quorum is obtained—and that is only a question of time, as the opponents of the measure have practically abandoned hope of defeating the bill—the bill will be brought to a vote. If need be, by a special order from the committee on rules, the speaker having promised a special rule if the emergency demands it.

On Wednesday the Joy-O'Neill contested election case will come up, and after it is disposed of the Cobb-Washington and the English-Hilborn case may follow. If not, the remainder of the week will probably be devoted to appropriation bills, the fortifications bill taking the first.

Senators Daniel, Caffery and White of California have given notice of speeches on the Hawaii resolution for this week, and it is probable that other senators will speak upon the subject before next Saturday. There will be an effort to have the resolution disposed of during the week, as there will also be to get Senator Stewart's bond resolution off the calendar. There will probably be some speeches on this question also.

Indeed the senate will make the week, as far as possible, a cleaning up week, so as to make way for the tariff debate. It will necessarily prevent the consideration of less important subjects when it shall once be begun. The special orders for the week include the consideration of the printing site, Russian thistle and McGarrahan bills.

Tariff Bill Delayed.

The Democratic members of the senate committee on finance have decided that they will not be able to report the tariff bill to the full committee tomorrow, as they had announced they would be, and one of the members of the subcommittee which has had the bill under consideration said that he could not attempt to say when the bill could be reported.

"I shall be very well satisfied," he said, "if the bill is in shape to be reported by the beginning of next week." The committee had been very hopeful just before the adjournment Friday night of being able to submit the measure tomorrow, but to get the bill in readiness for the full committee this week, but after putting in a long day Saturday on the clothing schedule it gave up almost exclusively to the bill the members found it still in chaotic condition, and they were compelled to admit to themselves, as they did later to outsiders inquirers, that the task they had set themselves had been impossible of accomplishment.

The reason for the postponement is discovered in the fact that the work of satisfying Democratic senators has been found very much greater than it also the construction of a bill that is sure to be accepted by the senate—an undertaking requiring many chances of pro, ises and all-ratious of the figures at first made.

When the subcommittee began their work, they had before them the draft of a tariff bill upon which it was believed it would be an easy matter to secure agreement, but this bill has been changed in some respects several times and has become so worn from the numerous changes that it has become necessary to destroy the original copy and replace it with a new one. There is still much difference of opinion on the part of senators on minor items, and many of the most important features of the bill are entirely unacted upon. Sugar is included in this list, and it looks as if the fate would be about the last question to be determined by the subcommittee.

Mrs. Harrison's Portrait.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—To the interesting collection of portraits which hang on the walls of the rooms of state in the White House will be added this week a fine picture of Mrs. President Harrison. The donors are the members of the Patriotic Order of Daughters of the American Revolution, who will meet here for their third annual congress this week. The days of the week, assembling on Washington's birthday. Most of the former mistresses of the White House have received similar recognition from the government by permission given that their portraits should be hung in the executive mansion. Mrs. Harrison is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, holding its highest office and presiding over its deliberations while she was in the White house. President Cleveland has written to the society signifying his willingness to accept the portrait. It was painted by Huntington of New York, is 5 feet by 7 and is regarded by critics as an unusually fine work. It represents Mrs. Harrison at the age of 30 years, attired in a brocaded gown of curious hue, with train held in the left hand.

HARRIS RECAPTURED.

The Man Who Held Up a Canal Boat Not Long Ago Lodged in Liberty Loog.

BUFFALO, Feb. 19.—Leroy Harris, the alleged postoffice swindler, who held up five United States officials with a big revolver on Saturday morning, walked out of the room and locked the door behind him, was captured at Clifton, Ont. The telegraph operator in the railroad station there saw a man answering the description of Harris come into the station and sit down. He sent a message to Assistant Chief of Police Griffiths, and Griffiths came down on a run and collared Harris.

Harris tried to pull his revolver, but Griffiths was too quick for him and got his revolver out first. Harris was taken to the lockup, and the Buffalo officials were notified. They went down to Clifton and got their man. Harris consented to come back without any difficulties. He is now in the Erie county jail.

When searched, but $12.05 in money and the revolver were found on him. There was not a scrap of paper. Harris gave this account of his escape to the officials, first saying that the idea of holding up the officials came to him suddenly and was immediately acted upon:

"When I got down stairs, I saw the people all running toward Seneca street, so I dropped off the car at the next door. I went up Washington street. I am not sure where I went after that. I lost my way, and about 3 o'clock I found myself in a saloon away out. Niagara street. I staid there for an hour and then walked to the Black Rock station, where I took a train for Niagara Falls. When I got there, I took the Cambridge car over to Clifton. I went into the station and was sitting there waiting for a train to go on further when the officer came and got me."

DOUBLE LYNCHING.

To Be Sure to Get the Right Negro the Mob Hanged Them Both.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 19.—Mrs. Annie Rucker, an aged and respected white woman, who lives in the lower part of Chilton county, was killed by a negro, named, to cover up his crime he fatally shot the old lady, who was found by neighbors shortly after in a half unconscious condition. She was then sufficiently recovered to tell her story and died a few hours later.

Enraged citizens formed posses and began pursuit of the brute. For several hours the chase was kept up. Finally two negroes were found together and were questioned carefully. The evidence showed that one or the other was the guilty man. Each denied his guilt. To be sure that the right man was punished for his crime both were strung up to a limb. After being lynched their bodies were riddled with bullets.

White Cappers Convicted.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 19.—The first conviction for white capping that has yet occurred in the state courts took place at Double Springs, Winston county. One night last April 10 men went to the house of John H. Hall, a farmer living in the county, carried him to the woods, and tying him to a tree flogged him until he was insensible. He recognized six of the men, four of whom were arrested. Charles Perry proved an alibi, and Dorris Hamner was convicted and fined $500. The others will be tried this week. The white cappers were Murphy's neighbors, and all are prominent parties.

Josiah Has No Daughter.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Times announces that the Rev. Mr. Hall of Cambridge, Mass., married James Fullarton Muirhead, the son of a well known Edinburgh justice of the peace, to Miss Helen Quincy, the daughter of Josiah Quincy of Boston, in Rome on Feb. 15.

BOSTON, Feb. 19.—The item in the London Times referring to a reported marriage at Rome of a daughter of Josiah Quincy of Boston to a son of an Edinburgh justice of the peace must be erroneous. Josiah Quincy of Boston is an unmarried man.

DEFIANT ANARCHISTS.

Fiery Speeches Made at the Autonomie Club Meeting.

URGED TO IMITATE VAILLANT.

House of Lords Represented at a Popular Meeting in Trafalgar Square — Henry, the Paris Bomb Thrower, Betrays Some of His Fellow Conspirators.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Crowds of curious persons repaired to Greenwich park, packed the terrace in front of the celebrated observatory and filled all the other elevated portions of this popular resort for Londoners from which a pleasant or extensive and interesting a view over the river. Stakes dotted the ground where portions of the dynamited body of the anarchist Bourdin had been found. All of these stakes were in line with the spot where the body was discovered.

At the postmortem examination a dozen pieces of metal similar in their contents to the bombs used by Bourdin were produced. The widely announced meeting of the Autonomists, which the congress of the International Workers' group, was attended by only 15 persons. Fourteen of these were foreigners. The speakers who had been announced to address the meeting did not appear.

Finally, after a wait of two hours, Gibson Bowles, the Conservative group arrived and made a speech, in the course of which he urged individual effort in righting the wrongs they complained of, and he held up "Vaillant, Ellias and other martyrs" as worthy of his hearers' emulation. Hundreds, he said, were ready to sacrifice their lives in the great cause. He himself was perfectly prepared to do so. They had nothing to live for, but were simply the slaves of the capitalists. Speeches, he added, were useless, and physical force was necessary.

Bombs Versus Master Guns.

When the government and Mr. Asquith, he continued, abandoned making maxim guns for use against the people, the latter would relinquish the manufacture of dynamite bombs. The speaker advised workers to read books upon chemicals, which they would find to the public libraries, and to learn the use of these chemicals.

Other speeches similar in tone, but in foreign languages, were made to the audience, which ultimately numbered 80 persons. These 80 made up in enthusiasm for the smallness of the gathering and wildly cheered at every opportunity the sentiments of their leaders.

Many detectives in citizens' clothing were present and scattered in all parts of the meeting place. This may have had its good effect, for outside of the threatening language the meeting in every way was an orderly one.

Foreign arrivals are being vigorously watched by the police at all the channel ports. Four thousand persons assembled in Trafalgar square in answer to a call for a manifestation against the house of lords for destroying the clauses in the parish councils bill, or local government bill, which called for the reformation of the London vestries. The meeting, with much show of feeling, adopted resolutions condemning the house of lords for its action in this matter.

The speakers, who were vociferously cheered time and again in the course of their remarks, were Joseph Arch, Dr. Charles E. D. Tanner, the Irish Nationalist; W. H. Wilson, Dadabhai Naoroji, the well known Bombay merchant, and five other members of the house of commons.

Joseph Arch said that Lord Salisbury had done a wonderful service when he had made the pope wherewith to hang the lords and put the scare in their opponents' heads. The meeting also adopted resolutions declaring the house of lords to be a mischievous and useless institution and demanding that it should be abolished forthwith.

The Bloodthirsty Paris Bomb Thrower.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—A bomb similar in its composition to that used by Vaillant and Henry was found on the staircase of the police station in the Rue du Temple, one of the busiest and hardest streets of the city, which leads to the Hotel de Ville. In this street is the Marche du Temple, which occupies the site of the Tour du Temple, which during the revolution was used as a prison of the royal family.

Anarchist Henry has made a further confession to the police, and as a result of his mother's house was searched. The police found much chemical apparatus and a number of letters and photographs, including a group of 20 anarchists. All of these things will prove valuable to the police in their efforts to arrest all the other anarchists who were implicated in the plot with Henry.

Henry also divulged the names of several of his anarchist friends, and their arrests are expected to take place in a short time.

When Henry was confronted with those who had helped to capture him, his attitude was characteristic.

M. Echaine of the Western Railway company said that when about to seize Henry the fugitive turned and fired point blank at him.

"Look!" added M. Etienne, showing his waistcoat pierced by a bullet. "Had Henry fired a trifle higher, I should have received the bullet in my chest."

Henry, interrupting, said, "Well, what harm would there have been in it?"

M. Echaine (white from anger)—Why, you wretch, have killed me.

Henry—Well, wait then!

M. Echaine—You bloodthirsty scoundrel!

Henry—I regret that the revolver was not in my quality. I should have felt great satisfaction at being confronted with you in the next world—living, and you a corpse.

Avengers of Pallas.

BARCELONA, Feb. 19.—Seven of the leading anarchists who have been arrested have confessed that they were accomplices in the attempt upon the life of the civil governor. The attempt, they said, was an act of vengeance for the death of Pallas. They declared that their comrades who have not been arrested would avenge them.

Gas and Water From One Well.

MORRISON, Colo., Feb. 19.—A flowing natural gas well has been struck on a ranch a few miles north of here at a depth of 700 feet when boring an artesian well. The gas came up with such force as to throw water 40 feet into the air.

LEO SAYS MASS.

The Close of the Pope's Jubilee Year Observed With Great Magnificence.

ROME, Feb. 19.—The closing ceremony in connection with Pope Leo XIII's jubilee year consisted of a mass celebrated by him in St. Peter's in grand state, followed by the "Te Deum." It is estimated that 50,000 people were present.

The mass was celebrated at the papal altar. Leo was borne into the basilica in the sedia gestatoria. He was preceded by a cortege of cardinals and bishops. His entrance was followed by the enthusiastic cheering of the immense multitude, among which were many distinguished foreigners, diplomats, Roman nobles, Knights of Malta and thousands of deputations. The entrance of the pope into the church was announced from the dome by a musical blast from the silver trumpets.

The interior of the vast basilica was elaborately decorated with red and gold hangings, and there were four special triblunes, on which stands erected, beside the altar for the diplomatic corps, the Roman aristocracy and the heads of the different religious orders.

At the conclusion of the mass Leo intoned the "Te Deum," which was chanted by the whole congregation. The pope then mounted himself in the sedia and with the same on his head blessed the audience. He then retired into the chapel amid prolonged cheering.

The pope appeared considerably improved in health and intoned in a strong voice. At night the facades of St. Peter's and other churches, all the Catholic institutions and a number of private houses were brilliantly illuminated. The pope's physicians say that he is much better, but they have advised him not to overexert himself.

TORE DOWN THE FLAG.

A Worship Appears and Makes Things Very Interesting For the Rebels.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—News comes by the brig Galilee of a revolution on the island of Raiatea, in the Society group, which was nipped in the bud by the French colonial government. Raiatea was seized about two years ago by the French and heavy duties were placed on the export of copra and other products. Under this rule wealthy French traders have been made, and a strong party was formed in opposition to the government.

The malcontents took the formal opening of the new French town hall as an excuse for making a demonstration. They decided to insult the French flag. Lots were drawn to see who should perform the deed, and it fell to a wealthy trader.

He was suspected of weakening, so when the day arrived he was fortified with brandy. On the 14th day of the month ceremonies. There was a great crowd at the hoisting of the French colors. Soon after the raising of the flag, and amid the cheering of the town hall they tore down the flag and publicly insulted it. Then they took the flag and hid it. The French authorities raised the news by steam launch to Papeete, and in three days a war vessel lay off the harbor.

Five hours was given for the insurgents to deliver up the flag and their leaders or submit to bombardment. They weakened, and the merchant was taken away in irons to the capital there tried and convicted and condemned. He was taken to New Caledonia, where he has probably been shot for his offense.

Grim Humor by a Suicide.

TO THE CORONER—3:15 p. m., Feb. 17.—In two hours I shall be dead, shot through the head with a big charge of lead no poetry intended, and I hope no mourners. Have no kindred come. Disease and poverty the cause. However, no one knows I am in a destitute condition, as I have kept it from them. Please bake, bury or send my carcass to the phosphate factory, just as the humor strikes you. I'm tired, but not hungry, but I know better to cancel all my engagements with Mr. Trouble and Mr. Misery. Yours respectfully,

CHARLES D. FRENCH.

Brutal Highway Robbery.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 19.—A messenger from Potowomut, Kent county, has brought the story of a brutal highway robbery and assault committed there. An elderly farmer named Smithers had just reached one of the most lonely sections of the road when two men sprang from the woods, robbed him of nearly $50 in money and a gold watch and then beat him unmercifully. Smithers was found lying in the snow in a semi-unconscious condition and terribly bruised. There is no clew to the thieves.

Rescue Work at the Gaylord Mine.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 19.—The rescuing party at the Gaylord mine has worked steadily and has succeeded in making rapid progress. The work of digging and timbering is being pushed with the greatest possible vigor. Superintendent Davis, who is in charge of the afternoon shift, is of the opinion that if no unforeseen obstacle intervenes some if not all of the men will be found dead or alive within the next 48 hours.

Friend of Lincoln Dead.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19.—Dr. Bevel Wharton English, aged 84, a native of Kentucky, died of old age. Dr. English served three terms in the Illinois state legislature with Abraham Lincoln, a close friend of Abraham Lincoln, the men rooming together. Shortly before Lincoln was chosen president Dr. English was instrumental in preventing a duel between him and General Shields.

Young Linder Dead.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 19.—A. H. Linder, the young Harvard student who sustained injuries in a friendly sparring match last Tuesday, died Sunday in his college room in Hastings hall. A medical examination will be made today in the interests of the profession, as this is one of the strongest cases on record.

For a Populist Utopia.

DENVER, Feb. 19.—Some of the prominent Populists of the state, including Irving the game warden, the state engineer and the deputy fish commissioner, have conceived the idea of establishing a co-operative colony in the Ute reservation, in the northwestern part of the state, when it is opened for settlement.

NICTHEROY IS OFF RIO.

Peixoto's Dynamite Thrower Reaches Her Destination.

BIG SEA FIGHT EXPECTED NOW.

The Formidable Cruiser Arrives at Rio Alone and Anchors Just Outside the Bay. The Rest of the Fleet Supposed to Be Close Behind Her—Plan of Attack.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 19.—The long looked for dynamite cruiser Nictheroy, bought and equipped for the Brazilian government, is now at anchor off the port. She did not undertake to enter the bay, but anchored just outside.

It was expected that when she appeared President Peixoto's entire navy fleet would be with her—the America and the Piranha (Destroyer), purchased and fitted out in New York, and the torpedo boats procured in England and Germany. But the Nictheroy came alone.

It is presumed, however, that the rest of the fleet is on the way and probably is not far behind.

Big Naval Fight Expected.

That long looked for contest between the rebel guns and the famous pneumatic dynamite rifle with the Nictheroy's mission seems now to be nearer realization than ever before. Much disappointment has been expressed by the friends of President Peixoto's government that the Nictheroy did not immediately attack the rebel ships upon her arrival in Brazil from New York, and many reasons have been suggested for her long inaction.

One of these reasons was that she had been equipped in such a hurry here that several important parts of her armament had been overlooked; that she was short of the proper kind of ammunition and that her big gun would not work with sufficient precision to warrant meeting the enemy.

Again, it was ascertained that the difficulty of obtaining a fighting crew for her was in a great measure responsible for her inactivity, and some went so far as to say that it was really never intended that the Nictheroy should attack the Aquidaban or Republica. These warships were so valuable to Brazil, it was said, that President Peixoto was unwilling to have them sunk by the Nictheroy and intended her dynamite should be reserved for vessels of a cheaper grade.

Later reports indicated that the vessel had received all repairs that were necessary, and that a fighting crew had been gotten together, and the arrival of the vessel off Rio harbor would seem to indicate that she is now ready for business.

The Plan of Action.

The original plan of campaign as laid down for the Nictheroy was about as follows:

She was to appear off Rio harbor as soon as possible, and there, with the aid of the loyal forts at the entrance, pen the rebel fleet in like rats in a trap. Entering in the shelter of these forts, she was careful to get the range of the rebel Fort Villegaignon and then proceed to blow it into ruins with her 450 pound charge of dynamite. When this fort was silenced, the Nictheroy was to come inside the harbor, anchor under the shelter of its rifled walls and from there shell the rebel fleet until they cried for quarter.

It may be that with a commandant of undoubted loyalty and vigilance in the fort the rebels will not dare to run the gantlet again and that the Nictheroy will now begin to carry out the programme already outlined.

Heartless Burglars.

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., Feb. 19.—Night Operator and Watchman Vaile was shot at the freight depot by one of three masked men who were trying to enter the entrance. Then at the point of a revolver they made him walk six miles toward Springfield. They finally released him and bade him return and tell the police that they were a good job for them. Vaile reached here almost exhausted from loss of blood. There is no clew to his assailants.

WOMAN AND HOME.

HOME WHERE HUSBAND AND WIFE ARE ALWAYS LOVERS.

Wisdom and Sleeplessness—"Not at Home." Kid Biting Children—Closely Shaved Beasts—Lamps Require Much Care—Dieting With the Queen.

Spoken words of love were abundant during the honeymoth. They come easily from the heart and lips. As time wears on this fountain of love seems to dry up; the tender words, loving words and kind caress seem to be forgotten.

Not that husbands cease to love their wives—they would work their fingers to the bone for the mother of their children—but the honeymoon is over, cares press hard and close, and they forget the kiss they used to give, or that a word or look of praise would be of untold value to the weary wife. She has had her petty grievances and needs the tender caress more now than when there were no petty cares to vex her. So "before to be crossed." Be gruff to the world if necessary, be gruff anywhere, but leave it outside the threshold of home.

Let the home be a place where considerations for each other is never outgrown. If your wife's work has been hard, it will cheer her to know you appreciate her efforts to make home attractive. You had not come for her when you were winning her; don't drop it now; the mere mention of that name will bring a glow to her cheek and a light to her eye.

You think perhaps I should be all content. Yet I am not well the loving place I hold With in your life, and so you do not dream How much I long to hear the story told.

It has for a moment, husbands and wives, would mean so much to you if death should snatch your home and henceforth one "must was alone. The cery would rise to your lips, "Why did I not oftener speak of my love?"

It isn't the things you've done, dear, But the things you have undone, That give you the bit of a heartache At the end of the run.

I remember a wife saying to me, "My husband never notices the things which I do, nor my cooking; it's the failures and the things that, for lack of strength, I have undone, which attract his attention that both comment."

Some of us are prone to become expressions of trust without reserve, shyness or [illegible] ridiculed and where hearts and be nurse tender. When they cease to be true, [illegible] home no longer. It may still [illegible] or, but it is like a hollow mockery.

The same would be so precious that a man could not [illegible] one spot is ever open to welcome him back member of the household like a wife's love. All must be thoughtful, considerate and kind. It is the united efforts of all that make home the dearest spot on earth.

I have one neighbors a man and wife who have lived together 55 years, and he tells me, "Wife and I have never had a quarrel—never once the day I promised to love and cherish her." It is beautiful to see an aged, white-haired couple loving and trusting each other as a flower bordered walk from May to December. The autumn days are as lovely as early blossoms. Each in their time have their beauty.—Minneapolis Housekeeper.

Women and Sleeplessness.

"What is the most common complaint among women to melancholia?" repeated the doctor. "Well, a good many of them complain of sleeplessness. Of course, that is sometimes an accompaniment of real disease, but there are numerous cases of it in my experience where it is a separate and distinct ill."

"How do I treat it? Oh, I usually begin by asking questions. I ask my patients whether they have unusual worries when they lie awake o' nights to think over. I inquire if they make a practice of going to exciting plays or read exciting books before they seek their downy couches. And you have no idea how many women regard an evening's entertainment as a miserable failure unless it is full of excitement. They go to see morbid plays or they read exciting books all evening and come to me the next morning to know why they don't sleep! Why, excitement is as much a foe to slumber as a guilty conscience is.

"Then I find out what kind of physical food they take before going to bed—whether it is a harmless cracker or two or a rest disturbing Welsh rabbit or fried oysters. Of course, if they persist in foolish evening feasts, whether material or literary, I can't do anything with them. But if they assure me that nothing more thrilling than Maria Edgeworth's tales and nothing more indigestible than graham crackers form their bedtime banquets, I am willing to take them in hand.

"Tell them to take a very hot bath, or at least a hot footbath, before going to bed. That will almost invariably produce the most delightful drowsy sensations. Then I bid them open wide their windows, for fresh air is a great aid to healthy slumber. Then with them they're safe also I charge them not to let their minds think of anything connected with the daily routine. I try to make them picture to themselves long, green stretches of prairie, with the grass slightly in bloom, or the calm of the quiet sea. If only they can get firmly before their minds some quiet, soothing image, they are saved and will be asleep before they know it.

"Drugs? Oh, I believe in mind cure for most women's insomnia."—Exchange.

"Not at Home."

The little phrase "not at home," used in the conventional sense, simply means that one is not at liberty to receive her friends or acquaintances. It does not mean that she is out of the house, and it is not so understood by people accustomed to society. When the maid bars the door to a caller with the information that the lady is "engaged" she cannot come down, she means unless she is a very sensible lady indeed, is apt to feel that she has had a rebuff. "I'll not take the trouble to go to her house again very soon," she thinks, and probably says, as she walks disappointedly away.

Of course if the phrase "not at home" is grudgingly taken and regarded as a falsehood by the utterer and by the person who hears it, it lowers the moral tone of both. But this is not what is intended when it is used. The gentlewoman who is "not at home" is understood simply to be "not at home to visitors," and thus she has thrown up a fortification for the day around the poem she is writing or the picture she is painting, the child she is nursing, the gown she is making or the dessert she is concocting. "Mrs. —— will not be at home until after 3 or 4 p. m." is merely a variation of the form, signifying at what hour Mrs. —— will be disengaged.

The only really needful thing in the matter is to have everybody understand and adopt what a few have adopted and found convenient and courteous—a conventional phrase to indicate that the occupations of the house cannot be thrown over for the pleasure of a conversation with friends who may find another occasion for calling.—A multitude of overwearied women, I ruptured until serious pursuits become impossible and nerves and health break down, this little phrase, if accepted as coin current, would prove a boon.—Harper's Bazar.

Nail Biting Children.

Every mother who has attempted to combat nail biting in her child will be interested in the recent investigations upon the subject by a distinguished French physician. He recognizes it as a disease and calls it onychophagy. Further, he finds it an inherited affection, and can, too, that is an unfailing evidence of latent nervous degeneration. The percentage of girls so afflicted is much larger than that of boys, in one mixed school examined, the proportion being 52 per cent for the former and 20 per cent for the latter.

The usual remedies suggested of local applications or tying the hands he pronounces useless. Looking upon the disease as a nervous disorder, he advocates the careful and continuous treatment that is necessary in such affections—great attention to food, exercise, sleeping habits, ventilation and all hygienic conditions that will tend to build up and strengthen the nervous system of the child.

This will probably remove the cause, but not the habit, for which he employs his own treatment, as follows: "1. To create a counter irritant, and thus to transform by outward suggestion the unconscious act into a conscious one. 2. To create a counter automatic impulse. 3. To strengthen the resolution of the child." He adds to these the treatment by suggestion while in hypnotic sleep.

The results of this investigation have been received with much interest everywhere, and a careful study is being made of the new disease.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Closely Shaved Beasts.

Do you purchase your gowns ready made? and, if so, have you ever noticed the peculiar trick of the seamstress in shaving down the seams? They are trimmed as closely as if women never grew fat and garments were stretched on clothes pins. We women are long suffering creatures. We grumble among ourselves over trade idiosyncrasies, read the riot act to a chosen few, but when we meet the people concerned we proclaim our woes we are as still as mice.

I saw a woman pay down the sum of $20 for a fall-length costume, and she would never a word about this defect. Once she was outside, however, she commenced to fret.

"I am dreadfully afraid I have bisulked. I know that woman's gown was not going to allow for shrinkage. Oh, dear! why didn't I speak when I had the chance? Good mind to go back. No, I won't. I shouldn't get a bit of satisfaction," and so on.

The strangest part of the whole business of women's carelessness in this direction lies in the fact that if each shopper would take a stand for reform we should soon have material and to spare. One does not want bulk, it simply confuses. How quickly six complaints a day would travel to the ears of those responsible for defects, and how soon we would note the deference paid by merchants to our wants and desires! —Philadelphia Inquirer.

Lamps Require Much Care.

The wise man who made the interesting remark that it required a gentlewoman to make a drinkable cup of coffee might have gone on and claimed that it required a patient to keep the lamps in order. The ordinary servant cannot do it. She regards anything beyond filling the oil tank as a work of supererogation. Consequently such lamps are never properly kept by other people, but she always does that with the minutest, which is the worst possible method.

The lamps should be filled with clean oil each day. The wicks should be trimmed with the sharp edge of a visiting card or with a pocket knife, the rubbish and burnt part of the wick. This last method is a little troublesome, but it removes the charred part evenly. Wicks need for a long time, even when they do not become very short, grow thick and coarse and give out a disagreeable odor. They should be renewed once a month at least. In duplex burners one wick should be trimmed in the opposite direction from the other. Round wicks should be trimmed toward the center.

Burners should be wiped free from bits of charred wick and drops of oil every day. Every now and then they should be boiled in strong soapsuds, to make them perfectly clean. When they have been used a long time, they need replacing.—Hardware.

Dining With the Queen does not seem to be an exhilarating function. A woman who has been there describes the routine, which never varies. The visitor is conducted immediately to her room. There she remains until a quarter of an hour before dinner, which is set at 8:45. Punctually at that minute the queen enters, and she company proceeds to the oak room, where dinner is served. There is no general conversation. If the queen and her family speak together, it is in undertones. After dinner the queen addresses one lady briefly and retires.

A young attache sent from a foreign court and thus entertained gives a still more gloomy view of the queen's hospitality. For three hours previous he was confined to his room, not daring to walk through the corridors. At the residences before dinner no one spoke to him. At dinner two guests conversed across his shoulders without noticing him. After dinner no one addressed him. The next morning, expecting a special interview, he was ushered into the presence of a private secretary and in a few words curtly dismissed. He did not bang the castle doors as he left, but he was a red hot Socialist all the way to town.—Pall Mall Budget.

A Girl's Best Studies.

I feel convinced, and this feeling is based upon careful inquiry, writes Edward W. Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal, that four principal branches of study, with one or two of the arts, are sufficient for a healthful absorption by any girl of average mental capacity. And if I were asked to outline these particular studies they would consist, First, of a thorough English course covering analysis, grammar, composition and rhetoric; second, history; third, literature, and fourth, mathematics. And add to these, as accomplishments, the study of music first, and art second, and a girl has a sufficient course of study before her, with a due regard for her physical welfare. Where other branches of study are deemed best or necessary, it is wiser to substitute rather than add.

Afraid to Trust a Safety Vault.

There is a lady of great wealth and keen business instincts in Allegheny City who has one striking peculiarity. She is continually haunted by a dread of burglars, amounting almost to a monomania. Jewels of great price and cash of large amounts she at times has with her. She will trust none of her personal property away from her person. A specially capacious pocket has been manufactured for her use, and this is always worn beneath her dress. Its contents in paper, diamonds and other precious stones seldom aggregate less than $50,000. Yet nothing and no friend or relative can persuade her that these things are safe if suspended from her waist-than in a bank, strong box or deposit vault.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Mother.

Mother does the most and gets the least pay.

From the mother's pulpit is preached the shortest sermons, but they do the most good.

If there is but one Christian in the family, let that one be the mother.

Who first taught us to say "Our Father?" Mother.

The richest palace without a mother's love is barren.

A mother's love in the home is what sunshine is to the earth.—Rev. Dr. Rockefeller in Ram's Horn.

What Cured Her.

A very beautiful society woman has for years indulged herself in the reprehensible trick of biting her nails. After a time she suddenly cured herself to the surprise of all her friends. One of them dared ask how the reform was brought about. "To tell you the truth," was the answer, "I paid $5 to have my hands manicured one day, and I could not bring myself to destroy his work, until the habit lapsed with the passage of time."—New York Mail and Express.

The Duchess of Sutherland.

The young Duchess of Sutherland is the only literary lady entitled to be called "Your Grace" in Great Britain. When a child, Lady Millicent St. Clair Erskine, as she then was, was an active contributor to boys' writing competitions in various young people's periodicals. Shortly after her marriage she went on a yachting tour, and on her return published a volume of travels, "How I Went Round the World in My Twentieth Year."—London Tit-Bits.

Perfected Necks.

Physical culture enthusiasts claim that a thin throat can be developed into the firm, round column every woman desires by regular exercise. The fingers are pressed lightly upon the muscles at the front of the throat and the head thrown forward, the pressure of the fingers serving the same purpose that dumbbells do to exercise of the arms and chest. The process is repeated backwards and sideways.—Philadelphia Call.

Exercise.

Mothers should encourage their daughters to do a few Swedish exercises every morning. The Princess of Wales insisted on her daughters practicing these for a quarter of an hour every morning after they jumped out of bed, even when the girls were living on board their father's yacht. Their figures are graceful, and although Princess Maud is very short she is beautifully proportioned.—London Sun.

A Good Furniture Polish.

A good furniture polish may be made by putting equal parts of spirits of wine, vinegar and olive oil in a large bottle and shaking thoroughly every day for a week, when it will be ready for use. This polish should be applied to the furniture with a soft woolen cloth and thoroughly rubbed in. If the furniture is very dirty it may be rubbed clean with a woolen cloth dipped in kerosene.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Princess Helen.

Princess Helen of Orleans is golden haired, blue-eyed, tall and very lovely. She is a magnificent equestrienne and is a familiar figure on many an English hunting field with her favorite horse, Chocolat. She swims like a fish, shoots with unerring aim and is more skilful with the needle and foils—all this without sacrificing any of her dainty femininity or Parisian elegance. —London World.

To Clean a White Shawl.

A white woolen shawl or cape which has been soiled, but not spotted, may be cleansed by putting flour into a large pan and rubbing it very thoroughly into the article to be cleansed. Use plenty of flour and rub thoroughly, but gently. Then take it out of doors and shake till the flour is all out. It will take some time, but leaves the article clean.—Exchange.

How They Began.

Sarah Bernhardt was a dressmaker's apprentice, Adelaide Neilson began life as a child's nurse. Miss Braddon, the novelist, was a utility actress in the provinces. Charlotte Cushman was the daughter of poor parents, and the best contralto this country ever had up to a dozen years ago was a washerwoman's daughter up in Maine.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Dusting.

Don't take the duster and move the dust from the piano to the table, and the dust of the piano and the table to the desk, carrying the accumulation from one piece to another around the room. The girl who does this finally tucks the dust behind the bookcase. Shake the duster to free it from the dust of each single piece.—Chicago Times.

An Ingenious Device.

An ingenious girl who has been troubled by the persistency with which a certain hat, trimmed heavily on one side, would slide over that ear, has invented an antidote, as it were. She sewed weights on the opposite side of the crown to preserve the balance and had no bother thereafter.—Exchange.

The Home of Mary Lyon.

The home of Mary Lyon, near Ashfield, Mass., where she was born in 1797, is owned by the Mount Holyoke association. The house is in ruins. There is an acre of land. The Holyoke students and teachers make pilgrimages to it and keep it in order.

Italian girls make the best house servants, writes a lady who should know. They are said to be obliging, friendly and obedient, and to lack that peculiar habit of some servants—a habit of changing from places to places for little or no cause.

Health is wealth; health is beauty; health is the birthright of every child. The girl with a cool head, warm heart, faithful stomach, sound teeth and self acting lungs, liver and limbs is richer and bonnier than many royal princesses.

When water is spilled on a carpet and you do not wish it to leave a mark, dab the place well with dry cloths till all moisture is absorbed, changing the surface of the cloth each time.

The boy who is compelled to sleep in a hot attic, while the cool bedroom remains closed, awaiting no expected visitor, will not value his home.

A Smart Servant.

The other day a man of gentlemanly appearance called at a house in a well known suburb of a provincial town. In answer to his knock the door was opened by a page.

"Is Mr. F.'lo?" said the gentleman.

"He's just gone out, sir."

"Is Mrs. F. at home?"

"No, sir; she went out with master."

"Dear me, how unfortunate! I wanted particularly to see one of them. Can I leave a note?"

"Oh, yes, sir. Come in, please," replied the girl, ushering the visitor into the dining room. But, instead of leaving him alone she rang for another servant, whom she desired to bring writing materials.

The gentleman wrote his note, inclosed it in an envelope, addressed it and left it on the table.

This being done, he departed with a profusion of thanks to the maid, who escorted him to the door.

On returning home Mr. F. found the note awaiting him. It ran thus:

"Your servant is no fool!"

This compliment was fully justified by a paragraph in the next day's paper giving an account of the plunder of a neighboring mansion by a similar visitor.—Tit-Bits.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

AN ADJOURNED MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

All the Old Licenses to Sell Liquor Renewed, but no New Ones Granted.—"The News" Replaced on the List of Official Papers.—Other Matters.

All the Councilmen were present at last night's meeting of the City Common Council, as follows: Messrs. Bird, Dumont, Erickson, Fisk, Frantz, Frost, Ginna, Millington, See, Stockton, and Westphal.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

PETITIONS.

From C. R. Harris and others for an electric light on Division street. Referred to the Committee on Lights.

From Mr. Bond and others for crosswalks at the intersection of East Front and Richmond streets. Referred to the Street Committee, with power.

From Thorpe & Irvin for permission to place an 18 foot sign across the sidewalk in front of their place on Watchung avenue. Referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings. Another petition was received from the same firm asking permission to make improvements to their yard, such as placing a tin roof over the shed in which lumber was stored. Referred to the same committee with power.

A communication was received from the Medical Association embodying a resolution adopted by the association favoring the adoption of a sewerage system by the city.

The Ministers' Association, members of Monroe Avenue chapel, and Hope chapel petitioned Council not to grant licenses at all; but if they did, then not to grant any new licenses, and especially not to grant any licenses west of Plainfield avenue.

The trade of land known as the Plummer property, on Prospect avenue, which had been assessed more than once through an error, was ordered taken from the Assessor's books as remaining unpaid.

On motion the regular order of business was dispensed with and the report of the Committee on Licenses taken up.

LICENSES.

The following license applications were granted unanimously to keep inns and taverns:

Fred. Caspar, at 142 and 144 East Front street.

Daniel J. Crowley, at 115 East Front street.

Jacob Blumm, at 129 Somerset street.

Wallace V. Miller, at 111 to 119 North avenue.

John E. Beerbower, at the corner of Park avenue and Second street.

John J. Goff, at the corner of Liberty and West Third street.

The following were granted licenses to sell liquors, by a vote of 16 to 1, Mr. Frost alone voting "no." He afterwards changed his vote to "aye," upon learning that a license to keep an inn and tavern did not carry with it the right to sell liquor.

Mr. Frost strenously opposed the granting of any liquor licenses, claiming that the city ought not to be a partner in the rum business. He preferred free rum to that.

Frank Linke was granted a wholesale license by the vote of 16 to one, and the following saloon licenses were granted by the same vote, Mr. Frost alone voting in the negative:

John Rafferty, on Park avenue.

James Connealy, on Park avenue.

E. P. Thorn, on Park avenue.

Alex. Findley, on East Second street.

John J. Sullivan was granted a saloon license by the following vote:

Yea—Messrs. Bird, Dumont, Erickson, Frazee, Fisk, Millington, See, and Westphal.—8. No—Messrs. Frost, Ginna and Stockton.—3.

Mr. Dumont at this junction offered a resolution that no further applications for liquor licenses be granted for this year. This was afterwards withdrawn in view of objections from Councilmen Frazee and Westphal, each upon different ground.

The liquor applications of James Hanson, M. F. Watson and W. H. Lee were rejected, as it was decided to grant no new licenses.

EFFORTS OF CONSTITUTED.

The regular business was then resumed.

Mr. Dumont, of the Finance Committee, reported back the bond of Constable Moffet, and it was ordered recorded.

The $3,000 required by the Public Library Directors to maintain the library and reading room was ordered embodied in the tax budget.

Mr. Dumont said he had received propositions from Tax Collector Johnson and from Vincent W. Nash submitting the rate at which they would collect delinquent taxes. Each agreed to collect 1893 taxes for three per cent., and all other back taxes for five per cent. Mr. Nash's proposition was accepted and he was appointed delinquent tax collector for the ensuing year.

As James Bailey had refused to furnish horses for the fire department any longer, Mr. Erickson offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the Committee on Fire and Buildings to buy another horse and make such changes as they deem necessary in order to mate the horses. The committee was also authorized to employ two drivers.

Mr. Bird, of the Street Committee, reported that the committee had considered the petition of the property owners on West Front street to re-establish a street line. The committee had had a conference with the property owners and it had been agreed to change the city line in accordance with the street as it now is. An ordinance was passed on its first and second readings re-establishing the line. The ordinance was ordered engrossed and advertised.

Mr. Fisk stated that the Street Committee was not ready to report on the street railway petition for a franchise to Park. A meeting had been held of the Street Committee and the railway representative, and a letter had been sent to the company submitting the propositions of the committee. In which it was stated that the committee felt that a franchise through a principal street of a city like Plainfield was a great value to the company procuring it, and should not be granted unless the city receives something in return.

First.—The committee would be willing to grant a franchise under the following conditions:

First.—From Grant avenue on West Front street, through said West Front street to the city line at Dunellen. The track to be a single track, laid in the centre centre of the street, with necessary switches and turnouts, no turnout shall be more than 150 feet in length nor within 500 feet of any other turnout on the street; and every turnout shall be placed only on each side of the middle line of the street.

Second.—The company shall macadamize said West Front street from curb to curb, and for a depth of not less than four inches in a thorough workmanlike manner, to the entire satisfaction of the Committee on Streets; and to pave for a width of 16 inches on each side of each rail, with stone blocks of first quality vitrite paving brick, all to be laid in the best manner and to be properly graded. The Company to do all necessary grading, to conform to the City Ordinances, at its own expense.

Third.—That, if at any time, the Common Council may deem it expedient to the best interests of the city to substitute asphalt, brick, granite or any other pavement, in lieu of that hereby specified, then, and in that case, the Plainfield Street Railway Company shall pay four-fifths of said pavement that shall be laid between its tracks, and for a distance of 18 inches on each side thereof.

Fourth.—The rail to be used shall be such as is known as side-bearing rail, similar to that now in use by said Railway, and not less than 66 pounds the yard, as specified in Section V of the original Ordinance. The Company must agree to keep in repair, to the satisfaction of the Committee on Streets, the road bed between the tracks and for 18 inches outside, as specified in Section III of the original Ordinance.

The Committee are willing to concede the use of wooden poles, but the Company must agree to keep them well painted and in good order. The trolley wire must be properly guarded, so as to prevent other wires from coming in contact therewith.

Section XV of the original Ordinance should be amended, so that, after a period of say, three years, the Company should pay to the City in lieu of license fee a certain percentage of gross earnings, say three per cent.

An ordinance was passed on its first and second readings repealing three other ordinance that were now on the ordinance book authorizing the macadamizing of East Fourth street, Woodland avenue and West Third street. As the necessary money had not been contributed by the property owners the work had never been done.

Mr. Fisk offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing that the city would not macadamize any streets this year unless the amount of the expenses was subscribed by the property-owners.

A resolution, offered by Mr. Fisk, was unanimously adopted, placing THE DAILY FIELD EVENING NEWS on the list of official papers, as hitherto.

Motions to reconsider the vote on the license applications of James Hanson, M. F. Watson and W. H. Lee were lost.

Council adjourned.

THE McALL AUXILIARY.

A Public Meeting to be Held at the Crescent Avenue Chapel.

The McAll Auxiliary will hold a public meeting in the Crescent Avenue Chapel, to-morrow afternoon, Feb. 21st, at three o'clock, which promises to be of unusual interest as the Rev. Charles E. Greig, M. A., of Paris, the successor of the late Dr. McAll and director of the mission, will deliver an address. All interested in the grand work which is being carried on in France, are most cordially invited.

A Pleasant Surprise.

A very pleasant surprise was given Miss Sadie Randolph of West Eighth street, Friday evening, by a few of her many friends.

The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games until a late hour. Refreshments were served during the evening.

Among those present were Miss Maggie Correll, Miss Ethel Konkee, the Misses Jennie and Jessie Saxton, Miss Bessie Giles, and Miss Hettie Egerdine, of Plainfield; Miss Jennie Morris, of New Brunswick; Miss Edith Manning, of Market; Mr. Judson Giles, Mr. Joseph Runyon, Mr. William Valentine, of Plainfield; Mr. Best Manning, Mr. Arthur Bawkins, Mr. Nicholas Bergen, Mr. Holmes Bergen, Mr. Robert Dunbar, of New Brunswick; and Mr. Clifford Manning, Mr. William Ackerman, of New Market.

SWEARING IN RECRUITS.

AT THE SALVATION ARMY LAST NIGHT.

Fourteen Persons Pledge Themselves to the Army and Its Work.—The Attendance for the Past Week.—The Officers Present.

ENLISTING themselves by their vows to work for Christ, fourteen recruits were sworn in at the Salvation Army barracks, on West Second street, last evening. Each person who wished to be sworn in as a soldier must answer a number of questions, which are read by someone holding a high position in the army.

These vows, which every recruit takes before being enrolled, are supposed to make the person holy and righteous for life. Fourteen persons took these vows last night. The officers present from headquarters last night were: Major Evans, Ensign Wood, Secretary Damon, Bandmaster Trumbell and Capt. Marsh. The latter when called upon for his testimony said in part: "I was born in England, gave myself to God in Australia, was converted in California, sanctified in India and finally settled down to the Salvation work in New York."

The attendance last week was as follows: —Tuesday, 150; Wednesday, 150; Thursday, 300; Friday, 184; Saturday, 250; Sunday, 1,211. Making the total for the week 2,284 with a daily average of 420.

MRS. WOLTMAN RUN OVER.

She Escapes, Fortunately, with a Few Slight Bruises.

Yesterday afternoon about five o'clock, as Mrs. E. C. Woltman, of West Seventh street, was crossing Willow avenue, at Washington avenue, she was run into and knocked down and run over by Mr. Fenton's carriage. Mrs. Woltman was taken to her home by Mr. Fenton. She was not seriously injured, and escaped with a few slight bruises.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Charles P. Leggett of Madison avenue is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Rockfellow of Park avenue left for Atlantic City to-day.

Several Plainfield lawyers are at Trenton to-day attending the opening session of the Supreme Court.

Friday night there is to be a reception to the Rev. Herbert Randolph and bride at Grace M. E. church.

Messrs. Herbert L. Randolph, Walter S. Harrison and Clarence Lambert will give a dance in Watchung Hall, at Fanwood, to-night.

Mrs. John Dunn of Somerville has returned home, after spending a few days with her sister Mrs. Edward Walters of Park place.

Miss Grace Dewey of West Fifth street returned home this morning from Orange, where she has been ill for the past two weeks.

Mr. W. R. Cosgrove, of No. 218 Hillside avenue, has a well developed foundness for traveling. He has only been home a short time from a rather extensive trip, and has now started again on a six weeks tour of the South and West.

Evening Prayer Service at Grace Church.

The evening prayer service at Grace Church will hereafter be held at 7.45, and will be in charge of the Men's Association. The services will be full choral vesper services, and on alternate Sundays a sermon will be preached by prominent clergymen from other cities. The first of the services will be held February 25th, at which time Father Johnson, of the Church of The Redeemer, New York, will preach. He is a well known priest, earnest and zealous in parish work.

On March 4th, there will be a full choral service, without preaching, and on March 11th Rev. David H. Greer, of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, will deliver the sermon.

Vincent's Chapel's Fair and Festival.

The fair and festival to be held in Vincent chapel on Thursday and Friday next week will contain some very interesting and unique features. Besides the usual fancy articles, there will be for sale a nice lot of stationery goods, home-made candies, and at the children's table, various articles, mostly made by the boys and girls of the school. Perhaps the most interesting feature for the little ones, will be the illustration of the "Story of Cinderella." The rooms will be open at three o'clock and continue until 10 o'clock p. m. An excellent supper will be provided, and in the evening there will be a selection from Prof. Combe's orchestra.

Mr. Gill's Will Admitted to Probate.

The will of the late Charles H. Gill of West Fourth street was admitted to probate at Elizabeth to-day. Mrs. Gill, the widow, is the sole executrix. Mr. John H. Van Winkle is her counsel.

The "Magic City" is selling immensely. Wannemaker of Philadelphia, sold 4500 copies in three days. On sale at White's, 8c. copy

TO GO TO THE ASYLUM AGAIN.

Peter Brown Again Pronounced Insane.

Peter Brown of Stone street, who was released from the Trenton Asylum about two years ago, and who was recently released from the county jail, where he had been sent for disorderly conduct, was again arrested last night. He drove his family out doors and otherwise caused a disturbance at his home during the night.

This morning he was examined by Dr. Hodges and pronounced insane. As soon as the necessary papers can be made out he will be taken to the asylum.

BREVITIES.

Waite's Comedy Company in "Mazie, the Romp."

Waite's Comedy Company produced "Mazie, the Romp," for their introductory bill last evening at Music Hall, to a fine audience in spite of the inclement weather. Harry Fielding, as the Hebrew, "Gabriel Rasdebaum," and Maggie Walker, as the title role "Mazie," were the comedy element of the performance and they kept the audience in continuous bursts of laughter. The entire cast are said to be artists of the first rank worthy of the applause of all theatre goers. The specialities of the Gleason children, Little Pauline and the El Nora twin sisters are an entertainment of themselves, and received repeated encores. The orchestral programme rendered by the orchestra under the direction of Prof. Hohenstein, was well received and substantiated the claim of the management, that it is the finest travelling orchestra in the country.

For to-night, "Legally Dead," with the "El Nora Twins" in the leading speaking parts is announced. These little tots have been called the phenomenons of the nineteenth century.

Dime matinees will be given, commencing Wednesday, to which the admission is only one dime to all parts of the house.

The New Postmaster(?)

There was a rumor about town yesterday that Mr. Joseph A. Haines, the freight agent in charge of the Plainfield station, had been appointed Postmaster. He told inquirers that he knew nothing about it, and had not been seeking that or any other office. He has been in the seven years in the employ of the Central Railroad Company, and eighteen years in his present position. A few years ago he was breaking down from nervous prostration, but took up bicycle-riding, and completely restored his health, so that to-day he looks twenty-years younger than he did a year or so ago. He regards the post-office rumor as a joke.

Only a Burning Brush Heap.

An alarm of fire was sent in from box 26, at the corner of South and Woodland avenues, about nine o'clock this morning. The fire proved to be a brush heap. The alarm was sent in by a man named Hall, who had been told that a shed was on fire.

Going by Way of Canal.

[Plainfield Correspondence to Red Men's Journal.]

The "Deacon," Great representative N. C. Magee; the "Old War Horse," Past Sachem Richard Seaman; Past Sachem William Westphal, Chief of Records William Newcom, and our little German friend, Past Sachem John H. Carney, have expressed their determination to attend the session of the Great Council of this State, and as a consequence one of the frequent and exciting sights to be witnessed every sun on the streets of our beautiful city is either of the above-named brothers with head thrown back and chest expanded and left foot extended practising pedestrianism, in order to equip for their walk to Trenton, starting on the sun previous to the session. The "deacon" has been deputized as a committee of one to find out the shortest route by way of the canal.

Thought he Had a Bag of Salt.

Last night one of the motormen on the street cars was arrested and fined $5 by Justice Crossley's court on the charge of leaving the body of a dead dog on Somerset street. The man said he did not bring the dog there, but that it was done by one of the boys as the result of a joke. The dog had been placed in a bag and given to the motorman for a bag of salt. The man supposing it was salt emptied the bag and found the dog's body. He only left it at the switch until he came back, but when he returned the dog was gone.

Justice Crossley dismissed the case.

The Charge Dropped.

William Blake, who was arrested in the borough Saturday night charged with stealing $25 dollars from Mr. Peter Wooden, was released last night and the charge dropped, on condition that he leave the town. Blake has gone to Baltimore where his parents live.

Did He Kill Her?

Yesterday morning the dead body of Mrs. Richard Pearce, colored, with skull crushed and throat cut, was found in the barn of her house in the town of Goshen, sixteen miles above Cape May. Near the body was found bloody hatchet. From the kitchen of the house to the barn, where the body was found, the ground was marked with bloody spots, showing that Mrs. Pearce had been struck in the kitchen and then carried to the barn, where her throat was cut. Her husband's hat was found near the body. Pearce is known to have been jealous of his wife and to have threatened her life. Pending the result of the Coroner's investigation he has been place under surveillance.

Obstreperous Tramp Whipped.

Three tramps who were refused food by Mrs. Mary Gruner, who lives near Perth Amboy became so obstreperous that she resorted to strategy. Inviting them into the dining-room on the pretense of getting them something to eat she locked the door and ran to her husband, who was working a short distance off. Gruner and his fellow workmen lost no time in reaching the house. They took the tramps into the woods and whipped them with green hickory switches until they howled for mercy. They weep out of sight half a minute after their release.

Death of an Octogenarian.

Aunt Jane Dorsey, one of the oldest colored residents of Springfield, died Saturday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Lamb, on the Springfield Mountain. Death resulted from the grip. Mrs. Dorsey was eighty-four years of age and was the eldest daughter of Samuel Davis, who purchased his liberty from slavery in New Jersey in 1800. A daughter, Mrs. Lamb, survives Mrs. Dorsey. The funeral will be held this afternoon and interment will be made in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

A Wealthy Farmer Kill Himself.

WHITE WAS CONFIRMED

Senate Indorsed His Nomination by a Unanimous Vote.

HILL EXPRESSES SATISFACTION.

Some Suggested That the Louisiana Senator Was to Be Named For the Supreme Bench—Hesitated Long Before Accepting the President's Offer.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The president sent to the senate the nomination of Senator Edward D. White of Louisiana to be an associate justice of the United States supreme court, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Justice Blatchford. The senate had hardly had time to recover from the surprise which the announcement of Senator White occasioned when his confirmation was announced.

While months had been spent in considering the nomination of Messrs. Hornblower and Peckham and much time devoted to them by the senate committee on judiciary, the name of Mr. White was not referred to the committee at all, and in less than an hour after the nomination had been received the senate had placed its seal of approval upon the selection, had robbed itself of an executive session, and had given the supreme court the one man necessary to make a full bench. The nomination was received through Private Secretary Pruden about 20 minutes before 2 o'clock, while Senator Daniel was engaged in a speech on the Hawaiian question.

Soon after Senator Caffery, Mr. White's colleague, was seen to make his way between the desks to a seat immediately adjoining that of the Virginian, which Mr. Daniel spoke, and as soon as the latter, who was absorbed in the fact that the nomination had been received, paused for a moment, Mr. Caffery informed him of what had transpired. He immediately announced his willingness to suspend, and upon his doing so Mr. Caffery moved an executive session.

EDWARD D. WHITE.

Promptly Confirmed.

Every one knew that his purpose was to give the senate an opportunity to pass upon his colleague's nomination, and no one doubted that when the doors should be reopened confirmation would be announced. Senator Daniel never before dreamed for passing upon the fitness of a senator for the office of supreme judge.

There had been many instances in which senators had been appointed to other places, and it has become the custom—not unbroken, however—to confirm without reference to committee. It was believed on all hands that the president would be followed in this instance. Such proved to be the case.

The senate had been sitting behind closed doors less than half an hour when it became known that the motion to confirm without reference had carried without opposition. There was no show of opposition to proceeding in this manner, and the vote was unanimously and heartily in favor of confirmation.

The proceedings prior to the ending of the vote consisted entirely of the delivering of the nominations by messengers of the senate judiciary committee and by Senator Caffery. There were two speeches by Democratic members of the committee and two by Republican members, Senators Pugh and Hill speaking for the Democratic side and Senators Hoar and Teller for the Republican.

All the speeches were laudatory and congratulatory both to the president and to Mr. White, and the tenor of all that was said indicated a full appreciation of the fact that the selection had proved to be one to render it no longer necessary to continue a contest which for a time promised to be a distracting feature for the last three or four months. The senate even felt so good natured over the whole affair that it decided to remove the injunction of secrecy, and the newspapers were notified that they were at liberty to publish the details of the proceedings.

While the senate acted promptly and without hesitation upon the nomination, it is still a fact that it was a great surprise at the capital. The president had said on Saturday that he would go outside of New York to make a selection in view of the rejection of the two names sent from that state, but he had not supposed up to the last minute that he would find a suitable man within the confines of the Second judicial district, which the late Judge Blatchford, who's successor he was to appoint, had been chosen.

A Surprise All Around.

Some thought it possible that Senator Gray might be selected, and there were a few who suggested the name of Senator Faulkner. Senator White's name seemed not to have been thought of by any one, and it is probable that Senator Caffery, who had been let into the secret, was the only man sitting in the senate at the time Secretary Pruden arrived who knew the purport of the message which he conveyed, as Mr. White was not present.

Gradually during the afternoon the story leading up to the nomination was unfolded. Whether the president had had Mr. White's name in mind before Monday does not appear, but if he had the latter had not been made aware of the fact. He and Senator Caffery were out for Sunday riding, and when they arrived at the White House about 5 o'clock the president made known the purpose of his long stroll for a confidential talk. Mr. White's views were a deep sense of obligation, was much surprised and was doubtful as to whether it should accept. He asked the president for time to consider, and although he and his colleague remained with the president until 11 o'clock he left without giving his reason. In the morning, when he and Mr. Caffery again called at the executive mansion, he was still unable to say positively that he preferred the office to that of senator, and it was not until the last minute before his departure that he gave his assent.

It is understood that at this conference the president simply announced that he had definitely determined to go outside of New York for a man to fill the office, and on investigating the question he had discovered that none of the 11 southern states of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, constituting the Fourth and Fifth circuits, had a representative on the supreme bench or had had at any time since the war, except for the brief time that Justice Lamar was a member of the supreme court. He also took into account the fact that the civil law is the method of practice in Louisiana and that Senator White is considered a very able exponent of that system. The selection leaves the Fifth and the Fourth circuits without representation, while the Third circuit has three.

His Possible Successor.

At the supreme court offices it was stated that Senator White is the first man who was ever nominated for the supreme bench while a member of the senate.

The ballot among the Louisiana delegation in congress that Representative Blanchard will be appointed by Governor Foster as senator to fill the unexpired term of Senator White. Senator Caffery is of the opinion, however, that Mr. Blanchard will not be chosen, and as he is very close to the governor, his opinion is entitled to as well as his cousin, his opinion is entitled to credence. He thinks an appointment will be made soon and that the appointee will be some one who will help to make the fight for the sugar interest in the senate.

It is said that Mr. Blanchard's choice to the senate would be unquestionable if it were not for the single circumstance of his vote in favor of the Wilson bill, with its adverse action on sugar. Governor Foster assigns Senator Gibson as one more reason and is said to be one of the most vigorous opponents to changing the sugar schedule of the tariff. The appointment to succeed Senator White will be operative but a few months, as the Louisiana legislature meets in May.

It will have the unusual task of filling three senatorial terms. The first will be to name a candidate for the unexpired term of Senator Gibson, for which the governor appointed Senator Caffery. The next will be to name a candidate for the full term after March, 1895. The third will be to name a successor to Senator White. Postmaster Jeffers, who is mentioned for senatorships to be assigned at that time.

Mr. Blanchard's congressional associates considered his choice as senator certain, and they were surprised when they read "Senator Blanchard." When Representative Bootner of Louisiana was asked half an hour after the nomination who was the strongest man for the senatorship in the state, he replied that in his opinion Representative Blanchard stood the best chance for the succession.

Chief Justice Fuller was at the state department in consultation with Secretary Gresham when the news of the nomination and confirmation of Senator White reached him.

The chief justice was very much pleased both at the character of the appointment and at the prospect that when the supreme court meets again on March 5 it will be with a full bench, thus enabling the tribunal to pass upon some very important cases which have been held inabeyance in order that their decisions should have the weight of the recorded opinions of all of the justices.

Justice White's Career.

Edward Douglass White will take his seat on the supreme bench as the youngest of the justices, and with the exception of Justices Field and Harlan he will have entered at an earlier period in life than any of his colleagues upon the bench. He has exceptionally long term of 21 years to serve before retirement. He was born in the parish of Lafourche, La., and is 49 years of age last November. He is a man of striking physical characteristics—tall and robust, of rather florid complexion, high forehead, square, firm chin and mouth, marked by character and decision. His movements are quick, without show of nervousness, and betray the great energy which is one of the characteristics of the man.

Justice White was educated at St. Mary's, near Emmettsburg, Md., at the Jesuit college in New Orleans and finally at Georgetown college, District of Columbia. He is a Catholic—the only one on the supreme bench at present—and with the exception of Chief Justice Taney he will be probably the only Catholic who ever sat on the supreme bench. He is the fourth in succession of some of the oldest practitioners before the court. He entered the Confederate army and after the war was admitted to and practiced before the Louisiana supreme court and practiced his profession during the troubled year following the reconstruction period. In 1868 he began his political experience as a state senator. Lapsing into the law again, he became associate justice of the supreme court of Louisiana in 1878, from which tribunal he resigned when he was elected to the United States senate to succeed Senator Eustis, at present minister to France, taking his seat March 4, 1891. By his appointment he will leave a vacancy of full two years in his senatorial term.

Since he has been in the United States senate Mr. White has earned a high reputation. Since the tariff bill has been before the senate finance committee Senator White has been making a most determined effort to secure the imposition of a tax on sugar, and beyond doubt his appointment to the supreme bench will prove to be a loss to his state interests in particular.

The new justice is a bachelor at present, but there is a well defined rumor afloat that before the year expires he will marry a well known society lady who has been a brilliant figure in Washington.

Bland Men In Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Silhouter over the silver bill in the house continued for about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when an adjournment was had to give the Democrats an opportunity to consider the situation in caucus. There were present at the session 190 Democrats, but not a Democratic member of the New York delegation, all of whom have joined in the obstructive movement, was present, nor in fact any of the others who joined in the 9 th them. The presence, however, of Mr. Penne, the Colorado Populist, was significant. The sentiment was overwhelmingly for free, was all favorable to the bill, and two resolutions were adopted—one to keep the pelgoricide bill before the house to the exclusion of all other business, disposed of in the other expressing it as the sense of the caucus that it was the duty of every Democratic member to be present and vote either for or against the bill.

The opening session of the senate was unusually devoid of interest. Senator Hale presented a resolution to investigate the Hawaiian printing contracts, but the matter did not even create a discussion in the senate, although Cox practically was charged. Senator Daniel opened his argument in support of the Administration in the Hawaiian matter and will conclude today.

CHRIS EVANS CAPTURED

He and His Partner Came In From the Mountains.

SURROUNDED IN HIS OLD HOME.

Were Out With Hedging Detectives, the Famous Bandits Ventured Into a Town Not Once, but Were Discovered—They Surrendered Without Firing a Shot.

YSALIA, Cal., Feb. 20.—Chris Evans, the train robber and outlaw, who escaped from Fresno jail a month ago, is again in custody. It was discovered that he had come down from the mountains with his partner, Edward Morrell, who assisted him to escape from Fresno jail, and that the two men were hidden in Evans' home here. Officers surrounded the house, and a few hours later practically all the inhabitants of the town were present. Evans recognized the fact that escape was impossible, and after brief negotiations with Sheriff Kay of this county he and Morrell surrendered.

The town of Ysalia was thrown into a state of wild excitement by the news that was brought to the officials that the notorious bandits had come down from their mountain retreat and were at Evans' home. They arrived in town Saturday night on foot, having left their horse and cart tied to a fence at the ranch of Elijah Perkins.

As soon as Sheriff Kay was informed of this a posse of determined men was quickly organized, and they proceeded immediately to Evans' house, which they proceeded to surround and guard until daylight. Men were stationed around the house so as to prevent the escape of the two desperadoes, many of whom were armed, came to the scene out of curiosity, and when daylight broke a large portion of the people of the place were on the ground at the expected battle.

Brighton Betrayed Them.

The news which brought this excitement about was given by a man named Brighton, who is in the employ of Marshal Card. Brighton cared for Evans' horses and children. He was formerly a deputy marshal in Arizona. He and Card arrived here and immediately set to work to capture the outlaw.

As the outlines of the house within which the desperadoes were known to be became visible in the gray dawn it was closely watched by the excited crowd, but no one evinced a disposition to approach.

It was clearly known from previous experience that Evans would shoot, and shoot to kill. It was conceded that an attempt to capture the men by assaulting the house would surely result in the death of several of the officers. Chris Evans' children were known to be in the house, and the officers did not wish to start a fight which would result in the death or injury of those innocent children. It was, however, the intention to storm the house as soon if nothing occurred before that time. It was conceded that the attempt would be made some lives would be lost, but the citizens were determined to put an end to the lawless career of these men.

Finally a messenger was sent to the house with a note from Sheriff Kay advising the men to surrender peaceably and telling them that they could certainly be killed or captured—that their escape was impossible. This messenger was compelled to enter the house and was held as a hostage. The messenger was a young man named Benson. Evans said to him when he entered:

"Ain't you taking great chances? Now, you take those pistols and walk out ahead of us when we get ready to go." Benson was badly frightened.

When Evans now armed men around the house and noted that Brighton had not returned, he attacked Mrs. Brighton, who was in the house, knocking her down and striking her, telling her to go to bed and stay there. He was only prevented from killing the woman through the intervention of Morell, who restrained him indeed. The woman was badly injured and in spasms for hours and was badly bruised where kicked.

Bloodless Capture.

When Evans saw the house entirely surrounded, he opened negotiations with Kay to surrender, Evans' son carrying the correspondence. Evans agreed to come out if Kay would disperse the crowd. The officers ordered all spectators to leave, which they did. Then Evans came out on the porch unarmed, and Sheriff Kay and Under Sheriff Hall went forward and shook hands with him. Brighton and his wife have been living in Evans' house and caring for the four little children of Evans.

The bandits are worn out. The officers have kept them moving, and they had to find some place to rest, and they took that chance here. The citizens are very indignant at Evans' treatment of Mrs. Brighton, and they believe they have not removed soon they may be lynched.

E. J. Hinds, Evans' attorney at Fresno, came here Saturday, and his movements were watched. Mrs. Evans was expected here in a day or two by officers. The officers are reticent as to the disposal of Evans until 4 o'clock, but it is supposed he will be spirited to Fresno, where he will receive immediate sentence and be hurried to state prison. Evans refuses to be interviewed, and is about a prostrate man. Morrell is more talkative and tells his story of the recent encounter at Slick rock. Evans looks very thin and pale, as though he had put on through a severe sickness.

There is great rejoicing here at the capture, as many persons had reason to fear Evans' vengeance if they were instrumental to the officers, and there was general belief that some valuable lives would be lost before he could be captured. The two desperadoes are now safely locked in the county jail, and it is safe to say they will not be given many opportunities to escape.

Killed In a Cable Car Accident.

COTTO-COTTO-COTTOLENE.

Notice the name—COTTOLENE. Not Vegetable-lene, nor Animal-lene, nor Mineral-lene, nor any other "lene" but COTTOLENE.

COTTOLENE

Is the new vegetable shortening, recognized as far superior to lard for every cooking use. The other "lenes," and "ets," and "oles," are imitations—made to sell on the merits of COTTOLENE, and to be "worked off" by sleight of hand, or the "just as good" game.

If you want good cooking and good health, get COTTOLENE—it's the only 'lene' worth having.

M'KANE'S SENTENCE.

Of Not Pardoned, He Will Stay Four Years and Two Months In Stag Sing.

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—John Y. McKane was sentenced by Justice Bartlett in the Brooklyn court of oyer and terminer to six years in the state's prison at Sing Sing. In passing sentence Justice Bartlett said that in his opinion the sentence should be severe enough to deter others from following in McKane's footsteps.

McKane, if he lives, will serve four years and two months in Sing Sing, providing he is not pardoned by the executive. The sentence is one year of imprisonment at hard labor in two months for the second year, two for the third and fourth years, and one for the fifth and sixth years, five. The commutation altogether will be one year and ten months.

John Y. McKane notified the members of the Gravesend town board Saturday that it was his intention to resign the various public offices he held in the town. McKane is president of the town board and police boards, and these boards are one and the same as to their membership.

It is not likely that the Gravesend town board will accept the resignation. Mckane's bond will not be accepted by the board, and the same as to their membership.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

A Young Editor.

Lady Marjorie, who is only 13 years old, is the only daughter of Lord and Lady Abingdon, and by Marjorie she is therefore the most youngest editor in the world, and her little monthly, Wee Willie Winkie, is almost an ideal specimen of what a paper should be. It is simple, natural, interesting, and I am glad to hear that it is likely to have an extended range of usefulness on the American continent, writes W. T. Stead in The Review of Reviews. Lady Marjorie is an interesting child, somewhat tall for her age, but still a child at her lessons. She does her editing in the intervals of playtime. Like all the rest of the family, she is devoted to her mother, who is naturally very anxious that as a child should not be unduly forced into prominent activity.

They Eat Hazel Nuts.

Did you ever happen to be in the country when hazel nuts were ripe?

Or did you ever happen to watch the little out of door creatures that eat them?

Some one who could say yes to both these questions can tell you also that there are three creatures, the squirrel, the field-mouse and the dormouse, who eat hazel nuts.

Each of these little creatures takes an entirely different means to get through the shell and get to the food he is so fond of.

The squirrel holding the hazel nut in his fore paws, bites off the small end of the shell, then bites it in two with his long fore teeth, so he only might do with his pocket-knife.

The fieldmouse takes the nut in his fore paws, rolls and with his teeth bores the most beautifully regular little hole in the end, and, though you'll find it hard to believe it, he drives all the meat out through that one tiny little round opening.

The nut hatch is not so fine a workman as the other two, but then he has no hands to hold his work. With his bill he pushes the nut into some crevice or other natural vise in the tree, or it may be, standing over it, he pecks away at the stopping under with his awl-shaped beak, though the shell large enough to pick out the meat. It is a ragged looking job, but it gives the bird his dinner, which, after all, is the most the finest workman among them can do.—New York World.

WHAT IS A BARGAIN!

Answer—

A Gold Dollar for 50c Sure.

But they are very scarce just now. The nearest approach to them is the Clearance Sale Bargains now going on regularly at Edsall's.

Our definition of a bargain will: Generate good, reasonable goods sold at a less price than they should be sold at; that is what we are doing every day in order to reduce our stock prior to removal into our new quarters in the Baldwin building.

We are aware that the word "bargain" is a very much abused word, and is largely distrusted by a majority of readers of "ads."

Yet it is hard to find a word so expressive to the advertiser as this word.

TRULY, there is such a thing as a genuine bargain, notwithstanding, some will sell at half price, and not good, and perfect goods at that, and inferior brands for half quality, and call them bargains.

Now, then, but we will say that when we advertise bargains, or if bargains, we will prove it every time by a personal inspection of the goods. We repeat, emphatically, that you can find now plenty of real bargains, at our Clearance Sale. New Spring goods in great variety.

With manner very meek,
Against her dear old face in loving mood,
"There never was a nicer grandma born.
I know some little boys must be forlorn
Because they've none like you.
I wonder what I'd do
Without a grandma's kisses night and morn."

"There never was a dearer grandma, there!"
He kissed her, and he smoothed her snow white hair,
Then fixed her ruffled cap
And nestled in her lap,
While grandma, smiling, rocked her old arm-chair.

"When I'm a man, what things to you I'll bring!
A horse and carriage and a watch and ring!
All grandmas are so nice
That here he kissed her twice,
And grandma's face a good boy everything."

Before his dear old grandma could reply
This boy looked up, and with a roguish eye
Then whispered in her ear
That nobody might hear,
"Say, grandma, have you any more mince pie?"

A Topsy Turvy Concern.

This is one of the funniest entertainments ever seen, and one of the easiest to prepare.

It needs only a screen or a curtain stretched across any room.

The height of the curtain may be determined by the size of the children who sing in the concert, for they stand in a row behind the screen or curtain.

It is well to have these singers nearly of the same size, as the screen or curtain should conceal all of their bodies except the head and neck.

The only preparation required is that the arms and hands of each should be covered with stockings and that shoes be worn upon each hand with the soles of the shoes pointed forward, so that the toes will be turned toward the spectators, who are seated in front of the curtain at a little distance. At the conclusion of each verse the singers stoop down altogether and very quickly, and each lowering the head elevates the arms above the curtain.

The effect thus produced is that all the singers seem to be standing on their heads.

They keep time with their feet (or rather hands) to the music of the song, and the sudden changes, when done simultaneously, will never fail to amuse.

The idea of this unique performance probably originated in the fertile brain of a Frenchman, but it has been adapted for the use of children and will prove an enjoyable addition to the holiday merrymakings.—George Bradford Bartlett in St. Nicholas.

Breaking the News.

Little Dot—Mamma, I was playin with your best tea set while you were away, an when you bring it out for company you'll be shocked, 'cause you'll think one of the cups has a hair in it, but it isn't a hair.

Mamma—What is it?

Little Dot—It's only a crack.—Quips.

A Story of George Sand.

A discussion arose one day about the latest work of a singularly rapid and dull writer, who had, I know not how, gained the privilege of being introduced to the attentive audiences gathered together "autour de la table."

"There is no doubt," remarked Mme. Sand, "that all of it is not good to the same degree, but it contains at least a description of Venice which pleases me greatly." Several of us agreed with her, albeit we were under the impression that we had already met with this descriptive piece somewhere.

"Egad, I know where!" suddenly exclaimed her son, and off he rushed to the bookshelves to get "Le Derniere Aldini!"

—Mme. Sand's book—where, with a feeling of indignation at the plagiarist, we found the very description, which had been copied almost word for word.

"What, is this by me?" Mme. Sand repeated, astounded and startled. "I had no idea of it. After all, it is really not so bad."

Never was any modesty more sincere than hers. No human being was ever less self conscious.—Century Magazine.

A Handy Vapor Bath.

Set a redhot brick on end in a can, small tack hammer or pole jewel; place the latter under a chair, on the seat of which a piece of flannel is spread. The patient, undressed, sits on this flannel, and he and the chair are well wrapped in blankets to exclude the air. His head is to be uncovered. Open the Blankets a little at the bottom and carefully pour about a pint of boiling water over the brick and keep up the steam by occasionally repeating this. The patient remains in the bath until relieved by perspiration. To make a vapor bath in bed with hot water bottles fill about six oval shaped half gallon stone bottles with boiling water, cork well and wrap each in hot flannel. Lay over the bed a waterproof sheet and blanket. Place the patient on these, cover him with a blanket and disclothe the hot bottles about him, one to each side, to the calf of each leg and to the sole of each foot. Wrap up well with extra blankets and tuck in up to the head.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Mothers Must Not Be Too Unselfish.

Teach the sons to be careful of mother. Why should a boy be allowed to sleep over the best half hour just because he does not wish to get up? His mother has to put up his breakfast, making a vain effort to keep it hot, and serve it when he chooses to come down, while often, instead of thanking her, he grumbles because the meal is not so palatable as when first served. The boy should be taught that mother's time and strength are valuable, and that he will not be allowed to tax them unnecessarily.

It is a fact worthy of note that the children of unselfish mothers are generally very selfish. If a mother would teach her children to be unselfish, she must give them the opportunity and the encouragement at the risk of appearing somewhat selfish herself. Her unselfish example is rarely sufficient.—New York Press.

Her Shoes.

"No, I never wear congress boots," one young lady was overheard to say to another, "but I do lace my Newport ties with narrow, flat black elastic and fasten the ends—how the ends securely. I can slip the shoes on easily and take them off the same way, and I am never in danger of their coming untied." "And I," replied the friend to whom this was addressed, "get enough to give the secret away, "buy my shoes a size too long—my foot looks more slender that way—and you can't guess what I stuff the toe of the shoe with! Not cotton or wool, no one does that—but the softest and finest of velvet sponges! Cotton hardens, but the sponge will have a little 'give,' or spring, in them, and if they ever lose their pliability it may be quickly restored with a little warm water and left to dry over night."—New York Tribune.

A Sewing Screen.

A novelty for the sewing room, and it may follow the sewer indeed to any room of the house where she elects to pursue her occupation, is a sewing screen. It is, in fact, a model and comprehensive work-basket. The screen frame is first covered with chintz or cretonne of some cheerful pattern. One side of the screen is left plain, and to the other are attached pockets, a latticework of braid to hold paper patterns, a pincushion, needlebook, pegging bands caught down at intervals to hold scissors and, in fact, everything necessary to supplement the work of the seamstress, be she the busy housemother or "some one separately employed for the duty.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Phoebe Cousins.

Phoebe Cousins is really a remarkable woman as conversationalist, afterone and straightforward, a fine conversationist, a magnetic speaker and a splendid friend. But when her antagonisms are aroused she stands like a rock in a midstream. She was at a reception recently, and people who had never seen her were dumfounded to learn that the modest little woman had an clad in the deepest mourning was the much talked of claimant for the secretaryship of the board of lady managers. Now that the excitement has passed into history it is whispered that the men didn't want her because she was too honest, and the women wouldn't have her because she was too clever.—Chicago Cor New York World.

Informal Gatherings.

If you are inviting an informal company, do not neglect to inform every guest of the exact proportions of the affair and do not change your plans afterward and make more of an affair of it. This is urged in the interests of those who go, believing in the assurance that it is a "small and early," in simple dress, and find to their confusion that those better informed have thronged the rooms with elegant attire. This is not an agreeable experience, and it is thoughtless to subject friends to such needless annoyance.—Detroit Free Press.

The Cause of Woman.

Miss Beacon (endeavoring to proselyte to the cause of women)—Come, now, Mrs. O'Donovan, don't you really believe in woman suffrage?

Mrs. O'Donovan—Believe in woman suffrage, is it? Well, it wud be a strange thing if Oi didn't believe in it, me that has lived all these years wid Dinnis O'Donovan! Suffrage, is it? You'd believe it yerself, miss, if ye'd suffered all that Oi have!—Exchange.

A Dainty Kerchief.

A simple way of turning a plain handkerchief into a handsome one is to sew very narrow lace around the equally narrow hem. The sole requisite is that the center be entirely free of the lace, that the latter under a chair, on the seat of which a piece of flannel is spread. The patient, undressed, sits on this flannel, and he and the chair are well wrapped in blankets to exclude the air. His head is to be uncovered. Open the Blankets a little at the bottom and carefully pour about a pint of boiling water over the brick and keep up the steam by occasionally repeating this. DISGUSTED.

After All the Insults She Concluded Not to Vote.

A man who was up in the country on election day tells of some very funny things that happened when the women came out to vote. He stood at the polls. One of the watchers had been instructed to challenge all the women, and when a woman walked into the booth he stepped up to her and said, "Do you desire to vote, Miss ——?"

"Certainly," she said.

"Well, I'm sorry, but I have to challenge you."

"What do you mean by that?" she asked suspiciously.

"I mean that there are persons who think that you have not the right to vote and demand that you shall swear your vote in."

She stared. "Why," she stormed, "I have lived in this village all my life, and I have been a consistent church member. I insist on voting without any such preceding."

"You cannot vote unless you take an oath to certain things."

"Well," she snapped, "I'll take the oath."

The watcher pronounced the oath, and the woman took it. "Now," she said, "show me where to vote."

"First you must answer some questions first. Are you over 21 years of age?"

"Why, you know that I am. Didn't I know you when you were a tiny little boy?"

"That doesn't answer the question."

"Well, then, yes."

"How old are you?"

"Never you here!" expostulated the woman, "I don't see why you drag such things into this business. I just told you that I was 21."

"But how old are you?" he persisted.

"Fifty-nine," she answered, looking daggers.

"Where do you live?"

"Next door to you, you impudent thing."

"Have you any bet or wager on the result of this election?"

The woman could stand it no longer. She poured forth her wrath on that watcher's head unstintedly. "You slanderous person," she said, "that you should insinuate such a thing about me when you know that I am opposed to anything of the sort. I belong to the church. I wouldn't do such a thing as bet, I—but I won't stay here and be insulted any more."

And she flounced out of the booth and did not exercise her prerogative.—Buffalo Express.

A Cinch.

She fastened her gaze upon the hard, unpitying face of the hired girl.

"And it is true," she faltered, "that you love—you—my husband?"

Scarcely breathing, she awaited the answer.

"I do."

"And—and—"

Her voice sank to a whisper. In her agitation she trembled violently.

"—you you not be induced to give him up?"

"Never."

"Pay—"

Upon the instant her demeanor changed. She was transformed into a triumphant being.

"—I shall insist that you rise at 5 o'clock in the morning, summer and winter; that you take but one afternoon a week to yourself; that you get supper Sunday night; that you replace all dishes you break and build fires without kerosene."

The domestic implored for mercy, but met only jubilant obduracy.—Detroit News-Tribune.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

A Break of a Few Minutes and Then the Dance Proceeded.

The party was given at a farmhouse, and about 30 couples were present. I told the farmer when I first arrived that I should depend upon him to give me at least five minutes' notice before any shooting began, and he replied:

"I'll do it. I shall be watchin out, and I think I can give yo' plenty of time to get out of range."

"There will be shooting of course?"

"Oh, certainly. The boys would feel that they had slighted me if there wasn't a row."

"What do the women folks do when the shooting begins?"

"Sit right down on the floor till it's all over. Don't be a bit uneasy. I'll give yo' plenty of warnin."

There was only one fiddler, and he was also the caller. His calls puzzled me at first, but so one else appeared to mind it as he drawled:

"Right and left on the head, and Bill Taylor don't want to drop that revolver on the floor! Balance four and half promenade, and Jim Henderson has a knife in his boot leg! Ladies change, and Luke Williams is aching to pick a furse with Tom Bebee! All balance to partners, and when the shootin gangs please remember that the fiddler never takes sides!"

We had been dancing about an hour, and every body seemed to be thoroughly good natured and at peace with all mankind, when the farmer beckoned to me and whispered:

"I said I'd give yo' five minutes warnin, but I'm two minutes behind time! Break for the barn!"

I broke, but was not over 30 feet from the door when the shooting began. It lasted about five minutes, and I cautiously returned to the house to hear the fiddler calling in the same old monotonous voice:

"Take partners for Virginia reel, and don't make such a furse over three men wounded! First lady and gent forward and back, and Bill Taylor has gone after a doctor! Forward again and sashe, and somebody attend to that gal in hysterics! Swing with the right—now with the left, and if this isn't the most successful dance of the season then you folks needn't pay me a cent."—Detroit Free Press.

A Clever Ruse.

A gentleman who had been refreshing himself a short time previously at one of the Boulevard cafes hurriedly re-entered the establishment, and addressing the waiter anxiously inquired of him:

"Did I leave behind me a small parcel, tied with a string, on the table?"

"No, sir," replied the waiter.

"By Jove, then, it's unlucky. I shouldn't like the parcel to get into strange hands, for it contained some valuable"——

"Jewels, sir," suggested the waiter, smiling blandly.

"Jewels! No, man, scorpions. Some very rare and deadly scorpions."

The waiter smiled no more. He, on the contrary, turned deathly pale, and sinking into the nearest chair gasped, as he pointed to his coat pocket, "They are there."—Spare Moments.

A Suggestion.

In 1768 Gabrielli, one of the most beautiful of women and magnificent of sopranos, demanded 5,000 ducats salary from Catherine II of Russia. The empress objected that it was larger than the pay of a field marshal. "Then let your field marshals sing for you," retorted Gabrielli.—Argonaut.

A Sermon Spoiled.

"I'm afraid," said Mr. Muggins to his nephew, "that you are giving altogether too much attention to the doings of prizefighters."

"Well," admitted the young man, "I do enjoy reading about them."

"I am sorry to see it. Prizefighting is brutish and degrading. In an age like this, when there are so many enormous problems of science and civilization to solve, it is wrong for any man to give his mental energies to the consideration of things like that, which are not only low in themselves, but demoralizing in their influences."

The old gentleman took a long breath and glared.

"Still, one can't help being interested."

"You ought to help it. It's your business to help it."

"But I've had it forced on my attention," was the apologetic reply. "The bookkeeper at our store wants to bet that Mitchell will whip Corbett."

"Wants to bet that Mitchell will—great Scott, you took him up, didn't you? Why, look at Corbett's reach. He can pull the hairs out of Mitchell's eyebrows without getting touched. And if Mitchell tries to turn the fight into a sprinting match Corbett'll be right with him and chase him lap for lap till he runs him down same as a dog would a rabbit. And that man wants to bet on Mitchell! How much did you take of it?"

"Why, I haven't bet anything as yet."

"Haven't bet! Here, get your hat and coat and hunt him up. Bet him all you've got, and then if he is still game take $20 worth for me. Don't lose a minute, because he might change his mind."—Washington Star.

ABOUT SEWER PIPES.

WHAT AN EXPERT SAYS AS TO THEIR CAPACITY.

No Grounds for the Objections Raised on Their Point.—No Danger from Insufficient Size of Pipes, or from Inability to get Grade.

An expert in such matters sends us the following:

"In the proposed 'separate' system of sewerage the pipes which collect the sewage and convey it to the main outlet vary in diameter from eight inches to 24 inches, the laterals being exclusively of the smaller size. Objections have been raised that the pipes proposed are too small to carry away the volume of sewage delivered by so large a city as Plainfield. The problem, however, is not a difficult one to solve. Estimating the population of Plainfield to be 20,000 within the next fifteen years; allowing 60 gallons of water to be used in 24 hours by each man, woman and child in the city would make a volume of 1,200,000 gallons; add to this flushing water and leakage of sufficient water into the pipes, of 200,000 gallons, and we have a total of 2,200,000 gallons to provide for daily, this volume, as will be seen, accumulates into the lowest portion of the system where the largest pipe is laid, in the higher portions the volume is very much smaller until at the summit, where the smallest pipe is laid the volume is that received only from a small portion of the population. Now, a pipe 8 inches in diameter running half full and laid on a grade of 1 in 200 will discharge 576, 720 gallons per 24 hours, and a pipe 12 inches in diameter on a grade of 1 in 300, the smallest permissible, will discharge 2,354,184 gallons per 24 hours, a 24 inch pipe will carry away a larger volume of sewage than Plainfield will have to dispose of at any time within the coming 40 years. For ten years to come, then will not the sewage enough delivered east of Grant avenue in any 24 hours to fill a 12 inch pipe constantly, and the danger is not from insufficient size of pipes, but from lack of current in the smaller ones, so as to create depth of sewage enough in the pipes to keep the solids from standing. In fact but for systematic flushing by the automatic arrangements provided the system would be a failure, and if it were not for the obstructions that inevitably occur in 6 inch pipes, this smaller size would be used in the lateral system."

PERSONAL.

Miss Laura Emmons of North Plainfield, is the guest of Miss Hester Holman, of Livingston avenue, New Brunswick.

Plainfielders have been invited to attend a dance at the home of Miss May Irving, at Westfield, to-morrow night.

A dance is to be given at the home of Miss Mabel Thomson, on Parkgate avenue, March 6th, by the Mistletoe Club.

To-morrow at Bangor, Pa., Mr. Joseph C. Martin, one of Mr. I. H. Boehm's most obliging and efficient clerks, will be married to Miss Nettie M. Flory, of that place. The ceremony will be performed at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Eliza A. Flory, at three o'clock. Mr. Harry Spencer of North Plainfield will be best man.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Townsend of Craig place were tendered a surprise party last night in honor of their 5th wedding anniversary. A very pleasant evening was spent in social enjoyment. The party was arranged by Mrs. Horace Martin. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Steiner, Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Messerschmidt, Mr. and Mrs. Winckler, Miss Doremus and Mr. W. C. Townsend.

After less than a week's illness Mr. Charles P. Leggett died this morning at his home on Madison avenue. Mr. Leggett was taken with the grip resulting from a heavy cold, which terminated in pneumonia. Last Thursday night he was out and bowled in a game on the Board of Trade alleys. Mr. Leggett came here from Elizabeth about eight years ago. He was one of the organizers of the Crescent League and remained a member until its disbandment. He was one of its most energetic and enthusiastic members. In 1890 he was manager of the Crescent League Base Ball Team. He was a Free Mason and at the time of his death was Worshipful Master of Somerville Lodge. He was also a member of the Royal Arcanum, and was an Odd Fellows being a member of Queen City Lodge. He was assistant foreman of Alert Hose Company. When the Crescent League organized as the Crescent Wheelmen he was elected as president and continued in that office up to the time of his death. He leaves a wife and two children, a boy and a girl.

The Sale Granted.

In the Van Riper-Pike case at Trenton yesterday, Mr. W. S. Angleman, counsel for the defendant, made a motion before the Supreme Court to have the lower court of common pleas amend their returns of certain facts. The rule was granted. Mr. Geo. DeMeza represented Miss Van Riper.

In Justice Mosher's Court.

As the defendant in the case of Linke vs. Sullivan failed to appear, judgment was rendered to-day by Justice Mosher for $66.80 in favor of the plaintiff.

BREVITIES.

—Don't forget to display your flags to-morrow.

—The Bricklayers and Masons' Union will meet to-night.

—To-morrow being a legal holiday THE NEWS will not be issued.

—491 voters registered in the first district and 407 in the second district of the borough yesterday.

—Justice Nash has rendered judgment in the case of Fox, et. als. vs. Freeman, on contract for $23.16.

—The proposed bowling match between the Board of Trade and the West Ends of Somerville, to-morrow, has been postponed.

—The band of the Waite Comedy Company is pronounced the best that has ever been in Plainfield and alone worth more than the price of admission to Stillman Music Hall. People in the audience last night were heard to say "why this is better than many a dollar show I have been here."

—The sale of the Magic City at White's, he says, is something great. It is a work that all who buy are pleased with. It is instructive and amusing. It comes in 10 numbers and is issued every week. No. 1 is on sale. White says he has received letters from as far distant a city as Newton, N. J., asking if the book he advertises cannot be sent to the writer by mail.

Married at Basking Ridge.

L. Kalaway and Miss Mary Hart, a young couple from North Plainfield, were united in the bonds of matrimony on Sunday evening at five o'clock. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Young, of Railroad avenue, Basking Ridge. Mrs. Young is an aunt of the bride. Rev. Dr. J. C. Hamlin, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Basking Ridge, was the officiating clergyman. The couple left yesterday on an extended wedding tour.

Mr. Crane's Services.

The following will be the order of Mr. Crane's services at the First Baptist church for the remainder of the week:

To-night, talk to business men, although all are invited.

Thursday afternoon, bible reading.

Thursday evening, a special greeting for young people.

Friday afternoon, special service for children at four o'clock.

Friday evening, preaching services.

LAST NIGHT'S SERMON.

IN THE REVIVAL SERIES AT THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Evangelist Crane Speaks About the Need of Salvation, and the Need of Deliverance from the Power of Sin.

At the First Baptist church last night Mr. Crane preached from the text:

"How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

He said in part: "I see three things. The first is the need, and that need is salvation. God offers us salvation, and He delivers us not. Suppose we change the word and call sylvation deliverance, and then we shall see that we need deliverance. There is not a man or woman who does not feel the need of deliverance. Deliverance from self; the greatest need in the world. The greatest enemy of every man or woman is himself or herself. We have no power to deliver ourselves from ourselves. We need deliverance from sin, not only from the guilt of sin, for God knows we need that, but we need deliverance from the power. We cannot deliver ourselves from guilt. The condemned man cannot escape condemnation of himself, and so we need deliverance from the guilt of sin. We need deliverance from the power of sin. There is something about sin constantly dragging us down lower and lower. We need deliverance from the love of sin. We want something to come within us and make us hate sin. We need deliverance from the world. A friend of the world is an enemy of God. The world draws us like a lodestone draws steel. We need deliverance from death, the wages of sin, the awful death of the soul. We need deliverance from hell, just as a dead man cannot deliver himself. The greatest thing in the world is deliverance. Wealth is a mighty power but it cannot deliver us from ourselves, from death or from sin. Wealth can deliver from poverty, and ignorance. Men have always felt the need of deliverance but failed to find it because they sought it to the wrong place and in the wrong way. Philosophy, logic, rites, and the like will never bring deliverance. Man has no power to change his nature; nature cannot change nature. Only the God who created the soul can change it; so with nature, it takes the power of God to change it, and to deliver. There is no power under the sun that can make a lion eat grass and follow a shepherd, or make a sheep eat blood and flesh. You may starve a lion but you cannot change his nature. We have no power to change our own nature; hence we need deliverance. Satan is like the spider that spreads his sticky fly lights on it, and as long as he remains quiet the spider stays in his home, but let the fly try to escape, then the spider sweeps out and secures him so that escape is impossible. So it is with man, only God can break the bonds that Satan has spun around him. When a man tries to escape from him he realizes his weakness, and the need of God. The moment we try to do right we have to cry to God if we are going to succeed. Thousands of salvation coming from God is startling. God in his infinite wisdom would not have provided it at so great a cost to himself did not need exist. When we make sacrifices to provide something for others it shows that we consider that they are in need. When I find God offering me deliverance from sin I could accept it as a gift to myself, but it should reveal to me that my soul is foul within. When I find a God of infinite wisdom and knowledge planning for me a salvation from death, no matter how little I see of the awfulness of death, it should reveal to me the fact that I am a subject of death; it should reveal to me the awful condition that only grace can save me from.

Salvation is a wonderful word. It not only means deliverance, but also preservation. It is a great Salvation because of its author, God. It took its rise in the bosom of the infinite God of this nature God he loved us.

It is great because of its cost, the Sacrifice of God's son. God gave his Son because He was the best He had. The Son gave Himself, the price was infinite, the cost we can never fully realize. Though He was rich, yet for our sakes he became poor that we through his poverty might be rich. Other man's tomb. He, to whom the hosts of heaven look for sustenance himself suffered hunger. He, servant of everything, yet had nothing. And what the Son suffered on the cross, the Father suffered on the throne, but as a mother feels the pangs of her child as she bends over its cradle, so the great God felt a terrible agony on the throne. Salvation is great because of its cost.

It is great because of its love, the love that brought Jesus down to the earth.

It is great because of its provision. The death of Christ removed every obstacle. His Ascension brings to us heavenly blessings. Heavenly supplies gave gifts to men. We get life and cleansing by his ascension; it brings us everything. He has come to offer up the sacrifice of himself, the bread that gave our fathers strength to come down to the throne of grace, and the water that quenched their thirst.

It is great because of its universality. There is room enough for all. Like the great lakes it is not diminished because it is constantly being drawn from. This salvation is open for all. Like the great tasted death for every man.

It is great because of its perpetuity. It is for us to-day as it was yesterday. It can never cease because He every liveth, and is ever the same and never changing. The channel of this river of life will never run dry because the source always takes its rise in the infinite love of God.

Salvation is rescue from an awful shipwreck, it is a rescue from a burning hell. It is to be down upon the bosom of our God in one unending repose of content and satisfaction. It is to be safe from the Port we get wafts of the land breezes of heaven. If we have Jesus we have everything; when you can grasp Jesus you have God; when you are in Him you are in God.

TOWNSHIPS DISCUSSING SEWERAGE.

A Joint Meeting Held at Cranford Monday Night.

A joint meeting of the Township Committees of Westfield, Cranford and Linden was held at Cranford Monday evening to discuss the matter of sewerage for the three towns. Messrs. Gardiner and Wells represented Westfield, Messrs. Hope, McCandless and Clark were from Linden, and Messrs. Lines, Stevenson and Day represented Cranford. A couple of hours were devoted to an informal discussion of the subject. A committee of three, consisting of Mr. Hope of Linden; Gardiner, of Westfield, and Airy, of Cranford, was appointed to confer with an engineer and report at a meeting to be held on February 26 at Cranford, as to a definite route for the same and the cost it would be to each town.

TO CELEBRATE THE DAY.

An Entertainment at Grace M. E Church Thursday Evening.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Grace Methodist Episcopal church has arranged for a most pleasant entertainment to be held in the church Washington's Birthday evening. Whatever this society undertakes is usually successful. For particulars about the coming entertainment, see their advertisement elsewhere.

"Legally Dead" at Music Hall.

"Legally Dead," presented by the Waite Comedy Company, last night, drew one of the largest audiences that has attended Music Hall this season. The interpretation of Stella and Warren Wallace by the "El More twins" was intelligent and natural. An entire change of specialties and musical programme were also an agreeable part of the bill and seemed fully appreciated.

The sensational comedy, "Young America Abroad," introducing Harry Fielding and Maggie Walker in new comedy roles is announced for to-night, with an entire change of specialties by the El More twins, little Pauline, and the Thomson children and a new and select musical programme.

The second of the dime matinees will be given to-morrow, Thursday, at two p. m. when the manager says a pleasing comedy will be produced. These matinees will be continued throughout the week and will undoubtedly be largely attended by the ladies and children for whose pleasure they are especially designed. The admission will be ten cents to any seat in the house.

A Washington Day at the Library.

To-morrow will be Washington Day at the Library, and the ladies of Plainfield are co-operating to make it an event. The Library is to be opened from 9 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 6 p. m. The Ladies' room will be decorated suitably for the occasion, and one of the great attractions will be an original Gilbert Stuart portrait of George Washington, kindly loaned by Mrs. S. A. Gingle, of Broadway. The picture will only be on exhibition for the day.

The bust of Washington which is in the hall is one made by the celebrated sculptor, Hiram Powers.

There are to be some interesting revolutionary relics loaned by Mr. Andrew D. Mellick, of La Grande avenue.

There are also to be some interesting illustrated books on Washington and the revolutionary period generally.

A Question About Congressmen.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EVE NEWS:—Mr. Frank M. Bacon's correspondence with Congressman Dunn is an announcement to the public of our representative's integrity, and gives notice to us that "we is not a paralytic power." My God! what are we coming to; when the high office of congressional representative finds itself hopelessly in the hands of its apologetic friends, before there has been any suspicion. Yours truly. LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

A COLD WAVE COMING.

Due Here This Afternoon, and May Bring Rain or Snow.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The cold wave prophesied by Weather-Forecaster Dunn is due to-night. The first instalment it will arrive late this afternoon, and may be accompanied by light rains and snow as a result of the sudden drop in temperature.

To-morrow morning Mr. Dunn expects to report the temperature ten or fifteen degrees below freezing point.

The coldest spot to-day is White River, Canada, with a temperature of 39 degrees below zero. Key West, as usual, has Summer weather, with the thermometer at 74. Chicago's temperature is 2 degrees below zero, and Buffalo 11 degrees above.

WILL SERVE WINE THIS TIME.

At Westfield's Banquet the Ladies Will Give Place to the Flowing Bowl.

A banquet will be given in Westfield this evening. It is called a "Washington Dinner." Unlike the recent banquet there will be plenty of liquid refreshments other than plain water. The toasts will be drunk in sparkling wine or cold water.

This dinner has not been got up in a spirit of spite, as has been alleged, by citizens who were displeased with temperance banquet, but is a patriotic affair given in honor of Washington's Birthday.

The ladies will not participate this time, except as they sit in the gallery and look on. It is expected that about one hundred persons will sit at the table.

Appealed from Code to Knuckles.

Lawyers James Parker and John W. Beekman, Assemblyman from Middlesex, yesterday, were opposing counsel in the case of Rose vs. Donohue, at New Brunswick. Mr. Parker presented what he asserted was a true transcript of the case from Justice Harned, but Mr. Beekman disputed his claim and expressed doubts of his veracity. This angered Parker, and he attempted to strike Beekman. Friends interposed and persuaded the men to withdraw and settle their difficulty. In a few minutes they returned and announced that the matter had been arranged amicably.

To Break the Deadlock.

A consultation held at Trenton yesterday by Attorney-General Stockton, Gov. Werts, ex-Judge Frederick W. Stevens and R. V. Lindabury was to prepare in due warranto proceedings to determine the Senatorial deadlock. It is said that President Rogers and Senator Adrian are to be summoned to show by what authority they are acting in the positions they hold. The papers were not filed to-day but certainly will be to-morrow.

Union Council No. 31, Jr. O. U. A. M. of Rahway, proposes to keep "open house" on Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22. During the afternoon a "Washington punch bowl" will be filled and drained. In the evening there will be songs, recitals and instrumental music. Union Council will present a small American flag to every person who will wear it.

STATEHOUSE MOBBED.

Boston Anarchists Tried to Stir Up a Riot.

THE LEGISLATORS THREATENED.

Thousands of Unemployed Men Led by an Agitator Up to Capital Hill, Where a Demonstration Was Made That of One Time Looked Serious.

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—The unemployed troubles in this city culminated in a demonstration on the Common which for a time threatened to end in a riot. Five thousand men, hungry, ragged and ugly, crowded into the statehouse and the adjoining grounds and vociferously demanded immediate aid in their distress. The governor addressed the mob from the steps of the statehouse and was quietly received and even applauded, although he made no satisfactory answer to their requests.

An attempt was then made by the leaders of the demonstration to get a petition before the legislature, which was then in session, but the rules prohibited this, and then things began to look serious. The rotunda was packed with a crowd of men waiting to hear the result of their leaders' efforts to present their grievances to the assembled solons when Morrison I. Swift, an avowed anarchist and spokesman of the mob, appeared in one of the balconies and told them that the legislature had refused to accept their petition. They broke into yells of derision and hisses of contempt.

Harangued by an Anarchist.

Swift leaned over the balcony railing and launched forth into an impassioned tirade against the legislators, who, he said, were the busy creating corporations to listen to the voices of starving men. His voice shook with emotion as he denounced the treatment the men had received, and his ominous threats made the cheek of the statehouse were received with hoarse shouts of approbation.

The brave battoned officials and doorkeepers were paralyzed with fear, and Governor Greenhalge, who but a few moments before was mingling with the mob, wisely retired to the legislative chamber. Few policemen could be found and these called to take care of the crowd were powerless, and soon the police wagons from the nearest stations were flying through the streets leading to Beacon hill loaded with blue coats, and soon there were 100 policemen on the scene.

They arrived just in the nick of time. Herbert Casson, a labor agitator of local celebrity, had taken the place of Swift and started to augment that gentleman's denunciation of established institutions in general and the Massachusetts legislature in particular.

A Dramatic Incident.

While he was speaking the rail against which he was leaning cracked and threatened to give way and precipitate those upon the balcony into the crowd of upturned faces below. An officer was quick to appreciate an accident, and placing his hand upon Casson's shoulder he warned him of the danger. Casson stepped speaking, and the already furious crowd below mistook the action for an arrest and rent the air with curses and execrations upon the police. They swayed back and forth, and it seemed as if violence was to be used, but the speaker quickly assured his followers that the real state of affairs, and the excitement subsided somewhat. The agitators then had to be satisfied with a talk with some individual members, and that quieted them considerably.

Meanwhile the house of representatives had remained in session, and upon the advice of some of the long headed members it considered the petition from the mob. It was decided to appoint a committee of seven to meet representatives of the unemployed to consider ways and means for their relief. Speaker Meyer of the house sent a message to the crowd apprising them of this decision, and it appeased them greatly.

Urged to Attack the Legislature.

Soon after a special detachment of police arrived at the side entrance of the state house. They entered, and began forcing the mob slowly toward the big front doors. Clubs were drawn, and the disgruntled crowd gave way.

Then there was an uproar, and many of the more desperate members urged an attack upon the legislature, but the sober second thought of some of the more sensible ones prevailed, and the crowd slowly retreated down the broad stone entrance.

Once out of doors, the police forced them steadily back until they halted on some on the pavement. Just outside the large arched gate the disappointed workmen refused to move further.

This stand was undisturbed until the captains of the various police divisions held a hurried consultation and decided to drive the mob back. The crowd fell back slowly across Beacon street and finally halted in the Common. No attempt was made to take another stand, and the men slowly disbanded.

The incidents preceding the outbreak in the rotunda were rather ominous. The crowd assembled on the Common early in the afternoon to the number of 3,000, which soon swelled to 5,000. A couple of hours were occupied by a half dozen speakers, all of the local labor leaders, and then the crowd adjourned en masse to the statehouse. A committee was appointed to see Governor Greenhalge and present to him a petition, which in substance, after calling his attention to their conditions, asked him to formulate and put into operation some plan to alleviate the distress. They also asked for state farms and factories, where the unemployed might work, and for the appointment of permanent commissions to attend to the wants of the permanent class of unemployed.

Greenhalge on the Rise.

Last evening Governor Greenhalge, who, as a guest of the Boston Life Underwriters' association was called upon to speak, referred to the disturbance by saying: "I think I need all your good wishes in the present exigencies. I doubt if any life insurance company would consider me an extraordinary risk to-day. I come from strange and disorderly scenes. I stand here to-night to ask the support of men of orderly minds en masse. It makes my blood boil to find men who claim that Massachusetts laws are unfriendly and unjust to any. I want, and so do you, to give fair play to every citizen of Massachusetts, and to-day no less disorderly persons throughout the streets, is not that a question she must answer? Yes. She will always answer and be true to her principles for equal rights. Therefore I say we have no reason for disorder. We simply want the business men to stand by us."

The leaders of the unemployed demonstration are jubilant over the outcome and voted at a meeting to continue the demonstration until their demands have been granted.

NIPPED BY ICEBERGS.

Frigid Experiences of the Crew of a British Tank Steamer.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—After a passage of great severity occupying 24 days the British tank steamer Baku Standard, Captain Brown, arrived at Point Breeze. She was propelled across by steam generated by the use of oil instead of coal, and the passage was a perfect success. The Baku Standard met with hurricanes and heavy seas throughout, and from Jan. 1 until the 20th she was forced to lie a hurricane from the west-northwest, during which time she drove to leeward 200 miles. On Feb. 6, in latitude 47.32, longitude 47.20, at midnight, she was fast in heavy floe ice and was held captive among icebergs for 14 hours until her head was pointed northeast by east, and her tracks were clear.

The thermometer during the time she was caught in the ice registered 30 degrees below zero, and all hands suffered intensely from the cold. Spirits compared small oil in the binnacle lamps froze tight, and the ship's position during this time was a perilous one. It was impossible for the lookout to stand up regularly, as two hour watches, as they would have been frozen stiff, and the watches were changed frequently.

The Baku Standard began Mar. 27 and increased into a hurricane on the 26th. Jan. 27 the seas ran clear over the vessel and threatened at times to swamp her. When the Standard reached port, she had but five tons of fuel left.

DEADLOCK STILL ON.

The Absent Members of the House Are to Be Arrested.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The deadlock on the Bland seigniorage bill was not broken in the house. Roll call followed roll call until 4 o'clock, when, it being apparent that Mr. Bland could not muster a quorum on his propositions, he moved an adjournment. The high watermark was 176—nine short of a quorum. Deputy sergeants-at-arms went out to all parts of the country to secure absentees under the sanctions order passed Monday, and the house leaders assert most emphatically that the fight will be continued until a quorum is obtained.

The session of the senate was devoid of special interest. Senator Daniel of Virginia concluded his speech on the Hawaiian question, and while supporting warmly the course that has been followed by the administration he declared that now there was nothing to do but recognize the new government and wish it godspeed.

After Senator Daniel's speech the bill for additional printing office facilities was taken up and discussed in a desultory manner the remainder of the day.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New Jersey—Yorktown, J. S. Elwell.

New Yorkstate—Merritt Meredith, M. C. Paris, Forest Home, Fred Northrop. Pikeville, Miss Nellie Davis; South Bay, Dow Stevens; West Albany, E. K. Fuller.

Pennsylvania—Arcola, J. L. Detwiler; Hoboken, Henry Blumling; Lexington, I. O. Grouthamel.

Justice White's Commission.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The commission of Justice White has been made out at the department for Justice and signed by the president, so the new justice may enter upon his judicial duties as soon as he qualifies, which will probably be done when his resignation has been filed with the governor of Louisiana.

National Carnation Society Meet.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 21.—The National Carnation society met here. Twelve states were represented. The Chester county (Pa.) gold medal offered for the highest development of new varieties of pinks was awarded to Fred Dorner of Lafayette, Ind. The banquet given by the state society was largely attended.

A Dead Man Elected.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Feb. 21.—John Arnold, the Republican candidate for justice in the Eighth ward, died on Sunday. The election had been ordered, and there was no time to change the name. The ward is Republican, and Arnold, the dead man, was elected Tuesday.

Governor Hogg Will Plead Guilty.

AUSTIN, Feb. 21.—The warrant in Nacogdoches county against Governor Hogg for violating the game law has not reached the hands of the sheriff. The governor says that if he violated the law he will put in a plea of guilty and pay the fine.

Fine New Church Burned.

ROCKFORD, Ills., Feb. 21.—The Second Congregational church, a handsome edifice just dedicated, which was erected at a cost of over $100,000, was completely gutted by fire, only the walls and tower, 114 feet high, being left standing.

Narrow Escape For Workmen.

TRENTON, Feb. 21.—In the Trenton Iron company's works the great flywheel of the Corliss engine suddenly flew in pieces while running at a high rate. Only one man was slightly injured, although the place was full of workmen.

Rhode Island's Legislative Fight.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 21.—The senate refused to accept the latest house of representatives in grand committee. An effort is being made to persuade the governor to prorogue the house at once.

Pittsburg's Municipal Election Hot.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 21.—The municipal election here on the 27th promises the most exciting ever held in Pittsburg and Alleghany, and the result was a signal victory for the Republicans.

Young Preacher Marries a Pocketbook.

SYRACUSE, Feb. 21.—The case of Irvin Van Wie against John Y. McKane has been decided for the plaintiff, and a judgment of about $5,850 and costs was rendered.

Alleged Robbers Arrested.

CARSON, Nev., Feb. 21.—Jack Dunlap and Ernest Miner have been arrested on a charge of robbing the express car on the Virginia and Truckee road last week.

Anarchists Busy There.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 21.—Circulars setting forth the principles of anarchy have been distributed all over the city of McKeesport, near here.

Veteran Bank President Dead.

RICHMOND, Ind., Feb. 21.—Hon. Martin P. Kingman, president of the Home National bank since its incorporation in 1874, is dead.

Fire In an Opera House.

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 21.—Fire in the Funk Opera House building caused between $60,000 and $70,000 damage.

Boat vs. Sea-Bull Leaves No Contest.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—The Eastern Baseball league opened its annual session at the Fifth Avenue hotel.

GLADSTONE'S FAILURE.

His Expected Attack on the House of Lords Was Weak.

BOMBS FOUND IN PARIS HOTELS.

Another Explosion Does Some Damage, but Does Not Result Fatally—Anarchists Have Almost Terrorized the City—Dreadful Storm May Soon Mar-t at Sea.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—The speech of Mr. Gladstone in the house of commons, in which he was expected to make an attack upon the house of lords in connection with the recent so called obstruction of legislation as evidenced by the amendments made by the peers to each popular measure as the parish councils bill and the employers' liability bill, not to mention the rejection by the house of lords of the home rule bill, was a flat failure. His admirers were disappointed.

The speech of Mr. Gladstone in making his motion lasted only 15 minutes. The premier said distinctly the course of his remarks that he was convinced that a large majority of the working classes were opposed to the house of lords amendments, and therefore the government had no option but to withdraw the bill.

The Radicals, who had been eagerly expecting Mr. Gladstone to make an attack upon the house of lords, showed disappointment as the speech progressed.

The premier in his mildest tones argued simply against the "mischievous" amendment, saying that from all the evidence presented he thought the working classes and friendly societies objected to the house of lords' amendments.

The Bill Withdrawn.

The government, continued Mr. Gladstone, believed that the working people were the best judges in matters which related to their own affairs. And if the amendments were incorporated in the bill the workmen's security would be impaired, and they would be deprived of all the benefits of the bill.

The Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, the Conservative leader, who was also heartily cheered on all sides when he arose, defended the house of lords amendments, claiming that the working people favored them.

Finally the bill, by a vote of 286 to 64, adopted Mr. Gladstone's motion, and amid loud laughter the bill was withdrawn.

The Times says: "The government have placed themselves in a ridiculous and embarrassing position. Mr. Gladstone's followers had expected a great oratorical effort from the premier—something that would inspire them with courage and strike dismay into the trembling peers. They listened instead to one of the feeblest speeches that Mr. Gladstone has delivered for a long time."

The Chronicle calls the debate in the house a ludicrous fiasco and says it would be difficult to imagine more undignified and pointless obsequies. It says: "Mr. Gladstone's speech was totally unworthy of the occasion and of his followers to the bone. The Liberal party has a right to know where it stands. If Mr. Gladstone lives long and infirmities press too heavily upon him for the leadership of an uncompromising crusade, it is for him to say so."

Bombs In Paris Hotels.

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The police believe that yesterday's bomb outrages were the work of an anarchist of the name of Bastard, who recently lived in St. Denis. They are searching for him.

The bomb was exploded in a small hotel, 69 Rue St. Jacques. The hotel is situated in the rear of the College of France. The proprietress of the place, a woman of the name of Calabrud, and two lodgers were injured.

The hotel keeper was alarmed by seeing a bomb lying on a shelf in the room. Without waiting to examine it, she ran from the room and immediately sent for the police.

While awaiting the coming of the officers Miss Calabrusi told two of her lodgers of her discovery, and in company with them she went to the room. As the door of the room was opened there was a terrific explosion, which made a wreck of the room and everything in it. Every window pane in the house was blown into atoms.

The landlady and the two lodgers with her were badly injured. Had they had time to enter the room, there is no question but that they would have been killed.

A bomb similar to the one that exploded in the hotel at 69 Rue St. Jacques was discovered in another small hotel at 47 Faubourg St. Martin. Fortunately the latter bomb was found and safely removed before any damage was done.

Further About the Bomb.

M. Girard of the municipal laboratory, who was called to examine a bomb which was found in the Hotel de l'Esperance, after a great deal of consultation decided that it would be dangerous to remove it and that it must be exploded in the hotel without removal. The bomb had been tied to the top of a table, was bound with wire and was made out of a tin box about nine inches long and six inches wide.

In order to explode the dangerous box M. Girard attached to it two electric cartridges to it and connected these cartridges with electric wires communicating with the street. M. Girard then went down into the street and ordered the police to drive the crowd back and to summon a number of fire engines, as he thought that the house would probably catch fire.

When everything was ready, the wires were connected with an electric battery, and the bomb was exploded. The explosion was followed by a heavy report, and when the police and firemen re-entered the hotel they found the whole of the sixth story wrecked, the floors blown down and furniture smashed to pieces.

Crowds of people throughout the after noon and evening surrounded both hotels. The minister of the interior, M. Raynal, visited the wounded in the Hotel Dieu. Miss Calabrusi is too weak to answer questions, and the police say that she will die.

Naval Battle Expected.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 21.—The following has been received from Rio Janeiro: The recent fighting at Nictheroy is reported to have been more severe in the north than was at first supposed. Before the insurgents were driven off they succeeded in burning the government arsenal and in capturing 18 guns.

It is declared that the government's loss in men amounted to 728, while the insurgents' loss was 272. A naval engagement between the insurgent fleet and the two government squadron is expected in the early part of March.

An attempt has been made by secret partisans of Admiral de Mello to blow up the offices of Tempo, the government journal in this city, with dynamite. The attempt was not successful.

FATAL COLLEGE PRANK.

Cornell Students Asphyxiated by Chlorine Gas.

HAZERS FILLED A HALL WITH IT.

The Freshmen Were Having Their Annual Banquet at the Time—The Colored Cook Died From the Effects of the Gas—Police In Possession of the Place.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 21.—This village has passed through another annual class riot. The occasion was the freshman banquet at the old Masonic hall on Tioga street. For a week previous the under classmen have been at swords' points. Numerous hazings have occurred, and more than once has the spirit outreached its proper bounds. On one occasion a sophomore was attacked by a crowd of freshmen, drew a revolver and snapped many of the trigger, but found to his disappointment that the weapon was empty.

Trouble Was Anticipated.

Last night, however, the spirit reached its height. The city officials, recognizing approaching trouble, tripled the regular police force and added a large number of specials.

The freshmen congregated on the campus and started down the hill to have their feast. When they reached the hall where they were to hold their banquet, they were met by 400 or 500 sophomores, "townies" and others, who proceeded to prevent their entrance to the building.

Potatoes, eggs, stones and what not flew fast and thick. In the melee two of the members were seized by the policemen and quickly dragged to the station, where they were locked up. While the multitude was following the officers and trying to effect the escape of the prisoners the freshmen quietly stole up the stairs and held their spread, after which they indulged in toasts and college songs.

Later the sophomores committed a dastardly trick on the freshmen. Noxious odors filled the air, and the hall was emptied. Several men were carried from the building insensible. The freshmen announces that their enemies placed asafetida in their food and generated chlorine gas about the hall.

A corps of physicians was summoned. Prompt efforts were made to resuscitate the asphyxiated students by the application of emetics and stimulants. Fresh men were wild with rage, and the banquet was suspended. Several waiters were overcome, and others were almost wild with fear.

The hall was taken possession of by the police, who ransacked the corridors and side rooms to find the source of the gas.

Trick Resulted Fatally.

Miss Jackson, a colored woman, who acted as cook for the students, died this morning. She was taken from the hall insensible to the residence of Dr. Lockerby, where she expired. The doctors say that she had been subject to heart troubles and weak lungs.

It is now known that the sophomores obtained possession of a side room and placed a generator of the deadly gas so that it was connected with the banquet hall by means of rubber tubes. Threats of lynching are openly made, one man exclaiming that he would help string up the perpetrator of the outrage.

Escaped In a Load of Clay.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 21.—Details have reached here of the escape from the Chester (Ills.) prison of Joseph S. Hardin, the Centralia (Ills.) train robber, sent up for 20 years. A cart driver permitted him to jump into his vehicle and loaded the cart with clay, completely covering the form of the train robber. There it drove out of the prison, and arriving at the river bank Hardin was dumped with the clay into the river, and it is thought that by prearrangement there was a skiff at hand.

Made Good McKinley's Loss.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 21.—The property which Governor and Mrs. McKinley conveyed to trustees last summer, when the governor was forced to make an assignment by the failure of a Youngstown manufacturer for whom he had indorsed notes, has been transferred back to them. This result is due to the efforts of the Ursines, who have raised the money by private subscriptions.

Think It Was a Murder.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 21.—An unknown man was found horribly mangled at what is known as "Dead Man's crossing," on the Shore line, one mile east of here. No blood stains were found near the body, which leads the coroner and medical examiner to believe the man had been murdered and then placed on the track to obliterate traces of crime.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed, and advertised preparatory to its third reading, and that on the 5th day of March the Common Council to adopt the same.

J. Y. MACKERRAY, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., February 20, 1894.

AN ORDINANCE

An ordinance to regulate and establish the centre-curb and side line and the grade of West Front street, from Grant avenue to a point 150 feet westerly thereof.

The Board of Aldermen of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

The centre-curb and side line as laid down in the petition of Ida F. Bonnell, Margaret M. Bonnell, Mary C. Moore, Mary C. R. Moore, the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, and Joseph G. Lawrence, dated February 2, 1894, on file with the City Clerk, and presented by all the owners of property on either side of that portion of West Front street, hereinafter described, as the centre-curb and side lines and grade of that portion of West Front street between Grant avenue and a point 150 feet westerly thereof, be and the same are hereby established as follows:

The centre line shall begin at an iron monument in the centre line of West Front street at the same in new laid out, established and opened as in intersection with the centre line of Grant avenue, and running from said point in a magnetic course or z. 89 degrees, 30 minutes W., a distance of 150.0 feet to a point; thence on a curve curving to the right with a radius of 1000 feet, a distance of 34.9 feet to a point of tangent; thence S. 89 degrees 31 minutes W., a distance of 100.1 feet to a point; thence S. 89 degrees 31 minutes W., a distance of 100 feet to a point on the westerly line of property owned by Ida Bonnell and others, and Christian J. Hoffman, and the terminus of West Front street as now established; said point being distant 60 feet at right angles from the northwesterly line of the right of way of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey.

The side lines of said street shall be distant 40 feet on each side from the above described centre line, and parallel therewith.

The curb lines of said street shall be distant 36 feet, all feet on each side from the above described centre line and parallel therewith.

Beginning at the westerly curb line of Grant avenue at the established grade of 16.76 feet over the city datum on the northeast curb, and 16.56 feet on the southerly curb, thence going west from Grant avenue as follows:

Grade per 100 feet.

Rise	Fall	Distance	Elevation.
1.50		60	15.45 North 15.25 South
1.875 North		125	16.62
2.625 South		250	16.62
1.11		100	17.46
0.42		400	19.05
Level		150	19.05
	Level	0.33	19.05

to easterly line of property owned by Christian Specht.

Section 2. All ordinances and parts of ordinances so far as they conflict with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Watchung Park Property!

Handsomely Situated BUILDING LOTS Now Offered For Sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station.

The New Watchung Park, with its new streets and avenues, will be one of the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place.

Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly.

Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as they are needed.

Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Stanford and Woodcrest avenues have been located on the old Crominis' ball field.

Just as Property Values jumped in Stanford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the printed map of the property will give the public necessary information as to their location.

GROW'S BIG VOTE.

Elected Congressman at Large by Probably 150,000 Plurality.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 21.—Galusha A. Grow, Republican, was elected congressman at large by a big vote. The returns this morning indicate a Republican plurality in the state of 150,000. This is the greatest majority ever given the Republican ticket in this city and state.

While the members of the Eleventh Ward club of this city were celebrating the victory of their unfortunate candidate a fierce fight occurred in the clubhouse at 532 North Second street, participated. Several barrels of beer had been brought into the house, and this additional weight is supposed to have caused the accident.

The fight was crowded at the time, and a battle royal was precipitated in the room—a distance of about 15 feet. Thirteen men were seriously injured, and several received slight bruises. The defeated candidates had left the room only a few minutes before the accident occurred.

Horse Caused by a Horse.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—An unruly horse kicked over a large can of gasoline at Patrick Ryan's blacksmith shop, and as a result one man is in the hospital suffering with burns which will probably cause his death, and several other men were badly burned about the hands and face. An explosion followed, and immediately there was chaos in Ryan's shop. About 20 horses in the place broke loose in all directions. The shop took fire, but the flames were soon extinguished. Every man in the place was burned.

Governor Werts Makes a Move.

TRENTON, Feb. 21.—The governor, Attorney General Stockton, R. V. Lindabury and Fred Stevens were in conference to-day. It is reported that they have decided to offer the governor's medicine a second time. Albert Adrian

WHAT IS A BARGAIN!

Answer—

A Gold Dollar for 50c Sure.

But they are very scarce just now. The nearest approach to them is the Clearance Sale Bargains now going off rapidly at Edsall's.

Our definition of a bargain, viz: Genuine, good, reasonable goods sold at a less price than their actual value, and this is what we are doing every day in order to reduce our stock prior to removal into our new quarters in the Richardson building.

We are aware that the word "reasonable" is a much abused word, and is largely distrusted by a majority of every dollar's worth." Yet it is here to find a word so expressive to the advertiser as this word.

TRULY, there is such a thing as a genuine bargain, notwithstanding, some will sell half cotton goods for all wool, and "reasonable" for perfect goods, and inferior terms for half cash, and call them bargains. We don't want to put up the cry of "More bollers than flour," but we still say that when an advertiser advertises bargains, or a bargain, we will prove it every time by a personal inspection of the goods. We repeat, emphatically, that you can find now plenty of real bargains, at our "Clearance Sale." New Spring goods in great variety.

ITALIANS ARE DESPERATE.

Threaten Bloodshed If They Are Not Given Work as Well as Citizens.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Feb. 21.—Several weeks ago nearly all the New Castle manufacturers and all the railroads centering here decided that in future they would employ no Italian labor, but would give the work to American citizens. Since then this policy has been strictly carried out. The Italians in this district are in sore straits for food, and many of them in the valley are actually on the verge of starvation.

They have been greatly enraged at the labor bosses, whom they blame with this discrimination, not understanding that it is the owners of the plants who have given the orders against them. Tuesday a well known foreman who has heretofore employed and had charge of from 30 to 50 Italians received a strange letter. It was written in Italian in a dead hand, and the envelops bore the postmark of Lowellville, O.

The letter says the foreman is a spotted man, and that there are men who have said they would take his life or by the knife, revolver or the club. If within one week three Italians are given jobs, his life will be forfeited. It says further that other foremen will be treated the same, as the writer is in "great earnest."

ANXIOUS FOR EDGAR.

She Wanted to Be Sure He Had a Good Safe Place.

A newly married couple who have just come from the far south went to reside in West Philadelphia and on experience on their wedding tour which, though an exciting one at the time, has caused both them and their friends a great deal of merriment since. They had just been married and were ushered on their journey an hour later. The train was running along swiftly, and they were recovering from the excitement of the ordeal through which they had just passed, when the train stopped suddenly, and the brakeman came rushing through the train, pulling down the blinds in a most unceremonious manner.

The bridegroom began to get a little apprehensive, so he told his bride he was going to find out what was the matter. He came back with the news that the train was held up by robbers. The bride's face blanched. Involuntarily she looked at the wedding ring that had been placed on her hand only an hour or so before. She wondered if she begged real hard to the train robbers whether they would leave her at least that. She thought exactly what she was going to say to the bandit when he came for her valuables. Then the conductor came in and warned the passengers, and people hid watches and pocketbooks and jewelry in every conceivable place. Suddenly a report of a revolver, followed by others in quick succession, made all shiver.

"Get down between the seats," hastily said the young husband to his bride. "I won't run over the shadow of a risk."

So, obedient to her new master, she crept down on the floor in security.

There's no danger now," said the man in the next seat reassuringly. Just then several more shots were heard, and the speaker flopped down between the seats. All the other people in the car followed suit, and as they were on all fours in breathless anxiety there was heard in a sweet toned voice, full of suppressed anxiety, "Edgar, dear, have you made a good safe place?"

There was a smile, even in the terrors of the moment, on the faces of many of the passengers. The train rolled on, the robbers going through the passenger coaches.—Philadelphia Press.

Rigorous Training.

"Josiah," said Mrs. Cogniswell to her husband, "do you reckon that our son Hiram will learn to play this game football while he is at college?"

"I don't see why he shouldn't."

"Well," said the old lady, "in that case he may do a good deal toward making home happy when he gits here. The way he used to be able ter handle tramps is a caution."—Washington Star.

THE BEST MAN.

Showing That His Lot Is Not Always a Happy One.

There was a wedding yesterday!

Was there? Gracious, I trust this is not the bridegroom!

Oh, no! The bridegroom and the bride have left for parts unknown. This gentleman was the best man.

He seems somewhat broken up. Is he a young man of intemperate habits?

No; his habits are not bad. He is simply a victim of matrimony.

I daresay he had expired himself to the lady's hand and has been drowning out his disappointment?

No. That is not it either. There were no two ex-aspirers among the ushers, but the best man was simply a faithful friend of the groom.

His fidelity seems to have brought him in for some onerous obligations.

It is true. His responsibilities and the anxieties of his position have aged him somewhat.

Is it indeed so serious a job to be a best man?

Indeed it is.

Why, what is there to do?

For 24 hours before the wedding the best man is the responsible owner of the groom. He must make sure that he produce the groom at the church, clean shaven, suitably attired and in his right mind, or else to take his place. If the groom shows symptoms of running away, he must shackle him. Some best men invariably handcuff themselves to their grooms on the morning of the day before the wedding as a reasonable precaution against accidents, for when a best man's confidence has been abused once or twice it makes him cautious.

At the convivial exercise of the day before the wedding several score of the groom's more intimate friends always insist on taking drinks with him. The cumulative effect of so much sympathetic stimulant is liable to make trouble, so the best man does not permit the groom to overindulge his feelings. The usual way is for the best man to act as the groom's proxy in this matter, so that the night before the wedding is full of trouble for him. Nevertheless he must be up early the next morning, must see that the bridesmaids have all received their bouquets, that he has the minister's money in the right pocket, that he has a wedding ring in each of his pockets, that the carriage orders are understood, that the groom has made adequate provision for his wedding journey and that the ushers are presentable and can walk.

All this he must do without letting the groom leave his sight. When the wedding is over and he has consigned his charge to the care of the bride, he takes the groom's place as host and sees in particular that the groom's friends from out of town are suitably entertained and shipped home at convenient intervals on their proper trains. Only when the last of them is gone can he call his man and go home to bed.

Is a man ever best man more than once?

Some very popular men have been best men as often as a dozen times, but usually one or two experiences are enough to convince the experimenter that matrimony itself is a less trying ordeal.—Life.

Keeping Warm.

The boy was sitting out on the front steps of the house shivering as the policeman passed by at midnight.

"What are you doing here?" asked the officer.

"Tendin to my business," answered the boy cheerfully.

"Well, I guess you'd better go in the house. You'll freeze here."

"That's my business. You go on about yours."

"This is mine."

"Is it?" said the boy chuckled.

"Yes. Why don't you go in?"

"Cause I don't want to," said the boy, getting up and slapping his arms around himself. "Me and pap got home about two minutes ago, and he told me to wait outside while he went in first, for he thought mother'd make it hot enough for two. I know mother, so you go on about your business, and if I freeze, you won't have to pay for the funeral," and the officer moved off to the street corner and waited for the boy to go in.—Detroit Free Press.

JENNINGS IS VICTOR.

THE WESTFIELD CHURCH FIGHT WON BY THE RECTOR.

A Church Against a Church and People Against Rector, But the Supreme Court Decides that Mr. Jennings is Right.

The most important and most bitterly contested ecclesiastical fight in the history of this State was brought to an end to-day by the decision of the Supreme Court in favor Rev. Joseph B. Jennings in his fight against the Right Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop, and fifteen others composing the Standing Committee of the Diocese of New Jersey and officers of Grace Church of Westfield. When dismissed from office by order of the Bishop and Standing Committee, Mr. Jennings took the contest into the Supreme Court. He obtained a writ of certiorari commanding the Bishop and his associates to send up all the papers in the case. The Bishop and his co-defendants, moved to dismiss the suit, but after full argument of the respective counsel, Mr. Jennings was again successful and the motion was denied. Then the merits of the case were gone into detail, and testimony of many witnesses on both sides in Plainfield and Trenton was taken. The printed testimony made a volume of 600 folios.

The importance of the case induced the court to hold it under further consideration until to-day when an opinion of twelve typewritten pages was filed. The opinion in favor of Mr. Jennings and decides that the proceedings against him were in violation of the canons of the church, wrongfully attempting to deprive him of his personal and property rights. The proceedings are declared to be null and void and the order of the Bishop is set aside.

Mr. Craig A. Marsh has won this fight for Mr. Jennings against great odds.

THE SECOND STORY THIEF AGAIN.

An Unsuccessful Attempt to Enter Mrs. Ulrich's House.

The second story thief and his ladder has made their appearance in Plainfield again. About nine o'clock Wednesday night Mrs. Frederick Ulrich of East Fifth street saw a person climbing a ladder that had been placed against the back part of the house.

She called to him and the man jumped down and ran.

The matter was reported to Chief Grant who made an investigation.

It Will be Thought a Joke a Year From Now.

A number of Plainfielders tendered a surprise party to Miss Mamie Wilson, at Liberty Corner, last evening. The following were present: Miss Cora Burdick, Miss Lottie Happy, Miss Mary Stiles, Miss Mamie Wilson; Miss Kittie Beckman, Miss Emma Smalley, Miss Jennie Happy, and Messrs. Daniel Gittis, S. B. Proud, Edward Sofield, Frank Splane, George Wilson, George Herring, William Pope and Henry Sealer.

Whether it was because the collation was so bounteous and the guests appetites so keen that extra weight was added or whether "that tired feeling" had extended to the wagon, anyhow, at Millington the axle broke. The young men found an old farm wagon, filled it with straw, and finally got home, tired, stiff and sore, at about five o'clock this morning.

A Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Rogers celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage by a silver wedding at their home on West Fourth street, last night. About 75 guests were present. The rooms were prettily decorated with flowers. A very pleasant time was enjoyed. Among the guests present were friends from Brockton, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers received many beautiful presents, among them being a handsome silver service.

Drum Corps Dance.

About 120 persons were present at the dance given by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, in Hulett's Hall, Wednesday night. Guests were present from Brooklyn, Bound Brook, Plainfield, Somerville, and Cranford. It was one of the most successful dances ever given by the Corps. The Committee of Arrangements comprised Frank Manchester, L. B. Bodine, D. Bodine, H. G. Adams, H. C. Ackerman and A. Wilson.

The Rose Social Club.

The Rose Social Club was organized Tuesday night in North Plainfield. Its aim is to promote sociability. The following officers were elected:

President—Miss Jennie Sutphen.
Vice-President—Miss Maggie Shepard.
Treasurer—Miss Cora Bird.
Chairman of Entertainment Committee—Mrs. Samuel Taynor.

The club will hold its first sociable on March 8th.

Their Horse Fell Dead.

Yesterday morning Mr. and Mrs. Peter Newmiller, of South Sterling, started to drive to Plainfield. When near Wilson's stone crusher their horse stumbled and fell dead. The animal had not been sick and seemed very frisky when leaving home.

FIREMEN DANCE.

A Merry Time in Zephyr's Rooms Wednesday Night.

Wednesday night the members of Zephyr Hook & Ladder Co. and the wives of those who were married, and the "he's" of those who were not, had a dance in Zephyr's rooms, at the new fire department headquarters. The wives of the married members got the dance up. Music for dancing was furnished by Prof. O'Reilly. Refreshments were served. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Mehl, Mr. and Mrs. William Blumm, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Miller, Mr. and Mrs. C. Blumm, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Blimm, Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wood, Mr. and Mrs. William Sharp, Miss Lena Keller, Mrs. Hill, Miss Katie Blumm, Miss Annie Speers, Miss Nellie Blumm, Miss Annie Collins, Miss Jennie McKay, Miss Maggie Loughlin, Miss Minnie Oldman, and Messrs. Charles Glaenzer, George Babcock, Robert Loughlin, Fred Richards, George Estes, George Ball, Edward Vroom, George Strayer, Walter Henley, Jacob Blimm and Peter Blimm.

PERSONAL.

Dr. Stephenson of West Fourth street is ill with the grip.

Messrs. J. M. and D. E. Titsworth left's town to-day on a business trip.

Mr. Roland Tomlinson, of La Grande avenue, is visiting in Brooklyn.

Mr. Daniel Aller, of this place, will soon remove to Plainfield.—Dunellen Call.

Miss Hattie Polhemus of Jersey City is visiting Miss Stevens of Grandview avenue.

Miss Hattie Garretson of Lee place is visiting her sister, Mrs. Bembrook, at Somerville.

Mrs. S Smalley of this city spent a few days with Mrs. Robert Lowrie of Dunellen this week.

Mr. Edward Tomlinson and Mr. Cyrus Moore, of this city, spent yesterday with friends in Metuchen.

Mr. Frank Hampston, a salesman in the employ of C. Scheptlin & Co., spent yesterday in Somerville.

Mr. Phelps of Bound Brook preached a Lenten sermon in Grace church on East Seventh street last night.

The condition of Mr. Garret Vanwinkle of Madison avenue, who is ill with pneumonia, is reported changed for the better.

Mr. Wm D. Murray will speak at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Sunday, at 4.15 p. m. L. G. Marsh of Maine and the Association choir will sing.

Mrs. Rhoda Moore the mother of Mr. Samuel Moore of Manning avenue, North Plainfield, died very suddenly Tuesday night at her home at South Stirling. She was sick less than 24 hours. Her husband, Augustus, survives her.

A pretty home wedding took place at Dunellen Wednesday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mr. D. S. Campbell, when their daughter, Miss Hattie May Campbell, was united in marriage to J. Newton Apgar, also of Dunellen.

Col. T. W. Higginson, who is to lecture at the Casino next Monday night, on "American Periodical Literature" is one well fitted to speak on that subject, having been for many years a frequent contributor to the magazines. It is not often that he can be heard outside the immediate vicinity of Boston, for it is difficult to get him away from Cambridge home. He is described as a very interesting talker and persuasive orator. An exchange says: "In personal appearance Col. Higginson is handsome and commanding. His hair is silvered but a little, and is as ample as a Hartford football player's. His carriage is graceful and erect. The square, scholarly-looking chin and his keen gray eyes are the most prominent features of his countenance. He and Dr. Holmes are the only ones of the old Cambridge writers left, and apparently they are good for a number of years yet. Perhaps of all his accomplishments he is proudest of the fact that his school history of the United States has had a sale of 200,000."

Colonial Tea at Monroe Avenue Chapel.

The ladies of the Monroe avenue Chapel held a very delightful Colonial Tea in the Chapel Wednesday night. The ladies endeavored faithfully to make the affair a success, and their wishes were gratified. The large main room was beautifully decorated and flowers in profusion adorned the tables. During the evening delightful music was rendered by the young people and a brief reading of the Ladies' Aid Society also took place and witty sayings superceded business matters.

Dr. Richards' Lecture on the World's Fair.

Standing room was at a premium at Hope chapel last night, for the building was packed by an attentive and interested audience, who had attended to hear Rev. Dr. Richards, pastor of the Crescent avenue church, lecture on the World's Fair. The lecture was illustrated by a stereopticon operated by Mr. Cook of Atlantic Highlands.

Mr. Chapman's New Position.

Mr. W. B. Chapman, the leader of the Metropolis will not lead that society next year, as he has signed a contract, which, to carry out, will take up all his time leading in New York.

SECOND N. J. CAVALRY.

SURVIVING MEMBERS MEET IN THIS CITY.

Welcomed in Winfield Scott Post Room. Mayor Gilbert Present—A Feast Prepared by the Ladies.

FOR the purpose of celebrating their fourth annual re-union the surviving members of the Second New Jersey Cavalry Association gathered in this city yesterday in the Post room of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R.

President Yard of Farmingdale presided, who, after the meeting had been opened with prayer by Mr. F. A. Pullan, made a few remarks, calling the attention of the members to the fact that their ranks were growing thinner, and that there was no chance of getting recruits. Their places would never be filled. In years to come there would be no Grand Army Veterans. It behooves us, he said, to think of these things and so live that our acts will be an honor to hand down to our children. In the past year many members of the Second New Jersey Cavalry have been called home to give an account of their deeds.

The report of the finance committee, treasury and secretary were read, showing the association to be in good condition financially. The reports were accepted.

The following members were present: President A. A. Yard, of Farmingdale; Mr. W. H. Smith, of New Brunswick, N. J., Mr. W. Walker, of Cranbery, N. J.; Mr. H. H. Smith, of Bristol, Pa.; Mr. John Headett, of Audulusia, Pa.; Mr. L. B. Bernard, of Newark, N. J.; Mr. E. P. Mont, of Hamilton Square, Pa.; Mr. F. A. Pullan, of Trenton, N. J.; Mr. G. M. Hunter, of Providence, R. I.; Mr. M. Goff, of Cookstown, N. J.; Mr. J. Tomison, of Somerville, N. J.; Mr. A. Apgar, of Elizabeth, N. J.; Mr. Fred Debar, of Manlyunk, Pa.; Mr. Thomas Dennis, of Somerville, N. J.; Mr. J. Eadc, of Newark, N. J.; Mr. W. Hoffman, of Somerville, N. J.; Mr. J. W. Stryker, of Raritan, N. J.; Mr. Daniel Shook, of Manlyunk, Pa.; Mr. J. Hampton, of Hightstown, N. J.; Mr. J. D. Kemball, of Madison, N. J.; Mr. W. C. Smith, of Plainfield, N. J.; Mr. W. F. Bardwick, of Dunbury, Conn.; Mr. Geo. Henrickson, of Asbury Park, N. J.; Mr. A. S. Hill, of Trenton, N. J.; Mr. A. Garreton, of Hightstown, N. J.; Mr. M. Gaffney, of Brooklyn; Mr. Chas. H. Paulus, of Irvington, N. J.; Mr. O. Van Doren, of Somerville, N. J.; Mr. Jackson Lytle, of Catasauqua, Pa.; J. Sparling, of Elizabeth, N. J., and W. H. Arndt, of Mauch Chunk, Pa.

The following officers were elected:

President—W. C. Smith, of Plainfield.

Vice-Presidents—John Hads, "Co. A."; T. Dennis, "Co. B."; A. Applegate, "Co. C"; A. Haynes, "Co. D."; F. A. Pullan, "Co. E"; W. H. Smith, "Co. F."; J. Lynn, "Co. G."; J. Sparling, "Co. H."; S. Gotsinger, "Co. I"; Apgar, "Co. M."

Chaplain—W. Arndt.

Sergeant-at-Arms—N. MacLead.

Secretary and Treasurer—A. S. Hill.

The new president, W. C. Smith, was escorted to the chair in accepting which he made a few pleasant remarks, stating that it was more than he expected to be elected to preside over such a body of men, and that he would endeavor to perform the duties pertaining to the office to the best of his ability.

Trenton was selected as the place for holding the next meeting.

Mayor Gilbert was then received with three cheers, and made a very patriotic address, in which he said he often regretted that he had no war record but that now he supposed he never would have as the old veterans before him had done their work so complete. When the Mayor finished speaking he was unanimously elected an auxiliary member of the association.

Mr. M. C. Dobbins read a letter of regret from Mayor Saunders of North Plainfield, who had been unable to attend.

Adjournment was then made to the room below, where one of those bountiful collations that only the ladies of the Relief Corps know how to prepare, was in waiting.

As the veterans marched into the room the ladies sang "As we go marching through Georgia."

After all had eaten three cheers were given for the Ladies' Relief Corps, the Second New Jersey Cavalry and Winfield Scott Post.

Upon re-assembling in the Post rooms there was considerable discussion over the changing of the date of meeting. It was moved that the day be changed from February 22 to September 22d. The motion was lost, and the date of meeting remains unchanged.

Messrs. A. S. Hill, F. Pullan and A. A. Yard were appointed a committee to arrange for the next re-union.

A committee, comprising Messrs. Bernard, Yard and Applegate, was appointed to draft resolutions upon the death of Col. York and Capt. Pelouze.

A son of the late Capt. Pelouze was elected an honorary member.

A resolution was adopted extending a vote of thanks to the Mayor of the city of Plainfield, the Ladies' Relief Corps and to Winfield Scott Post, for their kind reception of the association.

The meeting was one considered it the most enjoyable re-union ever held.

Mr. Henry stated that if the association held a re-union as the one of '94 their ranks would grow instead of diminish. Several new members were taken in yesterday.

It was explained that at former re-unions their receptions by Posts had not been of the most cordial order. President Smith explained that the reception accorded to the Second New Jersey Cavalry Association was no more than Winfield Scott Post and the Relief Corps accorded to every regiment that had held re-unions here.

Mr. Applegate made a very stirring and patriotic address and the association closed its business, after which a pleasing programme, arranged by the ladies, was rendered.

The Regiment was mustered in the United States service on Sept. 25, 1863, at Trenton, N. J., by First Lieut. Joseph Pass, Fifth United States Cavalry. The Regiment when leaving Trenton had 1,142 officers and privates. They left Trenton on the fifth of October, 1863, proceeded to Washington, D. C., and soon after crossed into Virginia. On the ninth of November '63, they proceeded to Eastport, Miss., and joined the army of the south-west. At different times during the year of '64 the strength of the Regiment was increased by recruits and substitutes. The regiment continued in active service nearly eight months after the war. The Regiment was first attached to a brigade—Stoneman's Cavalry Division of the Potomac. Then to the First Brigade, First Cavalry Division Army of the Tennessee, and then to the First Brigade, Second Division Cavalry Corps, Military Division, West, Miss. The Regiment took active part in 29 general engagements, besides a number of skirmishes, as follows: Fairfax, Va., Oct. 17, '63; Quaw, Miss., Dec. 4, '63; Jackson, Tenn., Dec. 20, '63; near Moscow, Tenn., Feb. 13, '64; Aberdeen, Miss., Feb. 19, '64; West Point, Miss., Feb. 20 and 21st, '64; Ivy Farm, Miss., Feb. 22d, '64; Okolona, Miss., Feb. 23d, '64; Tallahatchie River, Miss., Feb. 25, '64; Salem, Tenn., April 10, '64; Bolivar, Tenn., May 2, '64; Holly Springs, Miss., May 24, '64; Corinth, Miss., June 6, '64; Ripley, Miss., June 7, '64; Hatchie River, Miss., June 8, '64; Guntown, Miss., June 10, '64; Sulkrum's Bridge, Miss., June 11, '64; Davis Mills, (on Hatchet River,) Tenn., June 12, '64; Utica, Miss., July 12, '64; Grand Gulf, Miss., July 14, '64; Port Gibson, Miss., July 15 and 16, '64; Grand Gulf, Miss., July 17, '64; Jackson, Miss., July 20, '64; Abbyville, Miss., Aug. 10, '64; Tallahatchie River, Miss., Aug. 14, '64; Teppo River, Miss., Aug. 15, '64; Waterford, Miss., Aug. 19, '64; Near Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 12 and 13, '64; Syracuse, Mo., Oct. 1, '64; Big Blue, Kansas, Oct. 23, '64; Lone River, Kansas, Oct. 23 to 25, '64; Fort Scott, Ark., Oct. 26, '64; Big Lake, Ark., Nov. 7 and 8, '64; Mine Creek, Kan., Dec. 25, '64; Egypt Station, Miss., Dec. 28, '64; Spanish Fort, Mobile bay, April 5, '65; Fort Blakeley, (Mobile bay,) April 10, '65; Blakeley, Ala., April 10, '65; Near Montgomery, Ala., April 24, '65. EXCELSIOR'S 25TH ANNIVERSARY.

Scotch Plains Firemen Celebrate Their Organization.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1, of Scotch Plains, Wednesday evening was attended by Chief Dagen, Second Assistant Murray, and Foreman W. T. Newman and Assistant Foremen L. M. Donavan and Chas. Graves of Gazelle Engine Co., and Foremen R. R. Rogers and Assistant Foremen Smith and Hand, from Plainfield.

The firemen were welcomed by Foreman W. B. Noble. The Rev. Dr. Parks offered prayer. First Assistant Foreman Geo. Nichol, made a speech. Second Assistant Foreman W. H. Brower, delivered a historical address and gave some interesting personal reminiscences since the organization of the company. Other speakers were: James R. Martine, William Cooper, who gave a humorous history of Scotch Plains, as discovered by Columbus, as he sailed up Green brook, County Attorney Mc Clure, Chief Deane, T. A. Gear, Geo. Miller, Chief Cooper, Hamilton, Harry, Editor Pogsall, Rev. Dr. Parks, John Robinson, T. J. Nicholl, J. C. Moore, and Messrs. Seeley, Hall, Stanbury, Stevens, and Smith.

Washington's Birthday at the Library.

The public library was very prettily decorated yesterday in celebration of the birthday of the "Father of Our Country." Handsome American flags were draped on the walls, instilling a feeling of patriotism. On the tables were placed numerous relics of Revolutionary fame, such as large horse-pistols, bayonets and many other implements of warfare, many of which were found near this city.

An original oil-painting of George Washington and another of Washington after the evacuation of New York, adorned the walls, and were much admired.

A spinning wheel, and an autograph letter, Washington's continental money, and a regimental coat which was worn in Revolutionary times by a brother of Ethan Allen were also exhibited and excited much curiosity. The public is indebted to Miss Afsma for her untiring efforts to make the day a success, and to Mrs. Calhoun, Gen. Sterling, Col. Dietrich, Mrs. S. A. Glass, Mrs. J. K. Meyers, Mrs. Haurand, Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, Mrs. F. O Ohl, Mrs. Duckspeard and Mrs. Stewart for the loan of large American flags and expressly to Mrs. J. K. Meyers for her artistic ideas in the arrangement of "Old Glory."

Visiting physicians took advantage of the opportunity offered them and attended yesterday.

Hibernians Honor the Memory of Washington.

At a State Convention of the Ancient Order of Hibernians held at New Brunswick, N. J., Feb. 22, 1894, the following resolutions were adopted:

We, the Ancient Order of Hibernians of New Jersey, in convention assembled on this the natal day of General Washington, do hereby attest our reverence for the memory of he who was the grandest personally in the world's history, and we especially cherish the memory of those traits of his character that evidenced his hearty devotion to the principal of man's political equality and his jealousy for a thorough compliance on the part of every American citizen of the spirit of religious liberty and toleration; and we regard the life of Washington as the best example for us to imitate as liberty-loving, law abiding and patriotic American citizens.

Messrs. E. Casey and Joseph Galbraith, of this city, were present Mr Casey was the delegate of Union County.

Rahway's Chief of Police Suspended.

Mayor Daly of Rahway has sent the following official letter to the Chief of Police at Headquarters:

To Augustus R. Crane, Chief of Police, Rahway, N. J.

You are hereby suspended as a member of the Police Department of the city of Rahway until further notice.

J. J. DALY, Mayor.

The above letter caused lots of talking. Mayor Daly has been receiving complaints of late and repeatedly warned Chief Crane that things must be changed for the better.

The immediate cause for the Mayor's summary action was because Crane allowed a man to escape on Monday against whom there was a charge of assault. William Brunt of the Forty-acre road (Union Township line, was the complainant.

FABLES FOR CHILDREN.

THE LITTLE GIRL.

Once upon a Time there was a Little Girl about so high, who lived very, very Naughty and had pulled her Mamma very much during

Her Mamma shaked her severely, and without avail.

And she wrote a fierce and terrible Lion that had run away and he in a wild week, and she was as hungry as the Little Girl was naughty.

The Little Girl's Mamma had heard of this terrible Lion, so when she found that her gentle reproof was insufficient she took off her Slipper and hallooed with painful accuracy to the Little Girl, because the fierce and terrible Lion was away off in the African desert and the offense unavailable.

Mother's slipper in the hand is worth two lions in the African desert.

THE LITTLE BOY.

Harry Godwin was a nice little Boy, and he had a great Yellow Mastiff many sizes too large for him, but it was a Love-Match, Harry's big combination, and his kind parents hoarded the Mastiff at a sacrifice.

Harry was too good to ever play good and bad Boy at Sliding.

Little Boys should never be lazy.

One day his dear Mother sent him to the butcher shop for three pounds of liver.

"Where is the liver?" said that beast!" whined Harry, the lazy Boy.

"Let Carlo help you carry it," said his Mother, who loved Harry. "It is almost as if the animal died for nothing as you are."

Harry went off grumbling, with Carlo at his heels.

In Thurman and 30 minutes Harry returned the butcher shop being three squares and a half away.

"Where is the liver?" asked his dear Mother.

"Carlo is bringing it," replied the lazy Harry, wiping the perspiration off on his sleeve.

In 10 minutes more Carlo came up to Harry with a large wag on his tail.

"Where that liver?" asked Harry's Mother emphatically.

"Carlo's carrying it," whimpered Harry feeling the rentile.

"But I don't see it," exclaimed the Boy's Mother.

"That's 'cause it's on the inside of him," explained the lazy Boy, much to his Mother's chagrin and disappointment.

UPROAR IN THE HOUSE.

Arrest of Congressmen For Non-attendance Caused It.

CUMMINGS SCARED OFF A DEPUTY.

General Doe Strikes Mode a Democratic Protest Against What He Considered an Indignity—Blood's Efforts to Get a Quorum Stirred Up Some Lively Session.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Washington's birthday session of the house was marked by the most turbulent and disorderly scenes. Mr. Bland, clinging to the idea that he could obtain a quorum for his motion to close debate on the seigniorage bill and nettled at his continued failure for the past week, refused to allow the house to adjourn over the national holiday. When the house met, however, although he still declined to entertain any propositions to compromise with the opposition on its measures, upon the representation of certain western Republicans that they would cease filibustering and support the measure if it would give more additional time for debate, he moved that the debate continue until Saturday, but he did not get a vote on his amended proposition.

Exciting events growing out of the wholesale arrest of members in compliance with the resolution adopted on Monday led to disorder and tumult, which, after continuing for hours, was suddenly terminated in an adjournment. Mr. Cummings precipitated it by opening an attempt to arrest him on the floor.

Mr. Cummings Defiant.

Representative Cummings of New York came into the middle aisle of the house just as the session was about to open. Deputy Hill stepped up to him and notified him that by virtue of the warrant he held in his hands he was under arrest. Cummings resisted and his parole taken. The congressman flushed and took the matter seriously. He stepped back and in bitter language denounced the effort to arrest him. He refused to recognize the validity of the warrant.

"I give you fair warning," said Mr. Cummings, "that if you touch me you act at your peril."

For a moment it looked as though there would be serious trouble, as Mr. Cummings plainly intimated that he intended to resent the slightest touch indicating arrest by the use of force. The deputy quickly withdrew, however, as the orders of the sergeant-at-arms are to avoid indignities to congressmen in every way possible.

Mr. Bland of New Hampshire asked unanimous consent that the clerk, in honor of the day, read to the house the farewell address of Washington. Mr. Pendleton objected. The chair then stated the question to be upon Mr. Bland's demand for the previous question upon his motion to discharge the committee of ways and means.

As the house was dividing Mr. Sickles of New York, standing on his crutches in the center aisle, rose to a point of order. The question, stating that he had a question of the highest personal privilege to present.

"I am informed," said he, "that I am under arrest. I demand to know by what authority."

Sickles Wouldn't Sit Down.

Mr. Dockery, who was in the chair, declared that Mr. Sickles could not interrupt the proceedings while the house was dividing. Mr. Sickles, however, insisted on being heard, and Mr. Terry of Arkansas ordered him to order. The speaker pro tem. ordered Mr. Sickles to take his seat.

Mr. Sickles declined to sit down. The excitement grew more intense. Members crowded about General Sickles and debuched from the aisle into the area in front of the speaker's chair. The shouts of the members were deafening. "There ought to be some way of squelching him," shouted Mr. Merredith. But Mr. Sickles stood firm and undaunted in the face of the storm. "I just wanted to know if he was under arrest and whether he had a right to vote.

"Has he any spirits at all?" asked Mr. Wilson of Washington.

The chair directed the rule to be read, following which Mr. Sickles appealed to the house to be allowed to make a statement, and Mr. Post of Illinois moved that he be allowed to explain. Mr. Springer insisted that Mr. Sickles should take his seat.

"Don't do that!" shouted Mr. Wilson. "Don't you see he is a cripple. Don't make him sit down and get up. You can bump at any time." [Laughter.]

A moment later, while the chair was attempting to get the impending riot, Mr. Cummings rose in his place, and with uplifted arm and ringing voice he called out, "You did not call him to order at Gettysburg." [Applause.] During all this time Mr. Dockery had been counting the house, and at this point he announced that the announcement of the previous question had been carried—97 to 0.

Scene of Wild Disorder.

The complications raised by the alleged discovery of the faulty character of the warrant was such that Mr. Outhwaite, in order to obtain a breathing space, moved an adjournment.

Mr. Adams tried to make a statement, but the chair declined to recognize him pending the motion to adjourn. The motion was lost—86 to 135. As soon as the announcement of the vote was made Mr. Sickles declared that he objected to further proceedings under this warrant.

"If does not contain a single name," he said, "and is absolutely void. The sergeant-at-arms is liable to an action by each member who has been arrested under it."

Mr. Springer insisted that the warrant was authorized by the house. Mr. Reed then stepped up and to change the form of his motion so as to excuse Mr. Adams on the ground that the street was not authorized.

"The gentleman from Maine cannot interpolate his motion," said Mr. Springer, rising and the chair. "But he has done so," replied Mr. Reed, with the utmost sang froid. A storm of jeers and hoots from members tried to make points of order. The tangle and confusion seemed hopeless, and in the midst of the din Mr. Bland moved to adjourn. "Are you going to adjourn and leave us in chains," asked Mr. Sickles in a mock piteously appealing fashion.

The motion to adjourn was then put. As Mr. Bland, the recognized leader of the fight, had made it, his supporters voted with him, one of them—Mr. Pendleton of Texas—standing on top of his desk in the rear of the hall. It was carried—132 to 101—and the house closed one of the most exciting and disorderly sessions of this congress by adjourning.

Tariff Items on the Tuesday.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Democratic members of the ways and means committee are much disturbed over the situation concerning the tariff bill. They say the bill will not day be made a doubtful effort to agree upon the schedules of the bill so as to insure its passage. They did not make marked progress, according to all reports, and they will continue to-day. Sessions today and Saturday are ordered for other official business, as it is understood the committee has not adjourned until Monday.

When her the call for a caucus that was circulated shall be considered seriously will depend upon the success of the Democratic senators in reaching an agreement without this conference. The call was circulated quite vigorously for a short time during the early part of the session, and after about 15 names had been secured the effort was suspended. It was presented, as a matter of fact, to those who were known to be urging changes in the bill, the result being that many of those in accord with the subcommittee on the tariff were ignorant of the fact that the call was in circulation when spoken to upon the subject.

There is little doubt but that Mr. Gorman is in accord with the movement for a caucus, for it developed that he was present at the conference in Senator Butler's room, in which the circulation of the call was decided upon. No senators took part in this conference—Messrs. Gorman, Butler, Hill, Murphy, Brice and Caffery.

It is said that Republicans are being asked if they would support the bill in case Democratic senators should vote against it. Senator Pettigrew of South Dakota and Senator Dubois of Idaho have both been seen by the correspondent, and both said emphatically that it was not possible for the committee to agree on and report a bill which would insure their votes.

LOYAL PHILADELPHIANS.

A British Flag on a City Official's House Had to Be Handed In.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—There was a great commotion in the Thirty-third ward of this city when A. T. Wadsworth, a member of the common council from that ward, unfurled a British flag over his house. A number of neighbors held an indignation meeting, and a committee was appointed to wait upon the councilman and request him to haul down the obnoxious emblem.

When the committee arrived at the house, the councilman was not at home, but his wife informed the visitors that the flag had been put up, and it was going to stay. The committee withdrew, but they had hardly had time to make their report when the councilman, who had heard something about the angry threats of his constituents, returned to his home and hauled down the distasteful piece of bunting. Feeling ran high in the ward for a time, and if the flag had not been removed there seems little doubt that force would have been used.

A recent act of the vestry of Christ's Protestant Episcopal church, which is located on Second street, in the heart of the wholesale district, and which is one of the oldest churches in the country, is also causing considerable excitement. Washington was a worshiper at Christ's church when he was in Philadelphia, and in 1777 abbust of George II, which had adorned the altar of the church, was taken down and stored in the attic. Within a few days the vestry has caused the bust to be cleaned and it again occupies its former place in front of the church. Several members of the congregation have protested vigorously, and there may be trouble in the directory over it.

Dying Man Confessed Three Murders.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Ark., Feb. 23.—Forty years ago a woman living at this place named Gambolls was killed. Living with her was a man named Charley Crouch, and suspicion pointed to him. At that time, however, nothing could be proved, and he was discharged. Crouch has just died at Fayetterille, and before expiring he confessed to the crime. He also confessed to the murder of a man named Rodgers at Fayetterille several years ago and also to the murder of a man at the same place.

Joseph Jefferson's Father-in-law Dead.

CHESTER, Pa., Feb. 23.—Dr. Warren, father of Mrs. Joseph Jefferson, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wentworth, at the age of 80 years. Mr. Warren came of a remarkable theatrical family. His father, William Warren, for many years was manager of the old Chestnut Street theater in Philadelphia, where Henry was born. His brother was William Warren, the celebrated comedian of the Boston theater.

Rogers Will Accept Service.

TRENTON, Feb. 23.—Under urgent call the Republican senators came to Trenton to confer on the course of action in the quo warranto proceedings against President Rogers. That official has accepted service under advice of his counsel, but there is a difference of opinion among the Republicans as to whether they should admit the jurisdiction of the court and abide by its decision or not.

Governor Hogg Arrested.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 23.—Albert White of this county, armed with a warrant from Navaro Inches county, arrested Hon. James H. Hogg, governor of Texas, for alleged violation of the peace in Corsicana last week while in Navaro Inches a few weeks ago. The white matter is to vent personal spite, but the governor gracefully yielded and gave the required bond, and if guilty, he says, he will promptly pay the fine.

Football in the Snow.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 23.—The Cosmopolitans of New York and the All Philadelphia teams played a game of football under the association rules at Manheim park. There were three inches of snow on the field, making good playing almost impossible. The teams were evenly matched, and after the two 45 minute halves the game was called with the score a tie.

Another Monument For Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 23.—Baltimore is to further add to her title of the Monumental City by the erection of a handsome monument to the value of Major Samuel Ringgold, Lieutenant Colonel William H. Watson and Captain Randolph Ridgely, who fell in the war with Mexico.

Counterfeiters of Gold Coins.

WHEELING, Feb. 23.—Deputy United States Marshal Craddock, of Washington arrested John Haley in Palmer, charged with passing counterfeit gold coins. It is believed that a gang of counterfeiters is located somewhere in the vicinity.

Not Friendly to McKane.

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Justice Brennan denies that an application for a certificate of reasonable doubt in the case of McKane has been made to him by Judge Newton of Syracuse, or by any one else.

TWAIN ON WASHINGTON.

Mark Explains Why He Feels Lonesome at Times.

HIS SPEECH AT FAIRHAVEN, MASS.

Mr. Clemens Makes Some Remarks to the Citizens on the Genius of the Dead and on Lawyers and Tells of His Watermelon Experience.

FAIRHAVEN, Mass., Feb. 22.—The Fairhaven town hall was formally presented to the town by Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil company. It is a magnificent structure, cost $500,000 and is the culmination of many sumptuous gifts given by Mr. Rogers to the town of his birth. The dedication exercises will last two days and terminate with a grand ball. Governor Greenhalge, Mayor Matthews of Boston, Mark Twain and others spoke.

Mr. Clemens (Mark Twain) said:

"We all recognize the value of this building as an example and a suggestion—a suggestion to any who are moved by love for their fellow men to make gifts to them of hospitals or town halls or libraries; to build these things while they are alive, not wait till they are dead. If you do it while you are alive, it is really done and well done, and if you wait till you are dead there is but a barren result and a divided profit. You get credit for the intention, and the lawyers get the money. The stomachs of the lawyers of this land are distended to utter discomfort with the elemosynary architecture that they have swallowed. In all this world there is no joy like to the joy a lawyer feels when he sees a good hearted, inconsiderate person erecting a free library, or a town hall, or a hospital in his will. He smiles the smile that only he knows how to smile and goes into training for the anaconda act.

On Lawyers.

"Perhaps no one has ever known a dead man to try to do even the least little simple thing without making a botch of it. The truth is, a dead man ought to be still and keep quiet, and try to behave. But you can't teach him that. You can't teach him any useful thing. Everything about him is perishable but one thing, and that is his inability to accept the fact that circumstances over which he has no control have limited his activities.

"A dead man is last and all the time it is impossible to make him understand that there is nothing very large or fine or generous in spending his own money on himself and building hospitals with his children's cash. Why, some people do seem to get duller and duller-the deader they get. Oh, well, perhaps it's no matter. It is the way they are made. Probably the mistake was in making them at all. I mean, if it was a mistake, I am no judge of that, but I wouldn't leave it to them.

"It was a pleasant and patriotic thought to dedicate this building and confirm this green to Fairhaven on the natal day of Washington—George Washington, first of Americans; George Washington, the father of his country; George Washington, the father of liars; George Washington who has dwindled a good deal. But I am left yet, and when I look back over the waste of years, and call up the faces of the others, and know that I shall see them no more in this life, and that I must remain now solitary and forlornly conspicuous to the last, the sole remnant of the old antique stock, it makes me feel sad and so lonesome.

His Debt to Washington.

"What I owe to Washington no words of mine can tell. He was my model from my cradle. All that I am, morally speaking, I owe to his example. Even in my tenderest youth his spirit was ever near to guide and succor me. The first time I ever stole a watermelon in my life—I think it was the first time—it was the thought of Washington that moved me to make restitution, caused me to the path of rectitude, made me morally whole again.

"When I found out it was a green watermelon, I was sorry—not superficially, but deeply and honestly sorry. Then came the thought of Washington, and I said to myself, 'What would Washington do?' That is what I said to myself. 'What would George Washington do if he had stolen a watermelon—green one? He would find restitution—that is what he would do.'

"And that is what I did. True to its spiritually refreshed and strong, and carried the watermelon back to the farmer's wagon, and restored it to him, and said the deed was not mine, but Washington's. And that inspiring something, that electric shock, that uplifting which comes after right done—a moral victory, a moral heroism—added to one's stock of dear and precious memories.

"I told the farmer he ought to be ashamed of himself, going around working at green watermelons on people that had confidence in him, and made him give me a ripe one for it. And he will never do it again, said he wouldn't ever do it again. So I forgave him, for when a person has done wrong and confesses it and is ashamed of it, that is enough for me. It was Washington that saved me that time. He has been my guardian angel ever since and has had an active career. I am glad of it and proud to have an opportunity at least to help celebrate his memory and do honor to his noble name.

Moral at the End.

"In the distribution of the privileges of this platform I was appointed to temper the glare of the gay and thoughtless oratory of these others with the wholesome shadow of a few words of sober advice, for there is a time for such things, and it is most that we recognize this truth and rest our spirits with intervals of seriousness and solemnity. And so my advice to you—yes, more, my supplication—is that you live as Washington lived, live as I have lived, and build your gift halls and hospitals while you still live and can build your heart as well as your money into your gift."

MINE DISASTER.

Explosion of Gas Caused the Death of Six Men.

RATON, N. M., Feb. 23.—A terrific explosion occurred in the coal mines at Blossburg, three miles southwest of here, and soon a band of rescuers was set at work to investigate the amount of damage and if possible to give succor to those within. Six bodies have been recovered, and it is believed that two Italians who are missing are also in the mine and probably dead. Several men were injured by being burned or bruised and by inhaling firedamp.

From the best information obtainable it is probable that the explosion was caused by gas in an entry being ignited by a miner's light.

It is reported that Joseph Fatheringill, the fire inspector, had but a few minutes before the explosion notified William Graham, the pit boss, that the entry which is a mile and a quarter from the opening of the mine, was dangerous on account of being filled with gas. Whether the pit boss forgot to notify the miners or whether they went into the entry without his seeing them is not known.

A coroner's jury has been impaneled and is taking evidence. Luckily only a few were in the mines on account of it being a holiday, for it is believed that otherwise over 100 would have perished. The Blossburg coal mines have been operated in the past 18 years by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe company and are the largest in the territory.

FOUND JUST IN TIME.

A Smoking Infernal Machine in the Basement of a Store.

LEWISBURG, Pa., Feb. 23.—[illegible] discovery a terrible explosion [illegible] Lewisburg. Smoker [illegible] the basement of the [illegible] ing to the estate of the late Lawrence Wolfe. An examination of the premises revealed the fact that a diabolical machine of the cellar roof. From it a cloud of smoke arose. It was knocked down and carried into the street, where it was placed upon examination to be an infernal machine containing a bottle of powder, saturated cotton and other combustibles.

The object of placing it in the late Mr. Wolfe, known about town as Jimmy, who claims to have been defrauded when that gentleman's estate was settled, had been seen entering the cellar carrying a box.

Several hours later he was observed standing on the road three miles up the river and looking toward Lewisburg. He was arrested at Milton, brought to Lewisburg, given a hearing and put in jail. He is considered a dangerous character, having threatened to kill the executor and attorney of his brother's estate. A mob filled the street as he was taken to jail, and it would have needed little encouragement to lynch him.

BIG SANDSTORM.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 23.—A big sandstorm raged in the valleys eastward, and the effect was plainly seen from this city in the very hazy horizon. The worst effect was the wrecking of a train on the Southern California road near San Bernardino. When about 25 feet east of Rosina station, the engine plunged into a sandbank, was derailed and turned over on its side, as was also the baggage car. The rest of the cars kept the track.

No one was hurt except Engineer Benson of San Bernardino, who was badly cut about the head, but it is thought that he is not dangerously injured. A terrible gale suddenly piled up a huge drift of sand on the track, and, the air being filled with sand, and often so impenetrable by the eye as the heaviest fog, the engineer was prevented from seeing the obstruction.

The passenger train was moving very quickly, as the overland train passed the spot only 20 minutes ahead of the local, and there were no signs of a drift then. The passengers were uninjured and arrived here only an hour late.

Marksmen Young Smashes Records.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23.—F. O. Young, the marksman, did some record demolishing. In 49 shots out of 50 he had 200 to his credit, and in the last he scored two out of a possible three. This made 102 points scored in 103 shots, including 16 centers or red flags. This averages losing less than a celebrated record of 28 centers in 100 shots and is the best ever made on the Pacific coast.

One Politician Shoots Another.

CAMPBELLSBURG, Ky., Feb. 23.—J. C. Carroll shot and fatally wounded A. H. Bruner. The shooting occurred in Carroll's store on Main street and was the result of an old quarrel. Both men are prominent politicians.

PEPPERED WITH BOMBS

Real Ones and False Ones Terrorize Parisians.

THE PUBLIC PROSECUTOR WARNED.

He Receives a Letter Which States That He Is to Be the Next Victim of the Anarchists—Two Ambulances Kept Busy.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The public prosecutor has received a letter purporting to have been written by an accomplice of Henry, who says he was present at the Hotel Terminus outrage. The writer of the letter declares that the public prosecutor will be the first victim of anarchist vengeance.

M. Girard of the municipal laboratory has made a statement to the effect that the bomb which Henry exploded in the Hotel Terminus was charged with homemade mellinite.

The terror and fear prevailing throughout Paris in consequence of the recent numerous anarchist outrages are increased daily. Fresh scares are given when a sinister box, with a half burned fuse attached, was found lying just before the door of St. Pierre church, in the Petit Montrouge quarter. The fuse was quenched by the police, who then surrounded the church until the guard arrived. The box was removed to the municipal laboratory for examination.

The Bogus Bomb Plague.

Bogus bombs are becoming a plague. Girard's latest added one, constructed for the removal of explosives, was summoned yesterday at 11 different places. In all cases a supposed bomb proved to be harmless. The police are constantly called upon to examine disused sardine boxes and other articles which timid people think may contain an explosive.

A dispatch from Berlin says that a bomb having a half burned fuse attached to it was found in the doorway of the house inhabited by Chief Judge Drescher of Berlin. The bomb was made of tin and was filled with the powder which is used in the mines.

WHAT IS A BARGAIN!

Answer—

A Gold Dollar for 50c Sure.

But they are very scarce just now. The nearest approach to them is the Clearance Sale Bargains we are offering of Hosiery at Edsall's.

Our definition of a bargain, viz: Genuine, good, seasonable goods sold at a less price than their intrinsic value, and not a cent more, we are determined to reduce our stock prior to removal into our new quarters in the Estecott building.

We are aware that the word "Bargain" is a very much abused word, and is largely discounted by all manufacturers of "sale." Yet it is hard to find a word so expressive to the advertiser as this word.

TRULY, there is such a thing as a genuine bargain, notwithstanding, some will tell half dollars for dimes. Our goods are perfect goods, and inferior bean is for best quality, and sell them bargains. We don't want to set up the cry of "More bankrupt sale," but we will say that when we advertise Fine Articles at Low Prices, or as bargains, we will prove it by a personal inspection of the goods. We repeat, emphatically, that you can find new plenty of real bargains, at our Clearance Sale. New Spring goods in great variety.

INQUEST AT ITHACA.

Coroner's Jury Trying to Solve the Cordell University Tragedy.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 23.—The coroner's inquest in the case of Mrs. Henrietta Jackson, who died from the effects of chlorine gas at the Cornell banquet on Tuesday night, was, after some evidence had been received, adjourned for one week.

The first witnesses sworn were the physicians who performed the autopsy on the body of the dead woman. Death, they said, resulted from some cause not apparent from a postmortem examination. The heart and lungs were found to be in a strong, healthy condition, and there was no evidence of any organic weakness.

From none of the witnesses could it be learned how entrance was effected to the room below the kitchen. The only door to the room was found locked from the inside, and as the windows showed no signs of any one having entered by them the jury could not understand how the perpetrators of the outrage succeeded in getting into the room.

On the jug in which the gas was generated and which was found in the room was discovered an address—6 Cook street. This was evidently an address to which the jug had been delivered. This number is a boarding house occupied by students, and they were all called as witnesses.

G. L. Dingens and a student named Taylor were the only ones who failed to appear. Those who testified disclaimed all knowledge of the affair, most of them proving that they had not left their rooms on the evening in question. It was rumored that Dingens and Taylor had left town; but, although they have not been seen since yesterday morning, there is no proof that they are not in Ithaca.

FAVORITE SPRING COLORS.

Green and Purple Will Be All the Rage During the Season.

Green and purple in all their variations are the colors of the season. The deep tones are seen in outdoor toilets, while evening gowns display the more delicate shades. They are used separately or combined sometimes with rather startling effect, as when the green bodice of a reception gown is wedded to clear mauve sleeves. The two colors may also be seen in boucle and striped goods.

Speaking of stripes, one of the skirts made of them have a seam in the middle of the front so arranged that the lines form van-dykes, the effect being repeated in the middle of the back. Indeed vandykes are much favored at present and are seen on every sort of garment, formed either by bands of trimming or by the cutting of the material itself. A deep green cloth evening cloak having a long and short cape shows this ornamentation arranged in a novel way. The short cape is cut in eight points and is fastened in a corresponding number of box plaits about the shoulders in such a way as to allow each point to display a fold of the rose colored silk lining.

A gown of dahlia cloth has a plain skirt bordered with a narrow flounce of cloth put on with a heading. The back of the bodice is in one piece, being fitted into the figure by small folds at the waist line. The bodice is cut with a basque which fits smoothly over the hips, but is cut in two points at the back, where it is rendered full by the plaits at the waist. The wide black velvet collar is not full but is cut in irregular points and is open in the middle of the back and front. Bias folds of dahlia peau de soie trim the edge of the basque and collar. The sleeves are composed of two balloon puffs—the upper of cloth and the lower of black velvet—over a tight sleeve of the velvet. The neck is finished by a standing collar of velvet. The bodice fastens invisibly under the left arm, the front being also in one piece. A bat of dahlia velvet accompanies the costume.

FANCY MAY NOW RUN RIOT.

Tea Gowns Are Becoming Very Complicated Dress Affairs Nowadays.

Tea gowns, professedly so loose and simple a style of attire, become more and more complicated dress affairs. So much latitude is permissible in their make that there is room for the free indulgence of the most eccentric fancy. Silk, wool, fur, lace and velvet all contribute to their construction, but it is doubtful if the more simple styles are not often the more attractive. The Greek models are charming, but they require to be made up in plain goods and ornamented with a flat border only, or their character is completely destroyed. The pale figured woois lend themselves more readily to the coquettish watteau fashions, so fluffy with laces and ribbons. Favor is about equally divided between the princess and loose fitting shapes, and many very pretty ideas are shown in both styles, although nothing particularly new has appeared. Revers and full lace fronts still hold their own, though one gown is shown having a puffed yoke and an unpuffed, perfectly straight front falling plainly to the feet, unbroken even by a girdle. There is a long shawl band of trimming at either side, under one of which it fastens.

A particularly pretty tea gown of satin is one in princess style in the back. The front, which is faced with velvet, is open and turned back on either side in revers. The satin forms a sort of short jacket front, with small velvet revers, which is gathered up and fastened across the bust under a satin knot and bow. From the knot a full front of lace falls to the feet. Lace is also brought down from the shoulders to the knot in a V, while the neck has a high wrinkled collar of velvet. The sleeves are the feature of the gown. There is first a tight sleeve of velvet, with a wide lace ruffle at the wrist. Over this is a fall of lace to the elbow, caught up on the outside of the arm by a wide satin ornament, which is held just below the point of the shoulder by a butterfly arrangement of plaits, free at the ends, but secured in the middle by a knot.

Such a sleeve would be successful only in rather stiff goods, like satin or thick silk, but there is no lack of models for soft goods equally attractive. A wide double berthe, with extra fullness gathered over the shoulder, may be arranged to fall over the top of a plain sleeve, or the sleeve may have a full flaring puff, with several rows of shirring at the top.

A posthumous anecdote of the immortal Tartarin is related by The Gaulois. It was in the gunroom, and Tartarin, after regaling his audience with various thrilling tales of his exploits and adventures in the chase, described the following horrific experience: "The other day," he said, "in a fearful thunderstorm, I found myself without a gun or any weapon face to face with three wolves." "Well, what did you do?" "Well, I simply stared at them, with my hands in my pockets, and whistled." "Do you mean to say they didn't attack you?" "They couldn't; they were in a cage." In Professor Garner's opinion the conditions were reversed.—London Globe.

Facts are.

"I suppose you extend the courtesy of passes to people who are in the same line of business?"

"Certainly, sir. What hotel do you represent?"

"I don't represent any hotel, sir, but I'm in the bank business in New York just the same."—Rochester Post-Express.

RECEIVED IN THE CHURCH PARLORS.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Richards Tendered a Reception.

Last night a reception was tendered to the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Richards, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church. The parlors were filled with a throng of happy people, whose chief delight seemed to be to make each other enjoy the occasion. There was general sociability and the pastor and his wife were kept busy greeting their friends.

Those who assisted in receiving were: Mrs. Richards, Mrs. Charles Abbott, Mrs. Henry B. Worsell, Mrs. John McKenzie, Mrs. J. E. Tracy, Mrs. Henry Halloway and Mrs. Horace Kimball.

In the dining room were: Mrs. John D. Miller, Mrs. J. W. De Graff, Mrs. H. C. Adams, Mrs. E. H. Ladd, Miss Cahoone, Miss Bronson, Miss Janet Miss Van Arsdale, Miss Wait, the Misses Tracy, Miss Munger, Miss Holloway, Miss Abbott, Miss Lovell, the Misses Murray, Miss Gilbert, Miss French, Miss Mary Miller and Miss Emma Miller.

Chinese lanterns and parasols were used to decorate the room.

The reception was given under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Association.

A CASTING FELL UPON HIS FOOT.

A Son of Chief Grant Injured at Scott's Press Works.

Yesterday afternoon G. Webster Grant, son of Chief Grant, was injured at Scott's Press Works, by a casting falling upon his foot. It lighted upon the instep. Fortunately the bone was not fractured, and he received only a severe bruise. He will only be confined to the house a few days.

PERSONAL.

Miss Crane of Bedminster is visiting Miss Emma Gillem of Dover street.

Miss Clara Linbarger of Illinois is visiting Miss Mattie Hample of Somerset street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dilts of Westfield visited Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Doane of West Fifth street Thursday.

Mrs. John B. Sharp of Newark was a guest yesterday of her sister, Mrs. C. S. Greer of Grandview avenue.

On Monday evening, Mrs. Arthur Mulford will give a progressive whist party at her home on Sandford avenue.

The Rev. Mr. Green of Cranford will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church tomorrow morning.

The Misses Carris and Lou Moore of Cranford are guests of their uncle, Mr. Eugene Moore, of Summit avenue.

Mr. Garret Van Winkle, of Madison avenue, this evening is his disease disease yesterday and is now hoped to be on the road to recovery.

Mrs. Samuel Kimball, who has been away from Plainfield for about a year receiving treatment, returned today much improved in health.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. McNaughton, on West Front street, on Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

The funeral of the late Charles P. Leggett took place at his late home on Madison avenue this afternoon. It was private. The Rev. E. M. Rodman conducted the services.

Foster M. Cushing, formerly of Plainfield, died at his home, Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 22, aged 54 years, of bronchitis. The funeral will be held at 30 Kaufer street, Brooklyn. Burial at Cypress Hill, Sunday afternoon.

The Rev. Father Johnson, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, New York, will preach in Grace Church, on East Seventh street, to-morrow night. Father Johnson is a well-known priest, earnest and zealous in his parish work, and what he has to say is always worth hearing.

The following is taken from the Daily Times-Enterprise of Thomasville, Ga.: Mr. A. D. Thompson and wife, Mrs. W. R. Codington and son, and Mr. G. A. Reed, of Plainfield, N. J., arrived yesterday and have rooms at the Mitchell. Mr. Thompson is well known in Thomasville, being a member of the firm of Elder & Thompson, proprietors of the large livery stables on Jackson street. His Thomasville friends, and there are many of them, are glad to see him here again.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Schroder, of Grove street, gave a farewell party on Tuesday afternoon to their children and their little friends in the neighborhood before moving to Watchung avenue. Those who composed the happy circle were: — Genevieve Cloyed, Debra and Henrietta Winn, Mabie and Edith Loomis Mary L. Lown and Gracie Woolston, Mary and Helen Schroder, Miss Fry, of Brooklyn, Edward Loomis, Arthur Barclay, and Carl Schroder. Gracie Woolston and Mary Schroder led the party in pairs to the refreshment table, and if appearance go for anything, they all had a very enjoyable time.

Cold Saturdays.

This morning was the coldest, but one, this Winter. At seven o'clock a thermometer on Front street registered eight degrees above zero. Last Saturday morning the same thermometer registered seven degrees above. The mercury in a thermometer on Kensington avenue dropped to four degrees above early this morning.

GREETING PASTOR AND BRIDE

Rev. Herbert Randolph and Bride Tendered a Reception.

In their busy little church the members of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, gathered last night to welcome their pastor, the Rev. Herbert Randolph and his wife, a most estimable young lady. The young couple stood in front of the pulpit, where they received the congregation with a hearty hand shake and a happy smile. After all had greeted the pastor and his wife a short but pleasing programme was enjoyed. It was as follows:

Piano Solo.....Mrs. T. W. Powell
Song.....Mrs. Carrie Hall and Miss Lou Carroll
Solo.....Miss Carrie Tingley
Piano Solo.....Miss Ethel Schenck
Solo—"Rose,".....Miss Alice Carroll

As an encore Miss Carroll rendered "The Serenade."

The committee who had charge of the reception consisted of: Mrs. L. A. Hammer, Mrs. Edward Stevens, Mrs. W. H. Hilton and Messrs. A. A. Taft, Elmer Winckler, and Sara Loomis.

The following committee had charge of the refreshments: Mrs. John Conrey, Mrs. Ezra Loomis, Mrs. Bonner and Miss Emma Smalley, assisted by Miss Carrie Stelner, Miss Maggie Schenck, Miss Alice Loomis and Miss Agnes Tingley.

All farmers and those interested in the advancement of agriculture are urged to be present and take part in the discussions.

All farmers of Union County are respectfully invited and urged to become members of this Board.

Meetings are held at the Court House, Elizabeth, at 2 p. m., the first and third Thursdays of November, December, January, February and March, unless otherwise ordered by the Board.

A Mulish Mule.

There is nothing more stubborn than a contrary mule. Yesterday afternoon "Mike" Cox attempted to lead one of Mr. Ruff's mules from Chatham street to Green Brook's pasture. It was to be used in drawing the ice marker. Cox got the animal as far as the Somerset street bridge, by dint of much coaxing. Here the mule called a halt and refused to budge.

Hauling and whipping had no effect. Finally Cox gave it up and turned the animal over to Frank Conshe, who led him back home, and then down Pearl street. When last seen Conshe was trying to get the mule to cross the creek in the rear of the new Y. M. C. A. building.

Said to be an Unruly School.

The little school on the country road between Westfield and Rahway, known as Scudder's, or Redman's, is gaining a bad name among teachers. The number of scholars is small, but they are said to be unruly. Several teachers have thrown up the situation since school opened in September, rather than to carry on a continued warfare with the pupils. The attention of the County Superintendent has been called to the matter, and if Miss Shafer, who has recently taken charge, cannot control the pupils the school will be closed.

A Blind Man Falls Down.

Mr. John D. Moore, of Chatham street, South Plainfield, who is blind, received severe injuries yesterday by a fall. He had been out for a walk and was feeling his way home with his cane. In turning the corner from Chatham street in Warren to go into the back gate he missed his bearings and stepped off the curb into the gutter, fell down, landing upon his head and shoulders.

Marshal Wilson assisted Mr. Moore into house, where his injuries were attended to.

—Probably the most fragrant, huge and magnificent of all roses is the new bridal, named "The Bridesmaid," to be had at Miles' conservatory on Somerset street.

Pen Sketches from Life.

Said one young man to another:

"That was a terrific storm the other evening, wasn't it?"

"Yes, indeed it was. Did you hear the thunder and see the lighting?"

"Did I! Why, man alive, I was out in it. I was in one of the trolley cars on West Front street when the storm was at its worst. The thunder was booming and the lightning flashing terrifically. I was huddled up in the car scared stiff. So was the motorman, but the conductor stood outside, perfectly unconcerned. I stuck my head out of the door and yelled 'Good Lord, man, come inside, you may get killed.' And what do you think he said?

"I don't know. What did he say?"

"Why, he replied 'Oh, no, I won't get killed. Lightning never strikes a bad conductor."

The Pastime's Entertainment.

AN EVENING WEDDING.

Rev. Randolph and Miss Elva Wolfe Plight the Marriage Vow.

[The Daily Miner's Journal, Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 14.]

The parlors at the home of Contractor Allison Wolfe, 314 Harrison street, was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening. The central figures of the happy event were Rev. Herbert F. Randolph, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Elva Wolfe, one of Pottsville's most accomplished young ladies and second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wolfe. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. F. Randolph, father of the groom. Only the immediate relatives and friends of the families witnessed the marriage.

The bride was attired in brown English whipcord traveling dress, and the groom wore the conventional black. Their marriage is the happy culmination of an acquaintance formed while both attended the Hackettstown Seminary and from which institution they graduated at the same time. The bride is a graduate of the Pottsville High School. The groom after finishing his studies at the Hackettstown Seminary continued his studies and graduated from Dickinson College with high honor. The young bride was one of the most active workers in the Methodist church, being connected with the different societies for the promotion of church work. She is therefore well fitted for her new field of extended usefulness and that she and her husband may ever prosper in their united work for the cause of humanity, is the sincere wish of all their Pottsville friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph left on a bridal tour of the East and South.

WHAT IS A BARGAIN!

Answer—A Gold Dollar for 50c Sure.

But they are very scarce just now. The nearest approach to them is the Clearance Sale Bargains now going on rapidly at Edsall's.

One of the kinds of a bargain, viz: Genuine good, reasonable goods sold at a less price than their actual value, and that is where we are doing every day in order to reduce our stock prior to removal into our new quarters in the Howell building.

We are aware that the word "bargain" is very much abused at times, and is largely discounted by a majority of readers of "ads." Yet it is hard to think word so expressive to the advertiser as this word

TRULY, there is such a thing as a genuine bargain, not a thin lining, as one will sell half cotton goods for all wool, and "seconds" for perfect goods, but the interior linen is for good quality, and still good bargains, if you will but try it. Don't set up the cry of "Mot's bailed than thou," but we will say that many an advertiser has articles as choice, or a bargain, we will prove it every time by a personal inspection of the goods. We repeat, emphatically, that you can find over plenty of real bargains at our Clearance sale. New Spring goods in great variety.

Wanted to Learn.

"I see that you try to teach a man how to waltz? If you never have, don't attempt it. I've often heard that you teach an ordeal, and this is what she says about it:

"In the first place, I stood beside him, took hold of his hand and tried to illustrate how the feet should go next.

"Then I told him to do as I did, and he began to sidestep back and forth like a wild Indian.

"When he whirled around, both arms spread out, sometimes hitting me in the eye and occasionally giving me a whack in the back of the head.

"His head made themselves into Chinese puzzles. He invariably tried to, walked on his own toes, he pranced around 'heel and toe' fashion.

"He said that he had no idea that he has so little control over his feet.

"I held perfectly still for two moments to collect my thoughts, open my breath and refrain from crowing incessantly cross eyed trying to keep track of the movements of his shoes. It was time, two, three, four, until my lips became parched from constant counting.

"Then I actually thought that he was walking in the same strides to which his steps should suggest—twisting and twirling I never before could open.

"I kept saying, 'You must be very tired, won't you rest awhile?' as I've always answered 'Yes.' Well, I guess not! This is Judson Day!

"And then off he'd go in a mad tangle of jumps and hops, and all the time he sang that awful thing about 'My left foot is weary, my right foot is sore, now don't be weary, I'll dance you to waltz.'

"After awhile he insisted on my dancing with him. Well, when I'd stamp hard he pranced around which foot he should begin with or else had say, 'Hold on now till I think of something to while.'

"When would make a beginning, he used me for a pivot and danced around me as if he were the tire of a wheel and I the hub.

"Oh, it was awful! And when we got all through with this lesson and I was puzzling my brains wondering why it wasn't more successful, it suddenly dawned on my weak little mind that I'd taught him how to begin with the same foot that girls begin with.

"So I suppose I've got to go through the whole thing again the next time he calls."—Boston Globe.

ANARCHY, SAYS BLAND.

The Missouri Congressman Delivers a Redhot Speech.

HE DENOUNCED HIS COLLEAGUES.

Another Lively Day In the House Ends In the Discharge of All the Members Under Arrest—Bland Still Lacks Two Votes, Tarriff Bill Practically Finished.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The members of the house under arrest were finally discharged from custody by dispensing with further proceedings under the call. It required four hours to accomplish this, and although the scenes of disorderly turbulence which characterized the previous day's proceedings were not repeated the proceedings were fully as interesting. The Democrats were evidently very anxious when the house met to extricate themselves from the complications arising from the wholesale arrest of members, but by flank movements the Republicans succeeded in preventing this until the whole disgraceful affair was thoroughly ventilated.

Perhaps the most interesting feature of the day, barring Mr. Bland's bitter philippic against the filibustering Democrats, was the verbal duel between Mr. Reed and Mr. Turner over the question of counting a quorum—a question just now of preeminent importance in house circles on account of the proposed Democratic caucus to consider the advisability of adopting this expedient. After the arrested members had been discharged Mr. Bland resumed on the silver bill, but his motion failed again for lack of a quorum. He only lacked two votes, however, and this is high watermark.

Although Mr. Bland still insists on going ahead with the seigniorage bill, many of the Democrats believe it shan d now be abandoned, and on a quorum being secured today it would seem that it would have to be—that is, if a Democratic caucus has not been held to adopt some method of forcing members to vote or to count them if they do not.

Bland's Anarchist Speech.

When Mr. Bland, of New Jersey interpolated him by saying, "I don't think it is the d of the gentleman from Missouri to talk to Democratic party."

"If that is a lecture," retorted Mr. Bland, "the people will read it to the gentleman and every other man who is now obstructing legislation. It is the anarchist. [Democratic applause.] While the opposition has a perfect right to break the quorum, that a spectacle was present to the country, with 80 majority, rising in our congressional dignity and defying the authority of the house! We should proceed to business or acknowledge incompetency. If we don't, the people will read the riot act to us."

"They will! They will!" came in chorus from the Republican side.

"I see gentlemen here," said he, shaking his head sadly and lifting his voice until it filled the great hall, "who will obey the rules and commands of this house. I saw gentlemen rise and boast that they had defied the power of the house. If that is not anarchy and revolution, what is it? [Democratic applause.]

"We in the house are the fountain source of power. Are we to stop? Shall we resolve ourselves into a body of anarchists? If some one were to throw a bomb from yonder gallery, he would be no less an anarchist than he who on this floor defies the power of the house. [Cries of 'Shame!' 'Shame!' and hisses.]

"While the people of this country are in the throes of hunger and starvation," continued Mr. Bland, angered at the demonstration against him, "when they expect us to do something, to filibuster and obstruct is to become anarchists. We were sent here to do our duty at a time when the cities are thronged with mobs, and the people expect to go to bed in peace and rest. It is not the time when mob law should obtain here."

Mr. Bland then drifted into a discussion of the bearing the silver seigniorage bill which was being opposed by a portion of the Democratic majority, in the course of which he was frequently called to order by Mr. Coombs of New York.

Some Plain Talk.

"The difficulty is," finally blurted out Mr. Bland, "that the house wants in order. I am telling too many plain truths that the country ought to know!" [Democratic applause.]

"That is the fact!" shouted Mr. Denson of Alabama. "Give it to the Democrats for revenue only."

"I thought gentlemen on this side," said Mr. Bland, "would realize that they could not afford to be revolutionists and anarchists. We are in danger of anarchy when the people come here and block legislation. I say we should either do business or surrender." [Republican applause and shouts of "Give it to them."]

"It will be no outrage for the people to rise up in a mob and move us down, for we're exercising mobocracy here. If this is a bad bill, vote it down. If you want more debate, we will give it to you, but to stay here and not vote is simply political anarchy."

Mr. Bland then demanded the previous question, but as there was a clamor on both sides of the house for an explanation of the motion he withdrew it. Mr. Reed offered a resolution in his own right, and when Mr. Bland offered also five minutes he rejected it with scorn.

Mr. Compton of Maryland secured five minutes. He went right into the heart of the contention. The validity of the house proceedings had been challenged, he said, because it did not contain the names of those to be arrested. He declared that was in accordance with the uniform practice of the house and defied any one to produce a warrant in which a name was incorporated.

Mr. Compton and New York replied to the assertions made the New York Democrats from Mr. Bland, declaring that they differed honestly with him and believed they were doing the duty. When he concluded the leader of the Republican minority was recognized.

Mr. Reed said there were two aspects of the case worthy of the consideration of the house. First, the house should proceed in an orderly manner to transact its business, even if that business was bringing members here as constituents a house. A great error had been committed. Members had been arrested who were present and not even technically guilty. Besides, all the sacredness of legal procedure in regard to the names be included in the warrant. The sergeant-at-arms was acting as constable of the house, and his warrant should show who was to be arrested. He should not be armed with a roving commission.

Reed on Quorum Counting.

In such a matter as this he did not think members should be influenced by party or party feeling. The dignity of the house concerned them all. Further, he urged that the resolution had not been passed in accordance with parliamentary procedure. From this point he drifted into a discussion of the right of the speaker to count a quorum.

Mr. Bland, he said, had charged that members were acting in an unsuitable manner when they refused to respond to their names. He inquired that whether a member voted yea or nay or did not vote at all was a question solely between the member and his constituency.

"I did not mean to," interpolated Mr. Bland. "I was addressing those charged with the responsibility of power."

"I shall address myself to that class," retorted Mr. Reed, "in a minute." [Laughter.]

The supreme court, he continued, had decided a constitutional question to be a present quorum, and the whole difficulty here grew out of the fact that the house denied the right of members constituting a quorum by not responding.

Mr. Turner of Georgia, who replied to Mr. Reed, directed his attention to the validity of the warrant under which members had been arrested.

"The gentleman from Maine," continued Mr. Turner, "has already stated that a member has a right to vote or to refuse to vote or not vote as he chooses. When a member refuses to vote altogether—that is, refuses to allow himself to be counted—can the speaker of the house of representatives, without the authority of the house, count that member as present for any purpose?"

Reed and Turner.

"He can not only count the member," replied Mr. Reed, "but it is his duty to do it and refer the matter to the house if the member objects."

"Did the gentleman refer that question to the h use? Did not the gentleman from Maine assume to decide that matter without the instruction or authority of the house?" said Mr. Turner.

"By no means."

"The Record is otherwise."

"On the contrary, on more than one occasion, as I had counted the quorum as constituted of gentleman present, I submitted the question to the house upon that aspect," replied Mr. Reed.

"Suppose there had been no appeal—would the gentleman have insisted that the house of representatives had given him authority to do that thing?"

"I rather think I should. I think I should have been gratified by the silence of the gentleman from Georgia, and his party would too." [Applause on the Republican side.]

"Will the gentleman from Maine pardon another inquiry?" asked Mr. Turner. "Does the gentleman from Maine insist that the speaker of the house has the authority to count the quorum without a rule of the house?"

"I do."

"Then the gentleman differs from the supreme court it ell."

"No, I do not. I be gentlemen will read more carefully that decision of the supreme court, they will find that the su preme court, in the supreme court, confined itself to the question at hand and decided that a present quorum was the constitutional quorum. I want to get that into a reasonable number of minds as the other side [laughter], and then we shall be victorious. The present quorum, I reiterated, is the quorum. Having decided that, they then very properly decided that the house would have a right to make a rule as to how that quorum should be ascertained, but in the absence of a rule the speaker of this house, just like the presiding officer of every parliamentary body, would act as its agent, as he is the depository of that power which is not specified by the house."

The Tangle Untangled.

During all this time Mr. Adams, the prisoner at the bar, had been seated in a revolving chair in front of the bar of the house, lazily swinging to an fro—an amused spectator of the proceedings—and a laugh was occasioned when Speaker pro tem. Richard-on announced that the house excused the gentleman at the bar of the house to get his lunch.

At this point Mr. Bland unexpectedly withdrew his amendment and moved to suspend all further proceedings under the call of the house under which the arrests were made, and to dispense with the necessity of the power which is not specified by the house."

Mr. Reed then indicated that vacating the order of the house of Feb. 19 would release the members under arrest.

Many members attempted to talk, and the chair protested that he could not hear half a dozen members at ones. Mr. Reed said that every respectable man must be so sick and tired of this thing that even the solution offered by Mr. Bland might be a blessing. This closed the opposition. The motion of Mr. Bland to suspend the point of order, and then he put the question on Mr. Bland resolution for vacating the call of Feb. 19 and releasing the members under arrest. The vote was carried by a viva voce vote, with very few dissenting votes. Thus the tangle was suddenly terminated, and the arrested members of congress were again free.

Tariff Bill Practically Completed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Senator Voorhees decided suddenly to call a meeting of the senate finance committee for next Monday at 10 o'clock. The decision was the result of a conference with the subcommittee which is shaping the tariff bill, by which he was notified that the members had agreed upon all the features of the bill as it is to be presented, and nothing remained to be done except to put the bill in shape.

The committee will meet and the changes made in the bill by the subcommittee can only be surmised. It is known that there are many of them. That every schedule has received more or less attention. The committee has in the beginning been very reticent concerning the proposed changes, and has given no hint of what they they have had the bill under consideration.

MURDERED FOR MONEY

Another Tragedy Occurs In Sullivan County, N. Y.

AGED MAN AND WOMAN KILLED.

They Were Found In Their Home Weltering In Their Blood, With Their Resistfleshly Mutilated—To Obtain $30 the Dead Was Committed.

MONTICELLO, N. Y., Feb. 24.—Sullivan county has another murder to darken the pages of its history. A double murder, the most brutal crime that ever took place in this county, was committed. Both of the victims are over 80 years of age. Jacob A. Moore and his housekeeper, Mrs. Jane Raymond, aged 80, were murdered at their home, three miles north of Monticello, by first being shot with a 32 calib r revolver, and then being cut and horribly mutilated with a barn shovel.

It is supposed that the motive for the terrible crime was money, although they were poor, and their only income was a monthly pension of $12. A few days before Mr. Moore was murdered he received three months' back pension.

William Beebe, a young man and a neighbor of the murdered couple, went to the house with a basket of potatoes that he intended to give to the old people. After knocking and receiving no answer he opened the door and was horrified at the sight he beheld.

Lying prostrate upon his back on the floor, both arms outstretched, was Mr. Moore, his face so badly covered with blood that it was almost unrecognizable. Just beneath the left ear was a bullet hole made by a ball from a 32-caliber revolver. Not two feet away from him lay the dead body of the old lady, more terrible in aspect than that of the old man.

Murderer Used a Barn Shovel.

The murderer had taken a barn shovel and struck her just below the left ear, cutting a deep gash about three inches long, which probably knocked her down, and he then struck her in the temple with his murderous instrument, lacerating the flesh in a horrible manner and breaking the jawbone. The murderer then cut two big gashes in her throat, and a number of other bruises indicate that she lay face upward on the floor after the first blow on the side of her jaw was struck.

Beside the body lay a handkerchief thickly covered with blood. The clothes of both were covered with blood, as were also the chairs, while large pools of blood had formed underneath their bodies.

The stove, chairs and cots were besprinkled with blood and bear evidence of the desperate struggle of which must have taken place. Beside the old man lay his cane, which he had undoubtedly grabbed to protect himself. The house had been set on fire from the outside. One had apparently been fired through the door and the other through the window, the latter undoubtedly being the one used to consume the old gentleman's neck. The ball fired through the door was found upon the floor.

The officers are positive, inasmuch as the old people were getting ready to retire for the night, as the man had taken off his coat and boots, and the old lady had removed her dress and set them near the stove. Shavings and kindling were near the stove ready for the building of the fire in the morning, and the beds were undisturbed.

The house in which they lived is a two story structure. The first story contains four rooms, and the second a small bedroom. In this room they kept their trunk, which had been burst open and the contents thrown out as though in search of money. One of the old man's pants pockets bore bloody fingerprints, and the inside doorknob was covered with blood.

The coroner has subpœnaed a jury. He will hold an inquest today. The fiend is so thick on the victims that it is impossible to determine to any certainty the full extent of the mutilations.

No One to Count the Votes.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 24.—At the election board at Mount Mill neglected to count the vote for congressman at large on the ground that it was too late and that the vote would be checked anyhow. The court ordered a recount of the vote. The board will be arrested.

All that's Yellow is not Cottolene

There's hardly a housekeeper in the country but has heard of Cottolene the new vegetable shortening. It is a strictly natural product; composed only of clarified cotton seed oil, thickened for convenience in use, with refined beef suet, pure and sweet. So composed,

COTTOLENE

Was bound to win, and to drive out lard from the kitchens of the world. When housekeepers wish to get rid of the unpleasant features and results of lard, they should get Cottolene, taking care that they are not given cheap imitations with vegetable names, spuriously compounded to sell in the place of Cottolene.

It's easy to avoid disappointment and ensure satisfaction. Insist on having Cottolene.

A BARRELFUL OF POISON

Five Men Drank Strange Liquid From a Whisky Barrel.

JOKED AS THEY PASSED THE CUP.

One Man Dies in Forty Minutes, and Four Escape With Burning Throats and Nausea—The Barrel Was Unclaimed Freight and Had Stood For Months.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Some liquid in a whisky barrel 45 Pier 2, North river, was responsible for one man's death in 40 minutes and the acute suffering of four other men, one of whom also nearly died. The pier is used by the Lehigh Railroad company for handling freight, and oftentimes it happens that some article of freight comes in without a bill of lading and without marks.

About five months ago, as nearly as is remembered, the whisky barrel came to the pier in this condition. It was full. The superintendent of the pier, Mr. E. S. Whitman, gave orders to have it set aside, thinking its owner might turn up.

Yesterday he ordered it shipped, with some other stray goods, to the company's storehouse at Bethlehem, Pa., but being curious as to what it might contain directed that it be tapped and a cupful be drawn off.

Five Men Drank.

James O'Neill, a longshoreman who lived at 446 Union street, Brooklyn, and four other men pulled the barrel out from a stack of baled rags and other freight and drew from it a cupful of liquid that looked like apple cider. Instead of taking the liquid up to Mr. Whitman's office, as they should have done, they exchanged compliments and drank. The first man tasted it and handed it to the next quickly, saying as if he did not like it very much. The cup went along the line this way until it reached of the last two men. They each took a long pull.

O'Neill was the last man, and he drained the cup and smacked his lips, but he never said a word, for a pallor spread over his face at once, and walking to a pile of shavings near by he fell forward on his face and lay there unconscious. The other men were by this time giving utterance to a variety of exclamations and crying that their mouths were hot. Two of them danced around the pier like madmen, while the third ran for the nearest saloon, and the fourth, who had taken a long drink with O'Neill, staggered to a salt barrel, and grabbing a handful of salt swallowed it. He began to vomit at once and after suffering greatly was finally relieved.

Could Not Save O'Neill.

For O'Neill an ambulance was summoned from Chambers Street hospital. Efforts were made to resuscitate the unconscious man before the ambulance arrived, but they were futile, and when the ambulance surgeon looked at him he gave orders to drive with all possible speed to the hospital. O'Neill was in deep coma when he got to the hospital, and although they washed his stomach out there and applied restoratives he died in a few moments.

The hospital authorities would not say whether or not they had any guess as to the nature of the poison. At Pier 2 it was said that a handful of the liquid had been sent to Bethlehem to be analyzed. The liquid resembles cider in appearance. It is almost odorless, and it may have been colored by the barrel.

To Save the Kearsarge.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The proposition to attempt to float the Kearsarge, wrecked on Roncador reef, has taken definite form. Secretary Herbert has been in consultation with Admiral Stanton and has concluded that the undertaking is perfectly practicable, and, moreover, that considerations of patriotism require that the effort be made.

Overproduction of Convicts.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 24.—The large number of unemployed convicts in the penitentiary is becoming a matter of the most serious concern to the state, and to add to the dilemma the receipt of convicts is rapidly increasing and is now greater than ever before, with no prospects of diminution.

Populists Separates.

Watchung Park Property!

Handsomely Situated BUILDING LOTS Now Offered For Sale.

This Property is a part of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station. The New Watchung Park, with its new streets and avenues, will be one of the handsomest residence sections in this justly suburban place. Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield. All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly. Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as they are needed. Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Sandford and West Front avenues have been located on the old Crossroads' ball field. Just as Property Values jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment. The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the printed map of the property will give the public necessary information as to their location.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

CURIOUS BLOWPIPES.

Two Interesting Experiments That You Can Perform With Ease and Careful.

Any boy or girl can construct either of the curious blowpipes or contrivances which are here pictured. To produce the upward air current which is strong enough to send an inch cube or small object of light weight, a blowpipe with a short elbow is needed. Over the shorter part of the pipe a little wooden tray is put, and this is fitted up with an upright and loop, made from wire. The loop must be exactly in the center of the tray, forming the aim for the upward shot of the tiny ball, made of wood and provided with a wire hook.

For the second blowpipe no wooden tray is needed, the wire frame taking its place being used in the shape of an E, and fastened to the short end, as you can see from the illustration. Now, there is a little secret about this second arrangement which you must be clever enough to keep to yourself when you give exhibitions of your skill before your unsuspecting spectators. The three steel bar which hangs from the top of the frame is heavily magnetized. The ball must be small enough to pass without difficulty through the wire loop in the center. This ball, like the former, is made of wood, but tiny wire beads are driven into it dotting it as with pinheads all over. As soon as one of these balls comes near the magnetized bar it is attracted and held fast, so that the ball does not fall down when you stop blowing, and the spectators imagine that you have more power for bringing about such things as they cannot understand until it is explained to them. Be smart, and don't give it away.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Two Brothers.

Two small boys signaled a street car, and when it stopped it was noticed that the one boy was lame. With much solicitude the other boy helped the cripple aboard the car, and after telling the conductor to go slowly returned to the side walk. The lame boy braced himself up in his seat, so that he could look out of the car window, and the other passengers observed that at intervals the little fellow would wave his hand and smile. Following the direction of his glances the passengers saw the other boy running along the sidewalk, straining every muscle to keep up with the car. The passengers watched his pantomime in silence for a few blocks, and then a gentleman asked the lame boy who the other boy was. "My brother," was the prompt reply. "Why does he not ride with you in the car?" was the next question. "Cause he hasn't any money," answered the lame boy sorrowfully. The little runner was speedily invited into the car, and the sympathetic questioner not only paid his fare, but gave each boy a quarter besides.—Ram's Horn.

Indian Boys Play "White Man."

Our knowledge of the paleface was limited, but we had learned that he brought goods wherever he came, and that our people exchanged furs for his merchandise. We also knew, somehow, that his complexion was not natural. Short, coarse hair on his head and long hair on his face, and that he had coat, trousers and hat, and did not patronize blankets in the day time. In the picture we had formed of the white man. So we painted two or three of our number with white clay and put on such clothes and hats, which we saved up for the occasion, fastened a piece of fur to their chins for a beard and allowed their ornamentation consisted of sand for sugar, wild bean for coffee, dried beans for tea, pulverized earth for gunpowder, pebbles for bullets, and clear water for dangerous "fire water." We traded for these goods with mixed furs, birds, rabbits and small birds.—Dr. Charles A. Eastman.

That Boy.

Hurrah for me! I'm "that boy." Grand mother talks about him. She says, "There is that boy again!" I wonder if she wants me to be a girl. Then, whenever I go near the girls playing doll tea party, they be gin to grab up their things and cry, "Oh, there comes that boy!" I would just as soon be some other boy, but I can't. Papa says, "What is that boy up to now?" just as though a boy didn't have to be up to something sometimes. What's wrong with being a boy? Papa was one, and grandma she couldn't be. Papa is always saying "When I was a boy." I guess it's all right to be a boy, or God wouldn't make so many, but maybe I'm not the best kind I could please grandma and the girls better. I guess I'm tired of being "that boy."—Christian at Work.

Laddie, laddie, bring it I over you,

To dash up my home if it burned, and then
I'd make up my mind to be a good boy.

THE CORNELL MYSTERY.

A Guilty Student, It Is Said, Has Made a Confession.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 24.—The mystery attending the Cornell tragedy already gives new promises of speedy solution. In connection with the clews pertaining to the sugar purchased at Bumbey's and the permanganate potassium obtained of Druggist Hasking the detectives will be furthered in their efforts by the confession of one of the perpetrators, who thus far has refused to make any disclosures because some of his colleagues are unwilling to consent in the step.

The jug story proves to be true in its essential particulars. The occupants of the house at 6 Cook street disclaim any knowledge of its purchase or its use. One of the gentlemen who room there, however, has left the city, and according to the latest developments he did so because he feared detection.

The subject of the banquet monopolizes the conversation of the townspeople as well as the students, and Professor Collins of the School of Law devoted his talk with the students to the subject of the punishment that would be meted out to the culprits when apprehended.

The stude.ts have the expenses of the funeral of Mrs. Jackson, which was held at the Zion Methodist Episcopal church. The faculty has adopted resolutions, and the students are preparing to hold a general mass meeting to discuss the unfortunate result of the banquet and will probably state the position of the students in the matter of the tragedy.

TOM CARTER TALKS.

Tells of a Probable Change of Representation at the Republican Convention.

CHICAGO, Feb. 24.—Thomas H. Carter, chairman of the Republican national committee, was in the city on his way home to Montana. In an interview Mr. Carter said:

"It is probable that the national committee at its regular meeting will adopt the recommendation of the executive branch on the change of representation in the national convention. The change requires the right of the communities that give the bulk of the vote to the party to dominate the choice of the convention. Instead of two delegates from each congressional district we propose to place it at six, with an additional delegate for each 7,000 votes cast in the district for the last presidential candidate of the party. In the past the action of the convention has been controlled by the delegates from the states in which there was no possible chance of securing the electoral vote for the nominee.

"The change will minimize the influence of the delegations that are always given in consideration for some bargain. There will be some opposition from the members of the committee from the southern states, but as the new basis is founded upon right and justice I have no doubt of its adoption. In Montana this year we will sweep the state for the Republican party, and that means that the two senators to be elected will be of our party."

A Sea Disaster.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—A dispatch from Fayal, one of the Azore islands, brings a terrible tale of disaster at sea. In some manner not explained in the dispatch the British bark Montgomery Castle, bound from New York to Anjer, Java, for orders, has reached Fayal after experiencing fearful weather. All the bark's boats were washed away, her cabin was stove in, everything movable on her deck was washed overboard, and she was leaking. During the storm eight of her crew, including all the officers, were washed overboard and drowned, leaving nobody on board the ship capable of navagating her.

An Anarchistic Sermon.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 24.—Rev. Dr. McLane of the College Street Congregational church, in an address delivered before an audience of 3,000 people, said that no one would come when the wealth of the country would not be in the hands of the few, and every man would have his honest division of the goods he produced. The address was somewhat anarchistic, and he was greeted with hisses by the big audience. Some of the best-liked citizens are members of Dr. McLane's church, and they are highly indignant at the preacher's remarks.

Horsewhipping Instead of a Lynching.

BAKERSFIELD, Cal., Feb. 24.—A tramp went to the house of Newton Blackers, near Poso creek, and assaulted Mrs. Blackers. Neighbors caught him at Kingsbers, and the crowd prepared to lynch him, but officer prevented it. Later, however, the people took him from the officers, took off his clothing and administered a severe horsewhipping. The infuriated crowd mutilated the man and let him go.

Author and Actress Married.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The marriage of Henry Guy Carleton, the leading lady, author of "Butterflies," the new play in which John Drew is playing at Palmer's theater, and Miss Olive Mer, who is a member of the Drew company, was announced last night. The ceremony was performed while the company was in Chicago, but has been kept secret.

An Explained.

A New York clergyman who was preaching in a neighboring village astonished the congregation by saying, "I wish to return to New York by the first train, as I have a wife and five children there and have never been out of them." This declaration excited the most painful curiosity among the people, which was allayed, however, when it became known that the "wife" which the clergyman had never seen was one that had been born since he left home the day before.—Argonaut.

DASHED OVER THE DAM.

SERIOUS RESULT OF A RUNAWAY AT NEW MARKET.

Frightened by a Passing Express Train a Team of Horses Jump Into a Brook.—One of the Horses Had to be Killed.

There was a serious accident at New Market Saturday. About noon Field Runyon, a farmer, tied his team at the New Market mill while he went inside to get warm. The horses were tied by the bridles. An express train on the Lehigh Valley startled the horses. They broke loose and dashed down over the dam into the brook below. The wall is about ten feet high, and when the horses landed in the brook, one of them struck a large rock with its forelegs, fracturing its shoulders. The other horse dragged its injured mate, wagon and all, down the brook and under the bridge, where it became extricated.

Ropes were fastened to the horses and they were dragged out upon the bank. The horse with its fractured shoulder was killed to end its misery.

BREVITIES.

—On Friday night the Borough Council will meet in regular session.

—Justice Nash issued summons to-day to the case of Hunter vs. Clum.

—The electric street cars ran all night in order to keep the tracks clear.

—Senate Lodge, No. 2343, Knights of Honor, will meet Thursday night.

—There is a case of diphtheria in the Aldrich family, on Sherman avenue.

—Two little girls were baptised at the Park avenue Baptist church last night.

—The Conshe and Arlington teams will contest in a bowling match at the Arlington Hotel to-night.

—A district meeting of the Junior Order United American Mechanics will be held in this city to-morrow night.

—A meeting of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, will be held on Tuesday at two p. m.

—Iona Council, Degree of Pocahontas, is making elaborate preparations for its masquerade ball to be held in Red Men's Hall, March 28th.

—The coldest weather of the Winter was experienced Saturday night. At four o'clock Sunday morning it was four degrees above zero.

—A milkman's horse ran away on Watchung avenue this morning. It was stopped by Officer Carrier John Nordhoff, and taken charge of by "Al" Schipley.

—Yesterday's fires were not only the first for "Prince," Gazelle's new horse, but they were also the first for "Sport" the new canine member of Gazelle house.

—It is estimated that fully 1200 persons were present at Saturday night's performance of the Waite Comedy Co. at Music Hall, and, it is claimed that by Thursday night the company had taken in $1200.

—Special Marshal Edward Martin handled the usual crowd of loungers out of the smoking room at North avenue depot several times yesterday. The smoking room is for the accommodation of passengers and is not meant for a place for loafing.

—This morning as Andrew Jennings was delivering meat for Together, the butcher, he had a narrow escape from accident. In attempting to get into his wagon he slipped off the icy step and fell into the gutter. His head just escaped striking the curb stone.

—The terminus of the Somerset street car line is to near the greenhouses of Mr. F. W. Miles, the florist, (only about 100 feet) that customers find it almost as convenient as though it was more centrally located, while Mr. Miles has the advantage in being so situated of the extra room and, consequently, better chance for a larger variety and better display of flowers. He proposes henceforth, to give personal attention to his growing retail trade and also to the preparation of floral designs suitable for special occasions of any kind in which such things are needed.

"Prince" Went to the Fire Like a Veteran.

"Prince," the new fire department horse, was used for the first time yesterday to Gazelle's hose wagon. He and Jerry make a very good match, and they rattled off to the fires in good time. "Prince" has shown for his new life a remarkable aptitude and he gives promise of being one of the best horses in the department, under the careful training of his driver, Mike Sedaw.

A Wagon Wheel Wrecked.

John Bicknell's horse became frightened at a street car on Somerset street about eight o'clock last night and jammed with the wagon against the curb, wrecking one of the wheels. The wrecked wagon was taken to Windham's Hotel, where it was left.

To Begin in About Two Weeks.

In about two weeks Sheriff Coddington will have the work of cutting a new street across the old Hillman estate, on Somerset street, begun. He has already given out contracts for the building of several new houses on the street when opened.

BOTH FIRES WERE IN CHIMNEYS.

Burning Soot Responsible for Two Alarms Yesterday.

The fire department was called out twice yesterday afternoon. In both instances the alarm was for chimneys on fire. The first was at 1.32. The soot in a chimney in the house in Seventh street owned by Mr. Bedford and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Pollock, had caught fire. The bricks got so hot that they set fire to the beams of the kitchen floor. The lower part of the house became filled with smoke, and a still alarm was sent in No. two's engine house. Afterwards a general alarm was given. Before the fire apparatus arrived buckets of water were poured down the chimney. After the firemen arrived a few more buckets full were used. The patent fire extinguishers were used with good effect and in a short while the soot ceased to burn. A portion of the wall and floor were torn loose in order to locate the burning woodwork.

The other chimney that needed the attention of the firemen was on Mr. Kline's house, on West Second street. Burning soot was also the cause there. The alarm was given at about half past three. As in the other case the patent fire extinguisher with its chemicals was all that was necessary to put a stop to the burning soot.

AN HISTORIC SITE UNEARTHED.

Elizabeth's Surveyor Finds the Foundations of the Home of Philip Carteret.

The remains of what antiquarians say is the foundation of the mansion of Philip Carteret, first Colonial Governor of New Jersey, and where the first legislative session met, May 26, 1665, have been unearthed at Elizabeth.

The site of the Carteret has long been in dispute, but the discovery which was made by City Surveyor Meyer would seem to settle the controversy.

In making a survey Friday of the old J. C. Ogden property on Elizabeth avenue, Mr. Meyer came upon the stone foundation of what was apparently was a large substantial dwelling, about sixty feet from the present line of Elizabeth avenue and a few feet from the Elizabeth river.

The surveyor, after tracing the outlines of the ruin, was satisfied that at last he had hit upon the ancient building, and his view is generally concurred in.

It is thought a monument will be erected to mark the spot where laws were first enacted for the government of New Jersey.

PERSONAL.

Miss Sadie Grant is visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Father Murphy, assistant priest at St. Mary's church, is ill.

Mrs. Rogers of Grandview avenue has recovered from a severe attack of the grip.

Mr. Henderson of West Seventh street purchased a valuable saddle horse at Kirkpatrick's in New York last week.

The Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, started yesterday for Atlantic City, to take a much needed vacation.

Father Freeman, formerly in charge of St. Joseph's church, North Plainfield, will lecture in that church Wednesday night. Father Freeman is now located at Junction.

Edward Randolph, who left here some time ago to take a position in a Rooston drug store, has returned to Plainfield. He has given up the drug business acting on the advice of his physician.

At Grace church, last evening, Father Johnson of the Church of the Redeemer New York City, preached a very eloquent sermon, and in spite of the stormy evening a large congregation was to hear him. He spoke of the endless work of the bell buoy, ringing constantly and also of the countless number of ships which, in the fog had received warning, just in time to escape the dangerous shoal. A glowing example was also shown how Christ in his love for us gave up his life for us. The speaker also said that we should be as the bell-buoy, tolling constantly to warn others of the danger into which they were drifting and bring them to Christ.

John Kirch of Warrenville died Saturday, in his 79th year. He owned one of the best farms in that neighborhood which is now farmed by his son William. Mr. Kiren leaves eight children—four sons and four daughters. The sons are: George, who lives at the corner of Somerset street and Grandview avenue, North Plainfield; John D., of Dunellen; Fred., of Warrenville; and William of Warrenville. The daughters are Mrs. Zimmerman, of Summit avenue, North Plainfield; Mrs. Abbott, of Bertinville; Mrs. Badum, of Dunellen; and Matilda Kirch of Warrenville. The funeral services will be held at one o'clock to-morrow afternoon, at Warrenville.

A Baggage Car on Fire.

A baggage car, on fire inside, was sidetracked at the North avenue depot at about three o'clock this morning, and word sent to the fire department headquarters by a few members of the Department west out with No. two's hose wagon. Water was taken from a hydrant. It was found that the woodwork inside the car was considerably burned. The flames soon extinguished the flames.

"A MORAL REPROBATE."

THE SUBJECT OF THE REV. MR. HERRING'S SERMON LAST NIGHT.

It was the First of a Series on "Contrasted Characters."—King Ahaz Taken as a Subject.

"A Moral Reprobate" was the theme of the first of a course of sermons on "Contrasted Characters" by the Rev. Mr. Herring, in the First Presbyterian church last night. The Reprobate was King Ahaz, mentioned in II Chron. 28 22 The speaker said in substance: Ahaz well deserves the epithet Reprobate for he was notoriously bad, not exceeded perhaps by any of the kings of Judah or Israel, and as we size the man we find scarcely a redeeming feature in his make up. He seemed to have reached the deepest depths of depravity. We might call him the Old Testament Herod. He was bad even with the good opportunities of his home. His father exceeded his grandfather in goodness and we should have expected the superlative degree of goodness in Ahaz. His life enforces the teaching that sin, not grace is inherited. If responsibility increases with light, he had floods of light and therefore the heinousness of his sin is intensified. Perhaps his father Jotham's goodness was too much of the character of Eli—goodness with no backbone.

Another teaching from this man's life is his weakness. We would rather possess the brute courage of Paul his victor, than the cringing cowardice of this reprobate. We admire backbone.

Again he was debauched by his false religion. It does make a difference what a man believes even though he is sincere in his belief. Paul was sincere before Damascus. Yet the record is "he breathed out cruelty." But after Damascus, believing the Christ of Love he wrote the 13th of 1st Corinthians. Ahaz believed in Moloch and cast his children into the burning arms of this monster.

Another lesson is that his distress did not drive him to Jehovah but drove him further away. He sacrificed to the gods of Damascus which smote him, yet did not the prophet warn him and hold out the signs of divine help. He was a determined unbeliever. Did Judas listen to the repeated Labors of Christ to win Him.

The scourge that smote him was of his own choice. That which he relied on for his help proved a curse. His wicked ness came down upon his own pate. Sin is a mistake, a missing of the mark.

FURTHER ER MADE ISRAEL TO SIN.

One man may be a moral curse or a moral blessing on the community in which he lives. Ahaz was buried in dishonor and left no reputable with no redeeming feature in his whole life. But the Grace of God could have wrought a mighty transformation in his soul. If there is a possibility in a soul of the blackest sin, divine grace can make a saint.

Elected a Member of the Law Students' Association.

At the regular meeting of the Union County Law students association held in Elizabeth Friday night Mr. Charles McNabb, law student in Judge Coddington's office, was elected a member. This organization was formed recently, but it already has 20 members. The Freeholders of Union county have also a desire to meet in the court room, where mock-trials and exercises of that nature are conducted each meeting night by some lawyer. Mr. Paul I. Oliver is president of the association.

WHOLESALE RAIDING AND ARRESTING.

Persons Picking Coal on the Railroad Being Hauled Up.

Railroad Detective Coren has arranged to make arrests by wholesale of persons picking coal off the railroad and from coal cars, and has had warrants issued charging them with stealing and disorderly conduct.

Eight were arrested Saturday and taken before Justice Hall of Dunellen.

The prisoners were Martin Brennan, Thomas Holland, Thomas Jackson, Peter Johnson, William and Michael Gallagher (father and son), Martin Boyle, and John Woods.

Each of the prisoners was fined $4.40, $1 of which was for a fine, and the $3.40 as the costs of court. The only one of the prisoners to pay the fine and costs was Martin Brennan. The others said they were too poor, excepting the Gallaghers, who waived examination. The father was held to await the action of the Grand Jury. The son's plea was not received, but he was ordered committed to the county jail at New Brunswick. After a consultation, between officer Coren, Judge Huff and Constable Huff, young Gallagher was re-called to the witness stand, and informed that as Mr. Coren did not want to take him to jail that afternoon he would be held on his own recognizance to appear next Saturday at 2 p. m. The accused say they were only picking coal out of empty cars.

Warrants are out for about forty persons against these charges, and Mr. Coren has the names of about 100 others.

Most of the people who take this coal are very poor, and with no intent to steal, although there are many who are guilty of downright stealing.

The extent of the depredations are such as to prove a serious loss to the company, which several years ago found it necessary in self-protection to give the matter special attention.

Every now and then some one is also killed by passing trains, while at this work, and the company made liable for damages, so that it now endeavors to keep these coal pickers off its property altogether, and to this end they are arrested as trespassers whenever found.

100 MILES BY COACH.

A Regular Daily Line of Tallyhoes to be Established.

A regular coaching run between Philadelphia and New York will be established about April 1. The enterprise is backed by Harrison Caner and Edward Browning, young millionaires; Rittenhouse Miller, said to be one of the best whips in the country; Col. E. D. V. Morrell and Nelson Brown, all of Philadelphia.

The route is about 100 miles in length, through Trenton, Princeton, New Brunswick and Newark, with a starting place near the centre of the terminal cities.

A coach will start in New York and Philadelphia, respectively, for the other city about 7.30 o'clock each morning and the journey will be made in probably twelve hours, possibly in ten.

There will be seventeen or eighteen relays on every day and each coach will use about seventy horses. The gentlemen named will drive the teams, with a coachman to relieve them.

The proposed run is said to be the longest regular journey in America, and is probably longer than any in London. The projectors do not anticipate receiving any profit from the venture.

An Indignant Mother Thinks Her Son did not Get Fair Play.

To the Editor of The News:—My son was arrested last Monday night for disorderly conduct at the Music Hall. Sentence was suspended. But the disgrace of being arrested, remains, even though he was proved innocent of the charge.

Speaking of disorderly conduct. Where were the police three Saturday nights ago when a woman was quarreling on West Fourth street and ran out of her house screaming, "Murder, Help, Police!" for fully twenty minutes, and disturbing the whole neighborhood. There were no arrests then. I have been a resident of this city for twenty-four years and I like to see justice done and I do no call that justice when my son was arrested without cause. His Mother.

CONCERNING MR. C. C. COKEFAIR.

He Denies Business Connection With Certain Companies Except Merely as a Broker.

The New York Sunday World had at three columns article about an alleged fraudulent company, which, it was claimed, had been flooding the banks of New York and vicinity, including Plainfield, with what is said to be worthless paper. The account involves several well known firms and mentions prominently Mr. C. C. Cokefair. The part that refers to Plainfield is given below:

"It is said that in Plainfield, N. J., Danbury, Conn., and several Long Island towns, these notes of Tom, Dick and Harry are to be found in quantities in bank vaults and in strong boxes of farmers. So far as can be learned this is about the only kind of 'trading' these companies have done to justify the name."

This morning's World had the following statement:

"C. C. Cokefair, who is the brains of the cold storage swindle that is, was not a director or a stockholder in the Cold Storage Company. In the sale of the plant and business, he declared, he acted simply as a broker, and in the same capacity in floating some of the paper of the company. He also said he never negotiated any of the paper in Plainfield, New York, Brooklyn, or in their vicinity. The officials of the First National Bank of Plainfield said, too, that they had none of the paper of the Cold Storage Company."

The City National Bank officials also deny having had any of the company's paper.

To a Protestant Church.

The Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, the noted Roman Catholic priest, was the preacher at the Trinity Congregational Church at East Orange last evening. This is the first time that a Roman Catholic priest has occupied the pulpit of a Protestant church in the Oranges. The church was densly packed, hundreds being turned away from the doors. Father McGlynn took for his subject "The Politics of the Lord's Prayer," and his sermon was a powerful and able argument for the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God. There was a special musical service.

No Trace of the Pirate Sloop.

Elmore Merrill, the oysterman, whose boat was stolen last week by the crew of the pirate sloop, returned to Perth Amboy last night and gave up the search as hopeless. All trace of the stolen boat has been covered up by the pirates. Merrill said every cove and creek had been searched and no trace of the black sloop could be found, although several clammers claim to have sighted the pirate sloop standing out towards the point of the Hook.

Carberry Hiccoughs Again.

John Carberry, of 23 Webster street, Newark, has been hiccoughing almost continually for the past forty-eight hours. He took a nourishing luncheon yesterday afternoon, but has not had a good night's sleep since Saturday night, and then for only two hours and a half. He dones all the fingo and is very weak. His name was read from the altar yesterday among the very sick of the parish.

A CAREFUL BUYER.

She Wanted Her Book Guaranteed Before Purchasing.

"You—you keep books here?" she asked as she entered a Detroit bookstore and timidly glanced around.

"Yes'm, we keep books," replied the clerk as he softly rubbed his hands together and wondered if they had sold the last copy of Mendicant Reader, or the Heroine of Harper's Ferry.

"I—I want a book," she continued, "but I want to look at the last page before I buy it."

"Certainly, miss, certainly. We have no objection to your looking at all the pages if you wish. Have you bought a book here in which something was wrong with the last page?"

"No, sir; but a friend of mine bought a book in Chicago which ended by advising the reader to try somebody's liver purifier, and you don't know how dreadful she feels about it. Have you 'Paradise Lost?'"

"We do."

"And will you guarantee that it doesn't refer to somebody's sarsaparilla?"

"I can't positively believe that it does."

"How is Dickens? I wanted his 'Dombey and Son,' but I'm afraid he's got in something about corn cures or porous plasters. Are you sure he hasn't?"

"Why, I never heard of such a thing in a standard book!"

"Not Lucci lately. Shakespeare wouldn't be apt to have anything in about stomach bitters or headache cured in five minutes. Now, you're sure?"

"I've read him a great deal, and I never came across any such thing. However, you might glance over that set and satisfy your self."

"It would take too long," she sighed, as she glanced at the backs of the volumes. "I have sometimes thought I would like to read Homer's 'Iliad.' There is such a book, I believe?"

"Oh, yes."

"And you can guarantee it?"

"I can, ma'am—positively guarantee that you will find nowhere in that book the slightest reference to sparrow grass, bitters, consumption, asthma, bronchitis, curvature of the spine, varicose veins or indigestion."

"If there is"—

"You can return it and get your money."

She took it and went away smiling and happy.—Detroit Free Press.

TARIFF BILL COMPLETE

An Attempt to Report It to the Senate Today.

ENEMIES OF THE BILL IN CAUCUS.

Filibustering Against Bland's Seigniorage Bill Begin Again, but Bland Is Persistent—The President Goes Hunting For Ducks With Secretary Gresham.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—It is the intention of the senate finance committee to report the tariff bill to the senate today exactly as it has been, after some strenuous objections. Following this it is expected that Senator Voorhees will give notice that he will call up the bill on the following Monday and ask that it be kept before the senate until disposed of.

It is part of the programme that the bill shall be taken up every morning immediately after the morning business and kept before the senate to the exclusion of everything else. It is understood that if there is any disposition to prolong the debate a move will be made for extra hours and longer sessions.

The Democratic subcommittee will consider the bill for a short time before the full committee meets. The bill, which was sent to the printer Saturday night, will be changed in some particulars before it is finally submitted.

Few Alterations Necessary.

As it stands now there are three propositions which will not be wholly agreed to, and whatever is done will necessitate alterations. But, as showing how near complete the bill is, a member of the subcommittee said that he saw no reason why it should not be reported today; that the full committee would not change it a single hitting, even to the dotting of an "i" or crossing of a "t."

He thought that no prepared report would be made on the bill by the committee, the bill itself standing for a report. The Democrats will offer to allow the Republicans a week in which to submit their views either in the form of a bill or a report.

It is not believed that the Republicans will consent to a report upon the bill today, and this may interfere with the Democratic programme and delay the reporting of the bill. The Democratic members of the committee will make an attempt to conceal the feeling they have that the caucus called for today at the same time the committee meets in antagonistic to the bonafide of some of the features of the bill. It is said to be unlikely that any members of the finance committee will attend the caucus.

The senate has made but little progress during the past two weeks in its efforts to clean up the calendar in advance of the threatening discussion of the tariff bill. If the opportunity is afforded, it will continue its work on the calendar during the present week. There are so many special orders, however, some of which have been brought over from previous weeks, that it is probable comparatively little progress will be made this week.

Filibustering Against Bland.

The battle over the Bland seigniorage bill will be renewed in the senate house this week. Despite the many reverses Mr. Bland has met in his attempts to procure a quorum, he is as determined as ever to fight it out on this line if it takes all winter. If he does not succeed, however, in the course of a few days, it is not probable that the action of his associates on the rules committee will permit his bill to longer block the path of business.

As the opponents of the measure have now adopted an open filibustering policy, a rule will be formulated by the committee on rules today to prevent this and bring the matter directly to Mr. Bland's motion. A caucus will be held tonight or Tuesday to consider the question of an amendment to the rules which will alter the rule of the speaker in regard to count a quorum or place it in his power to compel a member to vote, with the alternative of being absent.

While it would seem from the number who signed the caucus bill—116—that a majority of the Democrats favor some method of preventing filibustering, some of the leading members do not desire to push such a modification of the rules at the end of this long fight. Votes to suspend they think they should first vindicate their ability to extricate themselves from the present humiliating position, and afterward, they argue, the events of the past two weeks would furnish ample justification for such a modification of the rules.

The situation is said to be therefore full of contingencies. The struggle over the Bland bill may drift into a big parliamentary contest over a change in the rules, in which event there will be some bitter opposition manifested from the Democratic side, especially if the proposed rule contemplates lodging in the speaker's hand the power to count a quorum.

Pending the result of the silver fight the Democratic opponents of the measure, no matter what they may favor with regard to a change of the rules as an abstract proposition, will contest anything which is destined to lessen their power of obstructing the seigniorage bill. If the silver bill is gotten out of the way before the end of the week, the contested election cases and appropriation bills will follow.

The President Goes Duck Shooting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—President Cleveland and two associates started off on their second pleasure trip down the Potomac river. The president's companions were Secretary Gresham and Captain Robley Evans, secretary of the lighthouse board. It was a rough day for the start on a cruising trip on the water, but the president was well muffled up and looked rugged and vigorous. The fact that he did not allow the inclemency of the past few days to interrupt his projected plans for a few days' outdoor recreation would seem effectually to set at rest any reports that he is in ill health.

The party was driven to the wharf, where the little lighthouse tender Violet, on which President Cleveland, Secretaries Carlisle and Gresham and Captain Evans made a similar trip a few weeks ago, lay tied up. There were a number of others about, owing to the severe storm and gale. As soon as the party and the guns and other traps were stowed away on board the little craft moved out from the wharf and started for the waters of the lower Potomac.

The president and party expect to be gone several days. No precise date for their return has been fixed. Neither has the party any fixed destination. The Violet will cruise about from point to point, and its passengers will take things easy, visiting a few of the hunting resorts perhaps. When the opposing forces in the senate will try his luck at duck shooting. The trip is taken by the president and secretary of state solely for rest and recreation.

SHEETED IN ICE.

Steamers Met the St. Jean and the Cold Wave Out In the Atlantic.

New York, Feb. 26.—The steamers which are arriving report unusually severe weather all along the route. The vessels presented a very curious sight, their decks, rigging and lower spars being completely covered with ice a foot thick, making it very difficult to walk the decks. The sailors comprising their crews suffered severely from the intense cold.

Vessels encountered were chiefly from the north and northwest, with very high seas, which splashed over the sides and bows of the vessels, the water freezing solid as soon as it struck the decks. Much difficulty was experienced in handling anchors, the deck steampipes being covered with ice and bursting when a slight pressure of steam was turned on. No serious damage was reported, however, to any of the incoming steamers.

The French steamer La Bourgogne, Captain Lebouef, arrived from Havre after a very fair passage. On Friday night, shortly before midnight, a huge wave boarded the vessel over the bows.

Second Officer Bocot was knocked senseless, as was also the seaman who was on duty at the time. The bridge was made a complete wreck. Both men were picked up in a dazed condition, but no bones were found broken. For 36 hours the gale lasted and at times blew with terrific fury, the waves deluging the ship fore and aft. The weather during all this time was insanely cold, and the sailors suffered greatly from lack of ice. Her main and hurricane decks were coated a foot thick. On her arrival at quarantine La Bourgogne presented a magnificent appearance, closely resembling a huge iceberg.

CORNELL'S TRAGEDY.

No Definite Clews Yet, but One Student Is Suspected.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 26.—The complications in the Cornell banquet case are still unsolved. They are not likely to be solved upon the integrity of the officials whose duty it is to ferret out the culprits. The fact that a city detective has been on the case since the investigation of the case has occasioned open charges as to the sincerity of the men of the two political parties.

It has always been the custom of the city recorder and other officials to be very lenient with the students. The Democrats are making an unusually earnest effort to win this year's campaign, and the Republican administration is doing all in its power to prevent its affiliations with the students, the majority of whom are Republicans, large numbers of them voting in Ithaca.

The most important phase of the situation is the positive statement of Mr. Holden, a graduate student, who is well acquainted with Mr. Diugee. He is now in Ithaca. On receiving this assertion from Mr. Holden a reporter called at Mr. Dingee' residence on Cook street. Mr. Taylor, his brother-in-law, said he had expected that evening. These conflicting statements lead strongly to the assumption that Mr. Dingee is in Ithaca, and that his friends are concealing his whereabouts.

The Deacon's Prayer Caused a Row.

VANCEBURG, Ky., Feb. 26.—Just after the benediction had been pronounced in the Clarksburg church Ulysses Grant Dills approached Deacon John Lawhorn and vigorously criticised a prayer offered during the services by the deacon. The deacon resented the censure by throwing a stone at Dills. The men clinched, and the deacon threw Dills to the floor. Dills then used a slungshot, and the deacon was knocked out and seriously hurt.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—Ex-Mayor John K. Livingston was declared insane by a commission and was committed at his residence in East St. Louis.

WILSON SERIOUSLY ILL.

Author of the Tariff Bill Stricken With Typhoid Fever.

FIGHTING DEATH IN OLD MEXICO.

The Congressman Taken to the Highest Point Accessible—Steele Mackaye, Actor and Playwright, Dies While Hastening to California in Search of Health.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 26.—Congressman Wilson is seriously ill. Gen. Grajalvera is the highest spot of the central Mexican plateau, and Mr. Wilson was removed there by orders of Dr. Prevost of this city in the hope that the difference in climate might revive him. The fever, according to Dr. Prevost, is now in its tenth or twelfth day and must have developed about the time Mr. Wilson left Mexico City.

Mr. Wilson was ill when he arrived here and went at once to the springs at Agua Caliente. It subsequently developed that there was nothing more the matter with him than a temporary breakdown from overwork. At the springs, however, instead of improving Mr. Wilson became worse, and so rapidly that Congressman Tarsney of Kansas City telegraphed Consul General Crittenden on Wednesday to be on hand the next American physician that could be found.

Dr. Prevost reached the bedside of the Congressman on Thursday and found Mr. Wilson a very sick man. He informed the family that Mr. Wilson must be at once removed to a higher altitude, and Guadalajara was decided on. When the condition of Mr. Wilson when Irapuato was reached about sundown on Friday that a rest had to be taken until morning, when the journey was resumed. The next stopping place was Guadalajara was reached.

Mr. Wilson has not been informed as to the nature of his illness. But his wife and Mr. Tarsney were told what it was by Dr. Prevost. They were very much shocked.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—Representative William L. Wilson has received the following telegram from Consul General Crittenden at the City of Mexico: "Mr. Wilson doing as well as can be expected. Temperature good. No immediate danger. He is still at Guadalajara."

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26.—A special from the City of Mexico says: Dr. Prevost received a telegram from Guadalajara twice a day giving the temperature of Chairman Wilson, who is seriously ill there with typhoid fever. The patient was resting well yesterday and Sunday evening 101.8. A crisis is expected today.

Steele Mackaye's Death.

DENVER, Feb. 26.—Steele Mackaye died at 5 this morning. He started last year the New Mexico line, aboard a Santa Fe train on his way to San Francisco.

The actor and playwright arrived in La Junta over the Santa Fe road in the special car of George R. Peck, general counsel for the Santa Fe company. Mr. Mackaye was accompanied by his wife, nurse and Dr. H. N. D. Barker. They came west from Chicago. Mr. Mackaye was supposed to be suffering from nervous exhaustion, caused by overwork, and was on his way to San Diego, Cal. He was feeling quite badly when he arrived here, and the car was switched off and left until 7:30 Sunday morning, when the party started south, as Mr. Mackaye seemed to be resting easier. He rapidly grew worse and died before the train reached the next station. He was conscious to the last, bade all those around him goodby and said they had done all they could for him.

The remains were embalmed and sent to Chicago. Dr. Parker and Dr. Finney, the Santa Fe surgeon at this point, held an autopsy and found the cause of death to be a cancer in the stomach. Some of the best physicians in Chicago had examined him, and all had decided his ailment was nervous exhaustion—except one, who declared it to be a cancer.

Author, Actor, Manager and Inventor.

Steele Mackaye was born at Port Porter, now a part of the city of Buffalo, about 47 years ago. His father was the projector and organizer of several of the great express companies of America. At the age of 16 the conception of Steele's intellectual energy resulted in a general physical collapse, and a trip abroad followed. While slowly convalescing in France he occupied himself with painting and modeling. At the breaking out of the war of the rebellion he returned to his native country and at once raised a volunteer soldier and before the war was over was gazetted major.

Returning to France at the close of the war, he spent a year in the study of idea, resolving to apply himself to dramatic art. He was a pupil of Garnier and later of Francois Delsarte. Returning to America by way of England, he was persuaded by Tom Taylor in London to assume the title role of Hamlet in a grand revival of that play which was to open the new Lyceum palace under the direction of that distinguished dramatist. The success of Mr. Mackaye's interpretation of Hamlet was so great that the engagement was prolonged far beyond that originally decided upon.

Probably nothing but another of the serious illnesses which have marked crises in Mr. Mackaye's career diverted him from a lifetime of Shakespearean interpretations. Recovering, he produced in collaboration with Tom Taylor two plays in London with marked success—"Clancarty" and "Arkwright's Wife." With Charles Reade he collaborated a play entitled "Jealousy."

In 1872, while at work with George Eliot on a dramatization of "Silas Marner," he was recalled to America upon important business, where he has lived ever since, working for opportunity for the stage as manager, lecturer, inventor, manager, playwright and actor.

AN ASYLUM BURNED.

Two Lives Lost in the Destruction of a New Jersey State Home.

VINELAND, N. J., Feb. 26.—Two lives were lost and a score placed in imminent peril by a fire which consumed a portion of the State Home for Feeble Minded Children at this place. The victims were J. H. Stage, the engineer of the institution, and his wife, a matron in the asylum.

The fire was discovered in the basement. It spread with almost incredible rapidity, owing to the high winds and scarcity of water, and before help could be summoned the entire building was filled with smoke and flames. Sixteen helpless and well nigh idiotic children slept on the lower floors, and for a time it seemed as if nothing short of a miracle could possibly save them. In the upper floors were about the same number of adults.

Just at the critical moment help came, and a dozen brave men, headed by Augustus Speier, a stagedriver, broke down the doors and rushed into the burning building, rescuing the children at the imminent risk of their own lives and carried to a place of safety across the bitter cold winds the women who had slept in the upper floors.

It was thought that all had been saved, when the white and terror stricken faces of Stage and his wife appeared at a window in the third floor, and their voices were heard crying piteously for help. At a time when it seemed as if they would surely be saved both disappeared from the window and were seen no more. The flames swept on, completely gutting the building. The bodies of the unfortunates were found at the foot of the stairway burned to a crisp, indicating that they had tried that means of escape only to rush to certain death. They were formerly residents of Philadelphia and had been here but six weeks.

Monticello's Latest Tragedy.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Feb. 26.—The inquest into the death of old Jacob Moore and Jane Rayfield, who were foully murdered near Monticello on Wednesday night, will begin at the Union House, Monticello, tomorrow. Subpœnas have been served on several suspected persons, and new developments are expected. Mrs. Halliday, who murdered her husband, Paul Halliday, and Sarah J. and Margaret McQuillan, is confined in jail at Monticello. When told of the double murder, she evinced no interest whatever.

Fired Carr, a young man 23 years of age and a resident of Rushville, was arrested by Sheriff Bescher on a charge of having committed the murder. Young Carr has been acting strangely since the crime was committed, and suspicion was attracted to him because of his conduct.

Murderer Johnson Executed.

SING SING, Feb. 26.—Matthew Johnson, the murderer of Emil Kuckelhorn, paid the penalty of his crime in the electric chair today. He admitted his guilt and expressed contrition for the deed. He said he did not intend to kill the engineer, but entered the building to steal. When his plan was upset by the appearance of Kuckelhorn, he took the man's life. The execution of Johnson leaves Dr. Buchanan the only occupant of the condemned cells. This is the first time the number of men under sentence of death has been lowered to one since the law making electricity the method of execution has gone into effect.

MR. LOW'S FATAL TRIP.

A Rich Gloucester Ship Owner's Strange Death In Gotham.

PROBABLY DRUGGED BY ROBBERS.

He Was Found Dying In the Street, With His Pockets Turned Inside Out and If Watch and Money Missing — Possibly Given a "Knockout Drop."

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—There is much yet to be learned about the death of Benjamin Low, a wealthy shipping merchant of Gloucester, Mass., who was found in a dying condition at Spring and West streets early Saturday evening. An autopsy Sunday afternoon proved that death was not due to a fracture of the skull, as was at first supposed. The immediate cause of death, the doctors decided, was heart failure induced by a congestive chill.

The strange feature of the case is that this man, whose wealth is estimated at $250,000 and who had come to New York to transact business necessitating the handling of thousands of dollars, should have only $1.26 in his pockets when found, although he had hired a room for the night and had spoken of returning to Gloucester by rail if the weather did not moderate.

Money Was Missing.

It could not be learned definitely how much money Mr. Low had when he left the Cosmopolitan hotel in Chambers street at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

It is only known that he was found in a dying condition at West and Spring streets an hour later. One of the men who helped the body told Undertaker Keveney of South Fifth avenue that he thought the Gloucester man had about $200 Saturday morning. The watch which he carried when he left the hotel was missing. If he had more money, it went with the watch.

The locality in which he was found is the haunt of rough characters, and many of them are under espionage today. Captain McCullagh of the Prince street station and his detectives are looking for indications that some of those who infest the water front had grown suddenly wealthy.

The police, while they were at work upon the case all day, profess to believe that Mr. Low carried little money about with him, saying that he probably gave or received checks in his business transactions. It is known that he intended to collect a number of accounts during the day.

Came to New York on Business.

Mr. Low came to New York by the Fall River line, arriving on Saturday morning. He went at once to Fulton market, where the schooner Maggie McKenzie, Captain Huddy, which he owns, was discharging a cargo of fish. He talked with Captain Huddy for an hour and then went to the office of Samuel Morris, a commission merchant at South and Beekman streets.

Mr. Morris had bought the schooner's cargo, and a portion of the money remained in his hands. The captain, Mr. Morris and the police were looking for Mr. Morris last night in Gravesend to find out whether or not Mr. Low had been paid the money.

None of the dead man's friends believes that he would have carried any such sum in cash, as he was notably careful about money matters. Mr. Low went to the Produce Exchange to see Franklin Woodruff, but the latter was out, and after securing the address of some fish dealers he went back to the schooner. He complained of a severe cold and told Captain Huddy that he probably would go home that night by rail if the weather did not moderate. That was the last time Captain Huddy saw him alive.

Got a Knockout Drink.

Policeman Crystal found Mr. Low lying beside a shoring at the corner of Spring and West streets. He was in a state of coma and died before an ambulance arrived from St. Vincent's hospital.

He lay on his face when found and had a handkerchief in his left hand, as if he had attempted to stop the flow of blood from a cut on the bridge of the nose, which was probably due to his fall.

One of the pockets of his trousers was turned half inside out. There was a chain about his neck, the ends hanging inside the vest. The watch, if he had one, was gone. Only $1.26 and some memoranda were found in his pockets.

It is known that he took nothing in the Cosmopolitan hotel. Every one connected with Paige's hotel, at the door of which he fell, is certain that he had not been in it before there. But an examination of the stomach developed traces of whisky, and he had probably taken a small quantity to counteract the chill of which he complained earlier in the day.

It is possible that the little liquor Mr. Low did take contained knockout drops, through the effects of which if there robbery at all it was the work of some prowler who discovered the prostrate man by accident.

E. E. Burnham of Gloucester, Mr. Low's son-in-law, will come to the city today, when new facts may be elicited. The police intend to learn if he had made collections.

Mr. Low was a prominent man in Gloucester. He owned a fleet of fishing schooners, had a ship chandlery business and various real estate interests. He leaves a widow and several children.

Fire Burned to Death.

GURDON, Ark., Feb. 26.—News has reached here of the burning of a farmhouse and its occupants 10 miles west of Murfreesboro, Pike county. John Wert, a farmer, and his wife and five children occupied the house, and all perished in the flames.

NEWS FROM RIO.

Insurgents Gaining In the Southern Part of Brazil.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 26.—A messenger from the southern part of Brazil says that the armies with General Sataiva in Parana and with General Salgado in Rio Grande do Sul are well equipped and have plenty of arms and ammunition. General Barraiva and his army are advancing toward Sao Paulo, while General Salgado's army is in the vicinity of Porto Alegre holding in check the government troops and preventing any movement northward.

The cruiser Republica, the armed merchant steamer Mercury and the Aquidaban will proceed to Bahia for the purpose of attacking the government squadron there. The H. Cid (Nictheroy) was off the harbor on Sunday, Feb. 18, and landed 300 soldiers. It then returned to Bahia. Its entire crew is composed of Americans.

The government sent 800 men to reenforce the garrison at Sao Paulo in consequence of a request from the governor for reenforcements. A heavy artillery fire is being kept up between the forts, and there is some musketry along the shore front.

Foreigners In a Fight.

HAZLETON, Pa., Feb. 26.—A free fight that developed into a riot took place in the boarding house of John Tornasik at Lawlaton. About 40 Hungarians and Poles participated. During the battle knives, guns and clubs were used with terrible effect. Joseph Mervis received a gunshot in the abdomen, John Piker had his skull crushed with a club, John Uram's eye was gouged out, and John Nutch was shot in the shoulder. A number of others were more or less seriously injured.

Murderer Hangs Himself.

HONESDALE, Pa., Feb. 26.—Lawrence McDonald, who murdered his father at Prompton on Jan. 3, committed suicide by hanging in the county jail. He was found dead by Sheriff Murphy. He left a letter stating that he and his father were alone in the house when the crime was committed and that he was intoxicated. The dogs began fighting, and he took a club to part them. He said he struck his father by mistake and continued to murder him, thinking he was striking the dogs.

To Discourage Train Robbers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 26.—The Wells-Fargo express company has decided to adopt the plan now in operation on the Santa Fe system in order to discourage the holding up of trains and the looting of express cars. Hereafter no valuables will be placed in express cars, and to protect express messengers and keep robbers out of the cabs the vestibule doors will be made known only to the company's agents at stations along the road.

Militia's Ammunition Stores Missing.

BOSTON, Feb. 26.—A large quantity of prepared ammunition that has been stored in the police headquarters for a number of years, and which, at a moment's notice, can upon the state militia for service is missing. The recent demonstration of the unemployed in this city has been the cause of general activity in military and police circles; hence the discovery.

Chicago Builders on Strike.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—At a labor meeting it was decided to call out all the men of the 3,000 carpenters employed on buildings the Stock Exchange building in support of the carpenters who have been on strike for some time. The carpenters refused to accept a reduction of one hour per day, and have interfered with work on the building.

TROUSERS FOR BOTH.

THEY ARE NO LONGER TO BE MONOPOLIZED BY ONE SEX.

Comelier Women Are Adopted Them For Winter Use—And They Are Worn by Horse and Bicycle Riders, Fencers and Many Others—French Walking Dress.

A Parisian lady woman who followed The Sun's correspondent from Quebec during the recent carnival uttered an exclamation of surprise when she read that three hundred thousand pairs of Canadian trousers were worn by women during the Carnival winters.

"Why," she, "that tends to show that ... may be going to become a common ... garment peculiar to not ... Is there any thing to it, or is it a hoax? One of her two pairs were those she uses for bicycle riding—the others are a part of her fencing costume. Her daughter's trousers were worn by the little girl in the gymnasium at the school she attends. Had she carried the trousers that form part of her bathing dress for use at the seaside, she would be able to say she owned three pairs of these things, which not long ago were only thought of as masculine, like suspenders and razors. When she called to mind in how many ways and in what different parts of Christendom the women ... using this newly adopted addition to their attire, the recountal grew into a long list. In Switzerland, she said, within the past two or more years, full trousers, like the Turkish ones, are worn for mountain exercises by English, French and German women. The same trousers are worn by the Scotch highlands by the English, and of late a movement has begun for the adoption of trousers and being called costume for equestrianism in London. This fashion is soon introduced by women of ... who wish their sex to adopt the ... manner of riding horses. It ... that we have no news that the ... has proved popular, but, on ... hand, no news of its abandonment ... been sent over. The leading ... fashion papers have published pictures ... the dress worn by these new ... the ... garment of the master sex, and the costume has been ... pretty. As many as half a dozen ... have appeared simultaneously in Hyde park in this new dress.

In all the fashionable girls' schools of New York and Brooklyn trousers have long been worn in the school gymnasiums, but this has not counted to the fullest extent toward the coming revolution, because no ... display of the costume has ever ... There was no good excuse for this secrecy. The trousers formed part of ... and pretty dress, which seemed ... the eyes of all adult women who ... it. The publicity had to come and ... has been accomplished. The ... were now reported, exhibitions in ... of the schools to which the parents ... are invited. Moreover, the ... of the trousers keeps ... the ... and ... now ready for handball and other ... playing played by the same young ... in the same dress. Among grown women the old fashioned equestrian tights have been succeeded by cloth trousers very like those that men wear, and trousers have for a long time been worn in the fencing clubs and fencing classes. More than that, there are many women now riding bicycles who wear what are called the Turkish trousers. It is only now and then that a woman so dressed is seen in Central or Prospect parks or the streets that lead to those parks, yet some are seen every now and then, and in the smaller cities of New England, New York and New Jersey they multiply rapidly, so that in certain of these towns no one turns a head for a second glance at a woman in that dress.

The bathing dress shows marked signs of following this movement, which progresses so fast in no way wholly discreet ways. In this country the fashionable bathing dress has seen its skirt cut less and less of a figure as each year rolls along. The skirts have grown shorter, and less and less material has been put in them. But in France, where fashions begin, the startling news is several ... trousers women have taken the surf at Trouville with any skirts over the tight fitting cloth trousers which, with a waist, slippers, stockings and hat of the same color, compose their very pretty though startling bathing outfits. With this recollection the story of the progress of the trousers among the gentler half of Christendom terminated. The woman who gave the recountal was of the opinion that trousers will be worn more and more worn by women for special occasions and uses. Whether the sex will substitute them for ... skirts she could not ... go so far as to say. She argued that they will be adopted for bicycle riding, anti equestrianism, the latter being a sport which 10 women would take up for every one who does now, if it were not for the painful and ridiculous manner in which women have been forced, by the exigencies of their apparel, to mount a horse. She prophesies also that trousers on women will grow more and more common in the suburban and country towns wherever rain is falling, or the roads are bad, or walking or tennis or any athletic sports are under way.

"The divided skirt fancy, fire," she says, "because it came before the women were ready for it. It will come again and take a permanent place in our costuming with in a very few years."

"Will women ever abandon, will you ever give up, the beautiful draperies you now wear for the commonplace trousers of man?"

"Oh, for evening and full dress? I don't say that. That is indeed a far cry ahead. But the reason that the women of Canada have adopted trousers is the reason that so many women are taking to them so kindly. That reason is that they permit us to do without the weight and hindrance of skirts. They make it possible for us to join in sports of nearly all kinds with the men, and to feel no accident which with the cut style of dress would humiliate us. The Canadians wear an outer skirt, and look as they ought to look when they dressed like other women. Perhaps the outer skirt will stay, even after all women wear trousers. But perhaps it will give place to the divided skirt, and we shall only wear the outer skirt at home or on special occasions—that is what we must wait for time to settle."—New York Sun.

Bits from Edmund Russell.

Personality, not style, is what we want. High collars destroy graceful conversation.

Avoid all things labeled "common sense."

We live in three envelopes—our bodies, our dress, our homes.

Jet is wicked. Tired, good women should never wear jet.

Diamonds decrease in beauty as they increase in size.

Gloves are worn too much. Kid gloves make wrinkles in the face—new ones because of their newness; old ones because of their want of respectability.

Large persons should not lose sight of their advantages. There are good points in being big—power and grandeur.

In choosing materials for dress look back to the mind behind the design. Select materials that indicate a high order of artistic skill in the designer.

Avoid black—dress objectively, not subjectively. Women are larger natured in light colors.

Do not wear selfish clothes—a crude green dress is its own worst enemy.

As you grow older wear lighter colors. White is intensely spiritual—gray, in a lesser degree, also spiritualizes.

Cruel Confidences.

Women who are lacking in self control are given to complaining to their children about their troubles. They make confidants of them and introduce them prematurely to the cares and perplexity. A child is so sympathetic and impressible that he offers a tempting field for the exploiting of little miseries. But he does not come through the experience unhurt. The delicate sensibilities of children are like the tender and exquisite arbutus, which gives forth the sweetest fragrance when it is being crushed to death.

We recall an experience where a weak mother, always in pecuniary difficulties through her extravagance, formed the habit of unburdening herself to her little son, a sedate, earnest lad of 10. He was so deeply affected by the knowledge of her trouble that it preyed upon him constantly, and his great dream was to do something to relieve his mother from her debts. His whole early life was clouded and made unhappy by this indiscreet demand upon his sympathies.—Childhood.

Don'ts For the Children.

Don't encourage in a small child that for which you will punish him when older.

Don't trample mercilessly underfoot the wishes of a child, but respect them as far as possible.

Don't punish children in anger, but let them know that you dislike the task, but perform it for their good.

Don't talk of a child's peculiarities before it—never let it hear its beauty or ugliness spoken of. The greatest charm of childhood is its forgetfulness of itself.

Don't feel it beneath your dignity to give a child the reason for a refusal, if practicable so to do. If it is not, your former conduct should have inspired such confidence toward you that he will cheerfully submit though he does not understand your motive.—Good Housekeeping.

Entertainment For the Evening.

A delightful evening of "tableau vivants" for the entertainment of friends represents the pictures in a grandmother's album 30 years ago. The stage should represent the parlor of a country farm house, where two old ladies, themselves grandmothers, in old time dress, talk over their school days and those they knew in it, bringing out the old fashioned bonnets, the poke, the calash, the high combs, the curls, the ringlets, the pantalets, the gaiters, the long waists, the short skirts, the sandals, the sunbonnets, the leghorn hats, the fichus, the reticules, the bandeaux, the pompadours, the chignons, the waterfalls, the rats, the mice, the switches, the frizzes, the bangs, the rolls, the puffs, the braids, the coils, the knots, the twists, the plaits, the tresses, the locks, the tufts, the tassels, the fringes, the ribbons, the laces, the flounces, the ruffles, the tucks, the gathers, the pleats, the folds, the seams, the hems, the stitches, the darns, the patches, the mends, the rips, the tears, the holes, the buttons, the buttonholes, the pins, the needles, the thimbles, the scissors, the thread, the yarn, the wool, the cotton, the silk, the satin, the velvet, the plush, the cloth, the linen, the muslin, the calico, the gingham, the flannel, the woolen, the cashmere, the merino, the alpaca, the mohair, the camlet, the damask, the brocade, the lace, the embroidery, the fringe, the ribbon, the braid, the binding, the facing, the lining, the interlining, the wadding, the padding, the stuffing, the quilting, the tufting, the buttoning, the hooking, the eyeing, the lacing, the tying, the knotting, the weaving, the knitting, the crocheting, the tatting, the netting, the darning, the patching, the mending, the ripping, the tearing, the holing, the buttoning, the pinning, the needling, the thimbling, the scissoring, the threading, the yarning, the wooling, the cottoning, the silking, the satining, the velveting, the plushing, the clothing, the linening, the muslining, the calicoing, the ginghaming, the flannelling, the woolening, the cashmering, the merinoing, the alpacaing, the mohairing, the camleting, the damasking, the brocading, the lacing, the embroidering, the fringing, the ribboning, the braiding, the binding, the facing, the lining, the interlining, the wadding, the padding, the stuffing, the quilting, the tufting, the buttoning, the hooking, the eyeing, the lacing, the tying, the knotting, the weaving, the knitting, the crocheting, the tatting, the netting, the darning, the patching, the mending, the ripping, the tearing, the holing, the buttoning, the pinning, the needling, the thimbling, the scissoring, the threading, the yarning, the wooling, the cottoning, the silking, the satining, the velveting, the plushing, the clothing, the linening, the muslining, the calicoing, the ginghaming, the flannelling, the woolening, the cashmering, the merinoing, the alpacaing, the mohairing, the camleting, the damasking, the brocading, the lacing, the embroidering, the fringing, the ribboning, the braiding.

SKIRTS ARE STILL FLARING.

But Those For Outdoor Wear Do Not Trail Upon the Ground.

In spite of the rumors published from time to time that skirts are shrinking into narrower limits, the latest Parisian models show a decidedly flaring tendency, some of them even approximating to the shape of those worn in 1809, but longer. Those intended for outdoor service touch the ground all the way round, but do not trail upon it, trained skirts being very sensibly restricted to house and evening toilets. What a pity it is that fashion can be rational only by fits and starts!

Heavy white, cream and black laces promise to continue in popularity as a garniture and are to be found through a wide range of pattern, width and quality. Some of the new machine made laces shown in the early spring display of the shops are wonderfully good imitations of the real thing, and being fully as effective are useful for costumes the making of which necessitates much cutting and sniping of the trimming. The conscience rebels at a waste cutting into handmade lace.

Black still holds its own in fashionable favor, but is no longer confined to the marqui partnership with white that was so prevalent last autumn. In bopsacking serge and camels' hair it is serviceable as well as modish, and spring tidies in these materials may be enlivened with blue, purple or green vests with most becoming result. Few entirely black gowns are worn.

A VISITING TOILET.

The costume of which sketch is given is for visiting and the theater and shows marked indication of the threatened return to the drapery epoch. It is composed of black watered silk and light green velvet. The flaring skirt is untrimmed around the bottom, but it is capped by a short apron-skirt trimmed with fringe and having a sash belt, with two long ends at the back, which reach nearly to the bottom of the skirt. The close fitting round corsage is covered plainly with heavy ivory lace, over which jet passementerie is sewed lengthwise to simulate a yoke. The jet extends to the waist line on either side, back and front. The plain tight sleeves are of watered silk, and a full double puff of light green velvet extends from the shoulder half way to the elbow, looped by two ... jet chains. The neck is finished with a high wrinkled velvet collar.

SALTING THE TRACKS.

INJURIES CAUSED TO HORSES BY THE PRACTICE.

Chief Grant Knows of no Ordinance Forbidding It.—Indulged in by Private Individuals.—Also to the Ruin of Shoe Leather and Rubbers.

The New York papers say that there are 25,000 horses in that city sick and disabled because of the practice of the street railway companies in salting the tracks to melt the snow and ice, the brine being also very injurious to shoes and rubbers. There are ordinances in some cities against the practice. The tracks in Plainfield are salted regularly during snowy weather, the motormen carrying bags of salt on the cars for the purpose. Sidewalks elsewhere are also salted by private individuals.

Last night at the corner of Park and North avenues people were warned that the crossing had been salted, and some knowing the danger took roundabout ways to evade it.

Chief Grant says he knows of no ordinance forbidding the practice and therefore can make no arrests. He does not know that it does any serious harm, although he has heard that it is unhealthy. He don't understand how this can be, however, as salt is used so much as a preservative. When a young man he had much to do with horses.

Careless farmers sometimes allowed their horses to stand in unclean stalls, and the time would run that the horses' frogs and bring an extremely foul-smelling disease known as "thrush." Chief Grant says that salt packed in around the diseased portions of the feet was considered the best of remedies, and of which may be, and yet the brine be not good for the feet of healthy animals. That so many are sick and disabled in New York from the cause stated seems reason enough to require attention aside from our city and our borough councils.

It is well known that the brine softens the horse's feet and makes them so sore and tender that the animal is unable to stand. People owning horses are complaining and talk of suing the company for damages if any are sustained.

BREVITIES.

—Warmer, cloudy or rainy weather for to-morrow.

—Several straw-rides are being planned for this evening.

—To-night Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, will hold a cake socktable.

—In the case of Smalley vs. Smith summons was issued to-day by Justice Mosher.

—Thursday night the first games in the euchre tournament of the Diocesan Union will be played.

—The annual meeting of the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers of the C. Y. M. L. will be held on March 5th.

—The last league game on the Park Club alleys will be played with the Elizabeth Athletic Club, to-night.

—There will be a district meeting of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics to-night in this city.

—Post 72, G. A. R. meets to-night, when it is probable a report will be submitted concerning the recent re-union of the Second New Jersey Cavalry.

—One of the strongest bowling teams in the State, the Americus, of Newark, will visit Plainfield to-night to roll a game with the Board of Trade team.

—Street Commissioner Meeker this morning notified the street railway company that they must level off the banks of snow caused by the street scraper passing over the tracks last night.

—Michael Watson, in conversation with one of the city councilmen yesterday, asked him if there was any probability of the city buying his property, now that he has again been refused a license, in order that he might leave town.

—Car No. 5 of the street railway had to back down on the Somerset street line this morning to let a mail car, going west, pass. In backing up it nearly ran down Mr. Ross' sleigh, in which were seated Mrs. Ross and the driver, George Nan Nest.

—The banks of snow piled up on each side of Front street by the street railway company, is a continued menace to drivers of sleighs. A sleigh must take its chances of upsetting if it is driven on the snow, or else run upon bare ground in the middle of the tracks.

—Fifty-five miles in fifty minutes was made by Conductor Engle, No. 293 yesterday afternoon. A special train left Jersey City at 1.33 p. m., passed here at 2.08 and ran from Round Brook to Wayne Junction, a distance of 55 miles in 50 minutes. This is considered by railroad officials as very fast time, considering the weather.

Too Cold to Stand Still.

While the storm was at its height yesterday afternoon a driverless horse, drawing a phaeton, was stopped on Front street by Willett Marsh. It proved to be Dr. Hedges' rig. The horse was unable to stand the cold and started off for home while the doctor was attending a patient.

Change of Meeting Place.

The Mt. Zion A. M. E. congregation, which formerly met on West Third street, will move hereafter at the Republican Hall on Front street, opposite the post office.

AMERICAN LITERATURE.

COL. HIGGINSON'S LECTURE AT THE CASINO.

The Fact that Two of America's Magazines Circulate More Copies in England than all England's Magazines Combined, Speaks Well for American Literature.

On account of the stormy weather a very small audience was present at the Casino last night to hear Col. T. W. Higginson lecture on "American Periodical Literature." The lecturer began by telling of the time that George William Curtis attended a constitutional convention at New York. He had retired to an ante-room. Shortly afterward two men entered. They did not notice Mr. Curtis. After talking of other men they began discussing Curtis. One said "he is a very intelligent man." The other replied: "Yes, he is a very intelligent man, but then not so very intelligent for a literary man."

It was not said of Abraham Lincoln that he was not very intelligent for a rail-splitter. But of a literary man this sort of certain apology is almost always made.

By no nation in the world to-day is literature held in higher honor than in America.

The Puritans and early settlers brought with them a certain amount of intelligent associations and early clergymen, the very flowers of the colleges. Of the library which John Harvard gave to Harvard College only one book remains. But that library was the cream of ancient works. There was nothing illiterate in the leaders of literature of that period.

The clergymen in the earlier times in America, besides being preachers of the gospel, were supposed to act as lawyers, judges, and doctors.

At one time the most entertaining bit of literature in America was "The Diary of Samuel Sewall." He was the best literary man of that period from the most amusing and serious sides of life. At a funeral he would distribute his poetry, and at court his couplet would be handed 'round.

John Adams once wrote in his diary: "There are no artists in America and I trust there never will be." But history is sure to repeat itself and in 1817 the North American Review was established. This was followed by others and American literature, it was found, had come to be an established fact. But literature did not make the strides forward that was expected of it, and the early books of prose met with a small circulation.

The first magazines had a limited circulation only to a small class. The first magazines, also, were not very successful. The Brook Farm, a New England magazine, was issued only four years when it ceased to be. Then "The Knickerbocker," was another publication that only reached a certain class of people. In 1832 Putnam's Magazine was established, with George William Curtis, as proprietor. This experiment ruined Curtis financially but it was the opening for something else to come. It was the means of causing Harper's publication coming out full of stories from American writers exclusively, while before it was made up of stories from Europeans.

Thereafter there was a marked development in both the monthly and weekly magazines. The American magazine has developed so that to-day two of our leading periodicals circulate more in England than all the English magazines put together. This is due in a measure to the different meanings derived from the word "magazine." In England it means a circular letter from one person to another. While in America it means a store, containing a variety of things.

After all literature is the great and formal test of a people. Without literature no people can have a position in the world.

As Mr. Higginson concluded his lecture the audience, though small in numbers, enthusiastically applauded him.

NO PASTOR YET.

The Scotch Plains Baptists Have not Yet Filled Dr. Parks' Place.

Since the Rev. Dr. Parks resigned, January 1, as pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, that congregation has been without a pastor. Each Sunday the pulpit has been occupied by a new preacher but upon none of them has the choice of the Baptists fallen. Last Sunday the Rev. Mr. Brakes of New York preached to them. It is said that he was more favored than any who have thus far been heard. Possibly a call may be extended to Mr. Brakes.

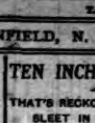
May Prove Her Last Visit.

Mrs. Avis L. Laing, aged 64 years, of Watchung avenue, went to Washington, D. C. about three weeks ago to visit her daughter. She caught cold, and, shortly after her return home it developed into pneumonia. She is now so low that she is not expected to live through the night. She has several children who reside in Plainfield, North Plainfield, Perth Amboy and Washington.

TEN INCHES OF SNOW.

THAT'S RECKONING THE RAIN AND SLEET IN SNOW MEASURE.

The High Northeast Winds Give Place to a Stiff Northwester.—Telephone Wires Much Affected by this Storm.



THE Artic artists who came to town on the stiff northeaster that swooped down on us on Sunday night laid on the crystal decorations fast and thick, and at dawn yesterday the north side of nearly every building hereabouts shimmered much like silver. In other words, there was a fierce sleet storm, which succeeded the horizontal rust of snow that set in on Sunday night. At noon the sleet, which was of an intermittent nature, stopped a bit and let the snow resume business. To the eye unversed in meteorological methods of vision the streets looked as if not more than a few inches of snow had fallen. But the sleet had packed the snow, which had been softened by occasional rain, very hard, and the snowfall really amounted to eight inches. From noon until nine p. m., when the storm practically ceased, and the cheerful prophet descried a few stars in the northwest, seven inches of snow or its equivalent had added themselves to the solid accumulations of the morning, making ten inches in all.

The wind was doing its worst at 9 a. m. Toward nightfall the wind veered to the north and backed around to northwest before 8 o'clock. This showed that the storm centre had got well by us, travelling toward the northeast. The temperature began to drop, and the slush made by vehicular traffic was frozen solid before morning.

In the afternoon the wind was exceedingly disagreeable. It was full of frosts as well as sharp edges. It attacked a man in all sorts of ways. It whistled around a corner and cut him in the face. It came from behind and swooped down on his back. Then it got in a side pounch or two, grabbed around its victim and twisting him around like a top.

Umbrellas collapsed, in their owners' faces.

The snow and sleet stuck where it fell. Doorsteps became dangerous. Men who had a regard for personal comfort crept cautiously down them. The streets were not much better.

The storm proved too much for the street cars and early in the evening all efforts to run cars were abandoned. After the storm ceased six horses were hitched to the city road scraper and this run over the road. In this way the road was opened so that by fastening all the cars together enough power was obtained to run them. About twelve o'clock as they were running down Watchung avenue one of them jumped the track, and it was with much difficulty placed back upon the rails.

The storm did considerable damage to telephone service. Wires were broken and crossed in many places and out of town communication was cut off altogether for awhile, with the exception of Elizabeth. On Eighth street a large telephone pole was broken off.

Railway was so badly hit that it practically shut up shop. In many of its streets the snow drif ed deep, and the Railway Review gang of forces in several places above and below the city it rose above the embankment. The low lands at Lowtown and Breaktown were covered with several feet of water at high tide. Families living near the river front moved their household goods to the second floor.

Between Woodbridge and Spa Springs telephone wires and poles encumbered the tracks for some miles, and a locomotive had to be sent from Elizabeth to pull them away. Manager Root, who has charge of that district, said everything up was down from Woodbridge to Perth Amboy.

The two-covered trees in this locality presented a beautiful sight this morning as the sun shone upon them.

Too Wet for the Goat.

Queen City Lodge, of the Odd Fellows, was to have held a meeting last night and work the third degree on two candidates, but when the members assembled in Odd Fellows Hall, in the Elkins building on West Second street, they found that to initiate any one they would have to buy their goat a rubber suit, as the floor was partly covered with water from several leaks in the roof. The meeting was opened in due form and then adjourned till next Monday night. The carpet had to be taken up and rolled into one corner of the room.

For a Bicycle Track.

The Crescent Wheelmen have leased for five years a portion of the Smalley farm, at the junction of Park avenue and Netherwood road, for the purpose of laying out a bicycle track. A base ball diamond, in all probability, will also be laid out.

41 Degrees Below Zero.

Mr. Schermerhorn of North avenue, received a letter this morning from his son Charles, who is at Saranac Lake. In the letter mention is made of the cold weather, and the writer states that it was only 41 degrees below zero.

The "Magic City" is selling immensely. Wanamaker of Philadelphia, sold 3000 copies in three days. On sale at White's, 3c. copy.

CORRESPONDENCE.

An Emphatic Denial From Mr. Cokefair.

To the Editor of The Evening News:—

Permit me to denounce as wholly false and libelous the statements of the New York World, referred to in your issue of last evening, associating my name with a so-called syndicate of individuals and corporations engaged in floating questionable paper and securities among various banks and financial institutions throughout the country. I have been a resident of Plainfield for the past twelve years and trust I am sufficiently well and favorably known among my neighbors to defend myself against these false statements of the World by a simple denial of them on my part. Suffice it to say that there is no syndicate in existence and never has been. That a number of the individuals and business concerns named as being associated with it, I have never even heard of before, while those whom I do know are engaged in various business enterprises which are perfectly legitimate and above any possible suspicion.

Respectfully,
C. C. COKEFAIR.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Bateman Tantcher of East Fourth street is ill.

Jeremiah Cash was out to-day, after a two weeks illness from the grip.

Mrs. W. S. Taylor, widow of ex-Councilman Taylor, will go to Philadelphia to-morrow.

Mr. Charles Smith went to Marion to-day to take part in a sweepstake shooting contest.

Thursday night the Rev. E. H. True will preach a lenten sermon in Grace Church, East Seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. John Carney of Church street are happy over the arrival of a girl baby. It is now but a few days old.

The second game in the second series of games between the Coachmen and C. T. M. L. Jr., will be bowled to-night.

Mr. Rowland M. Stower, of East Ninth street, was taken seriously ill yesterday. He is reported as much better to-day.

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Loyd, widow of the late Isaac Loyd, died yesterday in North Plainfield, in her 94th year. The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock from 65 Washington avenue.

Philip Mitts of New Market did not attempt to go home from his work in I. R. Boehm's store last evening, fearing the snow was too deep to wade through, and that perhaps he could not get back this morning.

Miss Patterson of Wilkesbarre, Pa., who is a pupil of Mr. Frank Tubbs at the New York Institute, returned to New York to-day after a visit with Mrs. Arthur Mulford of Sandford avenue. Mrs. Mulford is also a pupil of Mr. Tubbs.

The death of Henry Cregier, who is well known in this city, occurred at his home, Park avenue, near Campbell's club house, at 11 a. m. on Saturday. He was engaged in business in New York, and had resided here for several years. He leaves a widow and two sons.

Mr. Edward R. Vail, an old Quaker, died at his home on Greenbrook road at three o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was 74 years old. He leaves a wife and five sons. The sons are Alfred R., of this city, William H., of North Branch, George S., of Dunellen, Charles E., of Orchard place, this city, and Randolph W., who lived home. Mr. Vail was a hatter by trade and worked for Mr. Coriell, from the time he started the nat business at Spring and Second streets, Elizabeth, about ten years ago and he never enjoyed good health afterwards. His last serious sickness was only of about three months duration. He will be buried Thursday afternoon, at one o'clock from the old meeting house on Watchung avenue.

Dunellens to Bowl the Pioneers.

To-morrow night the Dunellens will bowl a game with the Pioneers of Elizabeth, on the Dunellen alleys. The following bowlers will compose the Dunellen team: Messrs. Gillo, Neal, Krowson, Shepard, Sandford, Voehl, Young, Case, Taylor and waters.

A Plainfield Boy Saved Them.

The News told in its dispatches yesterday of a burning of a portion of the State Home for Feeble Minded Children, at Vineland. It was a Plainfield boy, "Bordy" Drake who saved the lives of several children.

REPORT ON HAWAII SUBMITTED.

Mr. Blount's Appointment Justified, but His Conclusions Disagreed With—All of Minister Stevens' Acts With One Exception Indorsed—Democratic Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The proceedings in the house were full of exciting incidents. Mr. Bland, being unable to secure a quorum, concluded to allow the debate on the bill to proceed, at the same time declaring that he would return to the assault today. Two somewhat sensational speeches were made by Mr. Pence of Colorado, who denounced the Republicans for submitting to the cack of ex-Speaker Reed's whip and preventing the transfer of protest were thrown into the house in 1866 he would run his business course, and the other by Mr. Pickler of Illinois, who exclaimed in the severest terms the action of his Democratic colleagues who were taking part in the filibuster.

Toward the close of the session Mr. Pence's reflections on Messrs. Pickler and Ellis of Oregon drew forth from them a statement which Mr. Pence characterized as "absolutely untrue." He was twice called to order, and the house by a vote refused to allow him to proceed. It is probable that Mr. Pence's speech will be the occasion of further comment.

Bland Makes an Appeal.

Mr. Bland made a vigorous appeal to the Democratic opposition to bill to cease filibustering. The bill was in the interest of the working people. It was designed to give the treasury money that public work might be done. Those who refused to vote upon it was engaged in striking from the mouth of labor its daily bread. He announced that (his morning he would move to close debate every day thereafter until the bill was brought to a vote. A Democratic caucus had decreed that it should be kept before the house until it was voted up or down, and it would be. The Filibusters must take the responsibility for such delay as it caused. All he wanted was a fair play. If the house did not like the second section, vote it down; if it did not like the bill, vote it down, but allow the house to vote. It should not keep the country in eternal suspense.

Mr. Neill of Arkansas supported the bill and was followed by Mr. Hepburn of Iowa, who called attention to the fact that throughout this struggle a constitutional quorum had been presented and demanded that it should be counted. (Republican applause.) He read the language of the supreme court, which declared that when a majority was present (not voting) the house was in a position to do business. Those who refused to recognize this declaration of the supreme court, he said, were filibusters—not the gentlemen whom Mr. Pence had denounced.

"I desire to say," interjected Mr. Pickler of South Dakota, rising to his feet, "that Mr. Pence told me he wanted to put the Democratic party in a hole and that he did not intend to vote on a certain roll call, but he came slinking in. He told me he did not want the bill to pass." This statement caused something of a sensation. Mr. Pence and Mr. Ellis of Oregon rose at the same time. "And I also desire to bear witness," said Mr. Ellis, "that Mr. Pence told me the same thing." The members crowded about the combatants.

Mr. Hepburn yielded two minutes to Mr. Pence, "I want to say," said Mr. Pence slowly and deliberately, "that Mr. Pence states that which is absolutely not true, and that Mr. Ellis of Oregon (Interruption names in order that there may be no mistake), whose windings in and out no man can keep track of, states that which is absolutely false. With neither of them did I have any such conversation."

Mr. Pence Defiant.

Mr. Pickler insisted loudly that he did. "If the gentleman from South Dakota" (Pickler), replied Mr. Pence, "will rise to a question of privilege, I will tell the house what I said, and I will detail to the country what I have seen and what some of us have heard in the last five days."

At the conclusion of Mr. Hepburn's speech Mr. Reed declared that the seignior age bill could have been brought to a vote long ago if it had been properly managed. There was a lively setto between Mr. Reed and Mr. Bland, after which the committee rose, whereupon Mr. Pence, rising to a question of privilege, referred to the statements made by Messrs. Pickler and Ellis, said he acquitted Mr. Ellis of making any statement, directly or indirectly, that was false, but stated that which is absolutely false. With neither of them did I have any such conversation."

Mr. Hainer of Nebraska called Mr. Pence to order. In accordance with the rule he was required to take his seat. The language excepted was read, and then upon motion he was allowed to explain. He said that perhaps the gentleman from Nebraska did not understand what was meant in the west by "on his own hook."

"What I meant to say I shall continue to mean," said he, "when a man votes on his own hook, is that he votes what he honestly and individually believes. Mr. Hainer again arose and said this was adding insult to injury, but the speaker held that Mr. Pence was entitled to explain.

Continuing, he said: "I was met by his expression (cast a look three out his own hook and his own bull and caught his own fish with out being led by the nose of any man, whether he came from Maine or elsewhere.

"That is my explanation," said he deliberately. "If it does not satisfy the dignity of the house, it matters not. I am ready now to proceed with what I was saying when the gentleman from Nebraska (who by hilloor of whiskers that name) interrupted me." He then paused.

There was a good deal of indignation among the Republicans at Mr. Pence's defiance, which was shared to some extent on the Democratic side, so on the motion to allow him to proceed a score of Democrats, including Messrs. Tracey, Reilly, Goldzier, Everett, Warner and Lockwood, voted against the motion, which was defeated 30 to 69. Mr. Pence sat down, and the house then adjourned.

Committee Report Submitted.

The senate held but a short session in order to give the Democrats an opportunity afterward to continue the caucus begun in the morning. Mr. Morgan, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, presented the report on the Hawaiian investigation, and Mr. Frye of Maine gave notice that on Thursday morning he would address the senate on that subject.

The report consisted of a volume of nearly 800 printed pages, exclusive of maps, 793 containing the testimony taken by the senate committee on foreign relations and its findings of facts thereon under a resolution directing it to inquire whether any and if so what irregularities have occurred in the diplomatic intercourse between the United States and Hawaii in relation to the late revolution.

The report of the majority of the committee was prepared by the chairman, Mr. Morgan of Alabama, and is exhaustive of views of the facts, the laws and the precedents, justifies Mr. Stevens' actions except in proclaiming a protectorate, and finds nothing improper in the appointment of Mr. Blount, but in effect says the evidence taken by the committee under more favorable circumstances leads the committee to different conclusions from those which he formed.

The report is concurred in as to all its essential findings by the Republican members of the committee, Senators Sherman, Frye, Dolph and Davis making a majority of the committee.

Points of Dissent.

They characterize it as an exceedingly able document, but they dissent on five points:

First—They condemn the appointment of Commissioner Blount as unconstitutional.

Second—They say the executive orders placing the navy in the harbor of Honolulu and the presence of Messrs. Bicont or Mr. Willis were without authority of law.

Third—That the order of Blount to Admiral Skerrett to raise the flag was both unlawful and susceptible of being construed as unfriendly to the provisional government, and they regard the intercourse of Mr. Blount with the queen after the deposed queen as violative of international law and unwarranted.

Fourth—They consider the president had no right to reopen the predetermined legality of the provisional government.

Fifth—They regard any discussion of the personal intentions or good faith of either Mr. Blount or Mr. Willis as immaterial, inasmuch as what they did in regard to the reinstatement of the queen was simply the performance of a task plainly commanded of them by this administration.

Democratic Caucus on the Tariff.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The Democrats of the senate spent almost the entire day in caucus discussing the tariff bill. The senate finance committee, which was called to consider the bill prepared by the sub-committee, adjourned soon after assembling, and all the Democratic senators in the city (two were not present) in the committee room, the caucus was held for an hour and a half before the senate met, and after a brief session of the senate they again enjoined the caucus and remained until 5 p. m. The absentees were Senators Vance, Harris, Daniel, Kirby, Mills and McLaurin. Senator Voorhees briefly explained the manner in which the bill had been prepared, while Senator Vest explained a number of the changes and the reason why they were made.

One of the most striking incidents of the caucus was the remarks of Senator Vest in criticism of the disloyalty of Senator Brice published in the New York World, in which the Ohio senator had said the bill which was prepared by three Confederate brigadiers, who were idealists, and that northern and southern Democratic senators had not been consulted, nor had they been given an opportunity to present their views. Senator Brice made a vigorous speech in reply. He declared that it was not so much as had been stated in the article whether or not it was true. The statement was true, he asserted, and every senator in the caucus knew it was true. He then took occasion to criticise some of the sectional features of the bill, and pointed out that certain kinds of iron which was manufactured in the south, but not the manufacturers was taxed and that cotton ties were placed on the free list. Senator Brice made quite an extended speech, and his remarks brought forth replies from Senators Morgan, Lindsay, Pugh, Butler and others from the south.

The statement made by Senators Gorman, Jones, White of Louisiana, Caffrey, Morgan, Faulkner, Gray and Martin, and other senators spoke. There was no regular order of discussion, but each senator talked upon the subject nearest his heart, and many of them talked without limit as to time.

There was no vote taken upon any proposition during the day, and no effort was made to reach a vote. It is considered probable that the entire day today will be spent in caucus, and a leading Democratic senator expressed the opinion that it would be impossible for the caucus to finish the question at issue before the latter part of the week. He was of the opinion that most of the time would be given up to the caucus until an agreement could be reached. The plan is to vote upon the contested items of the bill one at a time, and after they are disposed of to take a vote upon the bill as a whole and try then to get the caucus committee to support it.

It is considered generally that the whole question is in the hands of the caucus, and the fact that the finance committee adjourned without action and the members went into the caucus is taken as conclusive evidence that they assent to this arrangement and will be governed by the result of the caucus. It is probable, therefore, that the committee will meet again be called together until the caucus shall have concluded its labors.

No Fear For the President's Safety.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—There is not the least uneasiness among the officials of the White House or state department over the safety of President Cleveland and Secretary Gresham, who left in the storm Sunday on the lighthouse tender Violet for a few days' recreation. Capt. Percival Pierce, Captain Evans, who has charge of the party, is one of the most capable and efficient navigators connected with the government, and he would not, take no chance or danger on account of the personnel of the party.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Feb 27.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

New Jersey—Midland Parks, Abraham Bengwald; North Cleveland, Geo. A. E. Martin.

New York—Atwater, W. T. Starr; Cazenovia, O. E. Scott; Constantia, W. E. Salisbury; Corinth, N. W. Ingalsbee; Fleming, J. W. Bigelow; Ironville, J. C. Newton; Marcellus, W. E. Mosher; West Junior, E. A. Bear; White Creek, H. W. Hutchins.

Pennsylvania—Elizabeth, Van A. E. Reed; Paoli, S. B. Johns.

TRENTON'S SENSATION.

Senator Miller Openly Denounces the Senate Deadlock.

WILL VOTE WITH REPUBLICANS.

Two Other Democratic Senators Are Said to Agree With Him, and the Bill Will Probably Come to an Easy Vote Over Against Race Track Legislation.

TRENTON, Feb. 27.—The first break from the Democratic senate came from Senator Miller of Cape May made a speech denouncing the deadlock and declaring his intention to have nothing more to do with the senate. The senate had just been called to order, and Senator Adrian was in the chair. Seven were present. Senator Miller arose to a question of privilege, saying that by what he had to say in connection with what happened in the past few days he did not care to indulge in personalities.

Regarding the publications concerning him in a New York paper he wished to enter a denial and denounce them as contemptible lies from beginning to end. He said the object of the newspapers in the last two or three days has been to try to mold popular sentiment in favor of the Democratic party, but the result has been just the opposite.

Senator Miller went on to say that he and others who had joined in the Democratic organization had but one motive and one locality, and that was not to protect race track legislation. He was willing to assert that this Democratic senate was formed for the object of killing the race track people. The people of New Jersey had come to that conclusion, and so had he most positively. He did not care to be a party to this organization any longer.

Would Invite Republicans In.

He was willing to be connected with it notwithstanding it was unpopular with his constituents, and with a majority of the citizens of the state, so long as it was not controlled in the interest of the race track men. He said that while this was the controlling power; therefore, after due deliberation, he had positively concluded that he would not be a party to any such organization. If the Republicans would come into this chamber, he would vote to seat their senators. His own colleagues had acknowledged to him that that would be my right.

He was no lawyer, knew nothing about the law and wanted to know nothing about it, and without intending any disrespect to the court his own opinion was that the quo warranto proceeding was only a farce. He did not propose to go into the Republican senate or ask him to himself any more compliments than was necessary, but before he would see the Republicans adjourn sine die he would invite them into this chamber and ask their political support.

The New York paper and its Camden ally might brand him as a traitor and put his picture in every dime in the world nevertheless act in accordance with the dictates of his conscience and in the interests of the people.

Mr. Miller was severely denounced by Senator Hinchliffe, who told him that he deserved many of the things which had been said about him and that his conscience troubled him and caused him to do what he had done. He said some of the rest of them might feel the same way, but they did not want to parade their troubles before the public.

Two Other Senators Disaffected.

Senator Perkins had also intended to withdraw from the democratic senate, but was prevented by a motion to adjourn. He says he will withdraw today. Senator Martin, who is ill, is said to be in sympathy with the movement. These senators will probably not go over to the Republican senate, but they will vote to receive all the republicans. A break is causing much apprehension among the Democrats.

The opinion prevails here that the action of Senator Miller will result in ending one of the deadlock; that two Democratic senators to vote with the Republicans for the seating of members makes the case of the deadlock almost a hopeless one and the taking of further testimony in the quo warranto proceedings merely a matter of form.

The Republican senate passed a bill repealing the act of 1892 giving defendants the right to choose the justice of the peace before whom they may be taken for a hearing. On the part of the Senators Murphy-Gere George L. Swain for $900,000 was presented to the senate and house. In the house a resolution was adopted providing for the appointment of a commission of five to investigate and inquire into the condition and methods of doing business in the state of the so-called National and State Building and Loan association. The committee is to report in three weeks and recommend legislation. The house passed Storrs' anti-pool buying and pool selling bill.

Montecito's Murder Mystery.

MONTECITO, Cal., Feb. 27.—The responsibility for the murders of Jacob Moore and his housekeeper last Thursday has not yet been fixed. Capt. Carr, who was arrested on suspicion on Sunday afternoon, had a hearing before W. B. Nevin and was remanded until Thursday next to afford opportunity for the bodies of the murdered people were buried.

Salyards' Day of Death Set.

CARLISLE, Pa., Feb. 27.—Tickets for the execution of Charles Salyards, sentenced to hang next Thursday for the murder of Policeman Maurice Wax, were issued by Sheriff Brock. It is expected that counsel for the condemned man will ask the governor for a further reprieve.

Receiver For the "Scientarium."

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—The Mackaye "Scientarium," to be established in Chicago as a monument to the discovery of America, the last enterprise in which the late dramatist was interested, has failed and will go into the hands of a receiver.

No More Boston Common Meetings.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—Mayor Matthews issued an order refusing the leaders of the unemployed permission to hold a meeting on Boston Common, but has offered the use of Faneuil hall.

SHE KNOWS THE GRIP.

Mrs. Lease Tells a Reporter How She Learned Something About It.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—"Yes, I am a Mason,' said Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease in her room at the Palmer House. "It is surprising how that assertion of mine has been sent all over the country," said Mrs. Lease laughing with all the glee of a schoolgirl. "Why, do you know that I have received telegrams from several New York papers offering me some $50 and up to tell the story of how I became a Mason." "When I was 16 years of age, I was living in Lockport, N. Y., a friend of mine, who was a prominent Mason, put it in my way to witness a Masonic initiation, and I saw the three degrees administered to a candidate."

"Were you admitted to the lodgeroom?"

"No, I was behind a door that had a slit big wisest in it, and I saw the whole proceedings through that wicket, so you see that is the way I become a Mason, for to be in possession of the secrets of the craft is to be a Mason."

"Might it not have been a mock initiation?"

"No, it was not a mock affair. I have tested my knowledge of the secrets of the craft, and they have been confirmed. I tried to find out from my husband, who is a Mason, but he has never given me any satisfaction. I once told him how I came into possession of the secrets of the order, and his only answer was to term the gentleman that placed me at the wicket a fool, emphasized with a strong adjective.

"How did I come to make the announcement after so many years of silence? Under rather peculiar circumstances. It was while the decision of my suit with Governor Lowelling was pending before the supreme court. A gentleman said to me: 'You will be your own lawyer, I presume, Mrs. Lease.'

"'So am I,' I retorted, and knowing him to be a Mason I gave him the grip. He looked astonished and remarked that I certainly knew something about Masonry. I then told him that I was going to organize a woman's branch of the order, and so the story got out."

MANY FARMERS POISONED.

Two Dead and Fifty More Suffering From Eating Embalmed Pea Lunch.

SOMERSET, Pa., Feb. 27.—From the best information obtainable here two farmers are dead, 10 or 12 are seriously sick, and 50 more are suffering from the effects of eating poisoned meat at a sale held on the 23d inst. in Quemahoning township. Jeremiah Hingler, a prominent citizen of that township, died from the effects of poisoning, and Alexander Rhoades, a leading citizen and farmer of Jenner township, is reported to have died during the day from the same cause. Those suffering from poison are scattered all over the north of the county.

Last Thursday some 250 farmers attended a sale of property in Jenner township, and according to custom a cold lunch was served. Among the articles of food prepared was a lot of beef that had been boiled the previous evening in a copper kettle and had been permitted to remain in the vessel over night. Shortly after eating the meal Mason Person took sick, and the sale was adjourned. A rumor reached here that at least 10 other residents of Jenner and Quemahoning townships cannot possibly recover.

New England Thawed Out.

BOSTON, Feb. 27.—The cold wave which struck New England two days ago has lost its grip. The mercury went up, and a heavy snowstorm prevailed in the southern sections. The storm was especially severe on the sound and through Connecticut. The Consolidated roads were snowbound in New Haven for several hours by drifts, and none of the sound steamers had arrived at midnight. In northern New England the rise of the mercury was very rapid throughout the day.

Cotton Manufacturers Talk of Hard Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Feb. 27.—At the annual meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' association the business situation was discussed. The prevailing opinion as expressed was that there had been an overproduction, which prevented a normal demand for goods. No attempt was made to have any action taken with regard to a shutdown or a shutdown.

Current Figures In an Advertising Picture.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—A 10 foot advertising picture representing President Carnot and a lady, evidently his fancy for Mme. Humbert, sipping with gusto a new Algerian brandy, has been posted throughout the country. The government has ordered that a piece of colored canvas be pasted over the two heads.

Peculiar and Fatal Accident.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Frank Packer, foreman for Sherman Martin, was killed while driving through the village in a buggy. The horse shied and threw Mr. Packer and his wife out. Mr. Packer struck on his head and was instantly killed. His wife fell on top of him and escaped injury.

Silver Men Talk of Secession.

GEORGETOWN, Colo., Feb. 27.—A petition is being circulated here which calls upon the silver producing states to secede from the general government and join the republic of Mexico. Mayor Parker, whose name heads the petition, says it will be circulated in every mining camp in the west.

Startling Report About Gladstone.

THE CORNELL MYSTERY.

The University Will Pay For the Services of a Detective.

STUDENTS HOLD A MASS MEETING.

Resolutions Passed Condemning All Sorts of Disorderly Conduct and Expressing Regret Over the Tragedy. County Stockholders Must Soon Be Approached.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 27.—The conviction is rapidly gaining ground here that the authors of the chlorine gas tragedy at the Cornell freshmen's annual banquet last Monday cannot much longer be shielded from justice.

That their names are well known not only to many of their classmates, but to a large outside the university, cannot be doubted, but at last influences are at work that cannot fail to effect their detection before many days have passed. Their immunity hitherto has been the outgrowth of the blundering of the city authorities at the very outset of the investigation, and also to a strong feeling among a large portion of the townspeople that on sentimental and business considerations it would be as well to let the matter drop.

As matters now stand, all the evidence points to the theory that a strong effort is being made by the men concerned and their friends to postpone further investigation, which indeed are as in motion with a view to some sort of a settlement.

Interest continues to center in the whereabouts of Carl L. Dingens, who is said to have fled the town the morning after the tragedy. Rumors have been started daily that he was about to return, and his roommate, Taylor, is said to have announced that he would arrive last night.

A meeting of the faculty was postponed for some unknown reason, at which it was said charges were to have been inserted to all the professors to ascertain what members of their classes were missing and the reason of their absence. It is expected that the roll will be called, but it is said that the names of all the absentees cannot be learned for two or three days.

The only city official who has so far shown a full determination to probe the matter to the bottom at whatever cost is District Attorney Jessum Jennings. Mr. Jennings is not dissatisfied with the perfunctorie manner in which the coroner's inquest was conducted that he withdrew from the proceedings and instituted a distinct line of investigation, which he hopes will yield important results. A serious mistake, Mr. Jennings says, was made in holding a public inquiry and examining the citizens not only in the presence of one another, but of a body of about 500 students, many of whom, he thinks, were implicated in supposing the inquiry.

"I am going ahead quickly," said Mr. Jennings, "and I already have secured much valuable evidence. I have been permitted to examine witnesses privately and separately. I have no doubt that I could have cleared up this unfortunate affair in a few days. When I see how matters are going, I simply withdrew, but when the grand jury meets on March 12 I shall have some solid evidence for it to consider. I do not propose to trespass the jury until all sources of evidence have been exhausted."

Students Pass Resolutions.

The biggest students' meeting that the university has ever seen was held in the basement of the library in response to a call of the four class presidents—A. E. Webber, a senior, John Witherson, a junior, Ralph Lowell, a sophomore, and E. L. Aldrich, a freshman.

Resolutions were passed expressive of regret and disapproval of the affair, as heated by any particular class or by the college as a whole, but objection was made to a resolution that the students would aid the authorities in detecting and convicting the guilty, and it was finally passed in a modified form.

A resolution that the freshman banquet be discontinued met with vehement opposition, and a substitute was finally passed that in future the banquet be held under the protection of the three classes. In spite of this the faculty is said to be determined to place its interdict on the banquet.

The fate of "rushes" and similar riotous proceedings was sealed by the passage of a resolution forbidding irregular and improper contests of all kinds, and the athletic council was empowered to establish athletic contests by which the supremacy of the sophomore and freshman classes might be officially determined without peril to life.

The coroner's inquest will be continued on Thursday. The trustees of the university passed a resolution authorizing the coroner to draw upon them for $500 for the employment of a detective.

Refuse to Save McKane.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Following close on the refusal of Justice Cullen to grant a stay for McKane, Justice Dykman also declined to interfere in the execution of the sentence pronounced. Lawyer Joachimson of New York appeared in White Plains and made the application. Justice Dykman at once refused to interfere, and the transaction was over.

Big Barge Sunk.

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 27.—The big barge H. F. Hallock of the New England Transportation company was run into and sunk by the steamer John H. Starin, which was passing out of the harbor on her trip to New York. The barge sank in 15 minutes, and the captain and crew barely had time to escape. The barge was in tow of the tug Resolute.

AN EMBEZZLER'S FIX.

Escaped Stockton to Silver, but Had to Give Himself Up.

KOKOMO, Ind., Feb. 27.—Calvin Arbuckle, Captain Porter's deputy treasurer and $83,000 embezzler, who escaped from jail two weeks ago, delivered himself to an officer from Kokomo at the Palmer House in Chicago and will be lodged in the penitentiary at Michigan City. Sunday afternoon the young man telegraphed Sheriff Dr. Jay Jones to meet him at the hotel, and on the arrival of the officer Arbuckle strong was on hand.

In my event, had he not voluntarily surrendered, he would have been arrested within a few hours, his whereabouts having been discovered through his sweetheart, Miss May Shellenberg of this city, to whom he wrote from Chicago. Since she, it is said, advised him to give himself up, as his capture would only be a question of a short time.

It seems that when Calvin escaped from jail he went to the house of friends a short distance away and remained there fully 12 hours. He was then spirited away, disguised in female clothing and went to Chicago, cherishing the hope that certain of his erstwhile friends would advance him enough money to get him to Oregon.

He found very soon, however, that those who aided him to "blow" his money on the cheap necks were actuated by friendship in adversity, and finding himself destitute he soon concluded to take the advice of others and take his punishment. His father, who was treasurer, is now serving a one year term for the same crime.

NUNS AS TEACHERS.

Four Sisters of Charity Employed In the Public Schools of Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Feb. 27.—Four Sisters of Charity have taken possession of four rooms in the Riverside public school, and for the first time in the history of the public schools of Pennsylvania nuns have been given charge of classes to teach the doctrines of the Roman Catholic church, but the system as laid down by the central board of education. No friction was caused by the entry of the Sisters in the role of teachers in the public schools.

By an agreement with the school board of the west end parochial school of the St. James Roman Catholic church and the public schools were consolidated. The Sisters regularly applied for certificates to teach, which were granted by the central board of education, and the consolidation has gone into effect.

The children from the parochial school were placed in separate rooms, but this is only temporary. There will be no distinction among scholars or teachers. Protestant children will be taught by the Sister teachers as well as Catholics. The school is to be conducted, as heretofore, on the uniform plan adopted by the central board of education, and will be under the statutes of the commonwealth governing public schools. The Bible has not been read in the Riverside school for six years at least, and no change will be made now.

Boston's Collector of Customs.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—It is expected that the name of Mr. Winslow Warren will be sent to the senate this afternoon as collector of customs at Boston. Mr. Warren has been prominently mentioned for this nomination ever since the Democrats came into power, and prominently identified with the civil service and tariff reform organizations. He comes from an old Massachusetts family, the Warrens and Winslows being descendants of the ancestors. He has the support of Attorney General Olney, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin and Representative O'Neil of Boston, and this his nomination is regarded as certain. It was expected yesterday, and the Massachusetts members of congress now look for it today.

Trolley Car Struck by an Engine.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 27.—A trolley car in charge of Conductor Hancock collided with a switch engine of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad near Corbin's mills. The car was running up hill near the crossing on Chestnut street, and owing to snow on the tracks it could not be controlled. Motorman Birmingham was to badly injured that he will die. Two passengers and the conductor were slightly injured.

Bank President Helmer Arrested.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Feb. 27.—Joshua S. Helmer, cashier of the Niagara County Merchants' bank of this city, was arrested on a warrant sworn out by W. H. Higgs, a stockholder of the bank, charging him with knowingly and fraudulently exhibiting to State Bank Examiner R. S. W. Clark false books and accounts, with intent to deceive as to the true condition of the bank.

Murder and a Lynching.

SHERMAN, Ala., Feb. 27.—Deputy Sheriff John Rowlett was shot and killed by Tommy Douglass. Rowlett had gone to Douglass' home to levy on a cow owned by his mother, and when the officer attempted to drive the animal away the boy fired. The shooting aroused the citizens to a crowd, which lynched the youthful murderer, filling him also with bullets.

Rescuing Miners In Dangerous Work.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 27.—There was quite an extensive fall in the Gaylord mine, and the work of rescuing the men is greatly impeded in consequence. The workers had timely warning of the squeeze and had no difficulty in making their escape to a place of safety.

WOMAN AND HOME.

WOMEN SHOULD BE EQUIPPED FOR WINNING THEIR WAY.

The Third Strand—The Housekeeper's Golden Rule—Mothers and Work—Finding Up a Room—Christ' Advice to a Girl—Cure in Diphtheria.

"But the hand usually given with digni ty she seems able to stand alone," wrote Margaret Fuller of woman many years ago. "Is this keynote have the inspirations of the fair sex been ever since Able to stand alone! Not, then, obliged to marry for the sake of a living, or to accept the dreaded title of old maid, or for any other paltry reason. Able, alone and unassisted, to win her way to fortune—to make her name respected, even without the magical prefix, 'Mrs.' A noble idea of womanhood, and one which not a few ambitious girls have fully realized

Recalling the names of Miss Booth, Miss Alcott, Miss Mitchell, Dr. Bodley and others like them, do we once think of the fair sexed sisterhood as so many old maids? Nay. Their achievements have lifted them and us to a higher plane of thought. We admire, respect and love them for their work and worth, and the question of marriage does not signify. Nevertheless the fact remains that happy homes are society's safeguards, and that children properly brought up are the hope of the nation.

"What is wanted that the youth of France be well educated?" asked the great Napoleon.

"Good mother," answered a lady of the court.

"Yes," exclaimed the emperor, "is a system of education."

A Russell familiar with the anecdote and who not deny the truth which it teaches. Yet, in making the learned professions accessible to daughters as well as sons, in throwing wide the doors of art and literature for woman's entrance, in welcoming girls to trades and occupations undreamed of in the bygone days, when sewing and schoolteaching were their only opportunities for earning a livelihood, have we not, as an able writer has recently pointed out, almost lost sight of the important relations which, in the natural course of events, many of our girls are destined to bear toward the world as wives and mothers? So far as wifehood and motherhood are concerned, modern education for girls seems almost as much devised on further contingencies as if they were the exact opposite of that could come to Eve's daughters, and as if a learned splinter hood, with, perhaps, "the men all transported beyond the seas," were the normal condition of the coming women.

True, there is in certain schools a feeble attempt made at physical training, while sometimes a weak solution of sewing and cooking is administered, into the daily dose of knowledge. Such efforts in the right direction have been, thus far, too spasmodic and irregular to be of much practical use. That they are made at all, however, betokens that the day is at hand when a girl's training shall be as evenly balanced that a mother's claims hold for her as professorship in a college or the queenship in a home, and she shall be well fitted for either position, for wheeling her way" to an honorable success.—Mrs. D. Sterling in Motherhood good understanding that subsists between men and women as the voluntary relinquishment by men of powers heretofore unshared. It is the highest tribute that has ever been paid to woman, and yet one of the most unobserved, that not a school has ever been opened for her, or even the vote of men, nor has she been admitted to any learned profession or to any enlarged sphere in the line of honorable occupation, except by men, but has any woman been made a voter, in greater or less degree, either in church or state, since by the free permission of the sovereign lords. They have omitted us with all the power that they themselves possess, save in the highest ranges, ecclesiastical and governmental. No magnanimity analogous to this has been witnessed since history began. But there are two considerations which, on their own testimony, have moved men to this bestowment of power upon the gentle comrade at their side. First, men are conscious of being abundantly able to take care of themselves and their interests, and, secondly, they have learned by centuries of observation and experience that, as a class, women—setting the models of men—are, if possible, more concerned to do them justice than they are to do justice to themselves. Every woman is the daughter of a man, and every man is the son of a woman. In this organic law is grounded the unalterable faith that cheers one on any unyielding track to constipity the topics of interest and thought between men find women that bonne life may be enriched and home happiness rendered more stable. There lies the strand in the stout cable that binds together the members of an ideal home—religion, affection and intellectual sympathy. The first and second have held their own throughout the ages past—the third this age is forming and no truer or more enduring tie has ever yet been forged.—Frances E. Willard.

The Housekeeper's Golden Rule.

"Liberality of waste" should be the housekeeper's golden rule by which she insures comfort and plenty in her household and good service on the part of her domestics. But it is impossible to accomplish this most desirable result without active personal supervision of every detail. If women would only look upon their housekeeping as a man considers his business, in the light of an imperative and daily duty, to be accomplished calmly and as a matter of course, they would find it an unavoidable trials and disagreeable complications as the necessary concomitants of every organization, they would in every less and accomplishment more. It is fool ish either to moderate or to magnify domestic duties, and house mistresses are very apt to do either the one or the other, whereas they should look upon their household affairs simply in the light of important and highly interesting business, leading to their department, and one which it behooves them to manage well.

A clever woman has expressed this idea capitally in these sentences: "A woman is generally inclined either to fret under her duties or shirk them if she can. She sees man triumphing over his vocation and thinks it is the kind of work he does which makes him regnant, whereas it is not the kind of work at all, but the way in which and the spirit with which he does it." If mistress and servants could only be brought to consider waste as an impossibility, and system, not as the principal rule of a stern master's, but just as much a part of the household machinery as a man's laws and regulations in his office, there would be no need of friction, and the sisters with each other would be much pleasanter.—New York Tribune.

Mothers and Work.

"Women should not attempt," says an eminent woman physician of London, "to carry on a profession after marriage. Women of the upper and middle classes who go into the professions. It is not necessary that they should be the breadwinners; that duty should devolve upon their husbands, and I am confident that the rising generation would be healthier and stronger in every way if the mothers would exert themselves less. I look anxiously at every baby that comes under my notice in the hope that I shall find some improvement in the type, some increase in stamina, compared with the generation that has preceded it, but instead of this there is only steady deterioration observable. This deterioration is particularly noticeable among the children of very active mothers. The cleverest and most highly educated women, the women who take a most active part in public affairs, have the most weakly and puny children.

"Another thing, women are going into too active forms of exercise. When a young married woman tells me that she is captain of a cricket elever or of a football team, I can only say I am perfectly aghast. Women must please before themselves the alternative—to earn their living, to exercise their faculties, and to gratify their ambitions in a professional career, or to become good wives and mothers. And if they choose the domestic life they must recognize that they must wear the rich personal happiness and ambition in the future happiness and success of their children."

Fitting Up a Room.

The side walls lighter than the floor, or floor covering, and the ceiling lighter than the side walls, is the rule used by decorators in fitting up a room. One coloring in varying shades is often chosen for the ceiling, walls and floor, and is then introduced in the furniture, pillows, pictures, vases and other objects necessary to the comfort or beauty of a room. Plain surfaces are best for the floor covering, though to the housekeeper they are often objectionable, because they show dust more plainly than a surface covered by some sort of a pattern. When a patterned carpet or rug is used, let it be covered with anything except flatiral looking flowers or leaves, which are dislikes to tread upon, which will not be ignored, and which draw one's mind from the really attractive things in a room. Those who dislike walls with plain surfaces, which certainly are monotonous and unattractive unless the spaces are frequently broken by pictures, should change coverings, having one lighter color for a background, patterned with a medium or darker shade of the same color. As the hangings form a part of the wall, they should also be somewhat lighter than the floor covering.—New York Mail and Express.

Childs' Advice to a Girl.

George W. Childs once said to one girl from the west, who went to him with letters and the hope of getting sufficient influence to do something in the arabic field of journalism: "Little woman, if you can do something, go ahead and do it. The world is hungry for something new. It is an omnivorous creature, but it wants a change occasionally. Keep as quiet as you can. Keep out of men's way as much as you can, for it is trespassing to go on private property. Keep yourself in good health, good spirits and good manners, and don't try to get ahead of any one of the boys. Save half of your earnings. Go to church. Be agreeable, but reserved, and if some lawyers or men or others ask you his name and his condition, give it to them, marry him and devote your energies to home making."

"The business world is no place for a woman. It is a rough place, and people have to get rough to succeed in it. I know hundreds of gentlewomen in business, but they always seem to me like fish going fishing in a three suit and white gloves. Exquisite fabrics are not intended for rough and ready wear."

Cure In Diphtheria.

As diphtheria is so very serious a disease, whenever a child becomes languid and pallaceable, fretful and depressed, without apparent cause, examine the throat carefully, writes Elisabeth Robinson Scovil in Ladies' Home Journal. If it is swollen and covered with patches of gray membranes looking like skate pencil dust, send for the doctor. It is always safest to have medical advice when the throat is affected.

Until the doctor comes keep the child in bed. If the throat is painful, procure a lump of lime, pour cold water upon it. When the effervescence subsides, strain off the clear water and apply it to the throat with a brush or swab. If the child is old enough, the throat can be gargled with the limewater. Inhaling the steam from a pitcher of boiling water sometimes gives relief. The neck may be rubbed with warm oil and bound with flannel.

Milk, either hot or cold, should be given every two hours. The cold milk may have the white of an egg beaten with each cupful. Strong beef tea can be given, and the doctor may order stimulant. The strength must be supported by nourishing liquid food.

Professional Dorcases.

A lady proposes a plan for those of the poor who wish to help themselves. She said: "Some of the poor women of the town could make very good wages if they would do darning. I'm sure I've sensed what I mean! Every large family has a quantity of stockings and socks that need darning, and many of the richer ones hate this work.

I do, for one. Well, if a woman expert in such work would apply for the position of darner to several families, she would get customers and would make a good living. There are hundreds of families in which such work could be obtained. Then there are young men who have a little money, but are active in public affairs, have the most weakly and puny children.

"Another thing, women are going into too active forms of exercise. When a young married woman tells me that she is captain of a cricket elever or of a football team, I can only say I am perfectly aghast. Women must please before themselves the alternative—to earn their living, to exercise their faculties, and to gratify their ambitions in a professional career, or to become good wives and mothers. And if they choose the domestic life they must recognize that they must wear the rich personal happiness and ambition in the future happiness and success of their children."

Fitting Up a Room.

The side walls lighter than the floor, or floor covering, and the ceiling lighter than the side walls, is the rule used by decorators in fitting up a room. One coloring in varying shades is often chosen for the ceiling, walls and floor, and is then introduced in the furniture, pillows, pictures, vases and other objects necessary to the comfort or beauty of a room. Plain surfaces are best for the floor covering, though to the housekeeper they are often objectionable, because they show dust more plainly than a surface covered by some sort of a pattern. When a patterned carpet or rug is used, let it be covered with anything except flatiral looking flowers or leaves, which are dislikes to tread upon, which will not be ignored, and which draw one's mind from the really attractive things in a room. Those who dislike walls with plain surfaces, which certainly are monotonous and unattractive unless the spaces are frequently broken by pictures, should change coverings, having one lighter color for a background, patterned with a medium or darker shade of the same color. As the hangings form a part of the wall, they should also be somewhat lighter than the floor covering.—New York Mail and Express.

Childs' Advice to a Girl.

George W. Childs once said to one girl from the west, who went to him with letters and the hope of getting sufficient influence to do something in the arabic field of journalism: "Little woman, if you can do something, go ahead and do it. The world is hungry for something new. It is an omnivorous creature, but it wants a change occasionally. Keep as quiet as you can. Keep out of men's way as much as you can, for it is trespassing to go on private property. Keep yourself in good tric juice about the stomach, but if there is no gastric juice there can be no hunger, no appetite, and to compel a child to swallow food when it is distasteful is an absurdity and a cruelty.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Miss Archard Conner.

Mrs. Eliza Archard Conner's sermon to young women, which won the prize among more than 1,000 submitted, was elaborated under the following heads: "Do some useful work, and do it with enthusiasm. Lay up some money. Be sincere. Be helpful to others. Be neat. Stand by your own sex. Uphold the sanctity, the purity, dignity and worth of womanhood." Mrs. Conner has been doing excellent newspaper work for more than 20 years, and her paragraphs about women are printed in the newspapers all over the country. She is a little woman with short gray hair and a sweet, soft voice which utters some most surprisingly caustic things against all manner of shams, false conventionality and unwomanliness.—New York Sun.

Cleaning Fluids For Clothing.

One for men's clothes that the housewife will find valuable consists of a pint of denatured benzine, one-half pint of alcohol, other, one-half dram chloroform, a dram alcohol and a very little good cologne. If it is need for cleansing the frost collars and outside garments, apply with an old piece of soft black silk. For neckties—and it can be used on those of light colors as well as black—apply with a piece of whitesilk. In washing soiled black goods put a tablespoonful in a gallon of warm water Twenty or 25 cents will pay the druggist for a quart bottle of the mixture. The fluid is vouched for by Miss Helen Johnson of cooking school fame.

What Women Like In Men.

Probably the best thing that was ever written on the interesting question of what women like in men is contained in the idea that women like a man who can be strong as a lion when trouble comes, and yet if one is nervous and tired can button up a shirt with no amounts considered action that is a mental and physical bracer up. They like a man who likes them, who doesn't scorn their opinions, who believes in their good taste, who has confidence in them and wit enough to realize that a good deal of the fun of life is their stubborn persuasion is more powerful than all the arguments in the world.—Exchange.

Mrs. Humphry Ward.

An English critic speaks of "Robert Elsmere" as not merely "a remarkably successful novel—it was, as reflected in contemporary conversation, a momentous public event." The face of Mrs. Humphry Ward, whose name one look suffices to make known to the entire reading world, is full of interest. It is not disappointing—there is that in the expression and features which indicates the wonder ful power that created two masterpieces of modern fiction, and there is besides a certain quiet dreaminess of contemplation which makes one marvel that this great strength can be held in complete repose.

To Tell Hosiery.

Hosiery makers are sly. The value of a stocking or sock is below the ankle. If the hosiery and yarn are not dingily, the article is not worth buying. It is necessary in the long run to pay the difference and get a stocking with double soles that is, for service. Now, one of the tricks of the trade is to splice and "clock" a stocking. The clerk holds her tongue. The customer is captivated by the decoration, and her toes and heels are bare after a day or two. It does not follow that a stocking is "full regular," as dealers say, because it is spliced. The splicing is a shame and a cheat.—New York World.

A Compromise Dinner Dress.

A compromise dinner dress planned by an ingenious woman whose work hours prevented her from wearing a decollete gown was of black silk. A full waist ordered the plain full skirt, and a fine of shallow scallops outlined in silver sequins was put on a little above the waist. The full sleeves were of white chiffon spangled with silver, and the satin waist was outlined around the corsage and over the shoulders with sequins. The high stock collar was of the satin.—New York Telegram.

The Boudoir.

Boudoir, which means literally to pout, is only another name for one's private sitting room. Mme. de Pompadour was the first to enjoy the luxury of such a cozy nook. The boudoir today must be a reflection of its mistress and is furnished in colors to suit her style of beauty—rich crimson and gold if she is dark, in pink and white if she is fair. Portraits of celebrated beauties are supposed to be especially needed to decorate the walls.—Detroit News.

Little Miss Fair.

Little Miss Birdie Fair is not a bit like little birdie, at least not in the sense of complexion. Like money, she has lots of good locks and to spare, but she is as dark as a gypsy and has a bright, ruddy color to her cheeks, snapping dark eyes, a wee bit of a rosy mouth and an assertive little way about her which is very delightful. Nobody can mistake that she has a full share of her own and opinions as well.—New York Journal.

A Hint on Dusting.

In one of the best known gymnasiums for women in this country the medical physician said in a recent interview: "Dust is almost as out of place here as it would be in the dissecting room. I am always keyed up for its appearance, and proud to say that the furniture is found dusted—that is, with a cloth. To the best of my knowledge and belief a feather duster has never found admission here."

The five children besides baby Fisher Cleveland who were born in the White House were also girls. One of these girls, the grandchild of a president, is now employed in one of the departments in Washington, ending her days as she began them—under the government's roof tree.

If the women who blacken their neighbors' characters because they disable a fish pow and then should undertake for a year or two—not a week or two—to kill three times a day a lot of fragile creatures, it is doubtful if the score of dead and wounded would be lessened.

A careful statistician has found that of the working women in Chicago, 8 per cent earn just a living—not a cent more. Fourteen per cent save a little every year and the remaining 2 per cent do well enough to keep them from running in debt.

Let your light shine in your home and don't be afraid that it will become too bright. Don't be turning it down all the time, as some people do their gas.

BOARD OF TRADE VS. AMERICUS.

One of the Strongest Teams in the State Beaten by Plainfielders.

Owing to an accident to their sleigh at Springfield the Americus Bowling Club of Newark did not arrive in Plainfield until after nine o'clock. They came to bowl a game with the Board of Trade team. After the game the visitors evidently did not feel so much like sleigh riding for they allowed their driver to go home alone, while they took the train.

The result may have changed their minds, no doubt, was because of the unexpected result of the contest. As one of the best teams in the State they came here expecting to have a cinch. The following score tells how they were disappointed:

Mr. Hiram Horsish of North avenue is confined to the house by illness.

Miss Nancy Randolph and Miss Jessie Otter have gone to Philadelphia.

Mr. Joseph Martin and bride returned to Plainfield last night from their honeymoon.

Mr. A. W. Waldron of Central avenue left town to-day on a western trip of a month or two.

Mr. John A. Powlison, of Somerset street is able to be out after suffering with the grip for a few days.

Mr. Erickson, station agent at Netherwood, is building a house near the station on the Railroad Company's ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Thomas, of Netherwood, have gone to Hot Sulphur Springs, hoping to improve Mr. Thomas' health.

Constable Amos Moffett returned yesterday from Jersey City, where he had been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Chamberlain.

Messrs Alonzo Ayers and Alonzo Townley arrived home this morning from Texas, where they went last Fall for the benefit of Mr. Ayers' health.

Mr. C. E. Hungerford gave an interesting talk on "Coal Mining" before the Young Men's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. at their meeting last evening. Five of the boys gave extemporaneous talks.

The newly organized class for beginners in Applied Mechanics will meet at the Y. M. C. A. rooms to-morrow evening. Mr. Walter S. Timmis, who is the instructo, in the advanced class, is in charge.

A parlor meeting in the interests of temperance was held at the residence of Mrs. Baker, No. 9 Cherry street, Elizabeth, this afternoon at three o'clock. Mrs. Dr. Tomlinson of Plainfield gave a talk on the subject of the opposition to the liquor traffic in Union county.

Mrs. Avis L. Laing, of Watchung avenue, died at Washington, D. C., last night. She had gone there on a visit a few weeks ago, when she was taken sick. Mrs. Laing was born in New York. Her maiden name was Seamen. When about 15 years old she was married to Mr. James H. Mosher of that city, a brother of Justice of the Peace Joseph E. Mosher, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Mosher moved to Plainfield. The husband died about 24 years ago. Mrs. Mosher afterwards married Mr. Edward Laing who also died several years ago. Mrs. Laing leaves five children—four daughters and one son. The daughters are Mrs. Joseph Morrison, Mrs. Eugene Lorton, Mrs. Edward Vail, and Mrs. Arthur Stryker. They all live in Plainfield excepting Mrs. Vail who resides at Perth Amboy. The son, John F. Mosher, lives at Alfred Centre, N. Y., where he is Managing Editor of the Sabbath Recorder.

A Dunellen Man Dragged by His Horse.

About three o'clock yesterday afternoon as a man named Earick of Dunellen was driving with his family on Grant avenue, the sleigh runners caught in the car tracks as he attempted to turn into Second street. The occupants were all thrown out. Mr. Earick held to the reins and was dragged about 50 feet before the horse could be stopped.

PLAINFIELD BRANCH ALLIANCE.

The February Meeting Held at All Souls' Church.

The February meeting of the Plainfield Branch Alliance occurred yesterday afternoon, at All Souls' church. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Florence Howe, the chair was taken by by Mrs. Stephen Haff. After the usual business consisting of reports of committees and etc., the meeting proceeded to consider the topic of the day. "The Evolution of Family Life." Mrs. D. W. Ford read a paper on "Different Forms of the Human Family," followed by the reading of selected articles on "Moulding Influences" by Miss M. B. Browne and Mrs. H. B. Wells. Mrs. S. H. Kroon spoke of "Domestic Animals, their value to us and our care and treatment of them. A very interesting paper on "The Uses of Culture" was read by Miss Emily Sandford.

Miss Jane M. Slocum of New York then gave a thoughtful and entertaining lecture on "The Evolution of the Family Into the Government." She said that in primitive times the father was both priest and king. In the evolution of the family into the house and tribe, the real or fictitious relationship is still the bond of unity. The union of tribes formed the ancientstate. Each family had its household gods and religious rites were inseparable from patriarchal rule. Government was in ancient times independent of land, and the kings were rulers of the people. The ancient city was first a religious centre occupied by king and priest. The people lived in families, and from the habit of sitting in council were transformed into legislators. The Roman settlement of a claim the township was created. The feudal system tended to disintegration. every conqueror parcelling the land to his warriors. The conquering hords once settled, their leaders became kings and the process of natural selection went on. A general discussion followed the paper. Richard T. Ely says of Miss Slocum: "She is a careful student and an inspiring teacher." She is particulary successful as a lecturer. She studied law under the supervision of Thomas M. Cooley with a view to perfecting her knowledge of government, passing a satisfactory examination. Her paper was very interesting.

JR. O. U. A. M. MEETING.

A DISTRICT SESSION HELD IN THIS CITY.

Guests of Somerset Council, No. 104.

—Patriotic Speeches by Many of the Members. — Two Candidates Initiated.

DISTRICT meeting of the Junior Order United American Mechanics was held in the lodge room of Somerset Council, No. 104, last night. It was the largest meeting of that Order ever held in this city and was attended by representatives from the following Councils:

Franklin Council, No. 42, of Plainfield; Union Council, No 31, of Rahway; Ivanhoe Council, No. 72, of Somerville; Osiris Council, No. 48, of Elizabeth; Goodwill, No 28, of New Brunswick; W. G. Ogden Council, No 35, of Dunellen, Pioneer Council, No. 52, of Bound Brook; Metuchen Council, No. 59, of Metuchen; Hiawatha Council, No. 119, of East Millstone; Central Council, No. 121, of Woodbridge; Raritan Council, No. 91, of Raritan; Friendship Council, No. 81, of New Market; Starry Flag Council, No. 128, of North Branch and Ashland Council, No. 28 of Long Branch.

In all about 250 delegates were present. The initiation ceremony was performed by the officers and the degrees worked by the initiation team. Messrs. George T. Benedict and J. T. Vegiard were the candidates and they were both full-fledged Juniors.

The Rev. J. W. Richardson, who is a member of Somerset Council, made the address of welcome. He made a pleasant reference to the fine body of men present, stating that they had far exceeded his expectations. He said that while it was so cold out-side there was a general warmth of good feeling inside the hall. In conclusion he most heartily welcomed the members of this patriotic Order to Plainfield.

Dr. J. J. Reed, of Ashland Council, No. 28 of Long Branch, next made a short address. He said he had been a member of the Order for 18 years, but he had never seen the Initiatory work performed in such an excellent manner. The Council, he said, deserved great praise for this, and that more Councils like Somerset, No. 104, were needed in the United States.

State Vice Councillor P. Hall Packer, of Seabright, a member of the Order for 22 years, spoke of the prosperous condition of the Order in general, and of the good work being done.

Mr. Smyth of Hollywood Council, of Long Branch, who is president of the Board of Directors of the Funeral Benefit Association, made a very humorous address. Adjournment was then made to the banqueting hall, where a sumptuous repast had been prepared.

After the collation the members reassembled in the lodge room and pat. riotic speeches were made by Mr. David Bodine, Junior Past Councillor of Franklin Council, No. 42, Hoff, of William G. Holton Council, No. 55, of Dunellen, Mr. J. T. Conklin, of Raritan Council, Mr. Osborn, of Metuchen Council, Mr. Wyckoff of Raritan Council, Mr. Rymer, of Ivanhoe Council and others.

LIVE BIRD SHOOT AT MARION.

Plainfielders Among the "Crack" Shots Present.

Yesterday's magnificent weather was a boon to the lovers of outdoor sports, and particularly to those who take part in or favor trapshooting. Of these about two hundred found their way to Al Heritage's Marion grounds to take part in or witness the big open sweeps at live birds arranged by Jacob Pentz of the Newark Gun Club. Among the visitors were "Doc Kay" Keller, Nest Apgar and Charles Smith of Plainfield.

The conditions of the race were twenty-five live birds per main, $25 entry, Burlingham rules except that the boundary was fifty yards. When the race started at 1.10 p. m. there were only fifteen entries and but one came afterward.

The race ran fairly even for the first half, at which time Ivens, Cooper and Hoffman had straight scores with several others well up. The chance for first and second money, however, finally simmered down to Cooper and Ivens.

North Plainfield Candidates.

The Democrats talk of nominating Mr. Samuel McCutchen, President of the Board of School Trustees, as their candidate for Mayor of the Borough. The report is that Mr. McCutchen won't accept. He makes a good school trustee and it is time now to give a good Republican a chance as Mayor. Such an excellent one as Mr. W. W. Rowland, for instance, would suit Republicans and a great many Democrats alike.

Almost Frozen to Death.

A man was found nearly frozen to death in the snow near Patten's Hotel at Garwood Monday night. He was taken to Cranford and warmed up. When asked his name he replied that it made no difference what it was, that he was a tramp and without a home, and might as well be without a name. He was made comfortable for the night.

The "Magic City" is selling immensely. Wonderful at Philadelphia, sold 4300 copies in three days. On sale at White's, 3c. copy.

The Former has the Latter Arrested for Assault and Battery.

Mr. W. H. Pangborn, who has charge of the mason work in the new Babcock building on West Front street, and Mr. Connolly, who, as foreman for Mr. Chandler, is overseeing the carpenter work had a dispute yesterday over some matter pertaining to the building. The outcome of which was that Mr. Pangborn went before Justice Hodyne and swore out a warrant for Mr. Connolly's arrest, on a charge of assault and battery.

Mr. Connolly appeared before the Justice of the Peace, and waived examination, giving bail to appear before the Grand Jury.

Mr. Connolly says that Mr. Pangborn slapped him and that he pushed Mr. Pangborn over.

ELIZABETH MEN WIN.

The Park Club Loses the Last Game on Its Own Alleys.

The Park Club made a good score last night but the Elizabeth Athletic Club made a better one. It was the last game in the New Jersey Central League to be played in this city, and on that account the Park Club strained every nerve to win, but it was no use. The score:

THE LAING WILL CASE.

Plainfield Lawyers in a Middlesex County Court.

The Laing will case was up in the Middlesex County Court yesterday. The daughters of the late Joseph Laing, of Dunellen, has filed a caveat against the will of her father on the ground that undue influence to secure an unfair portion was used by Mrs. Laing, who was Laing's second wife and stepmother to his daughters. They were cut off with $10 apiece, while all the rest went to Mrs Laing. Mr. Craig A. Marsh, of Plainfield, represents the savators and Mr. Nelson Runyon, of Plainfield, appears for Mrs. Laing.

Resolutions of Thanks Received by Winfield Scott Post.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 28, G. A. R., met last night. A set of resolutions was received from the Second New Jersey Cavalry Association, thanking the Post for its kindness and hospitality to the association and for the generous entertainment furnished. The resolutions were sent by the secretary, Mr. Alphonso S. Hill, who wrote that it afforded him great pleasure to tender a token of thanks to the Post. The veterans were given a hearty welcome, he said, that it would long be remembered.

The Judah Will Case Postponed.

The Judah will case came up for trial at Elizabeth this morning, but was adjourned to Friday on account of the death of Judge Wiley. Mrs. Judah died last Fall leaving the bulk of her estate to her grand-son, Charles Parks. Two of the heirs, Mrs. Carwin and Jacob Wisner, are contesting the will. Judge Coddington represents the legatee.

The state of siege at Rio has been abolished.

HANGED MR. DRAKE IN EFFIGY.

Criticisms of the Fire Department Supposed to Have Prompted the Act.

Some time between 4 and 5 o'clock yesterday morning, Charles N. Drake, town committeeman for the Second District, and Cranford correspondent of the Elizabeth Journal was hanged in effigy in front of the town hall on the railway station at that place. The men who did the hanging are unknown, but it is understood that the motive was resentment at the criticisms of the fire department which Mr. Drake indulged in, appeared in the Journal. Had any real cause of complaint existed, it is said, the censure would have been taken in good part.

"Billy" Hodge, who discovered the effigy in the dim light thought it was human, and rushed into the station with the thrilling news that Drake had been lynched. Bishop, the night operator, was so startled by the report that he was unable to telegraph for a coroner, though Hodge urged him to. John Schmidt, the station manager, appeared at this juncture with the news that the figure was only a dummy. When daylight became more pronounced it was seen that the effigy was well provided with wet goods. A placard was pinned on the coat, pocket. The clothing was liberally decorated with placards.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a special meeting of the Alert Hose Company last evening the following resolutions were passed:

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call to final rest, while yet in full vigor of manhood, and amidst the active duties of his our beloved officer and dear, friend, Chief Engineer, Charles E. Bartlett, be it

Resolved, That while we, the members of Alert Hose Company, No. 1, bow in submission to the Divine will, we, with tender hearts, extend to the bereaved wife and children of our dear friend our sincere sympathy for their great loss, that of a loving and devoted husband, and father.

That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our Company, a copy engrossed and sent to the bereaved family and published in the Plainfield daily papers.

Signed Charles A. Sayres,
E. R. Anthony,	Committee.
Jos. L. Moore,

At a regular meeting of Queen City Lodge, No. 236, I. O. O. F., held the 26th day of February, 1894, the following resolutions were adopted by the lodge:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in his all-wise providence to remove from our midst our beloved brother, Charles E. Bartlett, be it

Resolved, That as we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, we will remember He does not wilfully afflict the children of men, but rather doeth all things for the best, and we accept the decree and greater weight of glory.

Resolved, That we extend our affectionate sympathy to the widow and family, and commend them for strength and support to Him who has promised to be the God of the widow and a Father to the fatherless, and he it further

Resolved, That as a token of respect to our departed brother, we drape our charter for a period of thirty days; that these resolutions be published in the Plainfield daily papers and a copy be sent to the family of our late brother.

The Judge Reserved His Decision.

Yesterday afternoon the trial of the suit of Book vs. Ruppert, took place before Justice Nash. The suit was over a note. Ex-Judge Codington represented the defendant and Mr. Walter L. Herbert appeared for the plaintiff.

The note was drawn to the order of two persons and contained the words "we or either of us promise to pay."

The suit was brought against only one of the parties, consequently the counsel for the defense set forth the claim of non-joinment," i. e. that all the parties to the case had not been joined in the suit. Decision reserved.

The C. Y. M. L.'s Euchre Team.

To-morrow night the first game in the Diocesan Union euchre tournament will be played. The Catholic Young Men's Lyceum team will be composed of Messrs. John Flynn and M. Gill. The Plainfielders will go to Jersey City to play with the St. Paul team of that place. The substitute players are Messrs. M. J. Coyne and M. J. Winn. The rules of "Hoyle" will govern the games, except in cases where they conflict with special rules of the committee.

IN THE REPUBLICAN SENATE.

Rushed Through a Few Bills and Then Quit for the Week.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 27.—The Republican Senate passed the following bills today:

House 116—Repeals an act providing for the appointment of Sergeant-at-Arms in county courts in counties having between 69,000 and 79,000 populations.

Senate No. 1—Known as the "Custodian bill."

House No. 117 was recommitted to the committee on Senator Bradley's motion. It repeals the act prohibiting fishing with seines in Barnegat Bay.

These bills were ordered to third reading: House 65—Amends acts concerning idiots and lunatics; House 111—Provides for the payment by the State Treasurer of the expenses incurred by managers of Agricultural Experiment Station in printing bulletins issued for the station, amount not to exceed $1,500; House 108—Repeals act relative to election of school trustees in third class cities; House 110—Appropriates $5,000 for current expenses of the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

The Senate then adjourned till Monday night.

These bills have been introduced in the Assembly:

No. 144 Mr. Salinger—Authorizes the discharge of poor convicts from imprisonment after ten days when it is shown they cannot pay the fine.

No. 145 Mr. Salinger—Enables women to become lawyers.

No. 147 Mr. Salinger—Provides for a trial de novo in district courts where the Judge does not give a decision within ten days after the trial.

No. 147 Mr. Salinger—Authorizes any Judge of the Court of Common Pleas to take bail.

No. 148 Mr. Wilbur—Designates the Industrial Training School at Bordentown as the School provided by Congress, and that the Governor, Superintendent of Public Instruction, President of the Senate, Speaker of House, Principal of Normal School, two persons selected by the State Board of Education and two selected by the School Board of District No. 13, Burlington County, shall be the trustees thereof.

No. 149 Mr. Exton—Repeals the act creating a board of public works in Camden, Trenton and Paterson.

No. 150 Mr. Schuchardt—Amends the Road act of 1892.

No. 151 Mr. Eisele—Provides that corporal punishment may be inflicted by a rattan in public schools if written consent of parents or guardian is given.

No. 152 Mr. Eisele—Prevents discrimination in favor of individuals by life insurance companies under a penalty of from $200 to $500 fine.

No. 153 Mr. Eagen—Creates board of street and water commissioners for Jersey City, one each to be elected from each ward for a term of two years, to give $10,000 bond and receive $1,000 salary each year, such commissioners to be ineligible to hold any other office without first resigning as such commissioner.

No. 154 Mr. Egan—Creates board of police commissioners for Jersey City, one each to be elected from each ward for term of two years, receive $1,000 each year, such commissioners to be ineligible to hold any other office without first resigning as such commissioners.

No. 155 Mr. Egan—Creates board of fire commissioners for Jersey City, one each to be elected from each ward for term of two years, to receive $1,000 each year and to be ineligible to hold any other office without first resigning as such commissioner.

No. 156 Mr. Carroll—Repeals the act creating commissioners of appeal in cases of taxation in Jersey City.

No. 157. Mr. Binder—Provides for the payment of the cost of sewers heretofore constructed without authority of law in boroughs and borough commissions.

No. 158 Mr. Byrnes—Provides that any person who shall print, publish or distribute anything containing obscene, indecent or impure language tending to corrupt the morals shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, upon conviction of which penalty shall be six months' imprisonment or from $100 to $500 fine or both.

A Good Suggestion.

[From the Catholic Ledger.]

To the Editor of the Catholic Ledger:

PLAINFIELD, Feb. 22.—DEAR SIR:—Why cannot the Diocesan Union put some life into itself this Summer by having a grand field day of athletic sports? We must surely have any number of eligible Catholic amateurs throughout the State that would be willing to compete.

There is no doubt in my mind but that such an event would boom the Union financially as well as otherwise. If you can spare some space to talk this thing up I should like we would be able to hold such an event.

Yours respectfully, AJAX.

ALLEN'S WITTY SPEECH

He Replies Humorously to Ex-Mayor Hewitt's Talk.

LATE PEACE MAKES AN APOLOGY.

Mr. Bland Allowed Another Day For Debate Because He Could Not Get a Quorum to Vote—Senate Buried Through Its Work.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Mr. Pence's speech of Monday, in which he struck right and left at his colleagues in the House, cut a prominent figure in Tuesday's proceedings. Mr. Pence's reference to Mr. Hainer had been incorrectly reported, and Hainer to a question of privilege he took occasion to apologize for the personalities he had indulged in, but Mr. Cooper of Indiana was not satisfied and gave him a severe scoring.

Mr. Bland was again unable to muster a quorum on his motion to close the debate on the seigniorage bill, so he allowed the debate to run on for another limit. The speeches of the day were without special feature beyond a humorous reply made by Mr. Allen of Mississippi to the now famous speech of ex-Mayor Hewitt of New York reflecting severely upon the statesmanship of the south.

Mr. Allen made his first speech at this session in favor of the bill. He said he had not proposed to speak on the measure, but to vote, but as there was a disposition to force speaking instead of voting his colleagues demanded that he be heard. [Laughter.] He hoped what he had to say would be listened to for the attention due only to his long experience and prominence in the house, but the attention due to an ex-candidate for the United States senate. [Renewed laughter.] He regretted that he was obliged to differ with some of his colleagues. He would rather have $10,000 then differ with General Tracey. [Laughter.]

Mr. Allen Takes Fun at Hewitt.

He went on to discuss the promises given at the time of the passage of the repeal bill to the Democratic friends of silver, which were now being repudiated, and naturally drifted into some observations on the speech made by ex-Mayor Hewitt in New York a few days ago reflecting on the caliber of some southern Democrats.

He had been pained, he said, beyond measure to find that Mr. Hewitt did not regard him as a Calhoun, a Stidell or a Jefferson. It had been a revelation to him to know that he was not considered as great as his predecessor. [Laughter.] Mr. Hewitt was grouped with insomnia, and there was one consolation when he (Allen) thought of his displeasure. He had known Mr. Hewitt for some years, had talked with him frequently, but he had never known any one who in Mr. Hewitt thoroughly approved except himself. He had lived in the days when common scolds were ducked, he would have been drowned. [Laughter.] The south had had many trials. After the devastating war it had been swept by drought, cyclones, typhoons, pestilence and disease. Its crops had failed. It had contributed much too money to damages on them. Throughout it all the south had exhibited something of bravery and fortitude. But the stimulating prop of the south during its trials—this thing it had most cherished above all others—was the thought that Hewitt approved.

Now that sustaining prop had been taken away. Rather than have had this disaster come upon his people he would have given one silver dollar out of his own pocket. [Laughter.] He would not refer to the remarks of Representative Patterson of Tennessee on the same occasion. It was hard, he said, to maintain the parity between speeches in New York and Hardeman county, Tenn. In that speech Patterson had said that he had been a free silver man until he came to Congress and learned finance under the leadership of Grover Cleveland.

On the same New York occasion Mr. Carlisle had said that this bill was destined to allow the southern silver men to go off the field of battle with their sidearms on. As far as he was concerned he asked no terms. His people did not want to be permitted to carry off their sidearms. It was not the last gun of a retreating army they were firing. They had not yet capitulated. He concluded with an appeal for unity and harmony of action.

The senate held another brief session, in which nothing of importance was accomplished, and then adjourned after an executive session of half an hour in order that the caucus might be continued.

Democratic Tariff Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The Democrats of the senate spent a large part of the day in caucus. The proceedings were not marked by many interesting incidents, and the only information that could be gained was that argument in favor of the interests which the various senators particularly represented. Senators Vest, Brice and White made speeches. In order that all senators might have an opportunity to say something the roll was called by states, and nearly every man in the senate had an opportunity to express his views. Some of the states asked to be passed over. Senator Wolfe of California, the Alabama senators and Senator Coffeen reserving themselves for today, when it is expected that they will close the general debate.

The programme then is that the bill shall be gone over by schedules and the finance committee instructed by suggestion or votes of the caucus as to what changes shall be made. That was the understanding when the caucus adjourned, though it may be upset and some new programme sprung after the closing session.

The general tone of the caucus was against trusts, and several statements indicated that if any of the present duties or proposed duties favored the trusts the committees would be instructed to make alterations. This was only an expressed sentiment of some of the senators, which seemed to meet the approbation of those who listened. This sentiment indicated a disposition to allow a revenue only on sugar, but a ring in the wax of discrimination or protection for the refined article. There was talk, to cool and stop over hour heat by various senators, but very little could be observed in the line of new views of these matters.

During the day the senators from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania took action to oppose the income tax matter of the bill. Senator Hill declaring that it was very unpopular in his state. His statements were sustained by Senators Murphy, Gorman, Smith and Henry. The impression seemed to be, however, that there would soon even be a demand for a vote on the proposition to strike out the income tax.

Senator Mills made one of the sanctimonious speeches of the day. He said that the bill was wholly satisfactory to him, but that he would vote for any measure that would reduce the rates of taxation below the McKinley law. Senators from the states having representatives on the finance committee did not have much to say, but what was said was mostly in favor of the bill. The fight for cost was led by the West Virginia senators, and Senator Camden of that state also urged a duty upon lumber.

The New York Confirmations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The five New York appointments which were confirmed by the senate were sent in on Dec. 13, and the fact that they have been held up so long without action has occasioned much comment. All five of the nominations were in the hands of the committee on commerce, of which Senator Murphy is a member, and they were naturally referred to him because of the fact that he represented the state from which they were made. He is understood to have held the nominations before making a report until he and Mr. Hill could make investigations concerning the appointees. Having made these, they agreed that the nominations should go to the senate, where they were acted upon. The same explanation applies in the case of Mr. Poucher, who had his confirmation as district attorney on Monday. That nomination was in the hands of Mr. Hill as a member of the judiciary committee.

Daughters of the Revolution Quarrel.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—As a result of several informal conferences among prominent delegates to the recent congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, who were dissatisfied with the methods of business adopted at the congress, some radical changes in the organization of that society are to be recommended. Several forms of proposition—some looking to restricting the powers of the national board and others to altogether abrogating them—are soon to be submitted to various influential chapters. The purpose is declared to be to cause a congress to assemble which will give more time to delegates and proceed to transact its business without restrictions.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

New York—Bacon Hill, Miss Laura B. Suffin; Charlotte Center, F. E. Landers; De Bruce, Ira Martin; De Witville, G. G. Bissell; La Grangeville, S. D. Bronell; Middlefield Center, E. R. Strips; North Bangor, Mrs. Cole; South Canisteo, W. C. Ryan; South Rutland, Orsis Trembley.

Pennsylvania—Millerstown, H. W. Rhinehart.

A Boston Appointment.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—A. P. Brown of Boston has been appointed a special assistant United States attorney for the district of Massachusetts.

DINGENS ARRIVES.

The Suspected Cornell Student Says He Can Prove an Alibi.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 28.—Mr. Dingens, the missing Cornell sophomore, arrived from Syracuse. In an interview he stated that he had no connection with the burglaries charged and that he is going to prove his alibi. He explained his absence from Ithaca by stating that he had received a telegram from his home in Buffalo to come at once to his sister, who is no lower ill.

He went, and on his way back he was accosted, he says, by a friend of an old complaint, which originated several years ago as a result of a fall from a bicycle. He then proceeded to Syracuse to consult his family physician. He further declares that during his treatment the doctor refused to allow him to read any newspapers, and therefore he remained in ignorance of the charges alleged against him.

Says She Talks Through Her Hat.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Feb. 28.—To a reporter who called his attention to Mrs. Mary E. Lease's statement that she gained knowledge of the Masonic secrets and ritual by looking through a wicket in a lodge door in this city John Hodge, deputy grand state master, said: "This is the veriest hoke. For over 30 years no Masonic lodge door in this city has had a wicket. Mrs. Lease betrays her confidencing in nearly every statement she makes, one instance being her claim to have seen three degrees worked on one candidate in one evening. Her talk is too silly to notice."

Fatal Engine House Fire.

WILLIAMSON, Pa., Feb. 28.—The engine house of the Addison and Pennsylvania railway at Westfield was burned. The engine wiper on discovering the fire saved the locomotives by running them out of the building. An Italian section hand named John Rick rushed into the building. It is supposed, to secure some valuables he had left there, and fell into one of the pits and was burned to death.

An Inventor Blows Up.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 28.—While Dr. A. A. Hutchins, an inventor, was experimenting in his laboratory at Clyde, O., an explosion occurred which partially wrecked the house and mutilated the doctor horribly. Both eyes were blown out, one leg was broken and other injuries inflicted which will cause death.

No Prize Fights For Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Feb. 28.—No more prize fighting will be allowed in this city or county. Assistant District Attorney Kennefick has notified the police superintendent to stop the 10 round gloves contests advertised for next Thursday evening between Erne and Sullivan, two local featherweights.

Boston Firemen Hurt.

BOSTON, Feb. 28.—Fire partially destroyed the five story brick building owned by the Boston Real Estate company at 72 and 74 Pearl street. During the progress of the fire four members of the fire department were slightly injured and taken to the Emergency hospital.

Another Refusal For McKane.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Feb. 28.—William Kennedy, a Syracuse attorney, appeared before Supreme Court Judge Wright, and in behalf of John Y. McKane asked for a certificate of reasonable doubt. Judge Wright refused to entertain the motion.

Artz's Resignation Accepted.

TOPEKA, Feb. 28.—Governor Lewelling accepted the resignation of Adjutant General Artz, to take effect as soon as the latter can make an inventory of the property under his charge.

A Yellow Fever Victim.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 28.—Captain Sidney Perrell, first mate of the bark Pranza, one of C. Morton Stewart's fleet, died at Rio Janeiro of yellow fever.

Hudson River Perch Dude Dead.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Feb. 28.—The cold snap is believed to have killed the perch dude along the Hudson.

GLADSTONE'S EYESIGHT

It Is Believed That He Must Soon Retire.

AN OPERATION TO BE PERFORMED.

There Are Many Reports That His Resignation Will Soon Be Sent In, and the Doubts Are Not Strong—Lord Rosebery Named as His Successor.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The Chronicle says that the retirement of Mr. Gladstone is imminent. It is almost an open secret that his eyesight is no longer equal even to the less important duties of a political leader. All efforts at concealment or disappointment at hesitation being halked may be dismissed as wholly unaffecting his decision.

When Mr. Gladstone resigns the wand, it will be known that his hand can no longer wield it, and for no other reason whatever.

It is probable that no decision has yet been arrived at in the unconcerted bigwig fashion. It is announced that Mr. Sexton, M. P. for Kerry, has already taken steps to obtain pledges with regard to home rule in the event of Lord Rosebery or the Earl of Spencer becoming premier.

The Standard believes it is a fact that Mr. Gladstone's eyesight is growing much worse and that an operation will soon be necessary. Recognizing this fact, Mr. Gladstone informed his colleagues that his early resignation was inevitable, but he hoped that it would be only temporary. He told them that he would resume the premiership should his eyes become strong enough to warrant it.

Rosebery's Leadership Acceptable.

The Times thinks that the denial of Mr. Gladstone's actual resignation may be accepted with reserve in the unwonted haste to adopt the inference that the alarm in the Radical camp was altogether causeless, but it can hardly be doubted that a semi-official denial of the announcement of the crisis. Lord Rosebery's leadership would be far more satisfactory to the country generally than that of any other Gladstonian.

The Daily News says that Mr. Gladstone has taken no step in the direction of resigning. The visit of Rosebery's visit to the queen had no relation, is adds, to the current political rumors.

The Daily News, further commenting on the rumors about Mr. Gladstone, says that in view of his age it is only right that the Liberals should consider the future. If the Unionists of Ireland do not make impossible Irishmen, it would be inhuman to keep Mr. Gladstone at his post merely because of a difference of opinion prevailing in reference to the choice of his successor. The Daily News strongly recommends the Earl of Rosebery, but adds that there will be no lack of discontentment with the Earl of Kimberley's supremacy so long as he is willing to remain supreme.

In an interview Chairman Cowan of the Midlothian Liberal association said that Mr. Gladstone had often said to him that he would take the earliest opportunity for resigning.

The Trades Union council has issued a manifesto in regard to the action of the house of lords on the employers' liability bill. The manifesto calls upon the workingmen of Great Britain not to allow a body of irresponsible legislators to block industrial legislation.

It adds that the present crisis affords an excellent occasion to drive home an effective lesson of resistance to such violent and reactionary power. It concludes by urging the attendance of workingmen at a great demonstration to be held in Hyde park on March 18 and also asks them to join in the procession to the meeting place.

Elections In Brazil on Thursday.

BUENOS AYRES, Feb. 28.—The state of siege has been raised. A dispatch from Rio Janeiro says it is reported that the government dynamite cruiser Nictheroy, coming from Bahia, has landed 500 men at Cabo Frio, 75 miles northeast of Rio Janeiro. Other vessels of Peixoto's fleet are on their way south. No important developments are expected at any time. The elections have been fixed for Thursday.

TRENTON AFFAIRS.

An Effort Begun To Get the House to Unseat Mr. Thompson.

TRENTON, Feb. 28.—The first movement of the Republicans for possession of the offices of the state treasurer and state comptroller was made when the head of Treasurer-elect Beale was taken to the secretary of state's office for filing. The secretary refused to receive it, and it was left in his office. In the qua warranto proceedings the hearing was resumed, with William H. Richard on the stand. He was a visitor on the floor. He related the proceedings in great detail, much as the previous witnesses had told them.

William H. Hoffman, the solid Republican senator from Cape May county, was next called. He told of the difficulty the senators had in getting to the door of the senate chamber.

At the afternoon session of the house Mr. Storrs of Essex offered a resolution calling for a speedy investigation of the election contest of Jacob C. Lippincott against William J. Thompson. The committee on elections was empowered to send for papers and witnesses, take possession of ballot boxes, etc., in the Third district of Camden county. Mr. Harrigan denounced the resolution as an extravagant scheme on part of the Republicans out of which to make political capital. He ridiculed the idea that Mr. Thompson was fraudulently elected. Mr. Beekman also opposed the investigation because of the cost to the state.

Mr. Thompson said he wanted the full-est investigation at the hands of the house. He declared that he had been honestly elected and asserted that he had never asked a man to give him his suffrage. But he wanted his side of the case presented in the right way and thought he should be furnished counsel paid by the state. A lively debate followed on this proposition, and the whole matter was laid over.

A committee consisting of Messrs. Storrs, Cosse and Beekman was appointed to look up precedents as to the method of employing and paying counsel. They must report today. A bill was introduced by Mr. Gruber providing for the election of boards of freeholders in counties having a population of from 75,000 to 200,000 by electing one member from each ward, township and borough for terms of two years at a salary of $150 per annum each.

DOUBLE LYNCHING.

The Work of the Mob Was Done by Masked Men.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Feb. 28.—Anderson Carter and Bud Montgomery, alias Jasper Newton, were taken from the county jail at Mountain Home, Ark., by a mob of 250 men and lynched. The sheriff, jailer and 10 guards on duty at the jail were overpowered and disarmed. The sheriff appealed to the mob in the name of law and order to desist, but they showered curses at him, and fired guns in the air and he conceded to unlock the jail door. The poor wretches begged for mercy.

When the leader of the mob called for Nos. 85, 86 and 94, three big masked fellows stepped forward and began firing into the prisoners' bodies with winchesters and shotguns.

Four or five volleys were fired when Nos. 17, 72 and 135 were called for and fired several more volleys. The leaders, seeing they were not dead, ordered another volley fired, and when it was apparent that life was extinct the mob marched away, leaving no trace as to their identity.

Pinckey Mrs. Pierce.

OMAHA, Feb. 28.—F. A. Pierce, representing the Pittsburg safe house of Thomas Bayne & Co., and a woman claiming to be his wife have left Omaha under peculiar circumstances. In his house at 3211 Harney street is a Chicago lady who claims to be the lawful Mrs. Pierce. She arrived on the scene last week, and after locating her husband's domicile she proceeded there and drove the complaint out, taking possession herself. She is now armed with a revolver and threatens to kill Pierce if he attempts to oust her.

VANDERBILT BOUDOIRS.

Luxuriously Furnished Rooms in the New Mansion.

BATHROOMS ARE OF TILED ONYX.

The Youngest Vanderbilt Suite Has Chamber Fit For a Princess, With Walls of White and Blue and Sheets and Pillows of Azure Silk—Some Are In Old Gold.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Old rose is the color chosen by Mrs. Vanderbilt for the boudoir which is for her own exclusive use in the palace newly built by Cornelius Vanderbilt on the corner of Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street. Mrs. Vanderbilt's suite of rooms are on the Fifty-seventh street side and face exactly across to the house of Mr. William C. Whitney, on the opposite corner, and into the rooms fitted up a year ago by Mrs. Whitney for her debutante daughter, Pauline. The suite consists, like all the other six suites of the house, of three rooms—a bedroom, a boudoir and a bathroom. The prevailing color is old rose, and this shade is found upon the walls, which are covered with old rose satin, and upon the floors, where there is a delicate old rose carpet, and upon the furniture, which is covered with old rose damask of rich and rare quality.

The wood is rose-wood, and the bedstead is of the same material, hung with curtains of old rose satin, lined with white silk. On the walls there are Cupids and nymphs carrying cornucopias filled with roses. This gives the old rose tone to the walls, which are in white and gold.

An Onyx Bathroom.

The bathroom with Mrs. Vanderbilt's suite is largely of onyx. The tub and bowls are of this material, and the floors are tiled and nearly all of onyx. The effect is very pleasing and much less oppressive than is usually the case where so much money has been spent upon a house and upon the furnishing of private suites.

Miss Gertrude's boudoir is a very dainty thing in white and blue. There is not a particle of gold in the room. But the effect is indescribably beautiful, more so than if it were entirely of gold and blue, as was her old suite. The inanel is of white enamel. Over it is a big mirror perfectly round, around which is a wreath of flowers, blue and white and rose color. The chairs are all of white enamel and are upholstered in very pale blue, which is exactly the shade of the carpet. The walls are of "dead" white, but there are long reflective panels of the blue which set them off beautifully. Over the writing desk there are panels of the blue, and a motto telling are blue birds and pale blue figures like angels. The motive is as if there were birds in a cloudless sky and a few dim forms in the air among the flowers.

Dream of Blue and White.

The bedroom in this ethereal suite is a dream in white and blue. The carpet is blue, with a flower of white thrown down here and there.

The bathroom of his suite is a dream in pretty decoration. It has a sky effect upon the ceiling, and the walls are daubed and shade up to it. The tub and bowls are all of the purest white marble and porcelain. All three rooms of the suite face the park and are the most sightly in the house.

Mr. Vanderbilt's private rooms are on the other side of the house and are done in dark grays. The cost of Miss Vanderbilt's private rooms is said to be about $2,000, not counting of course the value of the jewels, bric-a-brac and furnishings. The cost of Mrs. Vanderbilt, with its rose-wood, onyx and gold, cost twice as much. When Miss Vanderbilt makes her long deferred debut, she will have rooms fine as a princess in which to don the gown in which she meets society for the first time.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

The Messenger Boy's Speed.

He was very anxious that the letter should be delivered as soon as possible. He could have sent it by telegraph very well, as it had something inclosed. Special delivery was a sure thing. He did not know anybody going that way, so finally he decided that the quickest method of delivery would be by messenger boy. He walked quickly to the office.

"Oh, yes. Certainly," said the man in charge. "It will be delivered immediately. Send the boy right away."

"I'd like to hurry. Here's his fare and 10 cents for his hurry," said he. The boy to whom, a roguish little fellow, seemed restless to get off. He could hardly wait to get the slip. The sender of the message followed.

"That's the right kind of a boy," noted he. "Some people say messenger boys are slow." At this point Mercury had reached the corner. He stopped and leaned up against a lamppost.

"Waiting for a car," said the watcher, rubbing his hands. "It will surely get there in time." The car came along and just behind it, moving as slowly as a snail on a balmy June morning, was an ice wagon. The boy left the lamppost as the car came near, and then, calmly waiting, he jumped on the ice wagon. The sender of the letter took at him, but he calmly seated himself on the step behind and whistled merrily as his vehicle moved on.

Queer Japanese Customs.

In Japan almost every one carries a lantern. By a moonlight night it is dangling at his left. Its handles a thin, flat box. Each end of the box is fastened to a sort of paper, which, lying in folds, forms, when drawn out, a lantern.

The Japanese usually carries also a tiny wooden box, shaped like a cylinder, to hold his candle. A small medicine chest, with half a dozen little drawers, each containing a small portion of medicine, a fan, a pipe and a short sword, all form part of the outfit. The sight of a Japanese is, therefore, a very important part of his dress.

His slippers consist of a sole with a worsted instep and upper end, through which the great toe is thrust to keep the slipper on. The slipper is in a framework of whalebone or some other substance, into which the foot is thrust, and the heel then fits. This is to keep his knot of hair in order, for he does not have his hair dressed every day, and a person is obliged to take care of the pillow which is grooved and bound into a form, the rest of the head being closely shaven.

How to Make Paper Owls.

Get a sheet of gray tissue paper and cut a piece 6 inches by 10 in length. Sew up the sides like a paper bag, gather with double thread about an inch from the bottom and stuff with cotton to an inch of the top. Gather it an inch from the top to form the head. Cut 2 half inch circles of yellow paper, then cut a piece of tissue paper three inches long and half inch at the base, crease through the middle and sew between the eyes. Make little crosses of brown ink all over bits, one bar of light and the other of dark. White owls are pretty, with black ink crosses on the ruffle around their eyes.—Boys and Girls.

A Magical Performance.

A very interesting and quite simple experiment can be performed with a clay pipe, the object being to knock off the head or projection under the bowl with some substance. The feat may be accomplished in the following manner: Break a short piece off the end of the stem and place it on the edge of a table, over which it should project slightly, as in the illustration. Ask any one present to stand opposite you and hold the pipe in a slightly oblique position by resting his hand on the table and introducing his little finger into the bowl, as indicated. Make sure that your end of the stem is in a direct line with the stem on the pipe, a fact which can be readily determined by the eye. Having ascertained this, all you have to do is to give the projecting end of the bit of pipe stem a smart stroke with the palm of the hand. If your aim is true, the mimic will slide along the table and up the pipe stem until it reaches the heel, which it will knock neatly off, leaving the bowl and stem intact. A little practice will help you to perform this curious feat with ease. It never fails to excite the astonishment of spectators.—Once a Week.

A Rhyme For Tiny Toes.

This little mouse was nibbling at the cheese.
This little mouse said, "Give me some, please!"
This little mouse said, "Oh, how nice!"
This little mouse said, "Splendid for mice!"
This little mouse said, "I want some too!"
The first little mouse said, "Do as I do."
But click went the trap spring, quick as a thought.
And all three mischievous mice were caught!

PHILOSOPHY AND BALL GOWNS.

The Plain Woman Well Dressed Versus the Carelessly Costumed Venus.

Parisian philosophers have given the world several pieces of wisdom lately—for instance:

"Between a carelessly dressed woman, beautiful as Venus, and a plain one costumed by the best dressmakers of Paris, a clever man will not hesitate—the plain woman will be his choice."

"White hair is the beauty of age, as show is the beauty of winter."

"A woman who does not know how to dress does not know how to be beautiful."

"A woman who is not well dressed is like a soldier without his uniform."

The double skirt is gaining ground. Many evening dresses are made in this style, as thin goods and lace adapt themselves to the fashion. The costume may be all of one material, or there may be a skirt and bodice of silk, with a shorter second skirt of gauze and gauze trimmings on the corsage. Great liberty of form is allowed to the second skirt. It may be long or short, pointed or round, plain or trimmed, straight or draped. It may be complete all around, or it may diminish to nothing at the back. It is sometimes composed of accordion plaited thin silk or gauze cut in deep points around the bottom and is then called a "bat's wing"—a name bestowed by a poetical Frenchman with an eye for comparisons.

An evening dress of light yellow satin has a long trained skirt draped with alencon lace. The lace is wide enough to reach almost to the floor where it hangs plain in front, but it is draped slightly over the hips and caught up in folds at the back, allowing the shortened ends to fall forward again with a coquilicot effect. The plain, low bodice has a folded satin belt closing at the back under a rosette. The round cut corsage is finished with a bertha of crape and lace, very full at the shoulders, where it falls over a short puffed sleeve.

GREEN STILL IN HIGH FAVOR.

The Typical Spring Color Is Kind to Pale and Rosy Complexions.

Green, the typical spring color is as popular as ever, both for street and evening toilets, and deservedly so, as it lends itself gracefully to any setting of fresh pale and rosy complexions. It is most happily, however, by the green eyed women, provided that she knows what shade to pe-

lect. Absinth, crevison and odor are among the newest greens in millinery and dress materials, and are to be found not only in self color, but striped with other harmonizing tints. Green and violet have always an agreeable effect, while dull green and old rose, especially when accented with black, are a charming combination on the right woman.

A lovely ball dress is of pale green liberty silk. The trailing skirt is plain behind, falling in two flaring box plaits, but in front and at the sides it is trimmed with green crape flounces. Crape ruffles are carried up the skirt to the knee to form an upright, jabot like trimming. The low bodice is cut to the point of the shoulders, where gathered crape bretelles are attached and brought forward, crossed at the waist and carried back over the hips to form small panniers, terminating under the skirt plaits at the back. The back of the bodice has a crape ruffle caught up on either shoulder by a crape rosette and bunch of violets. The loose, full sleeves extend to the elbow, where they are met by pale gray gloves. A cluster of violets is worn at the left side of the waist in front.

Pointed, round and square necked bodices are all seen on evening dresses, as well as those cut straight across, showing the upper part of the arm, but the latter fashion, familiar to our grandmothers, has the advantage of not interrupting the beautiful line from the neck to the point of the shoulder, and the revival of it is an artistic touch scarcely to have been expected in an era of triangular and rapidly augmenting overskirts. It is to be hoped, however, that our grandmothers' custom of wearing the straight cut corsage morning as well as evening will not be adopted. There is never any telling where revivals will stop, although since the crinoline and chignon have been wrested the well dressed world may congratulate itself on not being absolutely subservient to the arbitrary dictates of abstract fashion. After all, extreme styles usually owe their birth to some business project of manufacturers, and it is best to be cautious about following them.

WHIPPED BY WHITE CAPS.

A Lazy Fellow Given a Cold Bath, Scrubbed With Lye and Switched.

BRADFORD, Pa., Feb. 28.—White caps took it upon themselves to reform a resident of Kinzua, a small village in this vicinity. John Bryton, a shiftless, filthy fellow who refused to work and support his wife and child, was the object of their wrath.

A few days ago Bryton's baby died of starvation. There was no food in the house, and the mother went out to a neighbor's and begged a cup of milk. The husband was in the house when the mother returned and took the milk and drank it. The baby's death occurred soon after.

At midnight a crowd of men surrounded Bryton's miserable hovel. They forced an entrance and at once proceeded to carry out their preconceived plan.

They stripped the fellow, scraped a tub of cold water and gave him a bath with lye for soap. Then they flogged him with hickory whips. He bore his punishment manfully for some time, but eventually weakened and begged for mercy. He promised to leave the country and never come back if they would allow him to go. They granted his request, and at daybreak he left. The wife is being cared for by the people of Kinzua.

BOSTON'S MOB TAME.

Crowd of Very Mild Socialists Gathered In Faneuil Hall.

BOSTON, Feb. 28.—The demonstration of the unemployed in Faneuil hall was a very mild affair and took the aspect of a tame socialist meeting. There was no parade, the unemployed going to the hall singly or in pairs and quartets. Morrison I. Swift and Carson, the Equity union agitators, acted as leaders of the unemployed, but restrained from any of their fiery speeches.

Swift urged his hearers to be quiet and peaceable, but his remarks at intervals were greeted with groans, hisses and catcalls, and this was the extent to which any signs of lawlessness were carried.

Governor Greenhalge was ridiculed by the speaker, and the crowd was happy. The presence in the hall of a large number of policemen may have served as a calming influence on such as would have desired to have made trouble, but the fact that the police had been instructed to allow no anarchistic demonstration had been so well heralded that nothing of the kind was attempted. The meeting broke up with three cheers for the red flag—"not of violence," said the speaker, "but of peace."

Patti's Unpatriotic Orchestra.

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—A great sensation was caused at the end of the Patti performance in the Academy of Music by the neglect of the orchestra to play "God Save the Queen" when the curtain finally fell. The thing was so strange to the audience that people sat dumfounded without moving till the governor general, Lord Aberdeen, stood up in the royal box and started the national anthem himself. Before leaving the theater Lord Aberdeen saw the managers of the academy and expressed great displeasure at the neglect. Mme. Thomas explained it by the presence of Patti's own orchestra, who were not accustomed to it. It is the second time in the history of the Montreal theatricals that such a thing has occurred.

Victoria Woodhull's Suit Decided.

LONDON, Feb. 28.—In the queen's bench division of the high courts of justice, in the case of Mrs. John Biddulph Martin (Victoria Woodhull) against the trustees of the British museum, the jury found that the matter contained in the two books relating to the Beecher-Tilton trial, compiled by Mrs. Martin, was libelous, thus sustaining the defendants and their agents acted upon bona fide belief that they were discharging their statutory powers and duties. The jury did not know the books were libelous. The judgment of the jury was that there be assessed damages to the amount of 1 shilling. The point of law will be further considered.

Greater New York Bill Passed.

ALBANY, Feb. 28.—The greater New York bill passed the senate by a vote of 33 to 9, McMahon and Reynolds voting in the negative. The bill, which now goes to the governor, simply provides that the question of consolidating into one municipality the places about New York harbor shall be submitted next fall to a vote of the people.

General Custina Dying.

CITY OF MEXICO, Feb. 28.—General Justo M. In Poetics.

She looked upon the pale, slender youth kneeling before her and was moved to pity. There was tender sympathy in her bearing as she told him she could never be his wife.

He heard her answer with a bowed head.

"May I ask," he asked simply, when she had spoken, "propound to you one other question before I rise from my knees?"

"Yes."

His glittering eyes were fastened upon her face now.

"Have you"

He was terribly earnest.

"—any corns, bunions or inverted nails?"

She shrieked as it dawned upon her that he was, after all, a chiropodist.

When he strode away forever, the snow crushed beneath his feet with a merry, mocking sound.—Detroit News-Tribune.

Richards, of Post 23, Trenton; Inspector, W. P. Haines, of Post 39 of Mickleton; Judge Advocate, H. S. White, of Post 20, of Bridgeton; Chief Mustering Officer, G. P. Martin, of Post 8, Camden.

Evangelist Wright's Work in Passaic.

Thirteen young persons of Passaic, have pledged themselves to give up dancing, theatres and card playing as the result of the work of Evangelist Frank H. Wright, a full-blooded Indian.

Mr. Wright was in Plainfield for two seven revivals, and drew large congregation nightly at the First Presbyterian church. He went from here to Passaic.

To Enclose the Grounds with a Board Fence.

The contract was given out to-day for a board fence to enclose the 11-acre tract of land on Randolph road recently leased by the Crescent Wheelmen for a bicycle track. The contract was given to Samuel Smalley. The Wheelmen have a five years' lease of the plot.

Crescent Wheelmen to Meet Next Week.

A meeting of the Crescent Wheelmen will be held at the Board of Trade room on Wednesday night, March 7th. The Board of Directors of the Wheelmen will also meet and elect a president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles F. Leggett.

Mayor of the Borough.

Mr. Benjamin A. Hegeman, Jr., whose name has been mentioned in another paper in connection with the mayoralty of North Plainfield, says that he is not a candidate.

Councilman Henry E. Needham is on the Republican slate for Mayor. This selecting candidates by slate is not wise.

Messrs. John Valiant, of Craig place; Henry B Lounsbury, of Grandview avenue; and James C. Peck, of Rockview avenue are favorably spoken of as the Republican candidates for Councilmen.

The present Freeholder, George Bellman, and Ex-Councilman Charles P. Sarbring and Mr. Andrew Lutkins are after the Freeholdership.

Ex-Councilman David R. Weaver is a Republican candidate for Overseer of the Poor.

THE REV. MR KOECHLI RESIGNS.

On Account of Health He Gives Up Charge of His Church.

After more or less for the last two years and finding his health and strength no longer adequate to the requirements of the position the Rev. Mr. Koechli tendered his resignation to the Consistory of the German Reformed church a month ago. Yesterday it was accepted and will take effect the first of July.

PERSONAL.

The body of Mrs. Laing arrived from Washington on the 1:07 train this afternoon.

Ex-Councilman Ernest R. Ackerman and wife of West Seventh street started to-day for California.

Mr. A. V. D. Honeyman is planning to conduct a private touring party to Europe, starting July 5.

Mr. George Taylor, of Dunellen, has been suffering for a week with swelling of the glands in his neck.

Mr Harry C. Van Emburgh of East Second street returned to-day from a trip of 10 days to Niagara and western New York.

The Rev. T. Logan Murphy rector of the church of the Holy Cross North Plainfield, preached at St. John's church Elizabeth, last evening.

Saturday morning ex-Judge Codington will leave for Florida on a business-and pleasure trip combined. He will stop off at Thomasville, Ga., to see his wife and son.

A new German singing society was organized in Somerville last week. Prof. F. W. Stelns of this city was chosen as leader. The society has thirty active members.

The person referred to in the following from the New York Herald of to-day, is a brother of Mrs. T. B. Penton of Rockview avenue: "The first intimation that the relatives and friends of Andrew B. Grier have had that he was a married man was received yesterday, when it also transpired that the popular athlete and club man has been a benedict for three weeks. The card containing this information was sent out on the day that passage had been secured for Europe, and now the bride and bridegroom are on the ocean aboard the steamship Aller, which sailed from this port yesterday. Their objective point is said to be Pau, France, where Mr. Grier's sisters are spending the Winter. After paying his family a visit it is said to be his intention to take an extended trip through Continental Europe. The bride was Miss Genevieve J. Berne, of Cambridge, Mass. It is said she is a stranger to her young husband's relatives and friends to this city. The announcement states that the marriage took place yesterday week in this city on Thursday, February 8, in the church of the Holy Apostles. Mr. Grier Graves, it is said, has been rather mysterious in his movements lately, but nothing was thought of it by those with whom he was connected commercially. Now, however, all these things are recollected and accounted for. Mr. Grier has been acting as salesman for a wall paper manufacturing concern, founded by his father, Robert Graves, who died eight years ago, and of which his brother, Robert Graves, is president. Andrew called upon them Sunday and informed them that he severed his connection with the firm, but would give no reason for his action. He is a member of the Calumet Club of this city and the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn. He is twenty-four years old and was graduated from Yale College in the class of '93. In all sorts of athletic sports he excelled, but particularly known was for his prowess in rowing. He was a member of the crews of his classes and upheld the Yale University crew of the year 1892 in its victories. There was no more popular figure in the fields where Yale was competing for athletic honors than the dor "Handsome Andrew," as he was called by Graves. The casino was the mascot of the athletic blues. After his graduation Graves went abroad, where he remained nearly a year, and since then has not taken an active part in sports, though always on hand when any event of importance occurred in that line. Upon the death of his father he inherited a fortune, which it is said will take care of his brother Robert, who lives at Irvington-on-the-Hudson, married a daughter of General Isaac Catlin, of Brooklyn.

Ex-Judge Codington one of the Executors.

Mrs. Rybella Albert, sister of the late William E. Marsh, who was well known in this city as an owner of large tracts of real estate in both this city and borough, died at Cincinnatti, Ohio, recently. Ex-Judge W. R. Codington of this city and James Leslie of Cincinnatti are the executors.

The late Mr. Marsh owned about 40 or 50 acres of land in the borough at one time, where Grandview and Summit avenues now are. He was the owner of the Gault House, one of the largest hotels in Cincinnatti.

A LECTURE ON "THE SACRAMENT OF PENANCE."

By the Rev. Father Freeman to his old Parishioners.—A Large Congregation Greet their Former Pastor.

The Rev. Father Freeman, of Junction, lectured to his old parishioners at St. Joseph's Church in North Plainfield, last night. He took for his subject "The Sacrament of Penance." He spoke of the beauties of Holy Eucharist but explained how it would be of no use if there was no Sacrament of Penance to cleanse the soul of sin, to make them pure, to receive the Sacrament of Eucharist. He said that as you go to a lawyer or doctor when in trouble or sickness for advice, you should go to the priest and do the same for the soul's salvation. Some people, he said, think it is foolishness to go and tell their sins to a man that is liable to have the same faults as themselves and perhaps worse, but he said, he acts as the minister of God; not as man when in the confessional.

"There," he said, "you should go and confess your sins and promise to give up your past and live a better life, and have the satisfaction of knowing that you are going to be forgiven before your maker, the same as you would have if you went to a doctor and was cured from some sickness. The saving of one soul by doing penance caused more joy in Heaven than 99 just people doing penance.

"You should not go to church as the Pharisie did, who said he gave so much to the poor, fasted three times a week, and did everything that was right, but should go as the poor publican did at the back of the house of God and ask forgiveness for having done wrong."

Father Freeman then asked who should have the most penance. The one praising himself for all he had done or the one asking penance for all his past sins. He concluded his lecture by advising all to approach the sacraments at this time of Lent. After the lecture Father Miller pronounced the benediction.

Caught After Running a Block.

There was a short but exciting runaway on Park avenue between four and five o'clock yesterday afternoon. A horse attached to a sleigh and left standing on Park avenue at the corner of Front street became frightened and dashed off down the avenue. It almost collided with a wagon in front of Dickinson's jewelry store. The runaway was stopped at Second street.

Mrs. Vail, an old lady, who was crossing Park avenue, at second street had a narrow escape from being run over. She was directly in the path, but the animal shied to one side and passed her.

Seriously Affected by the Aconite.

Nathan W. Oakley, of Roselle, who nearly killed himself recently by drinking aconite by mistaking it for whiskey is in a critical condition at his home. Part of the time he is out of his mind, and the drug seems to have wrecked his system. Fred Wood, proprietor of the Aldene Villa, who also took the aconite, was able to be out yesterday for the first time.

One was Mrs. Trainor's Son.

Mrs. Trainor of this city went to Elizabeth and identified one of the runaway boys who were held at Elizabeth, as told in Tuesday's News, as her son. He had runaway from the Orphans' Home at Orange. The boy was taken back to the home.

1894 Shows Marked Success.

The opening shoot of the 1894 series of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League was held yesterday under the auspices of the Endeavor Gun Club at Jersey City Heights at Al Heritage's shooting grounds in Marion. Seven teams, representing the most prominent gun clubs in the State, took part in the main event, which was at twenty-five blue rocks per man.

In the sweepstake events there were three moneys when the entries numbered less than ten, and four moneys all over that number, the ties being divided. The next shoot will take place some time during the present month on the grounds of the Maplewood Gun Club. The team scores:

Maplewood Gun Club — Toomuns, 23; Sickley, 24; Van Dyke, 24; Drake, 23; W. Smith, 19. Total, 113.

Endeavor Gun Club of Jersey City — Hoffman, 21; Hoff, 16; McPeek, 18; Hall, 16; Herring, 15. Total, 86.

Brunswick Gun Club of New Brunswick — Pettit, 15; Fisher, 16; Voorhees, 14; Irldell, 19; Sperling, 21. Total, 85.

Plainfielders took part in the following sweepstakes!

Event No. 12—Ten blue rocks. "Dutch" Smith, 10; Hoffman, Grieff, Miller, Van Dyke, Mehl, Apgar, J. Smith, Sigler and Hobart, 9; Brenkhall, White Thomas, Compton, Terry, Geoffrey, McAlyin, and McPeek, 8; W. Smith Paul, Pettie, McCallum, Howard, Hedden, Fisher, Fletcher, and Bedwell, 7.

Event No. 15—Ten blue rocks. Hoffman, 10; Keller, 9; W. Smith, Richmond, Apgar, McAlpin, Mehl, and Collins, 8.

Theatrical Notes.

There will be another change of bill at the Star Theatre, New York, next Monday, March 5th, when William H. Crane, the comedian, will revive the comic play, "On Probation." The play was presented last season to crowded houses. It is a unpretentious work, lacking all seriousness and with a mission to create laughter. It was written by Brider Matthews, a well-known literary man, in collaboration with George H. Jessop, and is in three acts. Mr. Crane will play the part without saying. Some of the lines are very witty and several of the scenes ludicrous.

The story deals with a middle-aged American, who has a mania for flirting. The sight of a pretty face and a bright pair of eyes makes him flutter and he finds it impossible to resist the inclination to flirt. He goes abroad with his sister, his niece and his sweetheart, who, knowing his weakness to withstand the temptation attended trip through Continental Europe. The bride was Miss Genevieve J. Berne, of Cambridge, Mass. It is said she is a stranger to her young husband's relatives and friends to this city. The announcement states that the marriage took place yesterday week in this city on Thursday, February 8, in the church of the Holy Apostles. Brutal Murders.

TWO NEGROES ENTER A HOUSE TO ROB.—THEY COMMIT AWFUL MURDERS.

Last Night at Franklin Park Mrs. Baker and her Sixteen-Months-Old Baby Were Hacked to Death.—Mr. Baker Awoke in Time to Take Vengeance.—He Kills one Negro With the Same Axe Use to Kill his Wife and Shoots the Other one.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 1.—At two o'clock this morning, Mrs. Moore Baker, whose sixteen-month-old baby had been sick and restless all night, thus preventing its mother sleeping soundly, awoke and discovered two negroes named Willard Thompson and Henry Baker in her room. She screamed, and the baby, thus frightened, also screamed.

The first negro, Thompson, aged 18 years, immediately struck her several terrible blows with an axe he carried, and killed her. He also killed the baby.

Hardly were these deeds of horror accomplished when Mr. Baker, who had been sleeping in another part of the house and was awakened by his wife's screams, rushed into the room in his night clothes. A single glance showed him what had occurred, and, almost crazed, he sprang at Thompson, wrenched the bloody axe from his hands and killed him, almost dividing him with the crushing force of the three blows.

The other negro, Henry Baker, drew a revolver, shot Mr. Baker through the body and then fled.

Although probably fatally wounded, Mr. Baker flung away his axe, and, grasping a loaded shot gun nearby, pursued the murderer and literally boney-combed him with shot. The man died at six o'clock this morning.

Mr. Baker is not expected to live. He is a well-to-do farmer and had only been married two years. He had employed Henry Baker as a farm hand, and, it is presumed, the man saw him get a sum of money, about $100, yesterday, and plotted with his companion, Thompson, to secure it.

The tragedy has thrown New Brunswick and all the vicinity into the wildest excitement, as the family was prominent and popular.

LATER THREE P. M.

A coroners inquest was held on the bodies this forenoon, and a verdict was rendered of justifiable homicide in the case of Mr. Moore Baker in shooting Henry Baker and William Thompson. The over-seer of the poor buried them. The bodies of Mrs. Moore Baker and child were sent to her brother's home.

It is now believed the afflicted husband will recover.

BROKE UP A MEETING.

Toughs Invade a Gathering for Prayer and Disperse Worshipers.

Farmer Voorhees, according to the usual custom, was leading a prayer meeting last night in the school-house of Fairfield, a village a few miles from Woodbridge, when the worshipers were interrupted by a gang of toughs. After making irreverent remarks and laughing loudly at the annoyance they created, they proceeded to active violence. The few besides the congregation beat a hasty retreat and their persecutors pursued them a considerable distance. The male members of the congregation were too few to make any effective resistance.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Bills Passed and Introduced in the House.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 28.—The House met at the usual hour.

BILLS PASSED.

The following bills were passed:

H. 56, provides that the acceptance of public streets and alleys in municipalities shall depend upon whether governing bodies of such municipalities authorized their laying out.

H. 57, repeals an act relative to the sale of lands under judicial proceedings.

H. 125, makes trout fishing legal between April 1st and July 31st of each year.

H. 140, permits fishing with seines in Barnegat Bay for nine months in the year; no seine fishing during the months of June, July and August.

H. 178, gives to an officer taking an offender to the juvenile reform school the same fee that is allowed to sheriffs for taking prisoners to the State prison.

H. 49, provides that in all public schools on the Friday preceding Washington's birthday, Fourth of July, Memorial day and Thanksgiving day, patriotic exercises shall be held consisting of declamations, recitations, singing patriotic airs, etc.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 108, Mr. Wilbur, repeals the act under which five State prison inspectors are appointed by the Governor.

No. 167, Mr. Exton, provides that five State prison inspectors shall be elected by a joint meeting of the legislature for terms of five years at a salary of $500 per year.

No. 169 Mr. Olcutt—fixes salary of assistant engrossing clerks at $600; assistant doorkeepers at $450; assistant sergeant-at-arms $300; assistant bill clerks $450; assistant private secretary to the speaker $400; postmaster of House $300; officer acting as assistant to clerks of the House $450; clerks of the committees $300 each.

THE SENATE MUDDLE.

THE TESTIMONY TAKEN YESTERDAY IN TRENTON.

Daniel Dodd, Secretary, of the Constitutional Convention of 1844 an Important Witness for the Republicans.

The quo warranto proceedings before Commissioner S. M. Dickinson in the matter of the Senatorial deadlock were continued at 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon at Trenton. The first witness of the day was Daniel Dodd of Newark, who reported the proceedings of the Constitutional Convention held in 1844 for the Newark Daily Advertiser, and was then the secretary of the first Senate organized after the adoption of the constitution. He testified that none of the deliberations of the convention were on the subject of a "continuous body." Sentiment was in favor of a new body every three years and therefore the term of service was fixed at three years. Several members of the Senate of 1845 were members of the Constitutional Convention, and the witness named them. All the Senators were seated upon the presentation of their credentials. They met with equal rights and privileges. Witness was also Secretary of the Senate of 1846. The new Senators that year also participated in the temporary organization. In 1846 the witness, serving secretarial, called the new Senate to order, and all the members, holdovers and newly elected took part in the temporary organization.

To Allen L. McDermott he answered that new members were allowed to vote on the approval of their own credentials.

To Counsellor S. H. Gray he replied that at no time while he was officially connected with the Senate was there a difference in the rights or privileges of the members in regard to participation in the proceedings of temporary organization. There was never any assertion of a right on the part of Senators who held over to exclude such act in the selection and election of temporary officers. In one case a Senator whose own credentials had not yet been offered presented the credentials of another Senator, and they were accepted and approved.

Senator E. G. Stokes of Cumberland repeated the story of the Democratic organization and of the conferences held with the Democrats earlier in the day. Under cross-examination the witness admitted that he had advised in conversation with Democrats that the floor of the Senate be kept free from all persons except members of the body, officials and the representatives of the press. If the newspaper men were excluded had got in, the Republican Senators would have obtained their constitutional rights. Not one Democrat, however, objected, but the moral effect of numbers, he thought, would have resulted that way.

TARIFF CAUCUS ENDED.

Bill Returned to the Committee Without Instructions.

FIGHT MAY NOT BE SETTLED YET.

Opponents of the Bill Leave the Caucus and Go Into Close Conference—Bland Got His Quorum, but Soon Lost It Again. Pryo Makes Another Socialist Speech.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Democratic senatorial caucus on the tariff bill is over, and both sides are claiming to have made progress for the interests they represent. The outcome is in the nature of a victory for the Democratic members of the finance committee, who prepared the bill, as it was returned to them without any instructions to make changes.

Immediately after the adjournment of the caucus Senators Gorman, Brice, Hill, Smith, Murphy, Camden and one or two others, who have been known to be very much opposed to the bill of the finance committee as it was prepared by the committee, held a consultation, and their attitude was in direct contrast with the members of the finance committee.

During the three days while the tariff bill was being considered but one vote was taken, and that but a few minutes before adjournment. This was on a proposition to instruct the finance committee to put iron ore on the dutiable list without fixing any rate whatever, and this was lost by a vote of 19 to 37.

Pugh Will Not Be Bound.

Senator Pugh of Alabama stated that he would not be bound by the action of the caucus and reserved the right to offer any motion in the senate. Several senators at once declared that it would be useless to take any more votes, because if senators who had voted against the bill on the first caucus it put an end to the power of the caucus.

Soon after this Senator Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, moved that the caucus adjourn to meet at the call of the chairman, with the understanding that the finance committee would continue its work on the bill and report it as soon as possible. It is said that Senator Brice passed the adjournment resolution to Senator Voorhees, with a request that he present it. Senator Brice, who was one of the prime movers in the caucus and who during its session had been as much to say in criticism of the bill as any other senator, said that the result could not be considered in the light of a defeat for those who were instrumental in bringing about the caucus. They went into it with not more than one-quarter or one-third of the Democrats in the senate favored with them, and they came out about equally divided on the only proposition upon which there was any test whatever. Further, the men who had called the caucus understood it. The Ohio senator claimed that a great deal had been accomplished in presenting to the committee the views of individual senators upon the tariff. He believed it had been demonstrated to them that certain schedules in the bill did not meet the approval of a large number of senators, and done in a more impressive manner than could have been done without the caucus. There had been a free and full hearing for every senator, and that was a great deal more than many had been able to obtain. He said every Democratic senator between then and the time the bill is reported will be accorded a hearing by members of the finance committee.

Committee Claims a Victory.

While members of the finance committee are generally reticent, what they do say and what their friends say indicates that they look upon the caucus proceedings as a vindication of the bill which they have prepared, and instead of being instructed by the caucus they are free to press it such a bill as they think is best suited to the principles of the party and the necessities of the revenue.

It is claimed that those who brought about the caucus expected to secure votes instructing the committee to place a duty on wool, iron ore, sugar, lumber, salt and a number of other articles and increase the duty on sugar and coal, and yet upon the strongest proposition they fell short two votes. It is also alleged that the caucus prompters endeavored to have the members of the committee bind themselves to abide the result of the caucus, and yet the men stood out against it, and it is claimed that they would not abide the result when they sustained defeat.

Opinion seems to be divided as to whether the committee will now make any changes. The impression is that some changes of a minor nature will be made, as well as some concessions granted to meet the demands have been apparently just and where the changes will not necessitate other changes in the bill. These matters were brought out in the conference held with Senator Voorhees while the senate was in session. At that time Senator Voorhees talked about sugar. He said his constituents might sustain him in voting a duty on sugar because he felt toward Louisiana as he did toward a neighbor, and the duty would result in revenue, but they would not sustain him in voting to give the Sugar trust any advantage over the producers. He would like to grant some concessions to the Louisiana senators, but could not make such concessions as they demanded. This is regarded as the sentiment of the caucus by those who were in its progress. It is thought that if the finance committee makes any changes in the bill they will be almost entirely on the lines suggested by Senator Voorhees.

Caucus Asks For Harmony.

The afternoon session of the caucus presented some interesting features, and although it was expected that there would be more voting and not very much talk it turned out that it was devoted almost exclusively to talk. Senator Gorman made the principal speech of the afternoon. It was moderate and conciliatory in tone. He said a great deal about the necessity of party harmony and of getting a bill that would command the solid support of the Democratic party.

Senator Gorman expressed the belief that it would be impracticable to attempt to amend or make a tariff bill in caucus. Senator Pugh's motion for a duty on iron ore had been made the day before, and he was anxious for a vote, but at the request of Senator Brice he withdrew it. The pending question was the resolution of Senator Martin instructing the finance committee to make a number of changes in the bill, in order to get a test on the first one proposition Senator Martin withdrew his resolution, and the vote was taken, with the result above noted, which practically put an end to the caucus.

It is possible that had the caucus continued the Democratic members of the finance committee would not have attended, as the arrangements made for meals to consider the bill with Secretary Carlisle.

It is expected that the bill will now be discussed for as much as possible. One member of the committee said he expected that the bill would be reported to the full committee by Saturday, and efforts will be made to get it into the senate early next week.

The Republicans look upon the result of the caucus as one of distinct advantage to them, especially from a political point of view. It is thought that the strength which the opponents of the measure have shown indicates that the bill will either be radically amended in the senate or that it may be postponed to the first Monday in December. The probabilities are that the Democratic opposition may be very much like that in the house, making a great show now in order to secure concessions, but in the end will melt away and the bill pass.

Bland's Quorum Elected.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The deadlock in the house was broken after two weeks of continuous filibustering against the Bland seigniorage bill, and no sooner had the quorum been procured than the house managers brought it to a speedy end in order to crush the filibusters and bring the bill to a direct vote after two hours of additional debate. Although Mr. Bland secured 184 votes when the roll-call was broken (several eastern Democrats, including Messrs. Cummings, Cleary and Magner of New York and Forney of Jersey, refusing to act longer with the filibusters), Messrs. Doolittle, Aitken, Ellis of Oregon and Lacey, Republicans, stopped voting in the last roll-call, and the previous question on the adoption of the order was only sustained by one more than a quorum.

When it came to voting upon the special order, Messrs. Bowers, Lucas and Pickler, Republicans, and Dunn, Democrat, again joined the silent host, and the quorum was lost, only 176 members responding to their names.

The fight will be resumed again today, and if a quorum is secured on the adoption of the rule a vote on the passage of the bill cannot be prevented. Mr. Bland believes it will have a majority of from 5 to 10 votes.

The senate held a two hours' session, the whole of which was given to a speech by Senator Frye in opposition to President Cleveland's Hawaiian policy. After a short executive session the senate adjourned.

TRAGEDY IN A HOTEL.

Fletcher McNabb Shoots an Actress and Then Kills Himself.

PITTSBURG, March 1.—E. J. McNabb, who last year plunged for the Baltimore base ball team, shot and fatally wounded Mrs. R. E. Rockwell and then turned the revolver on himself and ended his own existence instantly. The tragedy occurred in the Hotel Eiffel, opposite the city hall, this city, where McNabb and the woman had entered Tuesday night, registering as E. J. McNabb and wife.

Mrs. Rockwell, who is a daughter of F. J. Lewis, a prominent man of Bradford, Pa., has been playing with the Bostonians. The woman claimed that a great deal had been accomplished in presenting to the committee the views of individual senators upon the tariff. He believed it had been demonstrated to them that certain schedules in the bill did not meet the approval of a large number of senators, and done in a more impressive manner than could have been done without the caucus. MISCREANTS AT LARGE.

MOTIVE FOR THE DEED UNKNOWN.

Man Was Seen to Throw a Gunpipe Patent on the Porch and Then Run—Explosion Fortunately Was Not Fatal—Mysterious Attempt at Arson In Camden, N. J.

LANCASTER, Pa., March 1.—An attempt was made to blow up the private residence of Dr. J. Hay Brown, one of the most prominent physicians of this city. A dynamite bomb was the weapon used. A portion of the porch surrounding the residence was torn away, and the iron fence surrounding it was bent and twisted. The heavy plate glass windows were shattered, while with in the parlor the pictures were destroyed and other damage wrought.

The family was asleep, and the sleepers were almost literally shaken out of their beds by the force of the explosion.

The house is located on North Lime street, in one of the quietest residence sections of the city. The residence of Attorney General Hensel is located but a half a block away, and the police station is also not far distant. The whole neighborhood was terribly aroused by the explosion, and the street was soon thronged with excited citizens.

How the Man Threw It.

Luther R. Hensler, a clerk in the Internal revenue office, who was on his way home, says he saw a man pass under the gas light opposite Dr. Baker's residence and a moment later noticed that the light had been extinguished. He saw the man stop at the porch and strike a match, as if to light a cigar. He thought nothing of the occurrence and watched the man as he disappeared down an alley adjoining Dr. Baker's residence.

As Mr. Hensler approached the house he was startled by a flash, followed instantly by a terrific detonation. Something struck him in the leg, from which it tore a portion of the skin. This was undoubtedly a small piece of the exploded bomb. Another fragment was buried against the residence of Dr. Frank Muhlenburg, living over a block away. This was found to be a small piece of iron gaspipe, with a double screw attached. Other houses in the neighborhood were rudely shaken, and the inmates hurried into the street, thinking there had been an earthquake.

It is evident that the miscreant who attempted this deed was either not familiar with explosives or did not take time to properly place the petard. He must have thrown it upon the porch after lighting the fuse. Had it been placed underneath the porch, it would have demolished the building. This is the third dynamite outrage attempted in this city within the past month, but this incident is by far the most serious in its results. No possible motive for the deed can be advanced, and the police authorities are a more fiendish one than to injure the sleeping occupants of the house.

A Mysterious Incendiary.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 1.—Two attempts to burn the residence of Edward Hayden, at Fifth and Mount Vernon streets, were made by unknown parties. Mrs. Hayden noticed a smell of coal oil. When she opened the front door, she found the woodwork about the door blazing fiercely. The other members of the family were aroused and the flames extinguished. The door and steps had been saturated with oil before the match was applied. While all the members of the family were gathered in the parlor talking about the affair a second attempt was made, but the flames were extinguished before they had made much headway. A watch has been set upon the house to prevent any further attempts.

Jackson Inquest at Ithaca.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 1.—The coroner's jury in the Jackson case met this morning at the courthouse. Policeman Clapp has served a subpœna on Earl L. Dimmins to appear before the jury. Over $100 has been collected thus far among the students for the burial fund of Mrs. Jackson. If there remains a surplus after paying the burial expenses, it will be expended in providing a monument for the grave and food and fuel for the bereaved family.

Well Known Chicago Woman Dead.

MINERS IN DANGER.

Imprisoned by a Fall of Coal, but Rescued by Hard Work.

ASHLAND, Pa., March 1.—Five men were imprisoned in the Boston Run mine at this place as the result of a fall of coal. There was every reason to believe that the men would soon be released, as it was known they were safe from the effects of water. The mine is operated by the Reading Coal and Iron company, and at the time of the accident these were six men at work in it. They were Joseph and John Mowlers, two brothers; Charles Mahon, Louis White, Edward Mengel, James Kramer and Will Sam Ervine.

They were in one of the upper lifts when a large fall of crop and surface coal took place, filling the gangway and choking it up completely, the outside of all means of escape for the imprisoned men. As soon as the accident was discovered Superintendent Veith and a squad of rescuers explored the mine and began the work of extricating the men from their perilous position. They found but little trouble in making good headway, as the fall was loose and light. Soon they heard tappings on the other side of the wall upon which they were working, and a few minutes later the men were assured by faint but cheerful cries from the imprisoned miners.

The men were conveyed to the rear and that had collected at the entrance of the mine, and a great shout went up when it became known that the poor fellows were at least alive and that a repetition of the Wilkesbarre horror was improbable. Two hours later the rescuers came upon a pocket to which they found the Mowlers' brothers safe and sound without a scratch of any kind.

From them they learned that the other men were about 30 yards further in the mine, but were all right when caught in the fall come. The men who had been in each deadly peril turned with a will, after they had assured their wives and friends that they were both unhurt, and aided in the work of releasing their companions in misfortune from their unpleasant predicament.

SHOT AT A CHARIVARI.

The Bride Under Arrest, Charged With Killing a Prominent Citizen.

NORWICH, N. Y., March 1.—Alonzo Phillips of Afton was shot and killed by Mrs. Florence Parker. Mrs. Parker, who is about 40 years of age, was recently married to Duncan Parker, who is over 60. The afternoon and evening of the monument in the community, and the neighbors decided to have a little fun at the expense of the newly married couple. They accordingly organized a "horning," as it is called.

In a body, about 30 strong, they proceeded to the home of Parker, where they made night hideous by the noise of every conceivable kind. Not content with this, they threw snowballs and stones at the house. The cacophony went on uninterruptedly for a time, when Mrs. Parker appeared at the door and told the crowd that they had gone far enough, and that if they did not stop some one would get hurt.

Her warning was received with jeers, and the noise continued with increased vigor. Suddenly a flash was seen, a report heard, and Alonzo Phillips fell to the ground mortally wounded. He was taken to a neighboring house and died soon after.

An inquest was held, and the jury found that he came to his death from a shot fired by Florence Parker. Mrs. Parker was arrested. Phillips was a respected citizen and had been prominent in local politics. He leaves a widow and several children. The village is intensely excited over the killing, and while the Phillips family has the sympathy and respect of all there are many who think that Mrs. Parker was perfectly justified in her act.

The Bulger Brothers Disagree.

OSWEGO, N. Y., March 1.—Charles N. Bulger, leader of the Hill Democracy in Oswego county, appealed to Supreme Court Judge Wright to prevent his brother, Dr. William J. Bulger, the Cleveland leader here, from running for mayor. He appealed on the ground that the 500 signatures attached to his brother's petition were not in conformity with law, and that the order granted by Police Justice Grant in 1873 forbidding federal officeholders holding municipal office. Dr. Bulger is collector of the port of Oswego and is the people's candidate for mayor. The judge decided that the signatures are all right and that Dr. Bulger may run.

Iron Worker Bruised Alive.

BRADDOCK, Pa., March 1.—Another terrible explosion occurred at Furnace G of the Edgar Thomson series. The furnace was shattered almost from pit to dome. Half a dozen men were working on the top of the furnace, and how all but one escaped is a mystery. George Kachinich was broiled from head to foot, all his clothing being burned from his body. Slight hopes are entertained for this man's recovery.

Doujee, the Letter Writer, Sentenced.

BALTIMORE, March 1.—Joseph Doujee was convicted by a jury in the United States court here of violating the section of the Revised Statutes in regard to mailing threatening postal cards. Doujee mailed a postal card to Vice President Stevenson demanding $25. Judge Morrison sentenced Doujee to 18 months in the penitentiary.

OUTBREAK IN THE MINES

Four Hundred Armed Strikers Besiege a Tipple.

BULLETS FLY FOR TWO HOURS.

West Virginia Troops Called Out and Hurried Toward the Scene of the Fight—One Miner Killed and Eleven Wounded During the Encounter.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 1.—Governor McCorkle received a dispatch from Eagle, a mining town on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, reporting a meeting of strikers from New River and Mount Carbon, and a battle following Early. Some 400 men were present. It was determined to proceed to Eagle and force the working miners to come out. They went down to Wyatt's mine at Eagle, about 200 strong, without organization, but with 50 guns. The working miners had taken refuge in the tipple. All were armed.

The strikers approached by the mountain above the tipple, and when within about 100 yards they began firing. The men in the tipple replied with telling effect, killing one man and wounding several.

The firing lasted for two hours. The proprietor feared further trouble, and the sheriff telegraphed Governor McCorkle for troops. Accordingly the governor has ordered Company A, of the national guard of this city and Company G of Huntington to march at once. They will reach Eagle this forenoon.

Situation Grows More Serious.

A telegram from Eagle states that the situation is growing more serious. The strikers are in a wild state and will not listen to reason. They say they will kill Wyant and burn his property.

Their numbers have been increased by 80 additional men from Mann's Creek and Montgomery who are well armed.

They threaten to cut the telegraph wires and tear up the railroad. Superintendent Knapp of the Chesapeake and Ohio has the track guarded.

Deputy Sheriff Koontz says there will be another attack and that he cannot repulse it. He will be cautious about firing. One man has been killed and 11 have been wounded so far.

Gladstone Rumors.

LONDON, March 1.—The Chronicle maintains that, although Mr. Gladstone has not resigned, he will probably do so either when parliament is prorogued or when it reassembles for the session. It mentions the rumor about Earl Spencer succeeding Mr. Gladstone as prime minister and says that from the first the former has refused the premiership. It ridicules the idea of a Radical revolt against Lord Rosebery. The Standard says that if Gladstone's resignation is not tendered within a few days it will probably be deferred until the queen's return from Florence. The Times, in a leading article, says it is improbable now that Mr. Gladstone's interview with the queen will affect bearing upon the crisis in the cabinet.

Their Fifth Divorce Suit.

EMPORIA, Kan., March 1.—A remarkable divorce suit ended in the district court here. Mary C. Davis sued her husband, John Davis, for a divorce and $4,000 alimony. She got it, but with the alimony reduced to $1,700. This is the fifth time one or the other of these two has sued for divorce, and this time the divorce has been annulled by a remarriage. The couple are among the oldest and wealthiest citizens of the county, with a family of grown up children.

LEADS A QUIET LIFE.

THE WIDOW OF GEORGE W. CHILDS NOT A SOCIETY WOMAN.

In Some Ways Very Like Her Famous Husband—Peculiarities of a Woman Who Avoids Display and Is Retiring to the Point of Timidity.

In all that has been written of the late George W. Childs, of his charities, his philanthropies and of the depth and breadth of his great love of all mankind, there has been but the merest mention of Mrs. Childs and the place she occupied in the life of her distinguished husband.

Philadelphians, as a rule, know very little about her. They can tell you that she was Emma Bouvier Peterson before her marriage and the daughter of the publisher in whose establishment her husband made his early start in life. Beyond this, only a few possess any information of the domestic life in the Childs mansion and the personality of its mistress.

Emma Bouvier Childs is a slender little woman, small featured, dark complexioned and of an exceedingly nervous temperament. Her finde expression in the anxious endeavor with which she regards the most trifling details of the management of her household affairs. Although provided with a competent staff of servants, Mrs. Childs insists upon a general personal supervision of everything. One of her marked peculiarities is a most intense aversion for dust, and much of her time is spent at home in minute inspection of the corners and hangings to discover if possible the slightest speck left by the maid after the regular morning dusting.

Mrs. Childs has never been what might be called a society woman. She enjoyed the friendship of the most distinguished families of Philadelphia, the Cadwaladers, the Peters, the Biddles, the Rodmans and others of equal social distinction, but fashionable functions at her home or entertainments given privately by others were unknown. It was her custom to lunch two or three times a week with these intimate friends. In these visits she was almost always accompanied by her niece, Miss Peterson, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. Childs in childhood up to the time of her marriage to Robert H. McCarter.

Mrs. Childs' most intimate friends were the daughters of the late General Robert Patterson, the only exception was here. She probably visited there more than anywhere else in Philadelphia. General Patterson lived in a spacious old mansion at Chestnut and Locust streets. It was laid out on the plan of an English country house, with a courtyard, servants' halls and numerous kitchen fireplaces. It had open grates, and candles were given to the guests to go to bed with. Of the Patterson girls Mrs. Childs was very fond, one of them, Mrs. Thomas, afterward became Mrs. John Drexel. Her conversation at these informal luncheons both at home and abroad was largely occupied by a discussion of Mr. Childs' latest benefactions. These were so numerous, so varied and often brought out such peculiarly pathetic stories of suffering that they formed a fruitful theme any time day and week after week.

Mrs. Childs rarely appeared in public with her husband. The theater had no attractions for her. Once or twice a year perhaps she would consent to see Edwin Booth or some equally distinguished actor, but for the ordinary dramatic attraction she had no inclination. Occasionally during the opera season she would occupy a box with Mr. Childs, and on those occasions the somberness of her apparel was in such marked contrast with the brilliant costumes about her as to excite the very attention she sought to avoid. The daughter of the late Dr. Ian Stanley has lived with the Childses for 20 years. Before Miss Peterson's marriage, which took place about five years ago, the three were continually together, and to-day she is the constant companion of Mrs. Childs.

The widow of the dead philanthropist came to possess, probably by constant association, many of her husband's traits and characteristics. Her servants have been with her for a generation. Such a thing as dismissal is absolutely unknown. From the scullery maid to the butler every servant was sure of a liberal present at Christmas, and the family physician's services were always ready in case of illness. Mrs. Childs carried out the same generous policy in her home as her husband did in the office of The Public Ledger. If a servant became incapacitated by illness or injury, he or she was pensioned off for life and not infrequently provided with a little home. If marriage instead of illness—and it wasn't very often—Mrs. Childs took pleasure in giving the girl a substantial wedding present to start in life with, and on such occasions Mr. Childs generally stepped in himself and added something handsome. The same rule of kindness and consideration extended from the house hold to the stable. It was an invariable rule of Mrs. Childs that her carriage horses should never be out of their stalls after dark. If a conveyance was needed in the evening, it was hired from the nearest liveryman.

Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Childs accepted any invitations to dinners. It was found necessary to make this rule about 15 years ago, and it was at Mrs. Childs' suggestion. She found the invitations increasing so rapidly that to accept even a third of them would take her away from home every night in the week and every week in the year. This did not suit her ideas at all, and the result was that all calls to dinner parties were thereafter declined without any exception. Her evenings have always been spent at home. In the summer the Philadelphia mansion at Twenty-second and Walnut streets has been closed and the country house at Wootton opened. Mrs. Childs spent most of her time in that charming place, Mr. Childs running down occasionally to his Long Branch cottage from Philadelphia for a day or two and then back to Wootton.

Mrs. Childs is a member of St. James Protestant Episcopal church, of which her deceased husband was a vestryman. Anything like ostentatious display has always been distasteful to her, and it has been her custom for many years to reach church early, enter the pew quietly and at the conclusion of the services go very little time in social exchanges. It was in no sense any desire to be superstitious that charming place, Mr. Childs running down occasionally to his Long Branch cottage from Philadelphia for a day or two and then back to Wootton.

M. GOLDMANN, Prop. 210 WEST FRONT ST REET. (Old No. 84.)

Two doors from Music Hall.

FIXED IN POPULAR FAVOR.

The Cost, Simple or Elaborate, Seems to Be There to Stay.

Satin and moire are both much used at present, satin being the more serviceable of the two unless the best quality of moire is purchased. Since independent waists have started such a vogue, a black silk or satin skirt is almost a desideratum, so it may appropriately accompany a house or a theater bodice or be worn with one of the full skirted coats now so fashionable. Satin faced velvets and plushes—for plush is again forcing its way to the front—are often used for coats and capes, as the satin back does away with the necessity for a lining.

Brocade is of course equally appropriate for these garments. The coats are cut with the umbrella skirt one with the bodice, or the skirt may be sewed on just below the waist line. Revers are an almost invariable feature. Passementerie jet and lace are the favorite trimmings, with large buttons for the coat itself and small ones to match for the sleeves. These buttons come in painted porcelain, steel and mother of pearl and are also used to ornament skirts.

The large coats are double or cavalry baques, but the single skirted variety is less still and more becoming to most persons. A pink trimmed with black tips.

JESSIE CROLLET.

BEWILDERING NEW BODICES.

Are Equal to the Velocity Created by the Modiste at Present.

There is practically no limit to the variety of fancy bodices now shown, and the display is certainly bewildering. The simple tucked silk blouse, which was the forerunner of all the narrow, is almost quite out of sight of, the newest approach to it being accordion plaited waists of crepon, thin silk or chiffon, to be worn with gold embroidered figure jackets. Elaborate ornamentation runs riot, and sleeves remain as wide, if not as high, as ever, although it was no confidently predicted that they would collapse. In many cases they have grown short, as all events, and reach only to the elbow. The old fashioned berths, simplified to suit the present taste, is much used with both high and low bodices, and lace is employed in profusion.

The latest models for theater and evening wear have no basque, or at most a short frill or flare just below the waist line, which gives a suggestion of the farthingale. Accordion pleated pierrot ruffs have made their appearance as accessories to add to the bizarre effect. One black velvet dinner bodice seems simplicity itself among so many frills and furbelows. It is entirely plain and cut with a short flaring basque. The low neck is round and has a sort of plain collar or peleine wide over the shoulders and tapering to nothing where it meets in front. The elbow sleeves consist of a double puff of velvet, with length wise bands of passementerie sewed on. A band of passementerie comes from under the arms and runs up to a point at the junction of the collar in front, simulating a corselet.

The latest gown shown for illustration is also of velvet, but of a less severe style. The close fitting velvet bodice has a ribbon velvet belt fastening in front under a rosette with long ends. Below the belt expands a very narrow box pleating of the velvet. A plastron of ivory lace, wide across the chest, tapers down to a point at the waist line and is crossed over the bust by two velvet bands ending in rosettes. The elbow sleeves are composed of ribbon velvet and lace and terminate in velvet loops and a lace frill. A velvet rosette adorns each shoulder and closes the high collar.

JESSIE CROLLET.

SKIRT AND COAT COSTUME.

handsome coat seen the other day was of ruby velvet trimmed with flowered brocade of a pinkish tone. A jabot of ivory lace completed the costly effect in this case, and nothing could be more fitting for a dress occasion.

A plain, close vest is eminently proper, however, especially for ordinary use, or the opening may be concealed by a plastron. Indeed the coat, simple or elaborate, suits itself to all the exigencies of life in these days and seems to be firmly fixed in popular favor.

An illustration is given of a visiting costume composed of a satin skirt and velvet coat. The skirt is of walking length and perfectly plain, but the coat is more elaborate, having a wide collarette of brocade, which drapes over the front and is fastened at the left side of the waist under a bow and sash of the same material. The velvet sleeves are tight below the elbow, but have a puff beginning just above it and extending to the shoulder. This puff is surmounted by a fall of wide lace. The neck has a high velvet collar and also a flaring ornamental collar of the brocade. This model would look exceedingly well made up crepon in black and worn with a colored silk

CORBETT ON TRIAL.

The Champion Pleads Not Guilty to Abusing Charles Mitchell.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 1.—Champion James J. Corbett is now on trial before Judge Phillips in the criminal court of this city for engaging in a prize fight with Charles Mitchell on 27th inst. Last January. If Corbett is found guilty, then Mitchell will be tried, and after the Englishman has been disposed of J. E. T. Bowden, late manager of the Duval Athletic club; Tom Jo Vendig and Louis Sibler will be tried on a charge of aiding and abetting the fight.

There was a large crowd of people gathered about the courthouse when Corbett arrived, accompanied by his manager, William A. Brady. John E. Hartridge, attorney for the club here, rose and stated that he waived the arraignment of Corbett and entered a plea of not guilty. Solicitor Christie then announced that Corbett would be tried on the information which he read and which charged that "James J. Corbett, late of Duval county, in the state of Florida, on the 25th day of January, in the year 1894, in pursuance of previous appointment, had agreed and intended to meet and engage in a fight with Charles Mitchell, and did then and there meet said person in a fight with the said Charles Mitchell, and did then and there beat, bruise, wound and ill treat said Charles Mitchell."

The work of impaneling a jury was then begun. The witnesses for the state all testified that Corbett seemed good natured during the three rounds, save at the time when he was struck with the head and fell on Mitchell. When court adjourned, the state still had several witnesses to examine. It is understood that Richard K. Fox of New York will be the only witness offered by the defense. He will be introduced as an expert to prove that glove contests cannot be faked.

The trial will conclude today. The impression is that conviction is impossible. In fact, there were certain phases of the trial that savored of the farcical. I, however, a conviction is secured, the case will go to Judge Call on appeal.

NO STAY FOR M'KANE.

His Lawyers Gave Up After Two Attempts Failed.

LITTLE FALLS, N. Y., March 1.—Another unsuccessful attempt was made by John Y. McKane's lawyers to get a stay of sentence. On this time it was made before Judge George A. Hardin of the supreme court, who became famous 20 years ago by granting a writ of certiorari in the case of William M. Tweed and since yearly, refusing to admit the celebrated criminal to bail.

George Roderick and Milton C. Gray of Brooklyn and ex-Senator Albert M. Mills of Little Falls made the arguments before Judge Hardin. McKane's lawyers came here from Albany and were accompanied by Michael Daly and Colonel Reilly, two intimate friends of McKane. They went to the Givan House, but did not register.

They went to the office of Judge Hardin, and Mr. Roderick immediately began telling the court the object of his appearance. He explained how McKane and the election inspectors were indicted together. He contended that his client, having been indicted with them, was really guilty of a misdemeanor and said that the proceedings were illegal.

Then the court asked what the population of Gravesend was. Mr. Roderick said
